Hallowe'en Riot Rocks B.C. Town

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A riot by 400 screaming, rock-throwing teen-agers in White Rock, B.C., two deaths in Quebec, scores of injuries and some vandalism marred Hallowe'en fun across Canada Saturday night.

Hallowe'en was generally celebrated a day early this year, moving Sunday to recuperate for All Saints' Day today in Quebec. And police had their hands full.

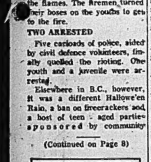
The White Rock, B.C., incident was touched off when a group of youths in the U.S. border resort community stole four wooden bicycle racks from a school and blocked off a road. The crowd swelled. Youths piled lumber, buried gasoline - filled bottles and set the barricades ablaze.

When police moved in the rock - throwing began. Several policemen suffered minor injuries and a fire truck and one patrol car were badly dented by rocks.

RCMP said youths tried to prevent firemen from douching the flames. The firemen turned their hoses on the youths to get to the fire.

TWO ARRESTED

Five carloads of police, aided by civil defence volunteers, finally quelled the rioting. One youth and a juvenile were arrested.



Elsewhere in B.C., however, it was a different Hallowe'en. Rain, a ban on firecrackers and a host of parties aged partiesa sponsored by communities.

Hallowe'en was somewhat quieter in Ontario and Quebec as compared with other years.

The summary: The lots collected their candy and peppies for UNICEF, the teens a-go-goed and the adults either stayed at home or partied.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cold air continues to pour southward and variable skies with a few showers or snowflurries are forecast for the southern half of the province while clear but cold weather is the prospect in the north.

Rhodesian Africans Opposing Commission

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson says he believes a Rhodesian settlement is possible. But Rhodesia's two leading African nationalist leaders have rejected plans for a royal commission to work out a settlement.

Wilson returned Sunday night from talks in Rhodesia to report to Parliament today on the agreement he reached with Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith to set up a three-man royal commission that will seek a formula for conditions under which the self-governing central African colony could be granted independence.

The British leader said he agreement has provided time for careful thought.

Conditions had been created in which the terrible disaster which I believe was imminent this weekend, can be averted," he said, adding:

"We can, given the time, get a settlement. You cannot settle this problem by military force. There must be a lot of goodwill on both sides."

British newspaper commentators agreed that Wilson's mission had bought time for more negotiations but they generally did not consider as bright the prospects for an acceptable settlement.

Wilson went to Rhodesia after the colony's ruling white minority threatened to declare independence without yielding to British demands for guaranteed progressing eventual rule of the colony's 4,000,000 Negroes. The white population numbers about 220,000.

Wilson told reporters his Commons statement would deal with the differences between Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and himself on the terms of reference for the royal commission.

"With common sense this problem can be solved. The atmosphere in Rhodesia is highly charged with emotion and fear, which are not conducive to a negotiated settlement."

He described the royal commission as providing "a means of canvassing views of all Rhodesian people."

The commission is intended to consult opinion in Rhodesia on an amended version of the 1961 constitution which would be acceptable to Rhodesians and to the British government as a basis for independence.

The leader of one of Rhodesia's two African nationalist parties, Joshua Nkomo, said in a statement that British was evading its responsibilities in proposing the royal commission. He termed it "a time-wasting device."

The leader of the other nationalist party, Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, issued a statement "unreservedly rejecting the idea of a commission."

Big Wait Going To Ottawa

Passengers travelling to Ottawa from the Quinte district have a long stopover in Brockville — because of a 21-minute difference in train schedules. Returning, the wait could be as long as seven hours.

The delay was confirmed today by the CPR which Friday announced it would continue its Brockville - Ottawa dayliner link.

Earlier the railroad had planned to terminate the dayliner run at Smiths Falls—to link up with its own Toronto-Montreal train services.

Friday it confirmed to the Board of Transport Commissioners it would continue its Brockville run to link with the CN Toronto-Montreal services.

MAIN SCHEDULES

However, it was revealed over the weekend, the evening eastbound CN Toronto-Montreal train—which services the Quinte District through Belleville—arrives in Brockville at 8.11 p.m.

The CPR dayliner arrives at 7.40 p.m., and departs on its Ottawa run at 7.50 p.m.

Coming from Ottawa, passengers miss a westbound train by 38 minutes. It leaves Brockville at 7.02 p.m.

Coming from Ottawa to Belleville, passengers who reach Brockville on the CPR dayliner at 7.40 p.m. will have to wait until 12.03 a.m. to board a train for Belleville, on every day except Sunday. On Sunday the first train out of Brockville for Belleville does not leave Brockville until 3 a.m., involving a wait of over seven hours.

Bound for Ottawa, the Belleville passenger who wishes to leave Brockville on the dayliner at 7.50 p.m. will have to leave Belleville at 2.20 p.m., will arrive in Brockville at 4.25 p.m. and will then have to wait for almost three and a half hours.

A spokesman at CPR head office in Montreal told the Intelligencer this morning, the company had nothing to add at this time to earlier statements on the situation.

3 Missile Launching Sites Wiped Out by U.S. Bombers

SAIGON (AP)—Battling their way through heavy missile and conventional anti-aircraft fire, U.S. Navy and air force planes hit three surface-to-air missile launching sites Sunday about 25 miles north of Hanoi, a U.S. military spokesman said.

(Reuters news agency quoted a U.S. spokesman as saying missiles were wiped out. About 45 planes took part in the 20-minute raid.)

One navy plane was shot down and the pilot was listed as missing.

They said they observed hits on launchers and vehicles in the target areas of all three installations.

A highway bridge in the midst of the missile installations was destroyed, the spokesman said.

The attacks on the missile sites were ordered after missiles were fired at planes from the carriers Oriskany and Independence during a bombing raid on the key Hanoi highway bridge. It was in the centre of the missile installations.

No missiles were launched from the site after the final run on the target, pilots reported.

At almost the same time, an air force F-105 Thunderchiefs led by a Navy A-4 Skyhawk were bombing the two other installations nearby.

The action over the missile area was the heaviest so far disclosed in the air war against North Viet Nam.

The air force planes dropped 16 tons of 500- and 750-pound bombs and fired thousands of rounds of 20-millimetre cannon fire on the missile installations they hit, a spokesman said.

Six U.S. planes are believed to have been shot down by missiles installed by the Russians in North Viet Nam.

Anti-Red War Spreads To Celebes in Indonesia

JAKARTA (CP)—The Indonesian army reported today it had thrown back a major attack by 500 Communists as fighting flared in fresh areas of the republic.

Four Communists and one army corporal were killed in the battle, which took place on Thursday, the army announcement said.

Meanwhile, the official Antara news agency reported today that fighting between armed bands of Communists and religious groups had spread to the northern part of the island of Celebes.

The report followed news of a fierce struggle raging in central Java where armed Communists were reported in control of vast regions. Third Deputy Premier Chaerul Saleh has described the situation as civil war.

Indonesia's Communists are strongest in central Java. Many fled there from Jakarta after the abortive Oct. 1 coup.

Police patrols in northern Celebes today hunted down Communists who had fled into the jungles. Antara said a Christian was stabbed to death in church at Tondano and two local civil defence members were killed in a battle with Communists at Tandeduru.

The agency also reported army troops in Minahasa, another part of northern Celebes, had rounded up suspects believed involved in the coup attempt.

They seized Communist documents exposing a plan to drop 50,000 weapons from foreign sources, Antara said.

The military commander in central Java, Brig. Gen. Surjo Sumpeno, said today that terrorism by young Communists is becoming "increasingly serious" and ordered Surakarta, he called on his troops to destroy them.

Make Boats Quit Cuba In Storm

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Scores of Cuban refugees, many of them seasick and dripping wet, arrived today and some charged that Cuban authorities had forced them to sail the treacherous waters of the Florida Straits.

They were the first to cross the 90-mile stretch of water between the United States and Cuba since the start of a storm Saturday morning.

The refugee boat sank 10 miles out of Cuba, its captain said, and he charged that Cuban officials "shoved us off into 25-knot winds and waves up to 15 feet."

Jorge Cano of Belle Glade, Fla., skipper of the Smarty, added: "they are in a hurry to get all the boats out of Cardenas now that the airlift is about to start."

Conclusion of an agreement for a U.S.-Cuban airlift of refugees was awaited. It would supplant the 25-day-long, do-it-yourself sea shuttle which had a backlog of five missing and one drowned.

Cano, another crew member and six refugees who had set out from Camarioca, the Cuban exit port, were brought to Key West aboard a coast guard cutter.

The Little Mike, another boat, brought 77 additional refugees and the Lemon Drop arrived with 27.

Brenda Pinkham, 54 East Dundas Street, frugs Saturday at the Ghost A-go-go. The dance was sponsored jointly by the Jaycees and the Recreation Commission, and was given credit by authorities in keeping the incidence of Hallowe'en vandalism minimal.

Tight Money Issue Enters Campaign in Final Week

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The tight money issue—that the old standby of Canadian politics—has been revived as the election campaign enters its final week.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker told Nova Scotia rallies Saturday that Finance Minister Gordon is reported ready to introduce tight money measures after next Monday's vote.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said in Montreal that if the Liberals are re-elected, they will impose credit restrictions that will hurt small businessmen.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Pearson was predicting in Vancouver that his party will win "a few more" seats than the 141 total forecast by Southam News Services. The Liberals had 129 seats in the last Parliament, six short of a majority.

New Democratic Leader Douglas said in Burnaby, B.C., he would not join a coalition government but would be ready to support any minority government that agreed to implement the NDP's promises.

Social Credit Leader Thompson said in Hamilton that Mr. Pearson is trying to "stampede" the people into voting Liberal by saying that another election would soon be inevitable if the government failed to get a majority.

Mr. Diefenbaker told 850 persons in Digby, N.S., Saturday night that the Pearson government is "floundering from chaos to chaos."

He said imports are rising sharply and the government soon would be in a difficult financial position. This was one of the "reasons an election had been called at this time.

At an afternoon rally attended by 1,500 in Yarmouth, N.S., Mr. Diefenbaker said tight money would be "a policy of disaster," paralyzing business and boosting living costs.

Many Areas Without Power Due to Gale-force Winds

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winds slackened off to 15 miles an hour today after gusts battered central and southern Ontario during the weekend.

The falling winds were in contrast to the gales of 72 miles an hour Sunday that cut off power, blanketed traffic and shipping, felled trees and blew away roofing.

Cold air is pushing down over the prairie provinces, with light snowflurries here and there, as a large high moves in, the weather bureau said.

Temperatures dropped to 12 above overnight at Chapleau, 80 miles north of Sudbury. In the south they will register 28 tonight at Toronto and Kitchener, 32 at Peterborough - Kingston and in the 'teens in northern areas.

Sections of Midland, Penetanguishene, Oshawa, Toronto, Orillia and Waterloo were without power Sunday afternoon because of line breaks.

And it's expected to be several days before traffic through the Welland Canal is back to normal. A total of 65 ships were halted, when the canal was closed in the afternoon. It was reopened late Sunday. Early this morning there were 16 ships in Lake Erie waiting in Lake Ontario and 10 in Lake Erie.

A Wolfe Island, off Kingston, part of the department of highways dock was washed out and the Wolfe Island-Kingston ferry service was disrupted.

In Midland, an uprooted tree crashed into a house and three cars were wrecked by a falling power pole. In Port McNicoll a man discovered the porch recently added in front of his house in the front yard.

Firemen in Toronto answered close to 100 calls from residents reporting toppled trees. Winds up to 60 miles an hour tore slabs of sheet metal off a seven-storey apartment under construction and hurled them to the ground below.

David Walkeden, who lives near the building, said there was a "noise like thunder" as 20 of the metal sheets were blown down. Police shut off the area and warned residents through a loudspeaker.

The strongest gusts of 72 miles an hour were reported at Toronto International and Centralia in the London area.

Police across the province reported no injuries from the storm. But in the Toronto suburb of North York, a fireman was killed while a portable power saw he was using to cut a tree entangled in hydro wires. He was treated in hospital and released.

The Toronto weather office said the storm was not unusual for the province around this time of year. Winds blew at a steady 30 to 40 miles an hour most of Sunday, gusting to 60 miles an hour in the Toronto area.

An intense storm centre in northwest Minnesota which passed through North Bay Sunday was blamed for the high winds. It brought some rain and snow to the Muskoka region.

Children Collect $150 For UNICEF

A successful UNICEF canvass was held by the school children of Glen Miller and Johnstown schools Friday, October 29 collecting $150.17 towards this worthy cause. The money is used by UNICEF (The United Nations' Children's Fund) to supply food, milk, vaccine, train teachers to help raise the standards of child care in the underprivileged countries of the world. Just one cent will buy five glasses of milk.

The Glen Miller Home and School Association sponsored UNICEF night with Mrs. A. Johnston lunch convener and Mrs. J. Lowe dispensing cold drinks and cookies to the children when they arrived at the school with their collection boxes. They were then treated to a movie shown by Mr. G. Goodings. Mr. J. Bigney, president; Mrs. B. Dube, treasurer; Mr. E. Bedaux, principal; teachers Mrs. M. Sine, Mrs. C. King with the help of Mrs. F. Ferguson, Mrs. A. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Gagan, Mr. R. Bowman were all kept busy counting up 10,000 pennies plus other change.

The next general meeting of the Home and School Club is Wednesday, November 3, 7:45 p.m. at the Glen Miller School. The program will be on a demonstration of first aid by the St. John Ambulance. Membership in H. & S. will be available this is voluntary. Everyone welcome. Refreshments will be served.

URGES HANDS OFF

SINGAPORE (AP) — Americans are ignorant of problems in Malaysia and Singapore, says Singapore's prime minister, and should leave them to settle. He said, its Commonwealth associates. Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew was referring to reports that the United States may offer assistance, possibly of a military nature, to Singapore's neighbor Malaysia.

COLLECTION DAY, THURSDAY

HI-POCKETS

MEMORY PLANT

The days of the old fashioned farm bee are still with us—particularly when it is said someone who has suffered misfortune.

Two weeks ago Mr. Ernest Anderson, 5th concession Sidney township had the misfortune to get caught in a forage harvester as he was doing custom work for another township farmer.

Mr. Anderson lost part of his leg and is still in Belleville hospital.

But neither Mr. Anderson's own farm work nor that of farmers for whom he was doing custom corn cutting, have suffered.

Two 5th concession farmers, Frank Phillips and Hudson Ketcheson, filled in for Mr. Anderson in doing custom forage harvester work.

Then Fentsy a plowing bee for Mr. Anderson was organized with 37 farmers from the 4th, 5th and 6th concessions of Sidney and from the Stockdale area turning out with their tractors and plows. Mr. Anderson plowing was completed early so the visiting farmers went on to also finish up the plowing on the Phillips and Ketcheson farms.

And the neighborhood farm women also got in on the act. At noon Saturday a plowing bee dinner was served at Mr. Anderson farmhouse with approximately 45 volunteer plowmen being served.

East Moira St.' Home Damaged By Fire, Water

Fire starting in an upstairs closet caused considerable damage at the Jack Donovan home 222 East Moira Street Sunday evening.

The blaze ate its way up into the attic making it more difficult for firemen to bring the fire under control. Much of the damage was caused by water.

Also on Saturday the reels were called to French's Beauty Salon on Front Street, where a shorted fluorescent light was causing trouble.

An emergency call to the bayfront was received Saturday when a boat went adrift in the bay after its motor cut out. High waves were buffeting the boat but its occupants managed to bring it ashore unaided.

Other calls for the department over the weekend were to the Sidney township dump; hot pipes at a Pearl St. residence, and to St. Charles St., where a space heater was giving trouble.

On one of the calls a two and a half inch nickel plated cap became loosened on its thread and was lost from a pumper. Fire Chief Ted Poste says that anyone finding the cap to contact the fire department.

Chess League Play Starts

Belleville got away to a surprisingly strong start in the opening matches of the South Eastern Ontario Chess League season, played in Cornwall on Sunday. The local club defeated Brockville and drew with Cornwall.

Ottawa, league and all-Ontario team champions for the past two years, defeated Brockville 7½ - ½, and Cornwall 8-0.

The Belleville club had only six players out, resulting in it defaulting two boards to Cornwall. In spite of this the locals managed to tie, 4-4, thanks to the feat of Robert Snelgrove, Queen's university student, in drawing with Robert Simpson of Ogdensburg, well known as one of the best chess circles, on the top board. In the match with Brockville, that club was also short two players and the two bottom boards counted as draws. Belleville won the match, 5-2.

Following are the results of the two matches of the local club, with the names of the Belleville players being given first in each pairing:

Belleville — Brockville — R. Snefjella 1, A. Szabo 0; D. Payne 1, Z. Daku 0; R. Swansburg 0, L. Bourdeau 1; C. Perrelin 1, A. Ellis 0; D. Batchelor ½, S. Boday ½; W. Skuratowicz 1, A. Tribull ½; last two boards drawn, by default by both sides.

Police Report Man Ran Into Car's Path

TRENTON — Leon John Gannon, 40, of 254 Dufferin Ave., is in Trenton Hospital, suffering from a broken right hip and cut and possible fractured right hip, as the result of an accident on Dundas Street West, Quinte West, Street, around 10 p.m. Saturday night.

Mr. Gannon is reported by police to have run from north to south across the road into the path of a car driven by George Gordon King of R. R. 4 Trenton. Mr. Gannon was carried 38 feet on the hood of the King car. Mr. King told police he applied his brakes but was unable to avoid striking the man.

A car, owned by Tom Holmes of Lorne Ave, parked on Dundas Street East, near Scott Street, was damaged to the extent of $500 around 11 p.m. Saturday night, when it was struck from the rear by a west bound car driven by David Turner of 271 Dufferin Ave. Mr. Turner was not injured but his car was damaged to the extent of $350.

Some Pranks Observed on Hallowe'en

TRENTON — Trenton police report a quiet Hallowe'en as far as property damage is concerned. Some of the downtown windows were soaped.

Police are still trying to find out who tied a goat to a Charlotte Street doorknob, and where the goat came from in the first place.

Four hens were thrust through the door of a downtown restaurant at the height of the Hallowe'en festivities, causing mild consternation among the diners.

HOLD BLOOD CLINIC

A Red Cross Blood Clinic is being held today in the Trenton Legion Hall, Quinte Street, from 2.30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and from 6.30 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Trenton has passed its quota the last two times the clinic has been held here.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in east Trenton observes its 112th anniversary on Sunday with special services. Pastor at the church is Rev. Douglas Wilson.

On Saturday, Miss Amelia Hayes of Henry Street, Trenton, entertained dozens of friends and former pupils on her 90th birthday. Thrilled to have their picture taken with Great Aunt Amelia were Jane Chase, Heather Healy and John Chase. Miss Hayes started teaching in Little Kingston, near Consecon, at the age of 15. She taught several generations of Trentonians at Dufferin Avenue school. An active member of the library board, a worker for the CNIB and a charter member and still active with St. George's Anglican Church Evening Woman's Auxiliary, Miss Hayes looks after her home and is downtown shopping nearly every day.

Recreation Conference Brings Enlightening to Participants

The first Community Conference on Recreation was held at Quinte Secondary School on Saturday last with close to 100 people in attendance. The conference proved to be very enlightening both to the participants and to the Recreation Committee.

Mayor Jack Ellis officially opened the conference and stated that he was pleased to see a move in this direction, as he had been advocating something of this nature for some considerable time. He wished the delegates success in their deliberations and felt sure that conferences of this type would certainly be worthwhile and of benefit to the community as a whole.

Alderman Ken Soden, chairman of the conference committee, in his opening remarks said that while the recreation picture in the city was bright he felt sure that the only way in which the Recreation Committee could establish a framework for future development in programs and facilities in the field of leisure time activities was by holding conferences of this nature. He stated that the needs and interests of the citizens would only be determined by the people freely expressing their views in discussion groups.

The theme of the conference was "Program and Facilities — Are They Adequate?" and to stimulate discussion a panel presentation was made by a panel of people closely allied to the field of recreation. These people explained their role in relation to the recreation committee, Mr. Ken Soper, Superintendent of Secondary Schools, and Mr. Anderson, Business Assistant, Bayview Public School Board, gave similar presentations explaining the excellent co-operation between the two school boards and the recreation committee in terms of facilities, reciprocal arrangements, assistance and advisory services. Mr. Kerr, local director of the Children's Aid Society, explained that while his primary concern was with child welfare and family counselling, co-operation does exist between the Children's Aid Society and the Recreation Committee particularly in the field of children's recreation.

EXPLAINED ROLE

Mr. Maddocks of Community Programs Division, Ontario Department of Education, explained the role of the District Representative in relation to the recreation committee. He said that his department, upon request, assists municipal councils in the formation of recreation committees, approves grants by the Provincial Government and supervises programs and operating costs. He explained that this was not their role but rather that of an advisory services, resource materials, resource people, assist with leadership training and conduct provincial leadership courses among other special services.

Dr. E. M. Dutton, Senior Citizens' Advisor, Community Programs Division, Ontario Department of Education told delegates that while his role was that of an advisor to the agency he assists recreation committees in establishing programs, and advises on the problems of the senior citizen.

Mr. L. "Red" Doran, Director of Parks, Recreation and Arena, chaired the panel and explained the role of the recreation committee. He said that it was a committee of council and as such was not allowed to hold its own funds. It did, however, submit and administrate an annual budget on behalf of city council.

Mr. Doran went on to explain the services offered such as advisory services, to assist groups to set up programs, financial assistance, procedures on behalf of recreation groups such as the compiling of notices and bulletins, making up of schedules, allocation of facilities, such as ball diamonds, school auditoriums, recreation centre, arena and any other type of facility that is requested provided it is obtainable. The committee also conducts programs too large for any private agency or organization to handle, such as the summer playground program. Leadership training is also an integral part of the committee's work. Only in very exceptional cases is direct financial assistance offered. He went on to explain other services of the function of the recreation committee.

MANY ACTIVITIES IN CITY

Mr. Carter, Assistant Recreational Director, gave his definition of recreation. "All that, which a person or group of persons chooses to do in order to make their leisure time more satisfying and worthwhile." He went on to inform the delegates, with the aid of handout material, that there are 260 recreational activities known to the recreation department, being conducted in the city of Belleville. The small portion of these were under the auspices of the Recreation Department. He went on to say of the 260 known activities, and relating them to his definition of recreation over 200 of them in the city were participating in recreational activities of one kind or another.

The discussion groups proved the need for such conferences in which the citizens may air their views on their respective needs and interests. The results of the discussion certainly answered the question posed in the conference theme, namely that, while programs were good and facilities were adequate to the maximum, they were not adequate for the needs of the people as a whole.

The pre-teen group, led by Jim Ketcheson, concluded that in their programs more leadership was required in order that they might attain a better development of skills and that their facilities were at full capacity. More facilities were needed in which this age group could engage themselves freely, such as creative play areas. It was the opinion of this group that more should be provided for in the recreation budget to implement these suggestions.

The teen group led by Dave Bell, concluded that there was a lack of social, creative and arts athletic programs and more facilities were needed in the areas of artificial ice surface, ball diamonds, and more facilities were needed in the areas of artificial ice surface, ball diamonds, and outdoor facilities in which to conduct physical activities

CLAIMS PROGRAMS INADEQUATE

The young adult group, led by Graham Geldart, put forward the proposal that programs for this age group were inadequate and that a serious investigation should be made to determine types of programs that would develop the interests of the group. They felt that with present tax supported facilities such as schools being available, facilities were adequate.

The adult group, led by Bruce Kerr, suggested that more leadership courses could be offered to enable the adult various administrative procedures on behalf of recreation groups such as the compiling of notices and bulletins, making up of schedules, allocation of facilities, such as ball diamonds, school auditoriums, recreation centre, arena and any other type of facility that is requested provided it is obtainable. The committee also conducts programs too large for any private agency or organization to handle, such as the summer playground program. Hastings County Warden Fred Beckett (right) and Mrs. Beckett, welcome Professor Ralph Campbell. Professor Campbell, a former Stirling High School mate of Warden Beckett's, was guest speaker at Warden's banquet.

Approximately 350 persons, including Hastings council members and administration officials and their wives, attended the annual Hastings county warden's banquet held Saturday night at Club Canara.

Host for the occasion was county warden Fred Beckett, reeve of Rawdon township and Mrs. Beckett. County clerk-treasurer Carl Bateman was master of ceremonies.

Guest speaker for the banquet was Professor Ralph Campbell, former resident of the Foxboro area and now economics professor at Toronto University.

Warden Beckett officially welcomed his guests, noting that it had been both an honor and a privilege to serve as warden. He expressed appreciation for the co-operation given by council members and listed the many projects of the year, two of which were the start on the new Belleville General hospital addition and the decision to go ahead with the central jail project with three other counties.

In a highly interesting talk Professor Campbell told of his days living at the Holy Land where through the Ford Foundation he served as economics advisor to the Jordanian government.

Describing Jordan as a land of "tremendous bitterness" where the name Israel is never used, the speaker said the country was an underdeveloped low income area where the average income was but $200 a year and much of this dependent upon foreign aid.

"They have no timber, no oil, and no minerals. It's a low income country without natural resources and completely cut off from the sea."

In addition to this the country is two thirds desert where many of the people live as they did 5,000 years ago. There is no rain from March to October and a whole month can go by without a cloud in the sky.

As a result the country depends to a large extent on irrigation but still must import much of its food.

MUCH FOOD IMPORTED

As result the country depends to a large extent on irrigation to grow crops but must still import much of the food for its two million people, 90 per cene of whom are of the Moslem faith.

But steeped as it is in Biblical history, the one real hope of the country, according to Professor Campbell, is in its attraction for tourists. Only through tourists could the country hope to pay its way.

The speaker told of visits to Bethlehem and Jerusalem, the Mount of Olives and to Dothan where Joseph went to look for his brother and was sold into Egypt.

Professor Campbell said it was a real experience to visit Dothan where American archaeologists have dug their way through 19 different villages, built one on top of the other over thousands of years.

POT VERY OLD

While Professor Campbell and his family were there they saw an earthen pot uncovered as old as Solomon, 950 years B.C.

But despite their poverty the desert Arabs of Jordan are the epitome of hospitality although some of their eating customs are a bit hard for the uninitiated to take.

Professor Campbell prefaced his talk with a brief history of the Holy Land which he said had lost touch with the Western world since the time of Christ.

VARIED PROGRAM

Head table guests for the banquet included Hastings county Judge J. C. Anderson and Mrs. Anderson; Prince Edward County Warden, Barney Hepburn, Belleville Mayor J. R. Ellis and Mrs. Ellis; Picton Mayor Harvey McFarland; Hastings East MLA Clarke T. Rollins and W. E. Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West, and Mrs. Sandercock.

Approximately 20 former county wardens attended the banquet and were toasted by Rawdon deputy reeve Mrs. Audrey Sexsmith.

Entertainment included piano-banjo numbers by Mrs. Harold West and Maurice Bell of Stirling, and vocal numbers by the Stirling Men's quartet composed of Jack Bush, Ralph Johnson, Harry Brown and Grant Richards.

County council's gift to the warden was a handsome leather upholstered rocking chair and Rawdon township council presented him with a set of door chimes.

Servicemen And Pensions Explained

Members of the Canadian armed forces are not covered under the Canada Pension Plan, but according to Lt.-Col. Lawrence Minnie Miss Judy LaMarsh, if they retire from the service they will be able to take up pensionable civilian employment they will be covered by the C.P.P. for the period for which they have worked.

The application of the Canada Pension Plan to regular and retired armed services personnel was outlined by Miss LaMarsh to the Lennox & Liberal candidate Robert Temple.

Miss LaMarsh said that retired armed service personnel who join the civilian population before age 65 would receive pension plan benefits in addition to their superannuation benefits at age 65.

She went on to point out that regular and retired armed services superannuation with the Canada Pension Plan would provide a form of parliament.

"In this regard I would stress that one of the basic principals of the Canada Pension Plan is that no one's present pension will be reduced and this is applied not only to the armed forces, but also to members of the RCMP.," she said.

In commenting on the confirmation of his conversation with Health and Welfare Minister LaMarsh, Mr. Temple stated that there would be no reduction in anyone's existing pension under the Canada Pension Plan.

Car, Ambulance In Collision at Foxboro

A Belleville ambulance taking an injured woman to hospital Saturday was damaged when it collided with a car on Highway 14 at Foxboro.

The vehicle, operated by City Ambulance, was taking Mrs. May Dickey to hospital with a broken hip suffered in a fall at her home, R.R. 1 Holloway.

Mrs. Dickey was transferred to another ambulance summoned by two-way radio from the damaged vehicle.

No one in the ambulance was injured.

Driver of the car, Claude White, 53, R.R. 4 Stirling, was unhurt although his daughter was treated for minor injuries and released.

ESCAPES INJURY

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) — Pianist-comedian Victor Borge escaped injury in an auto collision early Sunday about four miles north of here. Police said the 56-year-old Borge's car was destroyed when it collided with another car which had slowed to avoid another accident.

Terrell Heavier, Chuvalo Lighter Than Last Fight

Terrell was three pounds heavier than what he weighed at his fight with Eddie Machen, when he won the title last March. Chuvalo was two pounds lighter than his weight for the Floyd Patterson bout in New York in February, when he lost on a 10-round decision.

They were both pronounced physically fit and ready to go by Dr. Thomas Tennenbeift of the Ontario Athletic Commission.

The main rules of the bout, laid down by Merv McKenzie, Ontario athletic commissioner, and former WBA president, were:

Automatic eight-count will be used; the three-knockdown rule has been waived and a boxer may be counted out if he is hanging helpless on the ropes.

The scoring is decided by a majority decision of the referee and two judges; a draw in the over-all decision of the three officials is acceptable whereby the champion retains the title; a contestant who has been knocked out of the ring must be given a count of 18 before the bout may be resumed; in case of an accidental butt as determined by the referee necessitating the termination of the bout, the decision will be a draw.

Mr. Andrao, 44 and owner of a large Port Arthur garage, has been a resident for eight years. Platforms are basically the same with all advocating greater development in northwestern Ontario, referred to by Dr. Robert Nixon of Kingston corridor between East and West."

Famous Basso Will Be Heard In Concert

Basso Jan Rubes who will be appearing in Belleville on Thursday, November 4th, at 8.30 p.m., in the Collegiate auditorium, under the auspices of the Community Concert Association is one of Canada's most popular stars in opera and recital as well as being well known on radio and television.

Born in Czechoslovakia, Jan Rubes became the youngest basso at the Prague Opera House and sang over 30 favorite operative roles. In 1948 he was elected to represent Czechoslovakia at the International Music Festival in Geneva. He decided not to return home and chose to come to Canada instead.

On this continent Mr. Rubes has established a solid reputation. He devotes most of his time to opera and has sung over seventy leading roles in six languages, performing with major companies, including the Canadian Opera Company, the New York City Centre Opera Company. For ten years his "Songs of My People" was one of CJBQ's most popular radio features.

Jan Rubes and his actress wife, Susan Douglas, make their home in Toronto where Mr. Rubes teaches privately the known Museum Children's Theatre.

Three Teeners Escape Injury, Car Rolls Over

Three teenagers, escaped serious injury Sunday when the car in which they were passengers rolled over near Glen Miller.

Released after treatment for minor cuts and bruises at Trenton Memorial Hospital were Karen Jones, 17, and Brendon Jones, 19, both of R. R. 1 Tweed and Sheila Galloway, 18, of Dolora.

Police said William Henry McNutt, Peterborough, was driving the car when the boy's truck in front overturned when it went out of control.

Marysville Youth Votes Before 21st Birthday

Donald McAlpine of Marysville will make history November 8 when he becomes the first man in Canada to vote before his 21st birthday.

Donald; a third-year arts student at University of Toronto, has been given the green light on his precedent-setting action by Canada's chief electoral officer.

A quirk of English common law has made it possible for the young student to cast his ballot. Under the law, a person is deemed to be 21 the day before the anniversary of his birthday, not on his actual birthday.

"Apparently by the law you have completed 21 years," said Mr. VanTassel. "He can vote. He's not on the voter's list at his own poll so he will have to be sworn in and someone will have to vouch for him."

The young arts student learned of the ancient law last Friday after he complained to a Toronto newspaper reporter of his bad luck in missing his first vote by one day.

He said he wanted to vote for Liberal candidate Robert Temple in Hastings South.

The reporter remembered the common law to McAlpine and later consulted with the chief electoral officer, whose decision was polled and he could see nothing to stop the student voting.

Chief electoral officer Nelson J. Castonguay said he couldn't recall a similar case previously.

An electoral office official here was quoted as saying now the matter had been raised Parliament would be asked to change the law at its next session.

Had he lived in an urban riding he would have been unable to vote.

However, in the rural poll at Marysville he can cast his ballot once someone vouches for him.

Donald, who has done summer work at Canada Cement in Point Anne, said in Toronto last night he was definitely returning home next Monday to cast his vote.

Spotlight Seat

Riding Has Long History Of Electing Man, Not Party

By ALLAN SACKMANN

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Candidates here are image-building in the hope of achieving the popularity that won the Port Arthur constituency four times in a row for Douglas Fisher before he retired from the hustings this year.

"This constituency has had a long history of electing the man rather than the party," says Marion Vickruck, managing the campaign of Conservative Harvey Smith for the Nov. 8 general election.

"It all depends on who projects the best image to the voters," says Mr. Vickruck.

Liberal Bob Andrao agrees although New Democrat Gordon Rothney, 53, dean of Lakehead University, plakes more stock in NDP members and "hard-core" supporters.

"We've been gaining votes on the opposition in each election and now we have the strongest organization ever," says Dr. Rothney.

SEEK FISHER VOTES

But all three candidates feel many of the NDP votes in the past were cast by Fisher followers, not New Democrats, and this makes it hard to predict the outcome.

Mr. Andrao, a Conservative for 20 years, is a Port Arthur native who has been a resident of the area all his life.

He is president of Andrao Motors Ltd., a large Ford dealership and garage in Port Arthur.

Dr. Rothney, a newcomer to the area—two years—but says "you are accepted quickly here because the population is fairly transient and it's no disadvantage to come from outside."

He is a native of Calgary and has been at Lakehead University since 1960.

Mr. Smith, 45, owner of Ontario's largest independent trucking firm, has been active in civic politics before. He lost his deposit in 1963, when Mr. Fisher won by 3,000 votes over the Liberal runner-up, and immediately started campaigning for this one.

This summer Mr. Smith travelled 1,800 miles through this 150,000 square - mile constituency, visiting northern pools and mission stations with his own Cessna 180 aircraft. Recently he took another swing through the sparsely - settled northern section by car, firelight train and railway speeders.

He expects his greatest support among rural voters—20,000 of the seat's 44,000 eligibles live outside of Port Arthur.

Most of the large constituencies in Canada, Port Arthur riding stretches from Hudson Bay in the north to Lake Superior and from White River in the east to near Sioux Lookout.

Dr. Rothney is concerned about his chances in the north because his lecture schedule keeps him in Port Arthur five days a week but Mr. Fisher is directing his rural campaign and he feels his will give him an over-all edge.

He has inherited Mr. Fisher's campaign machine "and that should help."

Ottawa Link Maintained

The announcement by Canadian Pacific Railways President N. R. Crump that passenger rail service will be discontinued between Brockville and Ottawa is welcome news in this area.

Canadian Pacific had planned to suspend the service at the end of October, to coincide with the culmination of the pool train operation between Toronto and Montreal. Under the pool arrangement, passengers for Ottawa transferred to the dayliner at Brockville.

Representations were made to officials of both railways and to the Board of Transport Commissioners by Robert Temple, Liberal candidate in the election. Now comes word that the service is being maintained.

Cancellation of the service would have been well-nigh intolerable, particularly with the onset of bad winter and the Christmas season when many people prefer to travel by train. The service is patronized by businessmen, as well as the general public. Airmen from Trenton are also regular travellers.

The proposed cancellation of the service to Ottawa reflected the differing concepts of the two rail systems. Canadian National is placing greater emphasis on passenger traffic, a fact borne out by its new five-trains-a-day schedule between Toronto and Montreal, which went into effect yesterday, while the trend with Canadian Pacific seems to be away from passenger traffic.

Had Canadian Pacific gone ahead as planned, residents of this area would have been deprived of their only direct rail link with the nation's capital.

Chin-up!

Amalgamation of the armed forces may be a good thing from an administrative point of view, although from what candidates are saying in the election campaign they seem to be at variance about this and other aspects of the new system.

Conservatives say forces' morale is low. What are the Liberals saying? Much the same thing. At Lethbridge, Alberta, last week, Defence Minister Nielsen said morale was never lower than at the time the Tories took over the government. He said the forces had weapons with no ammunition and were unable to fulfill defence commitments for defence of the free world.

One possible disadvantage of amalgamation is the elimination of competition among the services. For example, has amalgamation resulted in a deterioration of the standard of fitness among the services?

The air force presumably is still going strong with its 5BX exercises, but what are we to make of news item from Victoria pointing out that about 21 per cent of the 1,750 personnel tested at HMCS Naden last week failed to pass physical fitness examination. Among them was Rear-Admiral Michael Stirling, Flag Officer of the Pacific Command.

Chin-ups caused the most trouble. Still, there is hope for Admiral Stirling, just as there is for the ordinary seamen. Failures provide automatic admission to physical fitness training courses!

A Neat Paradox

U.S. columnist Art Buchwald has been visiting Toronto and he concludes that relations between Canada and the United States are so good they are starting to deteriorate.

This is a neat paradox to be sure, and Buchwald offers it as an explanation why some Canadians complain that, during the election campaign, our neighbors to the south are paying the usual minimum of attention to affairs in this country.

So Buchwald offers some advice on how to arouse interest in Canada among Americans. "In order for us to pay any attention to anybody," he suggests, the United States must be provoked.

"It would help if you had a serious communist problem," he went on. "We are always ready to step in and help a country being threatened by communists . . ."

Or failing that, "why don't you threaten to pull out of the Western defence alliance? Tell the U.S. you intend to set up your own DEW line and st.rt working on your own atomic bomb."

Other Buchwald suggestions: "Have your students demand that the U.S. give you back the St. Lawrence Seaway . . . build a wall along the border with checkpoints as in Berlin . . . arrest a few American businessmen as spies.

"It is obvious," Buchwald concludes, "that what Canada needs is a Nasser, a Sukarno, or a Chou En-lai—someone to tell us to go jump in the ocean."

Imagine what would happen if one or more of these ideas were taken seriously. Quebec's protestations would seem mild by comparison. But Canada is just not that kind a country; it is a democracy and democracies have no need of dictators like those mentioned. Come to think of it democracies just do not produce men like Nasser, Sukarno and company!

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 1st, 1945

A meeting of the Belleville and Hastings County Humane Society was held this week at which plans were made for future activities. The President briefly addressed the meeting and referred to the experience he had had in humane society work and his interest in that regard. He hoped to be of assistance, and suggested that an effort be made to extend the activities of the society over the entire county and to enlist the sympathy and cooperation of the various municipalities. Owing to the fact that the annual tag day has not been held for the past five years, the financing of the society is largely dependent on membership fees. At the close of organization the fee was set at a very low figure in the hope that all lovers of animals and all those who wish to lessen the suffering of dumb animals would lend their support by becoming members of the society. Members are urgently needed and an effort will be made to this end.

November 1st, 1935

The most severe earthquake experienced in this city and district occurred after one o'clock this morning and aroused citizens from deep slumber. The shake, which lasted approximately one-half minute, shook houses and buildings, toppled some bricks from their moorings on a chimney of a house on Bonter Avenue, smashed dishes in cupboards and pantries. Business blocks were not damaged in any way nor were any houses levelled. The disturbance which trembled across Canada from the head of Lake Superior to the Bay of Fundy, was felt more by residents on the east and west hills than in the city. Occupants of rooms in the lower apartments in the city, between the two hills, report that they were barely disturbed. Water, gas and sewer mains were not disturbed. It was an earthquake all right, and we are thankful it was not greater than it was.

Mr. Addison Vandervoort, deputy registrar of deeds for Hastings County, entered upon his registration duties today. He is a very young man he became deputy register early in October last and has surrounding public efficiently and continuously since that time.

The members of the Signal Corps in connection with the Argyll Light Infantry entertained at a highly enjoyable Hallowe'en dance in the armouries last night. About 150 people of this city were present.

Building permits in this city during the month of October totalled $9,225, an increase over the preceding month and last year, than the same month last year, included in the figures are four houses and flats, and numerous alterations and repairs to properties in excess of $100.

To Your Good Health

Five Years With Boils, No Time to Give Up

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: For five years off and on I have been bothered by boils. I have tried everything but nothing helps. I'm told this is a "staph" germ. If so, has it been with me for five years, or are new germs attacking me? How can I fight it? I have even used apple cider vinegar as a body wash.

Don't advise me to go to a doctor. I have had treatments both from a skin doctor and a M.D. — E. U.

• • •

The staphylococcus germ is about the most stubborn one we have to deal with. Quite possibly it has been present the whole five years. But even if it hasn't you still remain sensitive to it, and still have boils. This is no time to give up fighting unless you are content to keep on having boils — plus the risk of the germ breaking loose into a systemic poisoning.

If by "skin doctor" you mean a dermatologist, he has specialized in this work in addition to having earned his basic medical degree (M.D. or D.O.).

You sound so positive that you have tried everything. Maybe you've tried every home remedy you've heard of, but that isn't everything.

I admit that staph infections are aggravatingly stubborn, but most of the time they yield if you search diligently enough for the right medication to attack the particular strain of germ that is doing the mischief.

As to the vinegar bath, vinegar is fine for making salad dressing, but I hope I never again hear it mentioned as a "medicine."

• • •

Some strains of staph subside with use of ordinary antibiotics. Others are resistant, and are not touched by these drugs. For example, many varieties of penicillin have been developed because a staph which resists one is cured by another. Some of these new types of penicillin have come into use only recently, which is one reason why I say that you haven't tried everything.

In still other stubborn cases, the germ itself, recovered from a boil, is cultured (grown) in a laboratory and then used to create a vaccine which is biologically "tailored" to suit the case. This is a painstaking process, obviously, but it is one drug that is getting rid of excessively stubborn cases.

Therefore I do advise you to go to a doctor. It is the only advice that gives any promise of helping you.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: Can homosexuality be cured by hypnosis, or can a psychiatrist help someone afflicted with this abnormality? I am of mature age, becoming more and more of a hermit, and I'm afraid people or friends may discover my problem. So far I am fortunate to be able to hide it. — M.P.

By all means consult a psychiatrist, and let him decide whether hypnosis could be part of your treatment. Hypnosis is no simple cure-all. Rather, it is a powerful psychological tool which must be employed only with thorough understanding of what it can do, and what harm it can inflict if not used properly.

A psychiatrist can analyze your problem and see whether it is likely to respond to treatment. Frankly, homosexuality is not easy to treat, but an important aspect of your case is that you want to correct it. Some don't want to — and there is just about nothing that can be done for them.

'Forlorn Hope' Not What We Think It Is

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

For the benefit of those readers who don't have access to a good dictionary of word origins, I suppose I'd better explain a paragraph in a recent column, in which I remarked that the phrase "forlorn hope" had originally nothing to do with "forlorn" or "hope."

The phrase is from the Dutch "verloren hoop," and means "lost troop." According to Wilbur Cross, "Word Origins," this troop was comparable to our "suicide squads" or to the Infants' perdus of France.

In English, "forlorn hope" is, for example, "a woman who is pinched men chosen to begin an attack; but by Shakespeare's time, the connection with the word "hope" had been firmly established, and the phrase acquired a totally new meaning, as words so often do.

Another common expression; for example, is "between the devil and the deep blue sea." This has nothing to do with Satan. A seam close to a waterline in an old wooden ship was known as a "devil." If it sprang a leak, a sailor had to go over the side to caulk it; thus, it often happened that he found himself suspended "between the devil and the deep blue sea."

Again, we say that something "isn't worth a rap." This does not mean a rap with the knuckles. When the saying originated, it meant the counterfeit of a small copper coin used in Ireland in the 18th century. Because it was often passed for a halfpenny, it was called a "rap," a word coming from the German "rappie," meaning a counterfeit copper coin.

We imagine that the "belfry" of a church has something to do with the church bells, but is an entirely different word, and comes from an ancient moveable tower used by a besieging army. Likewise, the words "sandiron" and "gridiron" have no relationship to the word "iron."

"Blindfold" is not connected with "fold"; "forsake" is not a combination of "button" and "hole"; "crayfish" does not come from "fish"; "pen" and "pencil" are quite unconnected words; and so are "sorry" and "sorrow."

A "pantry" was not a place for pots and pans, any more than a "buttery" was a place for storing butter. A "sweetbread" originally had nothing to do with the heart; and a "cockroach" is neither a cock nor a roach, but was assimilated from the Spanish "cucaracha." When surprises are in store, he is that "sacrilegious" has nothing to do with "religious" — for this misappehension is so widespread that the word itself has begun to be spelled as a form of "veiligious."

Lord Durham sailed for England 127 years ago today—on 1838—after only four months as governor-in-chief of British North America. A mixture of eccentricity and acute political intellect, Lord Durham solved his main problem, what to do with Papineau's rebellious Canadien rebels, by banishing them to Bermuda. Because the island was outside his jurisdiction, the British government was persuaded to indemnify the rebels when Durham resigned. There remained only his report, the keystone of responsible government within the provinces and their union in confederation.

What Became of Eugene Belov?

Ottawa Journal

The Iron curtain is still there when it comes to wondering what is really happening to someone.

Last Saturday on this page there appeared a letter written by a group of English students who had visited Russia a year ago. While there they were accompanied by a student interpreter named Eugene Belov, whom they liked. Returning this summer they found Belov to be somewhat inclined to speak of faults in the Communist system and that he had been written his complaints to Messrs. Brezhnev and Kosygin. The students went on to Tokyo and on returning via Russia found their friend had been taken away by police and declared to be insane and put in a hospital. The students secured his release in an open letter to, Brezhnev and Kosygin, via the Manchester Guardian.

Now comes a reply to the editor of the Guardian from Eugene's father saying his son was not arrested and is indeed in an asylum "drawing diagrams all the time" and that the Guardian shouldn't have paid his fare to London. Pandemonium around my son's name." Another letter in the Guardian to the President, from the group seeking Eugene's release concludes with the query to the President of Russia whether a visa would be granted to one Eugene Belov, 22, now visiting Eugene, or to some Western psychiatrist. "Does not Mr. Belov agree that in this case a serious illness it is always good to have a second medical opinion?"

As The Journal printed this first letter we report the reply from Mr. Belov Sr. Somewhere behind the curtain Eugene Belov is in trouble one way or we will probably never know another: for what is being what it is we shall probably never know which way.

Indians in Indian Affairs

Indian News

There are approximately 200 Indians on the staff of the Indian Affairs Branch, many in positions of considerable responsibility. They include officers at headquarters, agency superintendents, assistant superintendents, community development officers, teachers, maintenance supervisten dents, fire rangers, clerks, stenographers and others.

Among the Indian officers at branch headquarters is Leslie Smith, a Mohawk of the Six Nations Reserve. One of his brothers is widely known as the actor who plays Tonto, the Lone Ranger's Indian friend, on television. Les is a very popular officer who has served in the field as an agency superintendent and is now responsible for providing living accommodation and heavy equipment for agencies throughout Canada.

Miss Irene Hoff, an Abenaki of the Odanak Band, Quebec, was a commissioned officer in the armed services. She is in charge of recording band elections and bylaws and various other administrative duties.

Agency superintendents of Indian status include David Greyeyes, 31, a Cree of the Muskeg Lake Band, Saskatchewan. He has been superintendent at Touchwood Agency in Saskatchewan since 1963.

James Seymour Powless, 55, is a member of the Six Nations Band. He has had a number of careers — was police constable, proprietor of his own business, and civil servant. He is now Superintendent of Christian Island Agency, Ontario.

Aaron Joseph Sotney, 45, is a member of the Wapekeka Island Band. He worked for a number of companies as a machine operator and joined the branch as a clerk in 1946. He is now Superintendent at Golden Lake Reserve, Ontario.

Thomas Reginald Kelly, 51, a Haida of the Skidegate Band in British Columbia, has worked as a teacher, and inspector for the British Columbia Department of Labor and as an agency superintendent for the branch. He now is a community development officer in Alberta.

Isaac Beaulieu 27, an Ojibway of the Sandy Bay Band, Manitoba, held various positions in Canada and the United States before joining the Indian Affairs Branch as a community development officer in Manitoba.

The Branch employs 100 persons of Indian status in its teaching staff; 50 in Ontario, 20 in Saskatchewan, 14 in Quebec, nine in British Columbia, eight in Alberta, seven in Manitoba, and one in New Brunswick.

"I would like to see many more Indians enter the Civil Service, but not just in the Branch," says R.F. Battle, assistant deputy minister (Indian Affairs). "All federal departments are literally crying out for trained people of many descriptions. Special treatment or training for Indians will not improve, but may hinder, their loyalty. Only steadfast dedication to regular education and training, coupled with a resolute determination to find and hold employment, will bring the desired results."

Eskimo for NWT Council

Montreal Gazette

Prime Minister Pearson has announced the appointment of the first Eskimo ever to be a member of the Northwest Territories Council.

It is impossible to know to what extent this represents a more dynamic view of the responsible attitude of the government towards the country's Eskimo and Indian population. In any event it is to be welcomed.

The government can scarcely be unaware that, in the much more "underdeveloped" regions of the world become self-governing and move into modern societies, the second-class status of the Indians and Eskimos in Canada becomes more and more anomalous.

In the old, confident days, a White supremacy in the world it may not have seemed inappropriate to treat Indians and Eskimos as a race of children who would always remain children. There are probably few in the government who still have this attitude in theory, but they are not doing as much as they could to end it in practice.

It must indeed seem strange ordinary to a foreigner that a country of Canada's riches, with its high standard of living, does not do more to bring a larger proportion of the "native" population up to the general level.

Much of the trouble is probably due to nothing more than the built-in faults of bureaucracy, where routine is a virtue and change is not sanctified by a book of regulations. Much should be done; and it can be hoped Prime Minister Pearson's appointment is a step in this direction.

No Vote for Under 21s

Windsor Star

One of the few bright spots in Black - lustre election campaign is the interest being taken by young people. It is a surprising interest because many of the young people cannot vote.

A keen interest was evident recently at the University of Windsor, where the political candidates in Essex West appeared for a debate. Incisive, intelligent questions were thrown at the speakers, and it was obvious that the audience, many of them students, would not be content with evasive answers.

The youthful appearance of many in the audience set their ages below the magic figure of 21 at which Canada now officially deems a human being to have achieved the maturity necessary to vote. They will take all the interest they have in the campaign and the issues, but until they are 21 they cannot vote.

North Feels Out in Cold

North Bay Nugget

Truth to tell, the federal leaders are so remote from our region that they must feel lost when they come to address us. They try to get close to the people, but it somehow doesn't seem to work.

It is in the provincial field that the greatest opportunities for political leadership lie. Whatever happened to the Department of Northern Development which once existed? Here is where the Roberts government could make an impression. Revival of this department, instead of merely counting on the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission to do the job, would, perhaps net the Roberts government a few more votes in Nortieastern Ontario.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Base metals made an impressive show while industrials took a mixed loss in moderate morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Commgo climbed 1¼ to 50¾ in leading metals ahead. Pine Point, which is controlled by Cominco, was up ¾ to 84¼. Conwest gained 80 cents to 7.60, Newconex 1.60 to 7.90 and Newconex warrants 1.40 to 3.75. The latter three companies are part of a group which has extensive holdings in the Pine Point area of British Columbia.

Hudson Bay added ½ to 78, Inco ½ to 100 and Noranda ¼ to 53½.

In the industrial list, Aluminium fell 1¼ to 31¼ after the United States government said it would sell aluminum ingots from its huge stockpile. Turnbull Elevators, a seldom-traded issue, jumped $3 to 6% after the company said it would not pay its regular 15-cent dividend ordinarily payable Dec. 1.

MacMillan Bloedel, the giant west coast forest producer, fell ¼ to 26¾, Algoma Steel ¼ to 63⅛ and Royal Bank ¾ to 73¼.

Magnog golds, Dickenson was off 30 cents to 4.50. Oils were quiet and firm.

On index, industrials were down .18 to 169.86 and the TSE index .14 to 159.93. Golds were up .31 to 158.56 base metals .16 to 85.87 and western oils .14 to 102.83. Volume at 11 a.m. was 863,000 shares compared with 762,000 at the same time Friday.

"Very Heavy" Vote At Advance Polls

Electors who expect to be out of their own areas on election day next Monday are taking full advantage of the advance polls, according to William Van Tassel, Hastings South returning officer.

Saturday the vote at the seven advance polls in the riding was "very heavy", according to Mr. VanTassel with the one day vote exceeding the total two day vote in 1963.

At the two advance polls in Belleville Saturday's vote was 389 as compared to 273 for the two - day total two years ago.

The heavy vote also applied to advance polls as Trenton, Deseronto, Tweed and Frankford, according to Mr. VanTassel.

Voting at the advance polls continues until eight o'clock this evening.

The votes, however, will not be counted until after the regular polls close November 8th.

Accuse Brothers

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Two brothers in their 20s were accused Sunday of setting a fire that took the lives of nine children, all members of the same family, in February, 1964, police said. Charged with murder and arson were John Kilbuff, 24, and his brother, George, 22, in the fire at the home of Napoleon B. Soucie, eight of his children and a granddaughter perished when flames trapped them.

north of Montreal Saturday, said higher interest rates would make the situation impossible for small businesses.

Mr. Pearson was in high spirits as he made six short speeches in five Vancouver area ridings Saturday before flying to Winnipeg. He drew about 1,500 persons in all, most of them at two shopping centres.

He poked fun at Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister, for proposing to plant 20,000,000 trees in Eastern Canada. "He's after the dogs' vote," the prime minister said.

'LIKE TRANQUILIZER'

Mr. Douglas said that if the voters give the Liberals a majority "it will be just like giving them (the Liberals) a tranquilizer."

The NDP would press for $100-a-month old age pensions, universal state medical insurance, free higher education, tax exemptions, manpower training and curbs on foreign ownership of Canadian industries and resources.

Mr. Thompson told 125 persons at a meeting in Hamilton Saturday that the Liberals don't enjoy the confidence of the people and don't deserve a majority. The election would not be decided on the majority-government issue, but on regional issues and the popularity of local candidates.

Today, the party leaders begin a week of major rallies in cities across the country.

Mr. Pearson is in Winnipeg, Mr. Diefenbaker in Brantford and Hamilton, Mr. Douglas in Weyburn and Regina, Mr. Thompson in his Red Deer riding and Mr. Caouette in Beauce constituency.

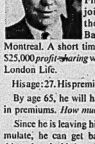
OTF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed



"Oh, it's just the same old letter from the folks asking if I can send them more money."

A London Life Jubilee policy is a unique investment. While it gives protection year after year, it also builds surprising savings. Consider the case of Robert Barnabe:

BACK IN 1956, Robert Barnabe graduated from the General Motors Institute in Flint, Michigan, and joined his father in the management of Barnabe Motors in Montreal. A short time later he bought a $25,000 profit-sharing whole life policy from London Life.

By age 65, he will have paid in $15,234 in premiums. How much can he get back?

Since he is leaving his dividends to accumulate, he can get back about $32,500. More than double his money.

(Note: This figure of $32,500 is made up of $13,725 in guaranteed cash value and the balance in accumulated dividends. These dividends are based on the current scale. While they are not guaranteed, London Life has had an outstanding record of dividend payments. Dividends allotted to owners of London Life profit-sharing policies for 1965 exceed $29 million.)

When he is 65, he can get back over twice as much money as he has paid in premiums —and his family will have had $25,000 protection from the date of his first payment.

London Life insurance is surprisingly flexible, too. Here are three of the choices Robert will have when he reaches age 65:

(1) He can continue to pay premiums on his $25,000 policy and continue to build savings.

(2) He can withdraw his $32,500 or so as a lump sum.

(3) He can use his savings to provide an annuity for life or for a set number of years.

In a financial emergency, he can borrow on the cash value of his Jubilee policy. Quickly and quietly. The interest rate is 6%—comparable with banks' regular lending rates and much lower than personal loan comparables.

A Jubilee policy is just as safe as high-grade bonds and much safer than most common stocks. It is particularly attractive because while it earns you money it also protects your family.

London Life dividends are high partly because the Company invests wisely and profitably in Canada. (In 1964, the Company earned 5.72% on its investments—after investment expenses.)

The London Life Insurance Company operates only in Canada. One reason premiums are low is because Canadians, on the average, are long lived.

You can reserve the right to buy more insurance at regular intervals up to age 40 without a medical. You can pay premiums on a monthly budget plan. You can add extra protection while your children are growing.

No two men have identical insurance needs; what is right for Robert Barnabe may not be right for you. That is why London Life representatives are schooled to tailor insurance to fit the individual.

Can. National G.I.A. Holds Autumn Tea

On Saturday afternoon with lovely weather adding to the success of the event, the Grand International Auxiliary of the CN held a tea and Christmas bazaar at Engineer's Hall, Pine Street.

Guests were warmly greeted at the door by the president Mrs. B. McCormick and Mrs. M. Parsons, convener of the bazaar. Taking tickets at the door were Mrs. S. Morgan and Mrs. L. Muirhead.

Mrs. G. Jones was convener of the tea room which was attractively decorated in the autumn theme with the focal point of interest being the lace covered tea table centred with a lovely china bowl holding sprays of bitter sweet and pine boughs, and flanked with silver candelabra holding green and rose candles. The guest tables were also most attractive with white linen cloths and centred with bowls of colorful chrysanthemums.

Pouring tea throughout the afternoon were Mrs. M. Hammell, Mrs. R. Gross, Mrs. M. Collyer, Mrs. R. Orne, Mrs. G. Grey and Mrs. B. Clark. A number of the members of the group assisted with the serving and replenishing, while Mrs. G. for Cathers was in charge of making the tea.

Many items were displayed at the various sales tables and these included a homebaking table, convened by Mrs. Harold Fisher; candy table, by Mrs. T. Robinson; apron table by Mrs. Pearl Dorr and the novelty table by Mrs. Lillian Guest and Mrs. Lena Cook.

Mrs. M. Welch assisted by Mrs. Vera Fortin were in charge of the sale of tickets on an electric blanket and the lucky winner of this item was Mrs. B. Scafford of Toronto.

Members of the group in charge were most appreciative to all concerned in the success of the event.

ONE LUMP OR?

Susanna's Family Fare

Dear Susanna: I'm wondering if other flower lovers who bring in a pot of petunias for the winter months, cut the blossoms for bouquets. They are lovely alone or along with geranium blossoms or whatever greenery is available. I not only had a beautiful bouquet a good part of last winter, but also discovered that petunias root in water when they are brough bloom-ing. They can then be planted in boxes early in the spring or set out a little later, to produce a good growth of new plants.

Many of your readers, like myself, may have discovered that fast petunias produce new growth and blossom after the first bouquet is picked—as well as how much enjoyment can be received from these so-often-taken-for-granted summer beauties.

My mother is visiting us from the States and just today learned what a tea cozy is! She read your column first and called my attention to it. Now that she has been introduced to the joy and comfort of a hot cup of tea, I would like to make her a cozy for Christmas — do you suppose I might have a copy of the pattern you described in return for my petunia suggestion? — Mrs. George Book.

I'd be delighted to send you the pattern — and who knows, maybe our cozy will convert so many coffee drinkers south of the border it will make the Boston affair seem like a drop in the tea pot! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna; cole slaw moistened with the juice of sweet pickles is most tasty! — Mrs. D. Doughty

Multi-Racial Reception at Wedding Out

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—The caviar and champagne wedding reception of South Africa's richest heiress will not be a multi-racial affair as she wished, a family friend said Friday.

But non-whites will be among the 1,000 invited when Mary Oppenheimer, 21, weds former Rhodes scholar star Gordon Waddell, 29, at Johannesburg's Anglican Cathedral next Wednesday.

The white South African government frowns on racially mixed gatherings, and forbids alcohol being served to non-whites on such occasions. But the country's race segregation practices do not forbid racial mixings at church gatherings.

Oppenheimer associates were reluctant to discuss the reasons for the decision not to invite Negroes to the reception. They indicated, however, it is something the family finds embarrassing and that Miss Oppenheimer is unhappy about it.

News Editors Wives Protest Long Hours

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Eleven irate wives of reporters and news editors of the Danish state television system demanded a halt today to public complaints that their husbands do not work hard enough.

Their open letter of protest, distributed to news papers, followed a public debate over the employment by the television company of 20 journalists to produce a newscast of 30 minutes of newscasts a day at its Copenhagen studios.

"We do not intend to say whether the TV newscasts are good or bad, but we do protest vigorously against assumptions that our husbands do not work enough," the 11 said in their open letter.

They bitterly told critics that the pressure of events had more or less resigned themselves to being alone while their husbands worked 10 to 12 or even 18 hours a day.

VEGETABLE PRICES VARY

The price of vegetables varied so much on a recent marketing journey I made that I am amazed. At the outdoor market a 6-quart basket of small shiny eggplants was 60c. In a supermarket one medium-sized dull one was 35c. Big bunches of small heads of broccoli with the purple blush still on them were 25c on our market. At the supermarket, overripened broccoli, slightly yellowed, was 49c per bunch. I was furious at this overpricing of poor quality vegetables.

If you are lucky enough to have an outdoor market, patronize the farmers there and give yourselves the benefit of the fresh vegetables and low prices.

Recipes follow for vegetables that I have prepared in the current week.

MONDAY
Dinner Menu
by Mary Moore

Cabbage Rolls with Tomato Sauce; Lima Beans; Tossed Greens; Apple Cottage Pudding; Cinnamon Sauce; Tea.

1 lb. spinach, 1 tablespoon butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, ½ cup evaporated milk or table cream; ½ teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1¼ tablespoons crumbled Roquefort or Danish Bleu cheese.

Wash spinach, drain well and cook, covered, until tender in the water which clings to the leaves. Drain well and chop coarsely. In medium sauce pan heat together, stirring, the flour and butter until blended, then stir in milk or cream until thick. Stir in salt, nutmeg and cheese until heated through. Stir in drained spinach and reheat, stirring. This is a sophisticated variation of creamed spinach.

EGGPLANT, TOMATO AND GREEN PEPPER CASSEROLE (Serves 6)

1 medium eggplant, pared and cut into 1" cubes, 1 16-oz can tomatoes, drained (see below), 2 medium green peppers, seeded and sliced, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion or bottled green onion flakes, 3 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup breadcrumbs.

Parboil cubed eggplant in boiling salted water 8 minutes. Drain well. Arrange half in bottom of buttered casserole. Cover with half of the drained tomatoes and half of the peppers. (Note: Use liquid drained from tomatoes in making soup.) Sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. Repeat these three vegetable layers and salt. Melt the butter and gently saute the onion in it for 1 or 2 minutes then add the crumbs and mix until butter is absorbed by the crumbs. Spread evenly over vegetables. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes or until peppers are barely tender.

Relatives Attend Baptismal Rites At Bancroft

Recently in St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, Peter Ross William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ian Nicholl, Belleville, was baptized by Reverend H. Funge.

Mr. Funge mentioned the fact that the baby was the third generation to be baptized in this church. He is the great grandson of the late Mr. W. H. Ross, who built the church, the anniversary of which was being celebrated that day.

Twenty - five relatives representing all sides of the related families and Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Philip and Mr. and Mrs. Stan Castell of Belleville, attended the service.

Later the guests were served a buffet lunch in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Nicoll, grandparents of the baby. An afternoon of visiting and sight seeing was followed by a baby turkey dinner in the cutlery parlor, served by the ladies of the U.C.W.

Special guests at the dinner were Rev. and Mrs. Funge as well as Rev. and Mrs. Cox. Mr. Cox was the guest speaker for St. Paul's anniversary service.

Successful Living
Lack of Discipline Root of Immorality

DEAR DORIS: I saw on a TV program where the youth were blaming the family structure at home for all the immorality among the present day young people.

I am a parent and would like to know what can be done about the youth that go dating and stay out until four in the morning? My son does this and next day sleeps in until ten thirty. He works for his dad. He comes down with flu and colds and blames hard work!

His boy friends do the same thing and they come home to sleep with him as they wouldn't dare show up at their own homes at that hour.

DORIS CLARE

Is it proper for us to go and see the other parents and discuss this? It's no use talking to our son as he will only say everybody's doing it. — APRON STRINGS.

* * *

DEAR APRON STRINGS: Well, he needs strings of some kind, that's for sure.

For one thing, he should be removed from his indulgent employer and sent to find a job on his own; and asked to pay board. For another, you should stop undermining the discipline of other parents by providing sanctuary for his pals at four a.m.

Visit the other parents by all means. Then call the boys in on the discussion. Stand together in settling on a curfew. This has been done before with success, since they can all be told "Everybody's doing it!"

DEAR DORIS: I am one of your many devoted readers, and I am hoping you may help me with a problem.

I am to be married in the late summer of 1966. My parents are of different faith, thus it was never decided as to which parent's faith I was to follow.

(1) Do I have to be baptized to get married?

(2) Do I have to belong to a certain church to have a fairly large wedding? — BRIDE-TO-BE.

* * *

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE:

(1) No.

(2) No. But if you want a church wedding you'd better make the acquaintance of the minister! Intelligent preparation for marriage includes seeking guidance you can be sure you have interested in those things that are involved in Making Marriage Work.

Confidential to WORRIED AND DISGUSTED: He is moody and he drinks, probably because he is worried about his feelings. If he is using the pornographic literature and movies merely for his own pleasure, there is little you can do about it. If he is exhibiting it, the authorities could take some action.

You can't conceal every last thing from the children, but you can be sure they have some interesting, wholesome information about sex. And you can consult a psychiatrist about your husband's condition.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: Want a message from our newest province? Here's the latest, gleaned from the welfare staff news letter:

TODAY

With every rising of the sun
Think of your life as just begun.
The past has cancelled and buried deep
All yesterdays. There let them sleep.
Concern yourself with but today.
Grasp it, and teach it to obey.
You and today; A soul sublime
And the great heritage of time.
With God himself to find the twain
Go forth, brave heart: Attain. Attain. (Anon)

From News and Views, Newfoundland Department of Public Welfare.

DEAR N. AND V.: Thank you, Mr. Clancy. The tremendous forward steps being taken to improve the lot of your people are strong evidence that you are taking your own advice.

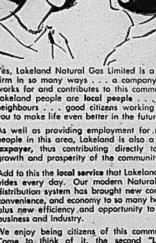
WELLINGTON W.I.

WELLINGTON — The Wellington Women's Institute held their regular meeting in the town hall on Tuesday evening with a good attendance.

Thank-you cards were received from Mrs. Lela Durant, Mrs. Sharpe and Mr. Leonard Wilte.

Mrs. Bea Smith and Mrs. Fern Denard were chosen to attend "Vegetables with a flair," in Picton on October 21-22nd. The annual convention (Tweedlers) is being held at Club Cedara in Belleville on November 25 and 26th. The short course on copper tooling is being held in the town hall on November 1st and 2nd, with a potluck dinner at noon.



It was decided to sell tickets on a quilt.

The meeting was then turned over to the hostess for the evening, Mrs. Sam Yourt. Current events were given by Mrs. Yourt and she read the poem of the month by Mrs. Yourt. Mrs. Norman Foster told of her trip to the west coast, which proved to be the highlight of the evening.

Jobs Hard To Find In Sweden

MONTREAL (CP) — Married women in Sweden who go to work often are unable to find jobs, Dr. Alva Myrdal, Swedish ambassador to the United Nations, said Sunday.

Dr. Myrdal, speaking to reporters before the official opening of the second Canadian conference on children, said Swedish women in smaller centres often find a lack of job openings and often feel "resentful and frustrated."

This particular kind of frustration arose from the fact that private industry was making "a sort of propaganda campaign" to make working seem attractive to married women.

The government is not engaged in a campaign to get married women out to work, she said, but it did regard married women as the group of citizens with "the greatest unused potential."

Women in larger centres were accepted on equal basis and in a different position.

"I think the real struggle for equality for women in Sweden ended three years ago when they were given the right to be ordained as priest in the state Lutheran Church."

Dr. Myrdal said there are classes in Sweden where the husband remains in the home while the wife goes out to work." The relations between male and female roles were changing in her country and there was more male participation in household work and family affairs.

STIRLING — The October meeting of Stirling Horticultural Society was held on Monday at the home of Mrs. Asa Brooks with 16 members in attendance. Because the president is holidaying in England, the vice-president, Mrs. Frank Harding, presided.

Mrs. Ray Rose and Harry Walts gave their business reports. Plans were made for a bus trip in November to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Mrs. Ray Rose gave the highlights of the recent annual meeting of this district, held in Picton. The estimated Royalty crab tree will be ready for planting by Horticultural Society members in the spring of 1966. The speaker suggested the planting of Trillium bede, since this flower is the emblem of the province of Ontario. It was also suggested that name tags should appear on trees and shrubs in the parks. The society should also be published and name tags placed on the flower gardens planted by the group.

Mrs. Ashley Brooks and Mrs. Ray Rose were the delegates to the school of Horticulture at Milton Botanical Gardens. They spoke briefly on the benefits of attending the course.

REPORT ON CONVENTION

Mrs. Morley Ayrhart and Mrs. Harry Walts were delegates to the 59th annual convention at Guelph in June. Mrs. Ayrhart summarized the report given by S. R. Buckler on centennial trees. He declared the fact that 6,000 trees had been destroyed and urged more co-operation between municipal councils and horticultural societies.

Mrs. White read the full address given by Mr. Wm. W. A. Stewart, Minister of Agriculture. He said that the Ontario Horticultural Association was established in 1906 under an act of the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. J. B. Belshaw reported that the flower bed at the village had been given their autumn clean up. The flower boxes on the bridge will need to be repaired and painted before the next season. He hoped some one near the bridge would volunteer to water the petunias in 1966.

The Christmas meeting will be held on November 29 at the home of Mrs. Percy Craighead. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. P. Craighead and Mrs. Ross Bush, served refreshments.

Batawa UCW Sponsors Tea, Bazaar

BATAWA — The annual fall tea and bazaar of Batawa United Church Women was held on Wednesday evening, from 7 - 9 p.m. in the Community Hall.

The novelty table was in charge of Mrs. D. Mountford.

The kitchen was in charge of Mrs. Ralph Armstrong and Mrs. Angus Cranston.

A good crowd was in attendance and the bazaar was successful.

Promote Concept of Aloneness Primary School Teachers Told

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 600 primary school teachers were told by speakers during a weekend conference here to "promote the concept of aloneness."

They were also asked to stop taking the attitude that learning is more robbing and to instill qualities without which human kind cannot survive."

The conference, the Ontario Council for Childhood Education, was held outside Ontario for the first time this year, with its Quebec branch as host.

Mrs. Margaret Sevigny of Montreal, conference president, said the attendance of Quebec teachers at the meeting suggested there might be enough interest here for Quebec to establish its own council of primary school teachers in the near future.

She said the Ontario organization had been in existence for at least 10 years and, until this year, interested Quebec teachers had gone to Ontario for the annual conference.

ADVISES TEACHERS

In a Saturday address, Dr. Leland Jacobs, director of the department of education at Columbia University, told the kindergarten to Grade 3 teachers they must treat their students as individuals.

But this could not be accomplished through the "outmoded" concept of "individual differences" which led to taking away individual traits and "bringing students up to the teacher's hidden norm."

Instead, the child had to be taught "the concept of the dignity of being alone on this year, but in loneliness but with equanimity."

"Presenting this concept of aloneness is one of the things teachers can do IF our time," Dr. Jacobs said. Another was to distinguish between curiosity concerns and commitments.

"Practically every primary school teacher will say she is meeting the needs and interests of children, but interest is too often a term when one looks at the concept of aloneness."

CAN HELP

Teachers can help the child's concern to develop into interest, for instance, "but that depends upon the child."

He said the teacher must also develop an I-thou relationship with the student, remembering always that "each one is alone in his wonderings, intents and aspirations." Students cannot be treated as "fits."

"To the extent that we respect the dignity of the aloneness of the child today, to this extent we contribute to the dignity of man tomorrow." he said. Teaching children not to be afraid of being themselves was the only way to fight automation and mass culture, the only basis for developing individuals and making communication between them possible.

Dr. Jacobs also said that the teacher "must teach children how to cope with boredom instead of just putting knowledge into them."

Imagination must not be wiped out by presenting only one way of seeing things because "children are going to have to live with all kinds of possibilities in the 21st century."

MUST BE CRITICAL

"Children must be taught to discriminately accept the knowledge we now have and to be simultaneously critical of it. They must be taught to be productive, but also creative. They must be rooted in reality, but also free in spirit."

The second speaker, Dr. H. G. Jefferis, director of the department of education at Bishop's University at Lennoxville, Que., told his largely female audience that there are too many women teachers.

"It is a bad thing that childhood education is conducted almost entirely by women," he said. "Boys grow up thinking that to be singing, dancing, learning to nipper slippers—that should be taught at the home.

"So students get the wrong idea about school. This training should come from the home so that the school can perform from the beginning its proper function of providing' intellectual exercise and teaching the child to think.

The two - day conference, which included child art exhibits, creative art supply displays and discussion groups, ended Saturday.

Home and School Association News

PARKDALE

The first fall meeting of Parkdale Home and School Association was held in the new school auditorium on Monday with approximately 125 parents in attendance.

Mrs. D. Reid presided over the meeting and the election of officers for the 1965-66 executive .They are as follows: president — Mr. Ralph Hall; vice-president — Mr. Bob Hender son; 2nd. vice-president — Mrs. Wilkie; treasurer — Mrs. Doug. Hoare and recording secretary — Mrs. Marie Ashton. The position of corresponding secretary will be filled by the executive.

An interesting panel discus sion was conducted with Mrs. W. Slack, the principal, as moderator. The members of the panel included the entire teaching staff, who answered questions parents had posted during the year and just before the meeting. Questions included those pertaining to school policy, report cards, the unit system and the new approach to mathematics. Parents found the discussion informative and appropriate for the beginning of the school year.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. H. MacDonald and Mrs. W. Caughlan served coffee and a social time was enjoyed.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

CARMEL WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The October meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Lorne Latchford with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. J. Lucas, and a number of items were discussed, including the area convention to be held on November 25th. and 26th at Club Lido, Belleville. A brush party and demonstration on making Christmas decorations from plastic bottles will be held November 10th at Carmel Church hall. A short course on choosing and using of fabrics will be held March 9th. It was decided to hold regular meetings on the third Wednesday of each month beginning with the November meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, Corbyville.

A citizenship reading was given by Mrs. Duane Martin, in which she told stories of our wild lives and thinks as Canadian as a Canadian. Mrs. George Graham also gave a reading. Mrs. Charles Brintnell took charge of the program and read two poems and reminisced on bygone days.

Mrs. Brintnell introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. D. Sargent, curator of the Belleville museum, who displayed a deed and photograph of Mr. Sargent's Simpson Tavern. She explained and displayed early pioneer pieces, including a wooden spoon from River Valley, butter mould with acorn pattern, wooden potato masher, all hand made, a pair of baby shoes, hand made and the first displayed in a case made by a jeweller, a vegetables chopper made out of a tin can and hand bag which Mrs. Kellar carried to New York in 1945, a cup and saucer 170 years ago.

Also shown were ancient buttons including a string of over 1,000 buttons called a love, or friendship string, girls traded buttons like girls of today trade Beatle records.

Mrs. Sargent displayed a setting of Hallmark silver sent to the museum by Mrs. Solman. The November display at the museum will be a living history lesson for school children and as an example she mentioned a pioneer kitchen. In December they will have a Christmas display. She advised the member to take care of pioneer articles.

Mrs. Lucas and Mrs. Brintnell thanked Mrs. Sargent and presented her with a small gift.

Readings were given by Miss Ruth Brintnell and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a social period followed.

SETS RECORD

A Canadian newsprint machine recently put what is believed to be a world record by producing 450 tons of newsprint in 24 hours.

BONARLAW W.I.

BONARLAW—The Women's Institute held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Jamie Spry on Tuesday afternoon, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Cassidy, opened the meeting and welcomed the members and visitors. Mrs. Clayton Burkitt was thanked for back following a lengthy illness.

An invitation from Wellman's Corner's W.I. to attend its 60th anniversary was accepted. Delegates to the area conference on November 25-26 will be appointed at the November meeting. A thank you card was received from Mrs. Cassidy.

A donation of $10 was given to the mental health institution at Cobourg and $10 was donated to the Plainfield Home for Retarded Infants. Cards signed by all members were sent to two shut-ins. Quilts that have been pieced and one that has been quilted were displayed.

Conveners for home economics, Mrs. A. Reid and Mrs. Cyril McKeown, were in charge of the program. Mrs. McKeown gave an address on the topic of the housewife's enemy. Mrs. Gerald Broadworth gave a reading. Mrs. E. Irwin and Mrs. Charles Stewart of Sylvestone W.I., were guests. Mrs. Irwin put on a demonstration of driftwood and exhibited many fine pieces. Jane McKeown presented Mrs. Irwin with a small gift. Mrs. Harry Walts, current events and an exhibition of aprons was put on by the members.

The hostess and her assistants served lunch. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Reid on November 24.

QUEENSBORO W.I.

QUEENSBORO — The regular monthly meeting of group one of the United Church Women of Queensboro was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Thompson with 11 members present.

Mrs. Roy Rollins, group leader, was in charge of the meeting. Mr. William Holmes was secretary.

Invitations were received to bazaars being held at Cooper Memorial, Bethesda and Madoc United Churches. A report was read from the rally held earlier in the week in the United Church at Halloway by Mrs. R. A. Sager. A story on Trinidad was also read by Mrs. R. A. Sager. Several tea towels were donated by members. At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

Ann Landers' Guest's Operations Make Poor Table Talk

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of ours had her appendix and gall bladder removed recently. Hortense has been dying everyone up the wall with the gory details of her operation.

Don't you feel it is tasteless to discuss one's innards at the dinner table? Hortense started to describe how much blood she had lost just as the maid brought in the best borsht. I couldn't look at it.

When she exhausted the details of her own operation she started in on the woman across the hall who had had an abdominal tumor removed. Just as Hortense said, "It was the size of a watermelon," the dessert appeared. You guessed it. I didn't touch mine.

Please publish this letter. Maybe she'll take the hint. — NOT HUNGRY, THANK YOU.

DEAR NOT HUNGRY: Here's the letter, but don't expect miracles. Anyone as insensitive as Hortense would not be fazed by a hint. You'll have to tell her. And if I were you, I would.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you please say something in the column about girls who are reluctant to break off their engagements for fear of what people might say?

Several weeks ago my favorite niece announced her engagement to a attractive young man. It looked like an ideal match. Yesterday my niece walked out her story. She allowed herself to be talked into the engagement by her socially ambitious mother. (The young man went to the right schools, belonged to the right clubs, and his parents are Philadelphia Main Line.)

"Mother has always been more concerned with how my engagement announcement would look on the society pages than about my happiness," she said. "I can't say my sleep got it.

She says her fiance is a nice person but she does not love him. She is afraid to break the engagement because people will think she is a fool. I hope you can make a dent. I can't. — TRIED AND FAILED.

DEAR TRIED: Tell your niece it's a lot less kooky to break an engagement than to marry a man she doesn't love just because she likes his things. Now he tells me that the reason he has stomach trouble is because my cooking is lousy. (He never complained about my cooking when he was packing in the food here seven evenings a week).

Is this man crazy or what? Should I continue to go with him now that I know he never wanted to marry me? I must confess we are extremely fond of each other and I'm afraid we'd be lost without one another"— VEXED.

DEAR VEXED: If you can forgive the dirty cracks about your cooking, continue to go with him for companionship.

Just because a man begs a woman to marry him doesn't mean he wants her to accept. Sometimes it only means he is asking what he considers a "safe" question.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents — if you can't get them to let you live your own lives, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

And Ann will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Voters Offered Varied Fare But Hard to Find Price Tag

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP)—The parties have spread a wide assortment of political goods on the counter for the voters to pick over before Nov. 8.

But it's often tough to find the price tag.

As the party in power, the Liberals have been able to time some announcements of specific spending programs to fit in neatly with their appeal to the voters. Just before the election was called, a $2,000,000 grant was announced for a hockey arena-trade centre in Vancouver.

Since the election call Sept. 7 there has been a series of similar government announcements:

—$200,000,000 over 15 years for medical and dental research and training facilities.

—$100,000,000 for a long-term northern roads program.

—$40,000,000 for a university scholarship program over four years.

—A $25,000,000 investment in Nova Scotia's coal industry.

—$12,000,000 for Eskimo housing.

But these tangible figures are like the top of the iceberg—much more remains under water.

PROMISE MEDICARE

The Liberals have promised implementation of a medical care insurance program. The government has offered $14 per capita to provinces joining the proposed plan.

This would put the annual federal bill at about $300,000,000.

But many provinces think the $14 will not meet half the per person cost of such a plan. At the latest federal - provincial health conference, the government gave a commitment to boost the federal payment if this estimate proves too low.

New Democrat Leader Douglas hasn't put a price tag on his party's promises to end university tuition fees, institute economic planning, establish a medical care program, spur building of a second trans-Canada highway and improve the position of the farmer. The same is generally true for the wide-ranging farm and social welfare programs pledged by the Liberals and Conservatives.

An exception was the promise by Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister, of a $2,000,000,000 long - term program to reforest 20,000,000 acres of second - grade farm land in Eastern Canada.

SETS FIGURE

That figure probably loomed large in Social Credit Leader Thompson's mind when he said that promises by Liberals and Conservatives to date in the campaign would mean expenditure of more than $6,000,000,000.

A Liberal-Conservative controversy bubbled up when Prime Minister Pearson tried to put a price tag on Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's pledge of an increase in old age pensions to $100 a month from $75.

Mr. Pearson said this would mean a tab of about $850,000,000 this year, more than the economy could bear. But Mr. Diefenbaker countered and the prime minister was figuring on $100 a month for those 65 and over but his pledge was for persons 70 and over. This would cost $300,000,000 a year, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Distinction of mentioning the biggest single figure of the campaign was won handily by Creditiste Leader Caouette. He suggested the Bank of Canada distribute $15,000,000,000 in dividends to Canadians.

This, he says, would make up the difference between the $35,000,000,000 income of all citizens and the $50,000,000,000 gross national product—total value of all goods and services. The dividend would give Canadians the money to buy up all the production represented by the GNP.

Rhodesian

Both the rival nationalist leaders agreed to Wilson's proposal that the Rhodesian people as a whole should be asked if they want independence based on the existing 1961 constitution. In separate statements they insisted this be done by a one-man one-vote referendum.

Wilson and Smith have not yet agreed on the ground rules for the commission nor on ways to change the 1961 constitution to make it acceptable to both sides.

Wilson said he thought the commission could complete its work by the end of this year. Without referring specifically to a referendum based on universal suffrage, the prime minister said the commission might produce an interim report on ways of consulting all Rhodesian opinion.

NKRUMAH COMPLAINS

President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana told him he considered the royal commission proposal "a betrayal of the 4,000,000 unrepresented African inhabitants" of Rhodesia. He said the commission was "a device to sidetrack an issue that cannot be left unsolved any longer without becoming a danger to world peace."

"I understand their feelings," said Wilson here, "but there is no betrayal here. We have stood firmly by our principles."

Nigerian Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa told Wilson he considered the royal commission a possible solution to the crisis.

Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley, who had gone to Rhodesia with Wilson, took another route home. He went first to Dar es Salaam, in Tanzania, to tell President Julius Nyerere about the talks, then went on to Kenya to confer with President Jomo Kenyatta.

In Britain, meanwhile, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, repeated his controversial statement that Christians could approve the use of force if that is necessary to keep order in Rhodesia.

Dr. Ramsey reiterated in a television interview that he was referring not to a military invasion but to the use of force to defend British authority if Britain had to suspend the semi-independence existing in Rhodesia and take over its government.

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith today searched for a way around the disagreement between him and British Prime Minister Wilson on the question of a royal commission, which, it is hoped, will solve Rhodesia's independence crisis.

The royal commission would decide whether the present constitution would be accepted, with some adjustments, by all Rhodesians for independence.

Wilson's Commonwealth secretary, Arthur Bottomley, said before leaving Salisbury Sunday there were areas of agreement and disagreement between the two sides. Talks would continue through the established official channels to seek the full agreement that would be necessary before the commission could act.

Wilson announced before leaving Saturday he had proposed that either all the Rhodesian people be asked whether they want independence under the 1961 constitution, or a royal commission be established to try to produce from the basis of the 1961 constitution a constitution for independence acceptable to all Rhodesians.

Smith countered with a proposal that a royal commission inquire whether the 1961 constitution with "adjustments" would be acceptable to all Rhodesians.

Wilson described this as "a most ingenious combination of the alternative proposals I put to him."

As a result of these proposals, he said, "the door is wide open for agreement."

Hallowe'en

groups served to halt much of the usual vandalism.

Gravestones in a Vancouver cemetery were knocked over and several mailboxes were cut to the ground.

A London, Ont., fireman called it the "worst Hallowe'en" he could remember as his 39 years on the force. Firemen attempting to put out fires set by pranksters were pelted with eggs. The fire department received more than 200 calls, including 50 to put out fires.

Fires also destroyed two empty houses near Brantford; a barn and a haystack and $150,000 worth of timber shed at St. Thomas, a barn and a shed near Sudbury and damaged a former country schoolhouse near Welland.

Also in Brantford, 31 tombstones were upset, and one man found 22 slashes in the fabric roof of his convertible.

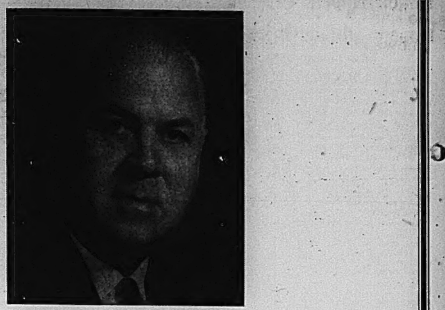
In Quebec, two costumed children were struck and killed by cars, while in Toronto, another three children were injured in separate accidents involving cars.



BOY BURNED

A Berwick, N.S. boy was severely burned when firecrackers exploded in his pocket and in Jasper, Alta., one person received burns requiring hospital treatment after a skyrocket set fire to a box of fireworks at a community display.

Police in Eastview, Ont., sought the person responsible for giving away apples with pins buried in them, and in Orillia, bottle caps, buttons and .22 calibre cartridge shells were mixed in bags of popcorn.

In Longueville, N.B., blazing roadblocks caused accidents resulting in minor injuries to car drivers and in Woodstock, N.B., roadgum resulted in 24 youths facing court charges for speeding, illegal possession of alcohol, throwing firecrackers, littering streets and one charge of placing a false fire alarm.

United Appeal Officials Hope to Obtain Objectives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most folks call it the United Appeal; others, the United Fund. But whatever the annual appeal for money is called, it's people helping people.

For several weeks, campaigns in aid of charitable and welfare agencies have been in progress in many Canadian centres. Many are drawing to a close or already have closed.

But almost universally across the land, campaign officials are optimistic this year's objectives will be reached, if not topped.

Only a few campaign officials sounded pessimistic notes in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press and most of these claimed campaigns for the Nov. 8 federal election interfered with efforts to get canvassers.

A few areas in Ontario have given up United Appeal campaigns because experience of past years showed the public wouldn't support them.

SCRAP PROGRAM

North Bay, Sudbury, Kitchener and Waterloo have scrapped the program, but the latter two cities now operate a federated charities drive starting early in March and running to May 1. This year's $323,000 goal was exceeded by $37,000 in pledges.

Here's a sampling of what's happening:

Ottawa—Sept. 21-Nov. 2: Objective $1,475,000 with almost all of it raised. Last year's $1,375,000 target was exceeded by $30,000.

Toronto—Oct. 15-Nov. 15: Target $10,546,000, with almost half reached. Last year's $10,238,000 goal was exceeded by about $1,000.

Hamilton—Sept. 20 - Oct. 31: Objective $1,478,778 with most of it collected. Last year's objective was slightly less and 99 per cent collected. Hamilton and Ottawa are competing with the loser giving the winning city $5,000.

London—Sept. 27-Oct. 21; with unspecified extension: Goal $848,000 with about 75 per cent collected. Last year's $810,918 target reached only $643,878.

SEEKS $750,000

Windsor — Oct. 12-Nov. 6: Seeking $750,000 with about $200,000 received. Last year's $602,000 objective was topped by $42,000.

Chatham—ends Oct. 30: Objective $102,251, of which about 70 per cent has been collected. Last year, $97,066 was reached in a $102,200 drive.

Woodstock—Oct. 4-23: About half the $97,400 target was reached in the city's second United Appeal campaign. Last year, only half of the $99,200 objective was raised.

Sarnia—Oct. 4-Oct. 23, with three-week extension: Objective $196,000, of which more than 80 per cent has been received. Last year's $190,000 goal was exceeded by $2,524.

St. Thomas—Oct. 5-26, but extended a week: About 60 per cent of the $95,000 objective has been reached.

REACH 40 PER CENT

Simcoe—Sept. 27 - no closing date: More than 40 per cent of the $39,862 objective has been reached. Last year's $44,130 goal was $10,000 short.

Guelph—Sept. 17-indefinitely: Officials are confident the $169,279 goal will be reached. Already, the drive has exceeded $100,000, or 11 per cent more than at this time last year. The 1964 objective of $163,680 reached $155,000.

Galt—ends Oct. 31: Objective of $110,000 now more than half realized. Pledges of about $84,000 were received last year when the goal was $90,000. This year, two more agencies are participating.

Brantford—Sept. 27-Oct. 14: The $226,413 goal was exceeded by $3,771. Last year's $218,079 goal went over the top by $11,132.

Peterborough—Oct. 3-28: The $791,011 objective now down about $70,000. But at the same stage last year, 74 per cent of the $214,782, goal had been attained.

ARE SHORT

Belleville — Sept. 27-Oct. 30: Objective $127,900, of which less than $14,000 has been collected. Last year's $106,000 goal fell short.

Kingston — Oct. 1-31: Goal $218,500 for 17 agencies. More than half has been collected. Last year's drive was extended two months in an effort to raise $216,500 but it just reached $200,000.

Sault Ste. Marie—Sept. 27-about Nov. 11: Objective $272,000, of which more than $240,000 has been collected. The 1964 target of $267,500 was topped by $5,000.

PLANS YOUTH PARLIAMENT FOR CENTENNIAL—If high school students from across Canada sit in the Canadian Parliament during the first week of July, 1967, it will be due to the energy of Bill Fair, a 25-year-old music student from Saskatoon. Reading Mr. Fair's plan for the Centennial Youth Parliament is Senator James Gladstone, the Indian senator from Lethbridge. High school students would compete for election in the ridings. The plans also call for a Throne Speech by Prince Charles and an Indian youth as Governor-General.

Youth Parliament Grows From Fair's Enthusiasm

By KEN EMMOND

WINNIPEG (CP)—The young man leaned forward in his chair and said, "I have a tremendous amount of energy . . .

"In 20 years I won't have this energy and so if I am going to do something for Canada I'd better do it now."

Bill Fair, a 25-year-old music student from Saskatoon, was in Winnipeg to publicize a centennial program for Canada's youth.

The Canadian Centenary Youth Parliament is an idea that Mr. Fair conceived eight years ago and has been pouring his energy into since 1963 when he returned from a NATO conference in Bonn.

If high school students from across Canada sit in the House of Commons during the first week of July, 1967, it will be the result of his hard work and contagious enthusiasm.

Youth Parliament is especially important to Mr. Fair because, he said, participation is the very best way to learn and Youth Parliament will give Canadian youth a chance to participate in debate on Canada.

"Participation is the greatest teacher," he said.

SCHOOL FOR LEADERS

Mr. Fair has postponed plans to return to university until after the centenary Parliament. Although he has studied music on scholarships both in the United States and Canada, he has a broad view of the meaning of culture.

"Culture starts by doing what you want to do," said Mr. Fair, an ardent admirer of Beethoven. "Every young person—without exception—has ideas but few do anything with them."

He hopes the Youth Parliament will stimulate action in Canadian youth. "Out of this project we'll get a lot of leaders. Let's see if there's a Churchill in Canada."

Mr. Fair's plans for the Youth Parliament include having Prince Charles come to Canada to read the throne speech on July 1 and having an Indian youth as governor-general.

The young MPs may well be the first Canadians to be chosen from constituencies after redistribution.

Each high school in a constituency will nominate a candidate on the basis of his leadership qualities as well as scholastic achievement and each nominee will compete with the other high school candidates in his riding.

They will make a speaking tour of the high schools in their constituency before election by the students.

TAKE TURNS AT LEADING

Mr. Fair said he would start promoting the scheme in high schools in November. He said he could spot the challenge to people who are thinking of leaving high school.

There will be a government and an opposition, and the groups will switch during the week-long session so that members will have experience in both positions.

Mr. Fair hopes to make the first week in July Canadian Youth Week, featuring Youth Parliament as an annual event.

Though he has sought aid for the project from political parties, service clubs and private donations, Mr. Fair is determined to keep it from being dominated by patrons.

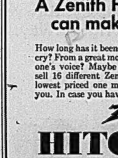
"If the Parliament becomes a political tool it will be crucified," he said.

He also plans to make Youth Parliament an opportunity for Canada's youth to learn more about their nation. "I think most people in Canada are pretty confused about Parliament in Canada," he said.

Mr. Fair said he hopes Youth Parliament will make young people more aware of their national heroes.

"We're really afraid to recognize Sir. John A. Macdonald as a national leader," he said. "A nation that doesn't respect its past is certainly going to have trouble building its future."

Plan to Import Lions Alarms English Town



FROME, England (AP) — A roar of protest sounded through the town hall over the Marquess of Bath's plan to bring lions to the grounds of his stately home.

"It is quite conceivable," said Rev. Edgar Tiller, "that there will be escapes—and escapes may not be one animal alone. The time to protest is now."

Lord Bath, owner of Longleat House, had announced he planned to import the lions as a tourist attraction. In keeping with other owners of stately homes—whose upkeep costs a small fortune — Lord Bath charges admission.

"It's one thing to have a tiger in your tank," said Councillor Albert Bull, "but quite another thing to have a lion in your lap, and that might happen."

Low Pressure In Oil System Early Warning

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Many a ruined engine has resulted when the driver has actually ridden it into the ground. Not deliberately, but by ignoring an early warning sign, such as low oil pressure.

Yes, low pressure could be due to something as simple as a faulty gauge, or to oil which is badly thinned out by gas or water dilution. Yet if you don't replace the gauge, it's a gamble . . . and if you don't change diluted oil promptly, you damage engine parts.

No matter what is causing low pressure — whether it's loose feed line connections, a clogged oil intake, worn oil pump or pressure relief valve—some thing must be done about it.

There are more serious conditions which could be at fault, too, such as worn main, camshaft or connecting rod bearings. When engine knock accompanies the oil pressure drop, you can be sure it's bearing trouble.

There are other possibilities as well, but this should provide a quick idea of what can be happening when oil pressure drops below normal.

• • •

From H.M.: "I'm sure my speedometer is registering at least 10 mph less than the car is actually going. What could cause this?"

A faulty hairspring is usually the reason.

G. O. writes: "I asked my service station man if — as you say — the cooling system thermostat helps gas mileage, and he said he couldn't imagine how."

Then he doesn't understand the function of the thermostat. It's designed to assure quicker engine warm-up because a cold engine wears more and uses more gas.

• • •

From D. R.: "When I wrote that my 1963 engine with only 21,000 miles clocked suddenly started using a quart of oil every 300 miles, you diagnosed it as leakage. Yet, I can't find any trace of it. Does that mean it must be either valve, piston, or ring trouble?"

Not necessarily. Be sure you're checking for leakage after the engine reaches operating temperature.

• • •

E. T. asks: "A new battery, rebuilt starter, new plugs and points haven't improved my '64 standard economy. Too often, it refuses to start and I need a push or downhill roll to get going."

The ignition coil or the coil connections could be to blame.

• • •

From R. W.: "How cold should the weather be before the cooling system thermostat is needed?"

The thermostat aids engine warmup, and is meant to be left in the system the year 'round.

"We are making utter asses of ourselves. This argument is all ifs and buts based on old women's gossip. How many of you have any idea of how to keep lions?"

Canada Wants No Part of Scheme To Wet Down U.S. With Our Water

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada wants no part of a massive, visionary scheme to wet down the western United States with Canadian water.

The $100,000,000,000 project is the brainchild of the Ralph M. Parsons Co. of Los Angeles and New York.

The engineering and construction firm, has been pushing the scheme in government circles on both sides of the border for some time and recently got a boost from Democratic Senator Frank Moss of Utah.

It involves the collection of water from rivers in British Columbia, the Yukon and Alaska draining into the Pacific and Arctic oceans.

Trapped in giant reservoirs, it would be channelled through a series of lifts and tunnels into the Rocky Mountain Trench. It would form a 500-mile lake from Prince George, B.C., to Libby, Mont.

In effect, the natural flow of the rivers would be partly reversed into the trench to form the lake 3,000 feet above sea level. From the southern tip water would be drained into rivers and canals to solve the water supply problems of the western U.S. and Mexico.

Senator Moss introduced a resolution in the Senate late in August calling on President Johnson to urge Canada to join the U.S. in referring the project to the International Joint commission for a report on its technical and economic feasibility.

He said there were signs that Canadian authorities were resisting in their opposition to the idea of making joint studies of the project.

NEGATIVE VIEW

The scheme has a number of sidelights that would change the face of a good part of Canada. But the Canadian government view on water export is negative, stated both privately and publicly.

In public speeches Northern Affairs Minister Laing, whose portfolio includes water resources, has said Canada will allow water export only if absolutely convinced it is in the country's best interest. He has termed water Canada's second greatest asset, after soil.

Informants say that in the Canadian view the Parsons scheme—called the North American Water and Power Alliance —is at best premature. Canada just does not need NAWAPA.

In any event Canada has had no opportunity to give a final rejection of the scheme to the U.S. government because no official request about it has been made to Ottawa.

Ocean vessels would go up the Fraser River through a series of locks into the Rocky Mountain Trench and across the Prairies to the Great Lakes system, in effect providing Canada with a transcontinental canal.

From the massive development — which would take 30 years to complete—the Prairies would get an extra 110,000,000 acre-feet of water, primarily for agricultural use. An acre-foot is enough water-to cover an acre of land to a depth of one foot. Agricultural production would be increased by 30 per cent.

CHEAP TRANSPORT.

The Parsons brochure on the scheme lists a wide range of other economic benefits ranging from the production of cheap hydro-electric power to a vast expansion of the uranium industry by opening mining districts to cheap ship and barge transportation.

It also steps into the political realm, suggesting an ultimate effect would be to push Canada into the Commonwealth leadership past Britain.

But the Canadian view is that the U.S. would get a huge amount of Canadian water which, once given, is irretrievable.

There also is some question of Canada's ability to retain her political independence from the U.S. once the two countries were linked by a unified, continental water-division scheme.

In addition, the Rocky Mountain Trench lake and other reservoirs would flood thousands of acres of land and many important communities.

An ous Canadian official put it, buying Nawapa is like buying a Cadillac and then going deeply into debt to pay for it.

DISTRICT DINNER

MADOC — The Moira Valley district was well represented at the annual Scout banquet and meeting held this year in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw.

Rev. J. H. Thompson, president of the Moira Valley district council, called assembly. A period of silence was observed in memory of the late Mr. Bill Bennett, past president of the district.

SCOUTING MOVEMENT GROWING

Mr. Thompson in his opening remarks said this was the sixth anniversary of the district and commented on the expansion and growth of the movement. The number of boys and leaders in the area was growing, with new groups formed during the past year in Plainfield and Bonarlaw. The district is a large one to cover with monthly visits to council meetings, yet it was felt that spreading executive meetings around the area created a more friendly spirit.

A census of the district revealed that the movement has still to reach more boys and that it is touching only a small percentage of the age group from eight to 17 years.

Leaders were still needed, along with more interested council members.

Mr. Thompson introduced the head table guests who included: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beckett, warden of the county, and Mr. Walter Harpur, of the provincial field executive. Both spoke and expressed their thanks and appreciation for what was being done for the boys. The theme, "Fit For Service," was explained.

Mrs. Gordon Russell, Cub leader from Plainfield, led in a singsong while the tables were being cleared.

RECEIVES SERVICE PIN

Mr. Thompson presented Mrs. Joe Irish with a 15-year Scout service pin and congratulated her on his achievement.

Dr. Mullin, secretary, spoke briefly and reminded leaders and officers that the membership and registration must be in by the end of the month.

Rev. Rogers Stewart, rector of the parish of Marmora, welcomed the guests.

Joe Irish, District Commissioner, emphasized the importance of the camping program during the summer holidays. He observed that fewer boys went to camp this year.

LISTS OFFICERS

The election of officers was held with results as follows: president, Rev. James H. Thompson of Madoc; vice-president, Mr. Keith Cotter of Tweed; secretary, Dr. George Mullin of Madoc and treasurer, Mr. Claire West of Stirling.

Joe Irish was re-appointed District Commissioner for the 1965-66 term. Other officers are: A. D. C. Gordon Russell of Halloway, A.D.C., Ernest Harvey of R.R. 3, Frankford and D.C.M., Mrs. Pearl Irish of Stirling.

Mr. Jim Seeking of Thomasburg thanked the women of St. Mark's Church for their catering. Following the business, colored slides were shown of the first church parade held at Stirling in June and of scout outdoor activities.

Commander-in-Chief LBJ Runs Both Viet Nam War and Peace

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a recent magazine cartoon, an American soldier crouching in a distant jungle was saying into a field telephone, "Yes, Mr. President . . . That's right, Mr. President . . ."

Like any good caricature, this was truth overdrawn. Lyndon Johnson is not trying to run the war in Viet Nam all by himself by phone. But there appears little doubt that he is running both the war and the peace about it.

While he is not trying to masterminid the struggle at the ground level, his interest in the details is perhaps more prodigious than any commander-in-chief since Abe Lincoln, who used to wander personally over to the war office for the latest battle dispatches.

The comparison with Lincoln is tempting within other limits. Lincoln immersed himself in the details of a big war because his generally wooden-top fighting son immerses himself in the details of a small war because, first, that is his way, and, second, some of his generals may be only too ready to fight harder and make the war larger.

It was misinformation and lack of information which evidently led John F. Kennedy to disaster at the Bay of Pigs. That spectre, President Johnson indicated to a recent visitor, haunts him and is likely to haunt American presidents to eternity. It is always a problem for a president, he said, to be certain he is getting all the information on a given situation.

CONTROLS BOMBING

No American plane is supposed to hit any target in North Viet Nam or in any other "politically sensitive" area without specific approval of the president. Periodically, the joint chiefs of staff draw up a list of possible targets. The list goes to the president and he decides.

After the escalation of the war in Viet Nam, beginning with the Gulf of Tonkin crisis last year, some generals and admirals in the Pentagon were complaining that military operations suffered from excessive civilian control. This is denied by the president's closest advisers.

But highly-placed officials say the president does want to know what intelligence says about the target, what are the civilian and political risks, what are the chances of hitting something else accidentally, what is the likely cost and the likely gain.

On other matters, military and diplomatic, the president seems to have an endless supply of questions. "After 30 years in Washington," says one cabinet member, "he knows where the bones are buried and, thus, which questions to ask."

PRESIDENTIAL QUERIES

For a variety of reasons, then, cabinet members, agency heads, White House aides and specialists, and the senior duty officer (night or day) at the national command centre in the Pentagon get a variety of presidential queries.

What were our casualties, what were theirs? . . . Let's get the producer of Hello, Dolly to send the show to Viet Nam. (It was) . . . How many weapons did we lose, how many did we capture? . . . When will the air mobile division be operational? . . . Any later word on Kwashiang pilots? . . . You get me the ideas, I'll worry about the domestic politics . . . How is that low - cost housing program going in Saigon? What about the refugee project? . . .

Any reaction to that raid near Hanoi? . . . Get me the name of that helicopter pilot who carried out his mission after being wounded. (A presidential commendation was on its way within 30 minutes.) . . . Wouldn't higher pay and better housing help reduce the Vietnamese desertion rate? (It did.) . . . Wouldn't small, low-flying, single-engine planes be better for forward observation than helicopters? (They were.) . . . It is important that the rest of the world understand our Viet Nam position. I want the people in state, including Rusk, to make themselves available for interviews with foreign newspaper men. . . .

How did we lose so many planes in that raid? What is their manoeuvrability ratio to ours? Would slower planes be more effective? . . . I want every government official who has any problem persuading good civilian personnel to go to Viet Nat to tell me, and I'll persuade them. . . .

VISITS COMMAND POST

Now and then, the president drops down to the super-secret "situation" room in the White House basement to study reports and watch the messages come in. He spent the better part of a long night there during the Dominican crisis. It was here that Franklin D. Roosevelt studied maps of the Second World War and John F. Kennedy tensely watched the tracking of Soviet ships during the Cuban missile crisis.

Where he's after information, Johnson may choose to go over or around channels. In Saigon, for example, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has been told by the president to cable him directly his own weekly estimate of the situation in Viet Nam, instead of going through the state department. The president, we are told, places great value on a variety of independent opinions.

This kind of thing is cited by aides to refute the notion that Lyndon Johnson may be hopelessly in foreign affairs. The Johnson who runs the war, they say, is not the same Johnson who, on a personal level, will decide suddenly to fly to Texas, or invite new ambassadors to walk with him and 50 reporters, or suddenly appear on the White House balcony waving as one an ak to come meet a poet or prince.

In matters of public policy, especially in foreign affairs and defence matters, his aides say, he moves only after long consultation and study.

What's the use of advertising?

Advertising, it's been said, keeps trying to foist off on us a lot of things we don't need. Like refrigerators, freezers, electric floor polishers—and automatic washers.

It's true we don't absolutely have to have these things. In a sense, they're luxury items. But just try to tell Sally Campbell or any other housewife, that her automatic washer is a luxury.

Oh, we could probably get along without cars and vacuum cleaners and electric lights if we had to. Millions of people did for many thousands of years. But why should we? Is scientific progress something that should be kept secret?

Advertising, you see, is just a way of letting all of us know what's new and different and better in the world today. It's a way of telling us about the things that can help make our lives a little easier, a lot more fun.

And when you buy an automatic washer, a new refrigerator, or a car, you raise your standard of living a notch or two. You put money in circulation. And you help create jobs. So everybody's standard of living goes up.

It's something to think about next time you pick up your daily newspaper. The ads you see there are actually helping you maintain and improve your standard of living. And they're making all of our lives a lot easier. Just ask Sally Campbell.

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—Barring a major erosion of a dependable working-class vote, the New Democratic Party expects to turn up British Columbia's first woman MP Nov. 8.

The party has an odds-on favorite to hold Vancouver Kingsway in Grace MacInnis, daughter of CCF founder J. S. Woodsworth and widow of six-term MP Angus MacInnis.

Enclosing a residential section of east-end Vancouver, Vancouver Kingsway is a 30,000-vote riding of wage-earners who have voted CCF and NDP for more than three decades, with the exception of the Diefenbaker sweep in 1958.

The Liberals are trying to break down the NDP's 1963 plurality of 5,800 votes with a big campaign behind Jack Austin, 33, lawyer and executive assistant to Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

The other parties were far back in 1963. The Conservative candidate this time is Garfield Milner, tobacco company warehouseman who will be on the election day. Arthur Holmes, 55, an auto mechanic, tries again for Social Credit.

Mrs. MacInnis, 60, says she is not standing on the records of her father and husband, but realizes them to be "tremendous" advantages.

She has probably been more active nationally on behalf of CCF and NDP than any other woman, both as an organizer in every province and as a writer for farm, labor and party journals. She won a national award for popular biography with her 1953 book Woodsworth: A Man to Remember.

She was a member of the B.C. legislature from 1941 to 1945 but it was pre-candidate family after that. Her husband retired before the 1957 election because of failing health and died last year at the age of 79.

Mrs. MacInnis decided to stand for nomination this year when the Vancouver Kingsway incumbent, Arnold Webster, retired due to ill health.

Job security, education costs, medical care and inflation are the issues she is pressing at all-candidate meetings.

The Liberals say professional analyses show Kingsway is not staid, but in fact volatile, and that it can be taken. They count on dissolution of Mr. Webster's personal following, a 20- to 25-per-cent turnover of voters since 1963, Kingsway's break from NDP (to Social Credit) in the last provincial election, a gain in average income to $5,200 ($750 above the national average) and the fact that 83 per cent of the riding's voters now are buying or own their homes.

RMC Historian Is Maintaining Cluny House

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A historian at the Royal Military College here is maintaining a 120-year-old house that Sir John A. Macdonald visited regularly as a boy.

Five years ago Dr. George Stanley, historian and dean of arts at RMC, bought Cluny House—Cluny is Gaelic for a meadow or green pasture—and except for plumbing, heating and lighting, the grey limestone structure is much the same as it must have been during the boyhood of Canada's first prime minister.

Each succeeding owner has kept the building in excellent shape. Although the property now has only 75 of its original 200 acres, it still is surrounded by towering trees, flowering bushes, winding paths and waist-high fences of flat slate.

Cluny was built sometime between 1815 and 1820 by Sir John's uncle by marriage, Donald Macpherson who sponsored Sir John's father on his arrival from Scotland in 1820.

From the age of six until the death of his aunt and uncle, young John was a frequent visitor at Cluny, particularly in his early teens when his parents lived in Glenora, Ont.

EAGER READER

Sent to Kingston to study, he boarded with a family who lived a short walk from the house.

"So vexatious he would seize upon any book that interested him, sit down and peruse it no matter what was going on around him," she wrote.

Dr. Stanley says the building, built of early Kingston, was similar to the grey stone buildings of Dornoch and the rocky Scottish moors of Argyll.

The rectangular house has four rooms on each of its two floors. In Sir John's day, food was cooked in a chimney bake-oven and a wide-open fireplace in the cellar kitchen now functions as a recreation room.

The house has curiously low doorways. None of the interior doors is higher than six feet and both the front and back doors are lower still.

Scout Ready For Anything . . . Almost

LONDON (AP) — Be Prepared is the boy scout motto but Scoutmaster William Peto was hardly prepared for what happened when he did a good turn for a girl guide captain.

Peto and four scouts from his troop drove by truck to Monmouth for a joint boy scout-girl guide encampment.

He happily agreed to transport some bricks and planks to the camping grounds.

By letter the scoutmaster pleaded guilty and was fined £5 ($15).

One of the magistrates who fined him was Mrs. Pope, who is also a Monmouth magistrate.

The scoutmaster said:

She observed:

"I'm sorry I had to do what I did, but the law's the law and it should be the same for all people."

The boy scouts announced a runnemage sale to pay their scoutmaster's fine.

Tommy Douglas Appears To Be in Safe B.C. Seat

By STEPHEN SCOTT

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — A constituency that has supported the New Democratic Party since it was formed and that has returned the party's national leader to Parliament with a 5,000-vote majority might be considered a safe seat.

Not so, say the opponents of T. C. Douglas, NDP leader, in Burnaby Coquitlam constituency in the Nov. 8 federal election.

"Mr. Douglas is in for a big surprise," says Social Crediter James Kennedy. His party's candidate trailed Mr. Douglas by 15,000 votes in the 1963 election.

The Liberal candidate is equally optimistic and the Conservative says anything can happen in an election, although he all but admits he is running because he feels his party must put up a fight.

Mr. Douglas sees no reason he will not continue to hold the constituency he has represented since 1962 when he won a by-election after the seat was vacated by Erhart Regier, who had held it since 1953.

Only recently returned to federal politics after being premier of Saskatchewan for years, Mr. Douglas had been defeated in Regina in the 1962 federal election.

His opponents this election are: Mr. Kennedy, 40, a realtor; Michael George Allen, 46, Conservative who describes himself as being between businesses; and Liberal Richard Hayes, 25, a lawyer in the office of Liberal Senator J. W. De B. Farris.

MAKE FIRST BID

None has contested the constituency before. Mr. Kennedy was unsuccessful Social Credit candidate in the 1962 provincial election in Vancouver East.

The constituency is considered to be a cross-section of rural and metropolitan living. It includes working-class districts sub-divisions with homes in the $20,000-$25,000 class; British Columbia's largest French - language grouping and heavy, light and service industries.

There has been a considerable increase from the almost 50,000 eligible voters in the 1963 election and much of this is in the white collar and professional classes. All parties expect considerable support from this new group that they say could number between 5,000 and 10,000.

Valiant Fight of Jervis Bay To Be Honored in Ceremony

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP) — A 44-year-old Royal Navy man who led a charmed life in the Second World War flew to Canada Wednesday for ceremonies commemorating the valiant fight of the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay in 1940.

Cmdr. Ronald A. G. Butler was one of 65 officers and men of the ship's complement of 255—who survived the Jervis Bay's engagement with the German super - cruiser Admiral Scheer.

He also survived four other ship sinkings and a plane crash before the war was over.

Still in the navy, on classified work, Butler now is making plans to honor a double promise made to the late Sir Winston Churchill. The wartime prime minister told Butler he must write a history of his war experiences and must return to Canada to thank those responsible for caring for the Jervis Bay survivors.

SIX WERE SUNK

The Jervis Bay was one of six ships sunk the night of Nov. 5, 1940, when the Admiral Scheer struck savagely before dusk at an allied convoy east of Bermuda. The Admiral Scheer was a fast, heavily armed ship of a type classified by the Germans as grosskreuzer (super-cruiser) and nicknamed "pocket battleships" by the British. They were inferior to capital ships but superior to heavy cruisers.

Hopelessly outgunned, the Jervis Bay with her six-inch armament was pounded by the Admiral Scheer's 11 inch guns and soon caught fire both fore and aft.

Butler, now living at Sevenoaks, Kent, was only a 24-year-old midshipman at the time. He received the Distinguished Service Cross after the sinking—probably the youngest naval officer ever to get the award, the Royal Navy says. The Jervis Bay's captain, Cmdr. E. S. Fogarty Fegen, was lost with his ship and was awarded a posthumous Victoria Cross.

The Jervis Bay had been operating out of Saint John and a memorial stands there to the victims of the sinking. It will be the scene of the 25th anniversary services.

Two Railways Inaugurate New Train Service

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways inaugurated new Montreal - Toronto trains Sunday, ending a 32-year pool train service.

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau acted as dispatcher in a ceremony starting the CNR's new Rapido on its ways to Toronto. CNR calls its four-hour, 59-minute scheduling the fastest inter - city service in North America.

Under the pool arrangement, day, evening and overnight trains were scheduled between here and Toronto. With the suspension of the service, the CPR has eliminated overnight service and the CNR kept it, and both railways have day and evening trains.

The CNR ceremony for the first departure of the Rapido was linked by a closed-circuit television hookup to a similar ceremony in Toronto. Mayor Drapeau and Mayor Philip Givens of Toronto exchanged informal banter.

ATTEND DINNER

MADOC — Staff members of the Kinzel Bros. I.G.A. store attended the firm's annual buffet dinner and dance at the Club Kingsway in Toronto. Following the dinner entertainment was supplied by the popular TV artist, Juliette, and dancing was enjoyed to the music from Ellis McClintock's orchestra.

ORDINATION SERVICE

St. John the Baptist Anglican choir assisted in the ordination service held in St. John's Church, Stirling, on Sunday. Many parishioners and friends also attended this service to see their rector, Rev. James H. Thompson, ordained to the Priesthood.

Rev. Peter Parks of Bala, celebrated Holy Communion, in St. Bartholomew Church, Bancockburn, and St. John The Baptist Church, Madoc, and also assisted at the ordination service.

He was a weekend guest at the rectory, along with Miss Kathleen Head of Toronto.

The W.A. of the parish held a reception in the rectory to mark this happy event. Many friends of the church and of the Thompson's dropped in for a visit, including Rev. and Mrs. Alex Brandon of Tamworth, and Miss Greta Clark and Miss Connelly of Peterborough.

Congratulations are extended to Mrs. Frank Dafoe on celebrating her 85th birthday. A surprise party was arranged by Mrs. Dafoe's daughter-in-law, Mrs. R. F. Dafoe at their home.

No Charges Laid After Shooting

KINGSTON (CP) — Dwayne Brooks, 18, of Moscow, Ont., was taken to hospital, and two other persons were injured by shotgun pellets Saturday night at Verona, 30 miles north of here.

Police said the three were hit by the pellets during a weapons-ing incident behind a restaurant. The shots followed a warning to get off the property, police said.

Police said no charges have been placed, but an investigation is under way.

Our 1966 Volkswagen fastback sedan can fool you.

When you take it for a ride, it corners and handles so well you might forget it's a family car.

Even some sports car buffs are astonished at the way it performs. One enthusiast went as far as to say it handles a lot like a $6000 Porsche.

We just blushed.

Mind you, we can see how some of its features might give the impression our new fastback is a bit of a sport.

You don't normally find those things in a family car. Any more than you find a back seat in a sports car. Or 17 cu. ft. of luggage room.

Our '66 fastback sedan uses regular gas. Gets about 34 miles to the gallon. And goes to a Volkswagen dealer for service.

Can you?

Election Issues More Notable For Quantity Than High Design

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—The issues in the Nov. 8 election campaign have been notable more for quantity than high drama. And the important ones hinge on domestic rather than foreign affairs.

None of the wide range of 1965 talking points has the Mc. acid-test quality of the nuclear question that stimulated the 1963 campaign and produced sharp conflict both between and within political parties.

Instead, the politicians are talking about majority government, morality in government, national unity, Co n e r vative party unity, a national medical care program and the Canada-U. S. auto trade agreement.

Such campaign staples as wheat prices and the cost of living also have been tossed into the cauldron. The only foreign affairs issue has been the question of seating Canada as troops to Viet Nam.

The last election's big argument over whether Canadian forces should be equipped with nuclear warheads is not even an issue this time. And the flag controversy, the greatest issue of the 1963-63 Parliament, crops up only infrequently, and then in a minor way.

PEARSON WANTS MAJORITY

Prime Minister Pearson has hayed his campaign to what he terms the need for majority government.

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker has repeatedly sought to ask the Liberal administration the underworld, his comments covering everything from the Lucien Rivard scandal to Pearson's bankruptcy racket.

The issues were largely unanswered by Mr. Pearson until late in the campaign when he delivered a blistering television denunciation of the accusations.

It was a temporary break in his policy-of-hope approach to the campaign.

The overall Liberal tactic was to avoid treading long enough on results or accusations with Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Pearson generally disarmed the opposition with dialogue, but some times cutting, references to his campaign speeches. At the same time he defended Liberal policies without getting into specifics.

VOTERS SHOW APATHY

The subdued interest in the election by the voters has been attributed as the result of the lack of cut-and-thrust public debate by the leaders of the two traditional parties.

For this and other reasons some political observers have forecast a drop in the percentage points from 1963 in the number of eligible voters who exercise their franchise.

A late surge of interest could change the picture. A recent national survey indicated the number of undecided voters as a fairly normal 11 per cent. This was well down from earlier estimates of 26 per cent. Some interpreted this as a sign of increased electoral interest.

However, if the early predictions hold up, about 80 per cent of the electorate will vote compared with 79 per cent in 1963.

As a partial explanation, some note that even the available issues fall, in prairie eyes, inter-party conflict. For example the Liberals work a marshal to introduce what Mr. Pearson has called a middle-of - the-road medical care program satisfactory to the provinces by July 1, 1967.

DISGREE ON MEDICARE

The NDP has long advocated a national government - sponsored health care plan, but leader T. C. Douglas has said the Liberal program is unsatisfactory because it will not be universal. The Conservatives also favor a national plan, but Mr. Diefenbaker has criticized the Liberal method of financing.

Social Credit wants health care on a voluntary basis and objects to the Liberal proposal on the grounds a government, consolidation interferes with individual and provincial rights.

Mr. Pearson set the tone for his campaign in the Sept. 7 television-radio address announcing the election. He called for a majority to replace his parliamentary minority and developed the theme as the campaign wore on.

His party held 127 of the 265 Commons seats at dissolution. The Conservatives had 92, the NDP 18, CreXistence 13, Social Credit 9. Two seats were held by independents and four were vacant.

REFERS TO ECONOMY

On a visit to the Maritimes, while he complained of an economic lag behind other regions, Mr. Pearson emphasized the need for a strong central government to keep the economy rolling.

On the Prairies, where Liberals held only three of 42 seats in the last Parliament, the appeal was for "proper" western representation in a majority Liberal government. He also carried the majority - government theme into Ontario.

In Quebec City, he drew applause by outlining his party's position in introducing the new maple leaf flag, popular in Quebec.

But on majority government, he also says it is necessary to help preserve national unity. Meanwhile Mr. Diefenbaker was countering the theme into other stands for two Canadas—one French and one English—to the detriment of other national origins.

He also accused Mr. Pearson of electioning on the power issue of the federal government since he took office in 1963. In Quebec Mr. Diefenbaker promised a great conference to reshape Confederation for the benefit of Canadians.

PCs EMPHASIZE SCANDALS

But the dominant Diefenbaker theme has been morality in government. In this he has had considerable help from Erik Nielsen, member for the Yukon in the last Parliament, whose revelations led to the Dorion inquiry into the Lucien Rivard scandal.

Mr. Douglas has also made some political capital in this area, but has accented other issues.

The NDP leader joined Mr. Diefenbaker in accusing the Liberal government of shortchanging the Canadian consumer in the tariff-cutting auto trade agreement with the U.S.

Mr. Douglas also attacks what he calls a lack of Liberal leadership. "Mr. Pearson," says Mr. Diefenbaker is no improvement.

The underlying theme of the Western-based campaign of Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson was to restore power to individual liberty from government encroachment.

DENY MISLEADING

However, he too has stepped into the morality-in-government area. He accused the Liberals of "child" corruption" to obtain the support of six Social Credit members of Parliament from Quebec during the last election. The Liberals denied wrongdoing.

This affair was brought to the fore in a pamphlet by Dr. Guy Caouette, one of the Social Credit MP running this time as an independent. He named Transport Minister Pickersgill and others and suggested $25,000 in bribe money was involved. But no names were mentioned in connection with it.

In his Quebec campaign, Mr. Caouette has denied the pro, voked equal headlines with the charge that the Liberals plan to use Canadian troops in Quebec to send troops to help the U.S. in the Viet Nam war.

Mr. Pearson has denied the charge categorically. He said Canada has no troop commitments whatsoever in Viet Nam.

On the Prairies, particularly, Mr. Diefenbaker has laid the blame for the farm price weakness on the Liberal government. However, in a Saskatchewan speech Mr. Douglas made a point of reminding voters of the facts and figures which, he said, showed farmers were doing well under the Liberals.

PC DEFECTORS RETURN

The prime minister occasionally injects into his speeches a joke about Conservative unity, which Mr Diefenbaker says is restored with the return of many top 1963 defectors. A conservative cabinet division preceded the 1963 election that returned the Liberals to office.

Mr. Diefenbaker introduced old age pensions into the campaign arena with a promise to increase them from $75 to $100 monthly at 70. The money would come from pensioners collected under the national contributory pension plan.

Mr. Pearson has termed the proposal unworkable and said those who need extra help, up to $125 if necessary, will get it under supplementary assistance.

One issue that never really got off the ground was the necessity of calling an election in the first place. It is the fifth in 8½ years.

Never has there been so many elections in such a short period. Closest was the five in 9 2-3 years from 1953 to 1963. There were four in 8¾ years from 1917 to 1926.

Four Killed In Head-on Cobourg Crash

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Four persons were killed and five injured in a head-on collision on Highway 45 Sunday.

Dead—are Henry Haycoup of nearby Baltimore and Douglas Wilcox, 18, and Barbara and Susan Lovatt, 17 and 15 respectively, all of Cobourg.

Walter F. Heaney, 35, and his wife Karen, 23, of Cobourg were admitted to hospital with minor injuries. Alvin Burns, 28, and his wife Bernice, 21, of St. Catharines and Marion Donnelly, 17, were released after treatment at the hospital.

Eugene Forsey Claims PM Trying to Frighten People Into Voting for Liberals

OTTAWA (CP)—Eugene Forsey, research director for the Canadian Labor Congress, has accused Prime Minister Pearson of trying to "frighten" people into voting Liberal by arrogantly waving a paper tiger.

He said in a press statement that Mr. Pearson's remarks last week amounted to a veiled threat that Canadians would have a fresh election on your hands within days after the new Parliament meets.

"One way or the other (the prime minister's remarks are interpreted) the electors are to be cuffed or kicked or scared into voting Liberal even if their convictions tell them to vote otherwise."

Mr. Forsey said that even if Liberal government was defeated in Parliament after next Monday's election, the calling of a new election would not be inevitable.

The Pearson government could take the option of resigning from office and the Governor-General would then ask the Opposition leader to form a government.

POSES QUESTION

"What right has Mr. Pearson to assume that Mr. Diefenbaker would not do the right thing below the proper constitutional way? Is he trying to carry on the government in the new Parliament, without a fresh election?

"Mr. Pearson's bland assumption that a defeated minority government could not carry on in the new Parliament, without consulting the voters, is arrogant as it is unwarranted.

"The plain fact is that even if the Liberals should survive one of what he said in Toronto is still an attempt to bully the electors into voting Liberal, whether they want to or not."

Mr. Forsey's personal statement was released Sunday, referred to remarks Mr. Pearson made in Toronto and Vancouver.

REPORTS PROFITS

Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. reports net profits of $29,821,854 or $1.21 a share in the nine months ended Sept. 30, compared with $32,313,779 or $1.44 in the similar 1964 period. Despite the lower profits, sales rose to $384,780,424 from $360,-900,556, says an interim shareholders' report issued in Hamilton.

BELL INCOME RISES

Net income of Bell Telephone Co. of Canada for the first nine months of this year was $64,-378,478, up $8,011,728 from the corresponding period in 1964.

Satchmo Given High Honors At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Those trumpet - scarred lips dried wide and eyelids puffed with pleasure, Louis Daniel Armstrong reached for the first horn he ever blew and hugged the man who taught him how to play.

"Wonderful, wonderful," rumbled the voice of Satchmo, standing in the Jazz Museum located just off Rampart Street. "All this neighborhood . . . as a kid . . . my stomping ground."

Louis draped an arm Sunday over the silvered shoulders of Peter Davis, his first teacher, and said he considers his homecoming the best of jazz.

"Before I was born, they was blowing what good stuff."

GREETED BY BAND

The blare of the Onward Brass Band greeted "Satchmo," "Satchel Mouth," "Dippermouth," "Gatemouth," "The King," as he has been called throughout his career, when he arrives at the airport from Houston.

It was a rare visit home for the 64-year-old Armstrong, the first since 1952, and it took a benefit concert Sunday for the Jazz Museum to get him here.

Untold hundreds jammed the corridors and paraded with him through the flight gate to the VIP room, where he was officially welcomed and given awards, including one from the Italian Social Aid and Pleasure Club, a quarrival organization which he once served as king during the 1948 Mardi Gras parade.

"Hello, there, baby," he said to his whispering great, great, big old friends with kisses, hugs and hadd pumping.

Grand Dragon Of Kluxers Shot to Death

READING, Pa. (AP)—A man identified through photographs and personal effects as Daniel Burros, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in New York, was shot to death Sunday after publication of a New York Times report saying he was a Jew.

The Times says Klansman Burros told its reporter, Mc-Candlish Phillips, that his religious background were published:

"I'll have to retaliate, do you understand? If you publish that I'll come and get you and I'll kill you. I don't care what happens.

"I'll be ruined. This is all I have to live for."

The klan is so avowedly anti-Semetic as well as anti-Negro organization.

CARRIED KLAN CARDS

Reading police said the dead man had in his pockets cards with the Klux Klan identifications and photographs of himself in klan regalia. Police said the photographs are considerable as pictures of the dead man.

The Times says Burros, who lives in Queens, N.Y., carried a card identifying himself as king kleagle, or local organizer, for the klan. It said further that Burros was identified at hearings of the House of Representatives un. - American activities committee in the New York state grand dragon.

Phillips' article says Burros' parents were married in a Jewish ceremony and that Burros had a bar mitzvah (confirmation) in a small orthodox synagogue in Queens at the age of 13.

An official of Congregation Talmud Torah in Richmond Hill, Queens, confirmed Burros' bar mitzvah and related he had been an honor pupil in Hebrew school, The Times said.

Before joining the klan, the report continues, Burros belonged to the American Nazi party and the National Renaissance party.

SHOT TWICE

Capt. Joseph Cosiora of the 103rd Detectives said Burros was shot twice with bullets from a .32-calibre pistol. One hit him in the chest, the other in the right temple, he said.

Police were told Burros went to Sunday morning to buy a copy of the New York Times and then returned to the apartment where he was staying. Burros read the story, seemed upset and then went into another room, police said. He went to go back to New York now and get a reporter, as I threatened."

Roy Frankhouser, whom Burros had been visiting, said he followed Burros to the room and saw him pull a gun from his pocket and fire a struggled with him for it. Two other Reading Burros fell sad Frankhouser called police and an ambulance, police said.

East's Farmers Are Promised New Policies

REPENTIGNY, Que. (CP)—The next Liberal government will give eastern farmers a better deal on feed, Guy Favreau, privy council president said during the weekend.

Speaking at four meetings that the mass of eastern farmers be given the opportunity to earn its living directly as they do urban workers," he told a crowd of 400 at a meeting Saturday night in support of Liberal candidate Roland Comtois on the riding of Joliette-L'Assomption-Montcalm.

He said this included establishment of a regional agricultural development fund with $150,000,000 to be spent over five years, and creation of a $50,-000,000 fund for assistance to depressed-area farms.

GIVES DETAILS

In addition, he listed other aids such as a milk board, with authority over buying and selling, assistance in the purchasing of feed grains, special loans which will allow the farmers to develop their farms and crop insurance.

Many Negroes Refuse to Join Marches Ordered by King

LINCOLNTON, Ga. (AP)—A grey-haired Negro woman bent over a wash tub and rubbed soapy clothes with her hands. Behind her, a fire under a black wash pot sent up heavy grey smoke.

"I'm not worrying me none," said the woman. She was not talking about the smoke, but expressing her attitude toward civil rights marches in this northeast Georgia pulpwood town.

"Lincolnton's no better'n any other place," she said. If they wanted to have marches, it was all right with her. If not, that was all right, too. The woman's Mrs. Doris Gunby, 58-year-old mother of nine, had children who took part in marches down the dusty dirt roads and along the pavements to the courthouses.

Few other Lincoln county Negroes have joined the marches, however, and local Negroes are opposed to the demonstrations. They say they want to work out problems with white officials.

In an unprecedented action, a group of local Negro men blocked a march last week. REFUSE TO JOIN

Racial issues have been bubbling for a month in this rural area. There have been a few incidents of violence, but the single most significant development has been the refusal of many Negroes to join the demonstrations, conducted by Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

The SCLC began demonstrations in tiny Crawfordville, 36 miles to the southwest.

The main issue there was school segregation. Protests arose because all the county's white pupils were transferred to other counties after 89 Negro pupils applied for enrollment at the white school.

Under federal court order, the state school superintendent of public instruction ordered the white pupils returned to their schools, but few did so. In Washington, the Wilkes county seat, a movie theatre was desegregated and promptly closed for "remodeling."

TRIGGER BOYCOTT

The SCLC then moved into Lincoln county and triggered a successful school boycott and strong opposition from local Negro leaders.

One result of the demonstrations was evident in Warren county. There, white leaders moved quickly to form a biracial committee and stave off marches and boycotts. The movie theatre at Warrenton was integrated quietly Saturday night.

Another result has been increased Ku Klux Klan activity. The first klan rallies in decades in this area have been held during the last few weeks.

Local Negro leaders have much the same objective as the SCLC. But they argue that the best way to reach their goal is through local biracial co-operation, as opposed to demonstrations led by outsiders.

"We are concerned with here-after—as well as now," said Welcome Mason, the principal at Westside, Lincolnton's Negro school.

Mason said Negroes want many improvements at the school, particularly more science equipment and a gymnasium.

Attendance at Westside has fallen from an average 800 daily to less than 300. Mason said this is due to misunderstanding and fear of trouble, as well as the SCLC boycott.

MEET WHITES

Mason belongs to the Twilight Improvement Association, organized by local Negroes a few days before SCLC moved in. Forty of its members met last Tuesday night with city and county officials as the first step in biracial co-operation.

"SCLC's activities — they're just coming on in, this really stirred us between two forces," Mason said. "The SCLC was not invited here."

SCLC's field director, Willie Bolden of Atlanta, said some of the Negro pupils had asked the organization to come in. "I guess you could say we were invited."

Bolden said the SCLC will not pull out. He contends that Mason and the Twilight association are not representative of the Negro majority and that white leaders must meet the SCLC halfway. But his fellow workers are asking for full school integration, something not desired by the local Negro spokesmen.

Lincoln is one of three Georgia counties that refused to submit a school integration plan to federal authorities this fall. The superintendent of schools, J. R. Freeman, said the white citizens will do nothing under pressure from "outsiders." The county's population of about 8,200 includes nearly 3,000 Negroes.

At the weather-beaten house where the wash pot bubbled in the yard, a Negro man wearing a red hat got out of a pulpwood truck. "I marched with them twice," said Charlie Gunby, squirting tobacco juice at the dusty ground. "I don't think they should keep marching. I don't think there's no more point in marching."

The official Soviet news agency said the entire edition of 115,000 copies was sold within hours, although all six works in the collection had appeared before in Soviet magazines.

75 Fatalities Across Canada Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 75 persons died in accidents in Canada during the weekend, 50 of them in traffic accidents, including two costumed children making Hallowe'en rounds in Quebec.

Despite the near-winter season, there were 14 drownings across the country, three fire deaths, a hunting fatality and seven unclassified deaths in a Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday, local times.

Quebec reported 31 fatalities —20 in traffic, seven drownings, one fire death and three deaths in tractor accidents.

Ontario had 20, including 15 traffic deaths, three drownings, a woman killed when she was struck by a train and a man killed when an oakdoor elevator crushed 120 feet at a grain elevator. The province's traffic toll included foukr dead in a head-on collision near Cobourg.

In the Atlantic Provinces, New Brunswick reported two traffic deaths and a drowning; Nova Scotia two traffic, Prince Edward Island one traffic and a fire death, and Newfoundland a man killed by a falling tree.

On the Prairies, Manitoba had four traffic deaths and a girl killed when she fell from a horse; Saskatchewan one road death, and Alberta two traffic victims.

British Columbia reported eight accidental deaths—three each by drowning and in traffic and one each in a fire and a hunting mishap.

Israel Denies Five Soldiers Killed in Crash

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israel has denied a Jordanian claim that five Israeli soldiers were killed and six injured Sunday in a record border clash in two days.

An Israeli military spokesman also said no equipment was destroyed in the fighting at Latroun, a no man's land 18 miles south of Tel Aviv.

Jordanian military spokesman claimed one Israeli 106-millimetre gun, two anti-tank guns, one three-ton truck and three tractors were destroyed. There were no Jordanian losses, he added.

The clash ended when UN observers ordered a ceasefire, the Jordanian spokesman s aid. Both sides claim plowing rights to the land.

Dear Boss:—

I see by the typewriters and hear by the tonsils that the leather-pushing tete-a-tete arranged between George Chuvalo and Ernie Terrell tonight in Toronto will be a black-and-white affair with perhaps a lot of color thrown in.

The color of course will be red, depending on how much gore flows from opened arteries, thumped noses and split eyebrows.

Shucks, the blood alst nuthin. I know lotsa people who give it away for nuthin'. At the going wage rates for tonight's pageant of punch ($15,000 apiece) the headhunters should average $500 per drip.

My great-uncle Hashmouth was a fighter, an old hermit who lived in the woods so long his breath smelled like an oil cedar. His record, before they hanged him for murdering a crippled crocodile, was three killed, five permanently injured and one with broken ankles suffered when the Unk hit him over the head.

The Unk's left hand was poison and the right sudden death. He knocked his opponents kickin', and generally the blood splashed up high the boys at ringside wore raincoats.

He had ears that stuck out so far sidewise from his head three pigeons could roost on them without overcrowdin'. He sported a bag beard in which he housed a pet mouse.

The Unk had one fellin'—women. He became as quiet as a lamb when he was with them. He preferred blondes, brunettes and redheads and liked them white if he could get them that way.

He had as much sex-appeal as a cement mixer. Once when he approached a flamin' redhead, she recoiled and yapped, "Go back to your cage—if the circus hasn't left town."

Yeah boss, women proved the Unk's downfall, but strangely enough it was not a live gal that sent him into the limbo of stumbledown fighters.

He was tryin' to fight Moe Lipovitch of Lower Slobberia when the Lip gang found out about his yen for the femmes.

The big Slob had a portrait of a curvy cutie tattooed on his chest. During the fight—the Unk couldn't see his eyes and the heavyweight moved the cutie would wink at Unk. He charged in with his guard down and the Slob clobbered him with static tanks, artillery and mortars.

It happened one Hallowe'en night in the days before trick'n'treat and the local urchins' witchnight diversions were pulling rigged-up hay-ropes, machinery on porches and upsetting the Chic Sales five-holer outhouse emperisms.

They gave Unk's one-holer the heave-ho. What they didn't know was that the Unk was fusidie meditatin' at the time. For a week the Unk's family of pet skunks gave him a wide berth.

Tonight?

Batawa Wins 'B' Title

Unable to hold a 2-0 lead, Belleville Parsons Cleaners lost a 4-2 decision to Batawa last Saturday evening and with it went the Kingston and District Soccer League's "B" championship.

Both clubs opened up a fast attack to start the game and after 15 minutes Belleville led 2-0.

Alan Brown made it 2-0 when he headed Norm Carter's centre into the net at the 15-minute mark.

Batawa ripped back before the half ended to put the lead Cramer broke through the Parsons defence and scored on a low shot for a 2-1 score.

John Zeiler tied it after about five minutes of the second half.

Parsons scored when Rutherford was fouled in the Batawa goalmouth. A flubt broke out which saw Rutherford and Brown of Parsons plus the two Greatbs of Batawa sent out of the game.

The game fell apart with the teams eu tio nine men per side ned in the dying minutes. Cramar and Galambos triggered Batawa goals to ra'ch the victory.

The Parsons club has been advised by Terry Clough, President of the Bay of Quinte League, that he will not release the Kent Trophy to the Belleville team.

This trophy is supposed to be awarded to the Bay of Quinte team finishing highest in the Kingston and District League schedule. Parsons finished above Batawa this year.

Clough was a member of the Trenton team which won the trophy last season and played for Batawa this year.

Two-Goal Hull Rides In Hab Country

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Will Chicago Black Hawks be able to win at home?

The National Hockey League leading Hawks have played at Toronto, Boston, Detroit and Montreal and they haven't lost a game so far this season. Their first home game is against Boston Wednesday.

Hull scored two goals to run his season total to eight, best in the league. He also picked up two assists, giving him 11 points and a share of first place in the NHL individual scoring race.

In other weekend action, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-3 and New York Rangers walloped Boston Bruins 8-2. Montreal and Detroit played to a 2-2 tie in the only game played Sunday.

GUMP INJURED

Montreal netminder Lorne (Gump) Worsley suffered an elbow injury in the first period but continued to play despite the fact that he lost all feeling in his left hand in the second period. Charlie Hodge replaced him in the third period.

ANY WAY YOU LOOK AT IT — Detroit Red Wings' goalie Roger Crozier made this spectacular save Saturday night against Toronto Maple Leafs' centre Dave Keon. Big Seven

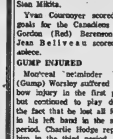
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' star left winger, picked up two goals and two assists Saturday night to move into a first-place tie with Bobby Rousseau of Montreal in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Hull has a league - leading eight goals to go with three assists for 11 points while Rousseau has three goals and a league - leading eight assists.



Next in line is Chicago's Doug Mohns who has 10 points on five goals and the same number of assists.

Jean Beliveau and Jacques Laperriere of Montreal and Stan Mikita of Chicago are next with seven points apiece. Beliveau has four goals and three assists while Laperriere and Mikita have identical records of one goal and six assists.

The leaders:

★ ★ ★

The Rangers posted their first NHL victory of the season Saturday by trouncing the winless Boston Bruins as seven players shared in the scoring parade.

Doug Robinson scored the first and final goals for New York as the Bruins lost their third straight game. In between, Phil Goyette, Rod Gilbert, Jean Ratelle, John Brenneman, Bob Nevin and Earl Ingarfield added to New York's cause.

Bruin netminder Ed Johnston was forced to retire with a knee injury suffered in the game during the first period. He was taken to hospital for x-rays while Bob Ring, 19, was pressed into action.

Ring, recalled from the Bruins' Niagara Falls senior club last Wednesday to fill in for the injured Gerry Cheevers, turned in some spectacular saves but was the victim of a porous defence and allowed four goals.

Bob Pulford scored one goal and set up two others as the Leafs built up an early lead then held off the Wings Saturday.

Jim Roberts gave the Canadiens a 1-0 lead, but former Leaf Andy Bathgate scored his third goal of the season less than three minutes later.

Stampeders Capture WFC Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders clinched first spot in the Western Football Conference Sunday and earned a two-week rest before meeting Saskatchewan Roughriders or Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the WFC final.

The Stamps took their first WFC title since 1949 with a 20-10 win over British Columbia Lions at Vancouver. The Riders prepared for the sudden - death semi-final by dumping the Eskimos 15-12 at Edmonton Saturday.

The Stampeders later flew home to a roaring reception from about 3,500 fans who packed the terminal building at Calgary's McCall Airport and snarled traffic for several blocks.

Tommy - Joe Coffey of the Esks tied his WFC pass - reception record with six catches for a total of 81. Hugh Campbell of the Riders caught two for a total of 75 receptions and a record 1,360 yards gained.

MEET IN SEMI-FINAL

The Bombers, who win the Eskimos failed to make the playoffs last year, meet the Roughriders at Winnipeg Sunday. A best-of-three final opens at Calgary the following Saturday.

Calgary coach Jerry Williams, first freshman coach to handle a WFC champion in 11 years, said: "Some of the boys want to get at Winnipeg again, to avenge those two defeats.

Robinson booted two field goals and two converts for Calgary. Halfback Ted Woods and fullback Lovell Coleman went over for the touchdowns before 24,191 spectators.

Kempf, trailing Robinson by seven points going into the game, kicked a single and converted Mack Burton's touchdown. The Lions' other points came on a safety touch.

RUSHES 1,768 YARDS

At Edmonton, Saskatchewan fullback George Reed became the second player in Canadian football history to rush for more than a mile in a season. He ran 114 yards on 18 carries for a total of 1,768.

Reed scored a touchdown shortly after an Edmonton field goal attempt was knocked down. Campbell also went over.

Jim Thomas went over for the Eskimos. Coffey converted and booted a field goal. Randy Kerbow and Al Ecuyer kicked single points before about 14,000 fans.

Kerbow apparently failed to capture the conference scoring title. He entered the game tied with injured Martin Fabi of the Riders but failed to equal his regular-season average.

At Vancouver, coach Dave Skrien said the Lions' plunge from the playoffs, after two straight WFC titles and a Grey Cup win, was not the fault of quarterback Joe Kapp.

Chuvalo-Terrell Rated Even Money

Rocky Picks Canadian

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo hits like hard, two-fisted attack and ability to weather a punch against the lightning left and long reach of Ernie Terrell tonight when the two clash for the World Boxing Association heavyweight championship.

It was even money Sunday as Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champion from Toronto, and Terrell, the champion from Chicago nailed the final defence of his title, checked out of their training quarters and went into hiding.

They were scheduled to weigh in at 10:30 a.m. EST today.

The possibility of a controversy over the style of glove to be used for the 15-rounder was eliminated Saturday when both fighters agreed to use a type imported from New York by Merv McKenzie of Toronto.

Promoter Irv Schoenwald of Chicago reported Sunday night that more than 12,000 seats at Maple Leaf Gardens have been sold for the 10 p.m. fight which will be shown on closed circuit and cable television in Canada and the United States.

Schoenwald also reported close to $100,000 in the till, which means the fight will give Terrell his biggest payday and Chuvalo one of his biggest.

TERRELL GETS $45,000

Terrell is guaranteed $45,000, more than twice his total earnings of $21,000 so far in his career. Chuvalo stands to make the same amount, a lucrative follow-up to the $60,000 he collected for his recent fight against Floyd Patterson in New York City.

Rocky Marciano, the former world heavyweight king who picks Chuvalo to win, enlarged on his reasons Saturday night. The lantern-jawed brawler feels Chuvalo's style is similar to his and admitted this may be why he picked the Canadian.

Marciano said he is particularly impressed by Chuvalo's ability to weather a punch and feels this is important for a champion.

He recalled at least four occasions when he was champion that he was hit with points-to-knockout blows and fought back. He named Archie Moore, Ezzard Charles, Jersey Joe [illegible] and Joe Louis as fighters who hit him hard and rock him out. Marciano weathered the storm of each assault.

"I haven't seen him much," he said, "and I certainly haven't seen him get hit hard by an opponent. I saw him get his right against Eddie Machen but he wasn't hit hard in that one."

WON TITLE MARCH 5

But Marciano, who will be joined by former champions Bob Montgomery, Willie Pep and Carman Basilio at the fight, has seen enough of Chuvalo to know he can take punishment well.

Glickman reasoned that Terrell would win because Marciano had a bad record at predicting fights.

"It's not so," said Marciano, "we've picked a lot of winners, too. All he's doing is backbiting my losers."

Chuvalo says he will fight his usual aggressive style. In past bouts he has gone for the body, to try to soften up his opponents, in the early rounds.

But he'll have to move in close to Terrell, who outreaches him by seven inches, thus an effort to collect left and loves to fight at long range.

Chuvalo complained after his loss to Patterson that the referee wouldn't let him get in close long enough to do any damage.

Officials have high hopes for a record fight. Take for Canada. The existing mark is $148,000 set here in 1956 when Archie Moore knocked out James J. Parker in nine rounds.

The scoring will be under the five-point must system in which the winner of each round is awarded five points and the loser four or less. If the round is a draw, each fighter gets five points.

University of Ottawa Gee Gees used a 73-yard runback of a kickoff Saturday to break a season-long tie for first place and remain undefeated in the Ontario Intercollegiate Football Conference.

The Gee Gees downed their Ottawa rivals, Carleton University Ravens, 27-13, leaving the Ravens second in the eight-team conference with five victories and a loss. The Gee Gees have won six in a row.

Jim Sikye ran a kickoff back 75 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter to break open a tight game and clinch the victory.

In other Saturday games, Waterloo Lutheran University Golden Hawks defeated University of Waterloo Warriors 29-8, Western League champs won interlocking games, Los Angeles Blades trimming Springfield Indians 4-3 and Victoria Maple Leafs thumping Cleveland Barons 7-3.

The Blades were beaten 4-2 by Providence Reds Sunday and Springfield topped Pittsburgh 5-3.

Eddie Shack's third-period goal produced the winner for Rochester against the Bears in a meeting of last year's Calder Cup finalists. The champions trailed 2-1 after Mike Nykoluk and Gary Dornhoefer offset Red Armstrong's early goal but rookie Brian Conacher tied it with the second Rochester tally.

Guy Gendron and Gord Labossiere fired two quick goals to put the Aces ahead of Buffalo to stay early in the third period. Cleland Mortimer, Simon Nolet and Don Blackburn also scored for Quebec while Mel Pearson and Billy Dea tallied for Buffalo.

Generals Defeat Petes

Flyers Take Over Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A third - period goal gave Niagara Falls Flyers a 4-4 tie with Kitchener Rangers and first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings during the weekend.

The tie enabled the Flyers to overtake Oshawa Generals, who defeated Peterborough Petes 5-3 Saturday for a brief hold on first place, and then lost 6-4 to St. Catharines Black Hawks Sunday.

Both the Flyers and the Generals have 11 points, but Niagara Falls has played six games to Oshawa's eight.

In other weekend action, London Nationals downed Toronto Marlboros 8-6 and Montreal Canadiens defeated Hamilton Red Wings 6-2.

The win for the Hawks was the only the second in eight starts and moved them into eighth place, one point ahead of London Nationals.

Win or lose, Memphis Wiggs seem to get involved in close hockey games.

The Wings lost 4-3 in Oklahoma City Blazers Saturday night and came back Sunday for a 3-1 victory over Minnesota Rangers, defending Central Hockey League champions. The Wings ended the weekend in second place with a 3-2 record while the Rangers are 3-1 in first.

The Rangers defeated St. Louis Braves 4-2 Saturday. Houston Apollos tied 3-3 with Tulsa Oilers in another Saturday game, while Tulsa defeated the Apollos 8-3 Sunday and Oklahoma City and St. Louis tied 4-4.

Davy Jones Paces Aces With Three

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took a couple of four-point games to really put the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series in a close race for first place.

Kingston Aces defeated Galt Hornets 8-5 Saturday for their four points, while Guelph Regals downed the same Aces 4-3 Sunday in the other four-point game. In the only other weekend senior hockey act on Ontario Oaks defeated Woodstock Athletics 8-2.

The games gave the winners a share of first-place with five points each although Guelph has the better record with three wins and no losses. The Aces have two wins and a loss in three games and the Oaks have won four and lost two in six games.

Davey Jones scored three times for the Aces in Saturday's win, with Charlie Convery getting two and Dick Cherry, Jon Earl and Stu Muirhead adding the others.

Don Sutherin Steals Show

Ti-Cats, Larks Win 'Nothing' Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The four teams in the Eastern Football Conference played a pair of "nothing" games during the weekend, but each meant a lot to place-kicker Don Sutherin of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Six points behind Moe Racine, Ottawa Rough Riders' place-kicker, going into the weekend, Sutherin now his rival leereese the margin to seven Saturday as Montreal Alouettes scored a 36-8 decisi.n over the Riders in Ottawa. Racine kicked a convert in the game.

Then Sutherin went to work Sunday as Hamilton Tiger-Cats downed Toronto Argonauts 35-21 in Hamilton. He kicked three field goals, three singles when he was wide on field goal attempts, and a pair of converts for a 14-point afternoon.

The games, the last in the regular schedule, meant nothing as far as the standings were concerned because all four positions were decided the weekend before.

Hamilton merely solidified its hold on first place by burying the Argos a little deeper in the cellar while Montreal gave rise to speculation on new Saturday's sudden-death semi-final by downing second-place Ottawa.

The Rough Riders, favored to finish first by many observers at the start of the season but a disappointment in the last half of the campaign, play the Alouettes in the game at Ottawa next Saturday at 2 p.m. The winner meets the Tiger-Cats in a two-game total-points final for the right to represent the East in the Grey Cup game in Toronto Nov. 27.

Final EFC standings showed Hamilton on top with seven wins and seven defeats. Montreal was second with nine victories, two backs and Toronto with three victories and 11 losses.

BRAVES COLD

A Hamilton crowd of 17,085 braved blustery winds and cool weather to see Toronto open scoring with Sparky Logothetis down run by Jim Rountree. He took Joe Zuger's punt on his own 43 and raced down the sideline to score. But the Tiger-Cats, behind Sutherin, moved into a 9-7 lead by the end of the first quarter, were ahead 16-7 at the half and 26-15 at the end of the third quarter.

The loss snapped a two-game winning streak by the Argos, who finished the season with a winning three of their last five games.

Hamilton got touchdowns from Willie Bethea, Billy Wayte and Gerry McDougall, an end, as Joe Zuger's replacement, a two-point safety touch rounded out the Tiger scoring.

Other Toronto touchdowns went to Dave Thelen and Leo Sparks with John Wilkinson kicked two converts and a single when a field goal attempt in the third quarter was wide.

Wayte's touchdown came after he intercepted his second pass of the afternoon. Sutherin also for the season, first place in that department.

SHATTER RETIRES

Dick Shatto, playing his last game, after 38 seasons with the Argos, saved up the kickoff return Dale and also rushed three times for nine yards and caught a five-yard pass from quarterback Pete Liske.

Thelen moved past Ottawa's Jim Dillard, who missed Saturday's game, for the rushing title. Thelen ran 14 times for 129 yards in the game, making his season total 808 yards. Dillard finished the schedule with 739 yards.

Hamilton held a wide edge statistically with 20 first downs to 305 yards rushing and 9 passing. Zuger completing two of five for 54 yards.

Toronto picked up seven first downs on 171 yards rushing and 94 yards passing. Liske completing four of nine and Gord McTaggart none of three.

Zuger averaged 40.8 yards in six punts to clinch the punting title while George Hosker of Hamilton captured the punt-return crown.

MONTREAL ATTACKS

Montreal, in healthy condition, used a balanced running and passing attack to lead all the way against a band of crippled Hough Riders who played without rushing and scoring star Bo Scott, in addition to Dillard.

Getting Lost in Bush Is Terrifying Ordeal

By RICHARD ALDEN KNIGHT

The call came into one evening while we were sitting in front of the fire at an Adirondack deer camp. The neighboring camp was reporting a lost hunter . . . could we lend a hand? We could and did, all 15 of us. An hour later, we fanned out in a long scout line . . . reaching from one lake to another, helping hunters . . . and started off into the black night on the search. Two of the lost hunter and I) stumbled over the man about four hours later as he was just about to turn to camp. He acknowledged our call zealously from a clump of heavy laurel and pine. We took him in tow and brought him out with us. Three things became immediately evident when we returned to the cars.

(1) He was wearing one boot and had no idea where the other one was, much less how he lost it; (2) his rifle was gone, as was his knife, heavy jacket and all his shells; (3) he was found within 100 yards of a logging road that led directly out to his camp!

PANIC SETS IN

How can something like this happen, you ask yourself? How can a man become so confused, so terrified, so irrational that he will throw away the very things that could save his life? It couldn't happen to you! Have you ever been lost . . . I mean real good and lost? So lost that you cannot remember where your last step took you? The day that happens, you'll get an idea of what I am talking about. Then I say that panic is the key.

There is little if no excuse for a hunter getting lost. Even the man who manages to lose himself in the woods. It is so easy to stay found. Just getting lost puts you with the same degree of carelessness as a hunting accident. To begin with, the woods soon become lost (and are acknowledged as such), you become the center of your own universe and the only person who matters. . . . those who must come and find you. This makes you a prime friend, a blatant nuisance.

I have been lost only once, but let me assure you that I did one whale of a good job of it. I literally got lost. The vagueest idea if I was in Timbuctoo or Maine (where I was). It happened on a portion of land that jutted out into the salt water near Bar Harbor. I was hunting alone, alone and in strange country. I killed my buck in the first hour I was in the cover . . . a thickly-wooded grown pine and scrub hardwood stand. Gutting him, I hanging him on a tree limb at least around and started off . . . I actly 180 degrees the wrong direction. Figuring that my car was only about 30 minutes from my position, I became a bit apprehensive when almost an hour passed and I had seen not a single recognizable landmark. Being right-handed I had swung in a definite left-hand circle, almost unwittingly compounding my confusion. When I cut the spot where I had gutted my deer, I nearly fainted.

SMOKE PROVIDED CLUE

It took every bit of control I had to sit down, smoke a cigarette and ponder on the problem at hand. Then, I realized one thing. Being a gentleman, there should be a breeze either from or to the sea. Climbing a tree, I found it was coming from. Holding up another cigarette, I checked the smoke flow and then began the slow process of blazing my back trail while I followed the wind. This method brought me out to the shore . . . nowhere near my car, but out at least. It also taught me a lesson I never forgot.

Perhaps the most underpublicized is finding your way out or into the woods is the sun. One cloud, one change in direction of travel on your part and your pocket compass. But there were owning of a compass a mean part with a stiff difference if you do not know how to use it. Let's take an example.

You park your car on a road, which, when you check it by your compass, runs NE in SW. You plan to head NE into the bush. Your return course must be at a 90 degree angle to the running direction of the road. This will not bring you out to the car, but a direct southerly course to the road, not to the same road.

All areas have landmarks available to those who will use them. Mark these well and file them away in your memories. If need be, strike a string of blazes on the reverse side of trees from your course so that they will be easily seen when you decide to work your way back out again. If you are in snow, you can't ever get lost if you simply follow your own tracks back out to the car. It may be a bit tough, but you'll sleep in your own bed that night.

You can take simple precautions that can prove the difference between living or dying in the brush. You are not immortal and it is high time you take cognizance of this fact. A heart attack, a broken leg, a twisted knee, all of these can put you right out of business — lost or not lost. For that reason, I carry the following with me when hunting alone.

(1) two knives . . . one belt, one pocket; (2) 50 feet of stout twine . . . invaluable for making a lean-to; (3) two candy bars and a chunk of pepperoni sausage, perhaps the highest in fat and energy of all the sausage; (4) a waterproof match case full of matches; (5) an 8" x 8" piece of plastic sheeting, which folds up the size of a handkerchief — great for ground sheet or a temporary shelter; (6) more shells for my rifle than I need for hunting — these are to be used for after dark signaling; (7) a pencil flashlight with two extra batteries.

The whole package, distributed on your person, weighs very little. To attempt to measure what you would pay for any or all of its ingredients when you are lost is silly . . . all the gold in the world, if need be. But these items can spell the difference between coming out healthy and coming out lost.

Recognize the fact that you can get confused, even lost. Don't panic. If need be, stay put and let someone come and find you. They will. But use your head and no one else will ever have to.

Argentina, Napoli Draw 1-1

TORONTO (CP) — Independents of Argentina and Napoli of Italy played to a 1-1 tie in an exhibition soccer game before 18,413 fans Sunday.

Independents were presented with the Cornelius Cup, donated by the consuls general of Italy and Argentina for the series. The Argentinian team also received $2,000 and individual trophies for the players.

Joe Peters of Toronto, promoter of the game, said it had been a great success and he would consider staging a similar exhibition match if the opportunity arose.

Portland Snaps Loss String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cliff Schmauts scored three goals Sunday night as Portland Buckaroos snapped a three-game Western Hockey League losing streak with a 4-3 victory over San Francisco Seals.

Los Angeles Blades, only other WHL team to play Sunday, were defeated 4-3 by Providence Reds of the American Hockey League in an interlocking game at Providence.

In Saturday games, Seattle Totems defeated Victoria Victoria downed Cleveland of the AHL 7-3 and Los Angeles defeated Springfield of the AHL 4-2.

Sunday's victory left Portland alone in second place in WHL standings, three points back of Victoria and two ahead of third-place Seattle. San Francisco is fourth, Vancouver fifth and Los Angeles sixth.

Bears, Vikings, Giants Spring Upsets

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago Bears, Minnesota Vikings and New York Giants, sprang the surprises Sunday in the National Football League.

The Bears, who lost their first three games, marched to their fourth straight victory by toppling previously unbeaten Green Bay Packers 31-10.

The Vikings, whose defense had been bounced around in earlier games, knocked over Cleveland Browns 27-17.

In the Western Division, Green Bay now is tied for first at 6-1 with Baltimore Colts, who topped San Francisco 49ers 34-28 as Johnny Unitas threw for four touchdowns.

Deadlocked at 4-3 are Chicago, Minnesota and Detroit Lions. Ex-7 winners over Los Angeles Rams. San Francisco is 3-4, Los Angeles 1-6.

Cleveland still had the Eastern Division lead with a 5-2 record, while the Giants climbed into a tie for second with St. Louis at 4-3. Washington Redskins tipped Philadelphia Eagles 23-21 and Pittsburgh Steelers downed Dallas Cowboys 22-13, leaving those four clubs knotted at 3-4.

Gale Sayers, the Bears' rookie back, sprinted 82 yards on a punt return in the Packer game, setting up the touch-down that put Chicago ahead 24-10. Sayers also scored earlier on a 16-yard run.

Bart Starr, who had suffered only two interceptions in Green Bay's six previous games, had three stolen by the Bears—and two led to touchdowns.

Minnesota, which had been battered for 201 points in six games, put on its best defensive show this year, led by lineman Jim Marshall and Paul Dickson. They were the chief reasons Jim Brown managed a meager 39 yards rushing for Cleveland.

Minnesota's Bill Brown ran for 138 yards on 26 carries and scored two touchdowns.

The Giants, trailing 10-0 at half time, blanked St. Louis in the second half with a fine defensive effort and mounted two scoring drives.

LA SCALA: OPERA HOUSE OF THE WORLD

Indisputably, the one opera house of world reputation is the Teatro alla Scala in Milan, Italy.

La Scala, after 376 performing seasons in the 187 years since it opened in 1778, remains of singular stature. — No singer, conductor, or opera is assured international ace la'm wished passing its test.

Warner Bros. is presenting the brilliant La Scala production of Giancomo Puccini's immortal "La Boheme," which opens Wednesday at the Belle Theatre here for a special four-performance engagement. Including two matinees and two evenings.

The complete musical and dramatic ranges of La Scala's "Lo Boheme," probably the world's most popular opera, have been captured on film, in Technicolor, for the first time, made possible through the perfection of sound-recording equipment and techniques.

Directed by Jacques Seiffirelli, the stage director and set designer. Marcel Escoffier the costumes. The singing cast is headed by Gianni Raimondi, Mirella Freni, Adriana Martino and Rolando Panerai, with the orchestra and chorus of La Scala featured.

"La Boheme" brought the debut at the Teatro Regio in Turin on February 1, 1896, with Arturo Toscanini conducting. Among the Puccini operas first performed at La Scala were "Manon Lescaut," "Tosca" and "Turandot," his last work.

La Scala was built under the auspices of Maria Teresa, Empress of Austria, on the side of the 13th Century Church of Santa Maria alla Scala. It was signed by the celebrated court architect, Giuseppi Piermarini. La Scala replaced an earlier Milanese opera house, Teatro Regio-Ducale, destroyed by fire. On August 3, 1778, La Scala opened with a new opera, Antonio Salieri's "Europa Riconosciuta."

Over the ensuing decades, La Scala underwent many interior changes, none involving the original architectural structure, however. In 1883, it became the first theatre in the world to install electric lights. A direct hot during an air raid, ruined the auditorium, on August 16, 1943. Rebuilt, in faithful copy of the original, La Scala reopened on May 11, 1946, with Toscanini conducting a concert of operatic music by Rossini, Verdi, Borto and Puccini.

Sweeping around, in classical Renaissance shape, the La Scala auditorium is built in three (150) ornate boxes, the top two tiers serving as galleries. Total audience capacity is 3,200 persons including 1,000 in standing room. La Scala annually gives about 230 performances, including 160 of operas, 45 of concerts, and various ballets, attracting a total audience exceeding 400,000 persons.

At Bovisa, on the outskirts of Milan, La Scala maintains workshops and warehouses that store complete scenery for 150 stage productions and more than 80,000 costumes. The La Scala complex includes a museum, a smaller theatre and a world famous School of Ballet.

YOUTH'S ORGIASTIC LIFE SHOWN IN "MALAMONDO"

Youth's mad hunt to escape what they regard as banal living is excitingly and brilliantly pictured in "Malamondo," unquestionably the most exciting expose of its sort to reach the screen.

Shocking in parts, especially that retaining to the erogenous motorcycle race having as its prize a weekend with a gorgeous young girl, and splashed in Eery Eastman color, "Malamondo" opens today at the Park Theatre as a Marshall Lewis presentation.

If it is a look at life in many world centres you want, you'll find it in "Malamondo." Certainly this is not always a sunlit, sparkling picture but it is an engaging and highly informative chapter in that particular underworld dealing with the world today and its young men and women, what they are up against and how they are combatting it. You will be surprised at some of the bizarre happenings they have chosen for the fight — and the depths of their get-away-from-it-all way of life in search of security and the outstretched hand of love and understanding.

Catherine Spaak and Jane Morgan, who had appearing in the film, share the song credits with Adriano Celentano, Italy's reigning crooner-actor, all of whom score with potential hit tunes.

Mrs. Mandy Jolly's Cabina captured the $41,235 Golden Rod Stakes in a stretch drive Saturday at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky.

A Cherry Hill, N.J., Bold Bidder won his fourth straight race, copping the 33rd running of the $28,675 Benjamin Franklin Handicap at Garden State Park by one-half length.

Smythe Foresees Big Fine

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs may have an answer by Wednesday on a tampering charge involving Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

Montreal has charged Toronto with tampering since Conn Smythe, president of the Leafs, said he knew what Canadiens' coach Geoffrion would be.

"We'll get nicked for a $2,000 fine," he said.

The NHL president said that when Geoffrion retired two years ago, he had to be waived by the other five teams in the league to stay with the Montreal organization. Toronto agreed on the condition that if Geoffrion came out of retirement, he would be put on waivers again.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Bruce had away from six starts in the stretch in the $110,000, Jockey Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct Saturday.

The four - year - old gelding from Lou Wolfson's Harbor Farm bet the South Seas by a the end of the two miles with a five-length margin over the Santa Barbara Stable Argentine import — Beeskjeal.

Roman Brother, who was clocked in 3:22 3-5 compared with the track and American record of 3:19 1-5 set by Kelso in winning the 1964 running for his fifth straight Gold Cup triumph.

Baltiman, held at $10.20 to place and $6.60 to show, finished 2¼ lengths in front of Cathment. Farm's Kentucky Jug, which paid $6.40 to show.

At Chicago, Ridboon led all the way to win the $28,400 Sauro

'The Big Ear' Interesting And Alarming TV Show

NEW YORK (AP) —"Nobody is safe; nobody is sacred," said narrator Robert MacNeil Sunday night, and he was talking about eavesdropping, the electronic kind. And the television viewer could well believe him.

Listening devices are sophisticated, wire tapping is so subtle and a special kind of espionage is so widespread that MacNeil, in NBC's alarming documentary, "The Big Ear, asked: "May we not become a society where people are afraid to speakfreely?"

One liberty lilils lawyer, among many Southern California firms, is so conscious of assorted efforts to "preserve a conservation," as one practitioner called his specialty, that he has hired private counterespionage agents to search his office for any hidden microphones.

The "debugging" team check under the desk, in furniture upholstery, in the base of cigarette lighters, even under the backing of wallpaintings for concealed microphones.

A former army intelligence man told of keeping tabs in 1943 on scientists working on the atom bomb and of tapping hostile rooms and suites in Chicago occupied by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

BUSINESS USES TAPS

It was stated that wire tapping is used in business against the competition and against employees.

Shown in the program were some listening devices, including the now-famous olive with tooth pick which was a mike and antenna.

Many of the devices depend upon the telephone, but have been developed so that the subject need not pick up the in-

Port Hope Team Wins Shuffleboard

The tourney was held in Belleville Legion Hall. The Belleville team played best for the tourney after winning the top spot in 1964.

Whitby came third and Belleville fourth in this year's competition.

Members of the Port Hope team are Don Kerr, Cecil Sherry, Carl Rodgers, Fred Trumper and Leo Smith (captain).

Both the Port Hope champions and the runners-up from Peterborough will travel to Elliot Lake on November 20 to compete in the provincial playoffs.

Leeds, Burnley Tie

Hotspurs Shade Albion

LONDON (Reuters) —Totten-ham Hotspur were the only one of the top three English league clubs to win in Saturday's English league soccer program, ousting West Bromwich Albion 2-1 and extending their unbeaten string at home to league matches to 23.

Tottenham moved into second place behind Leeds United, half a point behind Burnley. Sheffield United, in second position for a Saturday match, suffered its first home defeat of the season in losing 2-1 against unpredictable Chelsea.

The top-of-the-standings clash did not come to the top in the second half when Jim Storrie put Leeds ahead after 47 minutes. Burnley equalized a minute later when Irvine scored.

Jimmy Greaves, who has been off form in recent games, scored for Spurs midway through the first half and again after 10 minutes.

Leeds has 20 points from 14 games; Spurs 19 from 14; Burnley 19 from 14, Sheffield United 19 from 15, and West Bromwich Albion and Chelsea 18 from 15.

EVERTON WINS 2-1

Everton gained its first away win of the season by beating the cellar-dwelling Blackburn Rovers 2-1. Sheffield Wednesday, still looking for its first away success, failed again when Aston Villa won 2-0.

Manchester United with Irish international Harry Gregg back in goal after 15 months, fought back after being a goal down against Blackpool and won 2-1. Both United goals were scored by David Herd.

Coventry City moved to the top in the Second Division with a 3-2 win over Portsmouth.

Coventry has slightly the better goal average over Manchester City, which featured in a goalless tie against Charlton Athletic. Both Coventry and Manchester City have 21 points from 15 games. In third place is Huddersfield, the leader before Saturday's games, which drew 1-1 against Norwich City.

Has More Stamina

Basilio Picks Chuvalo By Decision

This is the second of three articles written for The Canadian Press by Carmen Basilio, former world middleweight and welterweight champion, on the Ernie Terrell - George Chuvalo World Boxing Association heavyweight title fight tonight. His third story will give his post-fight impressions.

By CARMEN BASILIO

Former fighters are bad pickers so a whole but I've been pretty lucky.

I've come to my decision as impartially as I could. I've studied the styles and abilities of both fighters, have talked to both to determine their frame of mind and know that both are in the best condition of their careers.

I take Chuvalonot because he is my friend but because he has been the active fighter. He had one tough, close fight with Floyd Patterson and he has had four other fights since, this year.

I take Chuvalo not because he is my friend but because he has been the active fighter. He had one tough, close fight with Floyd Patterson and he has had four other fights since, this year, which he has won by knockouts.

It is the hungry fighter, yearning for money and glory. He has great pride and is probably the strongest heavyweight in the world. He can punch with either hand and is a murderous body puncher. He has never been knocked off his feet. Sure, he has been beaten but only by cuties who have chosen to hit and run rather than fight. I lost fights to spoilers, too.

I pick Chuvalo in a fight to the distance because I feel he has more stamina than Terrell.

This will be a bruising fight and if there is a knockout, it will be Chuvalo. Every fighter is a bleeder. Chuvalo has my kind of face—he jumps easy but never bleeds. Terrell, to my memory, has never been cut up.

WATCH FOR JABS

Terrell is highly under-rated. He is a good boxer with a fine left jab. With his reach of 82 inches, five more than Chuvalo, he has a tremendous advantage at long range. His left can be a whiplash keeping Chuvalo off balance and here could be the determining factor of the fight. Chuvalo must get by the left hand to punch inside and always worry about Terrell's right which is better than credited.

I've studied all these factors and feel that Chuvalo's blueprint for this fight will be the one I would choose against a similar opponent. I had the problem with Sugar Ray Robinson when I first fought him for the middleweight title. Actually, it's the same kind of fight. Robinson had height, reach and skill as a boxer working against me. He also had a punch which could land any time he set me up for it and land it on more than one occasion.

Chuvalo can take the punch. He can get inside by being a rough fighter. He must push Terrell away every time big Ernie wants to take a breather and most punch at the same time. He must press and punch all the time. He will wear Terrell down with body punches. This is the way I see it and if I'm wrong, don't sue me. I've been wrong before.

Houston Upsets Buffalo

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Glen Cappadonia, and George Blanda, who goes back that far almost by himself, were the stars of weekend action in the American Football League.

Cappadonia, whose family traces back to the Capulet family of Shakespeare's Juliet, counted for 20 points as Boston Patriots won their first game Sunday by upsetting previously unbeaten San Diego Chargers 26-6. He caught two touchdown passes and kicked two field goals and two extra points.

Blanda, 37, veteran of 16 pro seasons, kicked four field goals and passed for one touchdown, accounting for 18 points as Houston Oilers moved up on Buffalo in the Eastern Division race by upsetting the Bills 29-17.

Gaels Defeat Redmen

Blues Stun Mustangs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bryce Taylor took his time getting around to it, but once he regained the scoring touch there was no stopping him.

Taylor, quarterback and place-kicker for University of Toronto Blues in the Ontario Football Conference, went three games without a point. But he finally shook his scoring slump Saturday and sparked the Blues the previously undefeated University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

Taylor, needing just one point to set a scoring record for Toronto players, counted 18. He had a touchdown, six converts and two field goals.

The victory kept the Blues tied for second place with Queen's University Golden Gaels, who came from behind Saturday, in Kingston to defeat McGill University Redmen 16-6.

The Gaels and Blues each have three victories and two defeats compared with Western's record of four wins and one loss. McGills last in the four-team conference with no wins and five setbacks.

The Blues need only a win next Saturday in Montreal against McGill to clinch a play-off against Western, which plays Saturday at Kingston against Queen's.

Football Scoring Leaders

Southern, Robinson Tops

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Don Sutherin's 14-point spree against Toronto Argonauts Sunday wrapped up his second consecutive Eastern Football Conference scoring title.

Sutherin, place kicker for Hamilton Tiger - Cats, had three field goals, three singles and two converts to run his season total to 82 points and widen him past Moe Racine of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Sutherin went into Sunday's game, won 35-21 by Hamilton, trailing Racine by seven points after the Ottawa star kicked 9 converts in his team's 16-8 loss to Montreal Alouettes Saturday.

But Sutherin got Racine by the half time and clinched the title with seven more points in the second half.

Racine finished second with 75 points in this season's race while J. W. Lockett of Montreal and Ted Watkins of Ottawa, neither of whom scored Saturday, remained tied for third with 48 points each.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders' Larry Robinson won the Western Football Conference individual scoring race for the second consecutive year as he ended the season with 95 points, 13 better than his nearest rival.

Robinson kicked two converts and two field goals as Calgary defeated British Columbia Lions 20-10 in the final regular season game for a record of one touchdown, 38 converts, 13 field goals and six singles.

Runner-up was Peter Kempf of the Lions who had 82 points after a single and a convert Sunday. He was also second in the race last year when Robinson had 106 points and Kempf had 81.

George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders scored a touchdown Saturday as Roughriders edged Edmonton Eskimos 15-12 to give him 73 points and third place.

The Trots

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Garden City Raceway ended its 43-night autumn meeting Saturday night as 7-to-1 outsider Eagle Armbro won the featured $4,150 Garden City Stakes.

Eagle Armbro ran the 1 5-16-mile distance in 2:48 1-5, a track record, and paid $16.80, $3.60 and $2.40. Baron Adios, the 3-to-5 favorite owned by Maurice Monroe of Ottawa, finished second and returned $2.70 and $2.30.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Paul McGregor, owned by G. J. Barron of Brantford, captured the final of the City of London Pace Series, a $2,800 dash, at the Western Fair Raceway Saturday night.

The five-year-old came from far back to register a 1:4-length win over Deep Run Gratian and returned $32.10.

College Scores

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Apisa sparked Michigan State, Bobby Burnett powered Arkansas and Nebraska edged Missouri as the top three college football teams in the U.S. remained unbeaten Saturday.

Apisa burst for three touchdowns as top - ranked Michigan State crushed Northwestern 48-7 and Burnett scored twice in No. 2 Arkansas' 31-0 victory over Texas A-M.

The big three were joined by only two other members of the top ten in the weekend column. Notre Dame, the fourth - rated team, whipped Navy 39-3 and 10th-ranked Alabama stymied Mississippi State 10-7.

Mississippi trounced fifth - ranked Louisiana State 25-6; Illinois dumped Purdue, No. 6, 21-6; Auburn defeated Florida, No. 7, 28-17; and Southern Methodist handed ninth - ranked Texas its third straight loss, 21-14. Eighth - ranked Southern California did not play.

Astrological Forecasts

BY SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Not wise to pace self according to dictates of others. So-called experts may not possess all facts. Be especially wary of mixing business with pleasure. Keep tight hold on purse strings!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Obtain valid hint from Aries message. Hesitancy for letting others "take over." State position, outline aims. Then carry through on plans. Be definite —

GEMINI (May 21—June 20): New contacts, projects favored. Add spt to ecstasy from unusual source. Be receptive to unique ideas, but go slow on decisions. Members of opposite sex could provide encouragement.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Your intuitive intellect provides clue. Means go full way on hunch, tower feelings. Practice Golden Rule. Stand tall. You can now inspire others. Live up to potential.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Favor one who proved loyal in past. Your opinion is sought. You may be tempted by flattery . . . but ask to be shown. Demand the facts. Be wary of legal involvement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Special favor may be required by relative. Check details, read fine print. Discern true meanings, implications. Be kind . . . but cautious. If conservative, you earn respect.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Avoid tendency to be extravagant. Your romantic nature surges to forefront. You seek to impress and entertain. Don't feel you must over-spend. Be sincere . . . highlight simplicity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Harmonious relations with family members now essential. Means make some concessions. Give a little and you receive much. Avoid self-deception. See situation as it really exists.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Much of Scorpio message applies. Study current situation in realistic light. Come down to earth! People working behind the scenes consult you. Be receptive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): You may now tend to go too far in effort to please. Remember resolutions concerning budget. Fine time to take stock. If money matters require attention, don't substitute for quality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Business proposition could require opinion of expert. You tend to be "sold" on schemes. Avoid short-cut methods. Important not to compromise beliefs, principles.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Gain shown if your approach is indirect. Means no time to be forceful, insistent. Welcome suggestions. Realize idea which appears unorthodox may actually be steeped in tradition.

N.W.T. Welfare Bill Causes Budget Woes

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)— Of all the services in the North, west Territories the one that has caused the most headaches is the sky-high welfare bill.

Social assistance payments totalled nearly $900,000 last year for the 25,000 inhabitants of a traditionally self-sufficient land.

Aid for Eskimos jumped from $168,000 in 1957 to $300,000 in 1963. Last year the territorial Council spent $307,000, and $325,000 more than it had budgeted, on social assistance to Eskimos and Indian and Metis residents. The Indian affairs branch, which administers welfare for Indians, budgeted for nearly $187,500, or $44,000 more than in 1960.

Fourteen per cent of the territories' entire treaty Indian population received relief last year. Northern affairs keeps no exact figures but a rough estimate puts the number of recipients at about 1,800, nearly 10 per cent.

Many northerners residents believe the Eskimo welfare program, begun in 1950, has been a mixed blessing at best.

Robert Porritt, a Hay River trader and former bush pilot, who has lived in the North more than 40 years, has called it one of the worst things that has happened to the Eskimo.

"Some Indians at Fort Resolution now are at the point where they won't catch fish for their dogs," he said showing them they could get the food they wanted by trading in sealskins.

"Of course the sealskin market rose, which helped him considerably," Mr. Murphy says. But results were still impressive after a three-week payment cut to $26,000 from $45,000. And Coppermine, which had received $168,000 in 1957 to $300,000 in 1963. Last year the territorial Road Development Council spent $307,000, and $325,000 more than it had budgeted, on social assistance to Eskimos and Indian and Metis residents. Soil scientists say the territory's 1,300,000 square miles of land could support a population of 1,000,000 people.

But Murphy says the personality of area administrators may be more important than the land in determining the success of the program.

LUNCHEON AIDS ICE FUND

MADOC — A successful midday luncheon was held on Wednesday in Trinity United Church. The ladies of the church served a hot meal and delicious home baked cake to the artificial ice fund. Donations keep coming in from many sources when they want each food for their dogs," he said

Even at Tuktoyaktuk, a picturesque Arctic coast settlement where Eskimos still live in the traditional way of life, some residents accepted welfare last winter when they could not sell fox and wolverine over the turbulent fur-buyer market.

Welfare before 1859 was informal and unorganized.

That year it was ended by the RCMP, the religious missions, anyone who happened to be on hand when a destitute native appeared on the scene.

No one ever totalled the expenditures but they are undoubtedly only a fraction of the present figure. Some northerners believe it was a far better system for the self-respect of the population.

But after a number of Eskimos starved to death in the Keewatin area in 1957 federal authorities decided welfare was no longer to be a haphazard operation.

D. J. D. Stewart, an official of the welfare division, says living conditions of most Eskimos are "not good enough" to guarantee at least the minimum standards of health and decency.

NEED MORE WORKERS

The crux is how to administer welfare properly, along with efforts to dispense enough for a decent standard of living, keep the system from being more attractive than employment.

"We need more trained social workers immediately," says Orire Chesworth, one of seven workers with the Inuvik welfare district. "Then we could begin to do a half-way decent job."

Indian affairs hasn't been able to recruit one social worker although the budget provides for one.

Mr. Murphy says the personality of area administrators may be more important than the land in determining the success of the program.

The crux is how to administer welfare properly, along with efforts to dispense enough for a decent standard of living, keep the system from being more attractive than employment.

"We need more trained social workers immediately," says Orire Chesworth, one of seven workers with the Inuvik welfare district. "Then we could begin to do a half-way decent job."

Indian affairs hasn't been able to recruit one social worker although the budget provides for one.

Mr. Murphy says the personality of area administrators may be more important than the land in determining the success of the program.

INCOME IS UP

Consolidated net income of Dominion Tar and Chemical Limited was $7,520,000 for the third quarter of this year, up 13.5 per cent from the same July-September period in 1964, the company reported in Montreal Sunday. Net for the first nine months of the year was $19,203,000, a 7.5-per-cent increase over income in the first nine months of 1964.

P. M. Predicts Over 143 Seats In Next House

By DAVE McINTOSH

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson made it clear, informal speeches in five Vancouver area ridings Saturday and predicted that the Liberals will win more than 143 seats in the Nov. 8 election. He addressed about 1,500 persons in all, most of them at two shopping centres.

In a call at the headquarters of Liberal candidate Jack Austin in Vancouver Kingsway, Mr. Pearson noted a Southam news services survey published in Saturday's Vancouver Province that the Liberals would win at least 143 of the 265 Commons seats.

"We'll get a few more than mentioned," Mr. Pearson said.

The prime minister flew here to Winnipeg where he spent a relaxed Sunday, part of it at the home of his brother-in-law, H. H. G. Moody. He will record some television broadcasts today and address an expected crowd of 4,000 to 5,000 tonight. He is scheduled to speak in Montreal Tuesday night.

Saturday's campaigning here was the kind Mr. Pearson seems to like best—a short talk to a crowd drawn in closely around him, followed by handshaking.

PREDICTS DOG VOTE

In the campaign headquarters of Liberal candidate Ron Basford in Vancouver Burrard, Mr. Pearson spotted a button and said the dog was going to vote Conservative.

He said Conservative Alvin Hamilton, former agriculture minister, has proposed a reforestation scheme for Eastern Canada to plant 20,000,000 trees.

"He's after the dogs' vote," the prime minister said.

In NDP-held New Westminster, where Chris Brown is the Liberal candidate, Mr. Pearson told a crowd of about 1,000 Canada is in its greatest period of prosperity but that these still are some areas and people not sharing in the "good fortune" and who need help.

He said one of his toughest decisions was asking Parliament to approve the new flag. He had thought a new flag speaking for Canada and only Canada would bring Canadians together. "If it's going to do."

Whistle-stop Tour for Dief In Last Week

By KEN CLARK

HAMILTON (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker, who says he feels wonderful, today begins his final campaign foray into southwestern Ontario.

The "10-day vote-getting expedition involves four rallies and a whistle-stop train tour, a favorite device of the 70-year-old campaigner.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew from Halifax to Toronto Sunday and spent the night here before blazing the road again for the final week of the Nov. 8 election campaign.

At Toronto airport, where a small crowd gathered around him, he told reporters he expects to deliver 10 more major speeches in the closing days of the campaign.

"This is a wonderful campaign," he said. "I've been exhilarated all the way.

"I feel wonderful."

Mr. Diefenbaker will address an afternoon rally at Brantford today and return for a night rally in this steel-making city. Two Liberals and a New Democrat held the three Hamilton seats in the last Parliament.

WILL WHISTLE-STOP

Mr. Diefenbaker will travel overnight by train to Owen Sound for the start of a whistle-stop trip Tuesday to Sarnia. During the day he will speak with ralliers at Walkerburg and Goderich.

On the Monday trip he will pass through a belt of ridings, all but one Conservative-held in the last Parliament.

Some were won by narrow margins. Wallaceburg is in Lambton-Kent, held by A. McCutcheon in 1963 by 24 votes.

Back of the 27 Ontario seats won by the Conservatives in 1963 are in southwestern Ontario, but outside the big urban centres of Toronto and Hamilton where they were shut out. Liberals hold most of those seats in both cases.

The Liberals have placed a high priority label on Southwestern Ontario. Prime Minister Pearson will hold the last of his big-city rallies in Hamilton Friday night.

Mr. Diefenbaker flies Wednesday to Montreal after travelling by train from Sarnia to Toronto.

After a night rally in Montreal, he heads west for visits to Edmonton and Winnipeg and possibly Vancouver and Regina. Then he goes to the home riding of Prince Albert in northern Saskatchewan for the pre-election weekend.

CITES 'CHAOS TO CHAOS'

Saturday night more than 850 persons jammed a high school auditorium at Digby, N.S., to hear him attack the Liberal government as one "floundering from chaos to chaos."

The Conservative cited said one of the reasons that the government called the Nov. 8 election is that it is heading towards a difficult financial position brought about by last year's rapid increase in imports.

Earlier he told 1,100 at an afternoon rally in Yarmouth, N.S., that Finance Minister Gordon is reported ready to introduce tight money measures after the election.

He charged that this would be a "policy of deliberate," paralyzing business and seeming living costs higher.

At Digby Mr. Diefenbaker made a special plea for the election of Pat Nowlan, son of the late George Nowlan who had held the Digby-Annapolis-Kings seat since 1948 and was finance minister in the former Conservative government. In 1963 Mr. Nowlan, who died last spring, won by 448 votes, his smallest margin ever.

Mr. Diefenbaker's special train did not do any whistle stopping on its run down the Nova Scotia peninsula to the two fishing centres. But groups of between 10 and 50 turned up at tiny villages along the route to wave as he went past.

NDP Leader Looking for Big Gains

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—Five major rallies in five cities in as many days lie ahead for T. C. Douglas as he winds up his New Democratic Party campaign in a federal election he hopes will produce a significant breakthrough for his party.

In Regina tonight and in Winnipeg, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver between Tuesday and Friday, the NDP leader will be talking about what his party will do if it holds a balance of power in Parliament after Nov. 8.

Mr. Douglas participated Sunday night in what was billed as an all-candidate debate at a local church. Only Mr. Douglas and Liberal nominee Richard Hayes were there at the end.

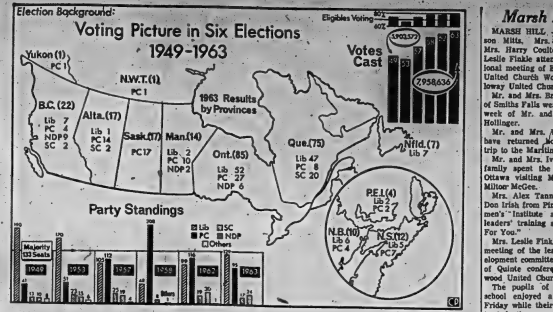
During a chat with supporters at a coffee party Saturday, Mr. Douglas said if the NDP holds a balance of power after the Nov. 8 election it would be willing to "sit down with whichever party is most amenable to influence our programs" in exchange for voting support.

He said in an interview any agreement must include a timetable for implementing legislation on NDP proposals on pensions, medical insurance, education, tax exemptions, manpower training and curbing foreign ownership of Canadian industry and resources.

At the same time Mr. Douglas again rejected any coalition with another party. He said the NDP had been more effective producing a government than the opposition side of the Commons. To form a coalition and place a few members in the federal cabinet would make the NDP "like the canary inside the cat."

EXPRESSES STAND

Mr. Douglas said if the electorate grants Prime Minister Pearson his wish for a majority government "it will be just like giving them (the Liberals) a tranquilizer."



The NDP platform advocates a medical insurance program embracing almost all the recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services.

Mr. Douglas says an NDP government would raise the old age pension to $100 a month from $75 and make it available from age 65 without a means test. Mr. Diefenbaker has proposed a $100-a-month pension with the additional amount paid from the Canada Pension Plan fund, a move Mr. Douglas says would mean lower benefits paid from the fund to contributors.

Mr. Pearson has said pensions of $100 or more will be paid to the needy. Mr. Douglas says this is humiliating and separates Canadians into first- and second-class citizens.

SUSPECT MAFIA

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Melbourne police swooped down on Italian neighborhoods Sunday, seizing weapons and searching for documents that they believed would lead to the existence of a Mafia-type organization in Australia's second largest city. A squad of 20 detectives searched 26 houses, seizing pistols, shotguns, ammunition, and a number of documents.

THE WAY CANADA VOTED — Three of the six federal elections since 1949 have resulted in minority governments. The first was in 1957 when the Progressive Conservatives ended 20 years of Liberal Government. The following year the PCs swept into office with 208 seats, the greatest number ever, but the 1962 result again gave a minority PC government. The 1963 election returned a Liberal minority.

The 1963 results by provinces show Liberal power concentrated in the East, with the Progressive Conservatives winning most in the West. Nine of the 17 New Democratic Party seats (CCF prior to the 1962 election) came from British Columbia. Quebec produced 20 of the 24 Social Credit seats but by dissolution of Parliament in September, 13 Quebec Social Crediters had broken away to form Le Ralliement des Creditistes and two others had become PCs.

The percentage of eligibles voting has remained at 79 the last three elections although the number of votes cast has grown each election since 1953.

Church Fair Held at St. John's

CAMPBELLFORD — At one phase of its centennial program St. John's United Church held a church fair. This was a successful activity from 1.30 p.m. to 9.00 p.m. on Wednesday.

A bake table, a sewing department with aprons and pillow cases, a country store with vegetables, fruit, a checkerboard and an old time pot belled stove, old fashioned quilts, a children's fishing pond, picture, were featured.

Upstairs, one room was filled with antiques, including a set of harness-making tools, complete with saddlers horse, dishes, atlases, clothes, butter bowls, a churn and many other articles.

A large number of paintings were on exhibit from local artists.

The ladies of St. John's put in many hours of labor to acquire the wealth of articles, both for display and sale. A large crowd attended both afternoon and evening.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Wallbridge LOBA, 1168, held its monthly meeting on October 18th with all members present.

Arrest Made In $400,000 Brinks Robbery

NEW YORK (AP)—In swift developments, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has arrested an American in the $400,000 Brink's robbery in Syracuse, N.Y., charged a Canadian still at large and recovered the cannon used to blast open the vault 10 days ago.

Jack Frank, 33, of Freeport, N.Y., taken into custody by federal agents Monday night, was due to be arraigned today before a U.S. commissioner in Brooklyn.

His fugitive nephew, Joel Singer, 22, of Chomedy, a Montreal suburb, also was charged by the FBI and is being sought in the robbery.

They were charged in Albany, N.Y., with conspiracy to violate the statute of interstate transportation of stolen property. The FBI also charged Sin. ger with a violation of the federal Firearms Act in connection with the transportation of a 30-millimeter anti-tank gun from Quebec to Syracuse.

The FBI said that is had recovered, with the aid of the U.S. Navy and coast guard, the anti-tank gun used in the burglary from waters near the Meadowbrook Parkway bridge to Jones Beach on Long Island.

HOOVER GIVES WORD

The developments were announced Monday night in Washington, D.C., by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who said laboratory experts positively identified the cannon as the one used in the robbery.

Police said the Brink's building in Syracuse was broken into the weekend of Oct. 23-24 and thieves fired at least 30 rounds

Advance Poll Vote Said Heavy

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If the high turnout Saturday and Monday at advance polls in Ottawa and Pembroke is any indication, the turnout next Monday at regular polls might show Canadians really are interested in what party forms the next federal government.

Returning officers in the Ottawa Valley, where deer hunting season opens election day, reported an unusually high number of persons attended the advance polls.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Returning Officer Thomas Davison of Carleton, most densely-populated riding in the Ottawa area.

Mr. Davison said he believes more than 1,000—double the 1963 figure—attended the 19 polls in his constituency.

In Ottawa West, returning officer Matt McGrath thought the turnout of more than 500 voters was matched by zealous party workers and a public increasingly aware of the availability of advance polls. He said 400 voted in 1963 advance polling.

ARE ELIGIBLE

Anyone planning to be away from home on election day was eligible to vote at the advance polls. But results will not be made public until Monday night after regular polls close.

In Pembroke, 100 miles northwest of Ottawa, Returning Officer Donald Simpson had to hire an extra clerk to cope with the influx of advance voters, mostly men expecting to be deer-hunting election day.

Mr. Simpson estimated that more than 1,000 of Renfrew North's 36,000 voters made use of the two-day advance polls.

In Pembroke itself, at least 500 voted compared with 150 in 1963, he said.

Nova Scotia—Heavy voting was reported in many ridings.

Quebec—Light in Montreal area. W. G. Brown, returning officer for Montreal - Mount Royal, said advance poll of 580 was down 30 per cent from 1963.

A similar situation was reported in Montreal-Notre-Dame-de-Grace and other ridings with next Monday's returning officers and other election - day workers voting.

Ontario — Toronto - Greenwood: "Very good," said Returning Officer C. H. Lemmer. "It was much better than 1963 at the five polling stations." "York Centre: "It was a bit heavier than 1963," said Returning Officer Frank E. Lewis of his 19 advance polls.

Manitoba — "Extremely poor to light," was the consensus of

Clampdown Is Backed By Moslems

By JOHN LEGGOE

JAKARTA (Reuters) — A countrywide Indonesian Army clampdown on Communists continued today with more than 170 arrests made here and in other areas, official news sources said.

Unofficial estimates claimed 5,000 persons, including many Communists, were rounded up since the abortive attempt Oct. 1 to overthrow President Sukarno.

Monday Sukarno signed decrees authorizing the army's maintaining of a state of war—meaning martial law—in Jakarta area and central Java, the military-controlled Antara news agency said.

But observers said this was pure formality. They said the army declared a state of war in the capital Oct. 2 and in central Java last week following fierce clashes with armed Communists.

In Surabaya port in east Java, naval authorities detained 50 members of the Communist Shipping and Seaport Workers Federation suspected of complicity in the attempted coup.

ARREST COMMUNISTS

Patrols seized weapons including grenades, ammunition and sharpened stakes.

At Krawang in western Java a crowd of 30,000 burned effigies of PKI leader D. N. Aidit and Malaysian Premier Tunku Abdul Rahman, Antara reported.

Before the leftist revolt the Indonesian Communist party was reported to have 3,000,000 members, plus many millions more in affiliated organizations.

The party was temporarily banned in the capital and several other areas after the revolt attempt.

Studying Guiana Self-Rule

By CARL MOLLINS

Britain has made repeated efforts in the last decade to arrange full self-government for British Guiana only to see the work undone by erratic governments, political feuds and race riots.

British Guiana, a tropical enclave the size of Britain on the northeast coast of South America, is still under a state of emergency imposed last year by British troops amid racial battles between Guianese of Asian and African descent.

Negotiations for independence early next year are going ahead despite the absence of Cheddi Jagan, who holds the political support of half the population. Monday he sponsored a personal appeal from British Colonial Secretary Anthony Greenwood in Georgetown.

Jagan, a former premier who once had strong Communist leanings, is boycotting the London conference in protest at a British-imposed voting system that resulted in his loss of political power in elections last December. He fears the proportional representation system of voting will be entrenched in the independence constitution.

Jagan's Progressive Peo-

Record Crowds Turn Out To Hear Party Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There has been a lot of talk about voter apathy but you couldn't prove it by the capacity crowds that turned out Monday night at the major political rallies.

Prime Minister Pearson drew 3,000 to Winnipeg Auditorium. Conservative Leader Diefenbaker spoke to 2,000 in a Hamilton theatre and NDP Leader Douglas had an audience of 2,200 in Regina Auditorium.

Social Credit Leader Thompson spent Monday in his Red Deer, Alta., riding and will spend the rest of the week in Alberta and British Columbia ridings where he thinks his party has a chance of winning in the Nov. 8 election.

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker ran into heavy heckling but both gave back as good as they got and it didn't get out of hand.

The Conservative chief was the only one of the night's speakers to produce a new promise. He said a government under him would start a parliamentary investigation of reports about Communist infiltration of European immigrants living in Canada.

"We will take a strong stand against Communism within or without this nation," he said, aiming his remarks at the steel city's large immigrant population.

The prime minister pounded on his theme of majority government, declaring that a minority situation meant a veto for the Opposition and "I don't believe in that veto in the United Nations or in Canada."

Mr. Pearson said a minority government had no assurance of lasting more than a week or two. This situation would lead to insecurity, parliamentary confusion and more elections.

Mr. Douglas, meanwhile, was stressing his party's opposition to proposed new railway legislation that would lead to wholesale abandonments of branch lines on the Prairies.

He repeated to Saskatchewan voters to elect some NDP members to help carry on the fight against the railway bill which he said would "rob shippers, consumers and railway workers of every protection they have ever known under the old railway legislation."

Today Mr. Pearson flies to the Lakehead and a night rally in Montreal, Mr. Diefenbaker goes whistle-stopping along the Lake Huron shore to Sarnia and Walkerburg, Ont., Mr. Douglas is in Winnipeg and Mr. Thompson in Edmonton. Creditiste Leader Real Caouette is at Shawinigan, Que.

Two Peasants Buried Alive By Viet Cong, Foes Report

SAIGON (CP) — South Vietnamese authorities claimed today Viet Cong guerrillas buried alive two peasants who refused to dig tunnels for them.

They said the bodies of the men were dug up with their hands tied at a village near Quang Ngai, some 360 miles northeast of Saigon.

Villagers showed security forces where the bodies lay under two feet of soil.

Continuing a mopup around the bloody Plei Me battleground, U.S. air cavalrymen killed 90 Viet Cong soldiers Monday and captured 44 others, U.S. military spokesman announced.

Reports indicated the action was the first real success for the 1st Air Cavalry Division, which arrived in South Viet Nam Sept. 13.

The cavalrymen fought three separate engagements near the U.S. special forces camp at Plei Me, 210 miles north of Saigon. The camp, in South Viet Nam's rugged central highlands, underwent a week-long siege before the guerrillas were routed last week. The airborne troops have been mopping up since.

Elsewhere, the spokesman reported, Viet Cong mortar crews fired several rounds at the U.S. marine helicopter base near Chu Lai Mountain, in the Da Nang area 380 miles northeast of Saigon, but none of the rounds hit the base and no casualties were reported.

U.S. B-52s from Guam bombed an important Viet Cong stronghold in the Bol Loi forest 35 miles northwest of Saigon. The Communists are solidly entrenched in the forest and have withstood all efforts so far to knock them out.

France, Russia Urge Peace

By FRED COLEMAN

MOSCOW (AP)—France and the Soviet Union called today for a Viet Nam peace settlement based on an end to outside interference in the internal affairs of the divided country.

The proposal — contained in a joint communique issued at the end of five days of talks between French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and top Soviet leaders.

The communique contained no joint peace formula, however, and made no specific mention of U.S. troops in Viet Nam.

It said the two governments expressed "growing concern" over the "new dangers" to peace because of the Viet Nam war.

It said the Viet Nam problem should be solved by strict application of the Geneva Agreements of 1954.

The statement said the French-Soviet talks helped to build understanding between eastern and western Europe in a dialogue both sides said they hoped would continue.

AGREE ON SPACE

The only specific agreement mentioned was a pact to be concluded later covering Soviet-French co-operation in space research. It is believed this will apply to joint work on a communications satellite system.

Diplomatic Victory for Cuba Seen in Policy on Refugees

HAVANA (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro's regime is congratulating itself for what it regards as a diplomatic victory over the United States with its open door policy on refugees.

The government's official organ Granma calls it "one of the greatest political defeats ever suffered by Yankee Imperialism" and compares it to the Bay of Pigs invasion.

The Cuban viewpoint lists three major results of Castro's announcement a month ago that his regime would allow — and even help — all Cubans who want to go into exile into the U.S. to do so:

—Government - to - government discussions are going on, although on an indirect basis, for the first time in years, perhaps pointing toward more contacts in the future.

—The U.S. breaking off air connections in 1962 has been exposed as a major reason for the inability of many discontented Cubans to leave the island.

—The influence and hopes of anti - Castro Cuban elements are anxious to see a continuation of Cuba's isolation from the U.S. have been demonstrated to be no longer valid.

Diplomatic contact has been limited largely to details of setting up an airlift to replace the dangerous sea route now being used. All of the contact has been indirect—through the Swiss embassy, which represents U.S. interests in Cuba.

But it has led to repeated mention in government and foreign diplomatic circles of the possibility of future contact on other matters, perhaps on a more direct basis.

Among the possibilities mentioned as topics for discussion are the status of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo —a source of irritation to Castro—and claims of U.S. interests whose holdings here were expropriated.

A matter regarded as much more likely to come up in the near future is the release of political prisoners, which Castro ruled out for inclusion in the refugee negotiations but now regarded as a priority item in U.S. thinking.

'Dying' Spy Suspect Alive and Well And Working in Vancouver Post Office

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says a spy suspect the government claimed was dying last May is "very much alive" in Vancouver.

He readily agreed that he was the man who members of the RCMP accused last May of supplying information to a Russian spy network," the newspaper says.

Two members of the Russian diplomatic service left Ottawa May 7 after being declared persons non grata. The external affairs department said they had been trapped by the actions of two Canadians.

Prime Minister Pearson said later that only one Canadian had co-operated from the start in the investigation. The other was said to be extremely ill in hospital in Western Canada.

The Province says this is the man found in Vancouver, and that he admitted he had an operation for cancer last spring and was very ill when the RCMP questioned him.

The newspaper quotes the man as saying he had some connection with extreme left-wing groups, but had never been a member of the Communist party. He has no idea why the security forces have left him alone.

"If I got into a position of telling all I know there would be some heads swimming in Canada and elsewhere," he is quoted as saying.

Days of Parking Authority Appear to Be Numbered

Increase Buses

In order to assist the public, the East Hill extra bus, via the Shopping Plaza, and the West Hill Hillcrest bus will operate in addition to the regular buses on Wednesday afternoon, through the months of November and December.

It is to be noted that regular service of a one-half hour will be carried out in the evenings.

After six years of operation the days of the Belleville Parking Authority could be numbered.

Yesterday at city council Alderman Ben Corke presented a notice of motion calling for disbanding of the Authority at the end of 1965. The motion will be up for discussion at the next meeting of the council on November 19th.

Two weeks ago there were rumblings in council that boards and commissions were taking over too much of city council's authority and Ald. Corke at that time intimated he was considering bringing in a motion for disbanding of the parking authority.

The discussion two weeks ago was prompted by a recommendation from the public works committee asking for an agreement transferring control and management of the farmers market to the parking authority. Ald Jack Deacon as works committee chairman said it was felt the suggested agreement would be more efficient.

MOTION TABLED

But several councillors felt differently and the motion was tabled.

Yesterday Ald. Corke brought in his notice of motion to disband the parking authority and Alderman Deacon asked that the works committee recommendation from two weeks ago be withdrawn. The motion was withdrawn without comment.

The authority is charged with the operation of off-street parking lots and also with the maintenance of street parking metres. The Authority is composed of Chairman Glencoe Thompson and two other members.

Fire Insurance Coverage Upped By $127,000

City Council yesterday voted to increase the fire insurance coverage on municipally owned buildings. The over-all fire insurance coverage was raised $127,000 to $1,210,000 with the three-year premium cost to be $2,600.down over $300 from the previous three year cost.

Council has set a value of $300,000 on the city hall and on the Memorial Arena while the new police headquarters on Campbell Street is valued at $270,000 for fire insurance purposes.

City fire halls are insured for $75,000 each, the recreation centre for $60,000 and the new city garage at $112,000.

Police Probe Night Shooting At Verona

VERONA, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police are investigating a Halloween night shooting of three youths in this community 20 miles north of Kingston.

The other youths were not admitted to hospital.

Police said the incident occurred Saturday night after a group of 15 to 20 youths gathered behind the home of George Sheppard, a Verona lunch-counter and poolroom operator.

Hees Talks To Farmers At Roseneath

ROSENEATH, Ont. (CP) — George Hees, Canada's former trade minister, said Monday night the Eastern Canada farmer needs a concerted effort to sell farm produce abroad.

In a campaign speech for the Nov. 8 federal election, Mr. Hees outlined to the Ontario Farm Union his party's platform on agriculture.

"Everyone in Canada has been impressed by the result of our wheat sales abroad—sales which were made when any party was in power," said Mr. Hees, Conservative candidate in Northumberland riding in which this community is located.

"The effect of these sales has been a very great stimulus to the entire Canadian economy. . . . The western farmer is selling all he can grow. He is prosperous. He is helping to make Canada more prosperous.

"This must and can be done for the eastern farmers. What the eastern farmer needs is a great agricultural trade crusade similar to the industrial trade crusade which I launched in 1960 when minister of trade and commerce. . . .

"We can open up new markets for fruits and vegetables, dairy and poultry products, tobacco, beef and pork," he said.

Text of Mr. Hees' speech was made available to the press before delivery.

Says Riding Not Sharing In Prosperity

CLOYNE — At a meeting at Marble Lake Lodge here, Dr. Cadwell, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Frontenac said there is less employment in the riding than ten years ago; there is less business and there is less money. Hastings-Frontenac had been represented by a Conservative member.

"On the other hand", Mr. Cadwell continued, "a Liberal government represents good times and full employment" if he were elected he would see to it that the good times which the rest of Canada is experiencing under a Liberal government, would be transferred to Hastings-Frontenac, he said.

"What this riding needs is more people, more industry, more tourists and more money." Mr. Cadwell asserted that his five point program for improving economic conditions, by more tourists and more money under ARDA, grants for free university tuition, the setting up of a Centennial Park as a tourist attraction and the payment of a housewife's allowance of $20 per month to the housewives of this area would achieve this.

In answer to a question, Mr. Cadwell said his canvass revealed 65% of the people in the area favored the pipeline project and that if this number voted for him on November 8th, his election was assured.

Should Boil Water Says Health Officer

TRENTON — Trenton council asked that Fisdall Street residents be alerted (in writing) to the danger of drinking water from wells in the area, after a report from H. S. Pane, chairman of the Trenton Board of Health was read at last night's council meeting. MOH Dr. E. W. Dow has recommended that the residents boil all water from the wells, before use.

Meanwhile, the health board has recommended that Tenicel see to it that a water main is provided for the residents as quickly as possible.

TOLD TO PROCEED

Town solicitor Roderick Campbell was instructed by Trenton council to proceed with prosecutions of persons, who have contravened the town's existing zoning laws by continuing to operate businesses in residential zones . . . where there are by-laws in force. Breaches of by-laws are being contravened.

Stanley Street Residents Claim Council Has Broken Faith With the Electorate

TRENTON — Charges that Mayor Jean MacDonald and the members of his council had "broken faith with the electorate" if suggestions that council had been conducting deals "under the table" (along with a further suggestion that council resign in a body) were buried across Trenton council chamber last night by a delegation from Stanley Street, when the members of the delegation learned council had signed an agreement which would permit a local scrap dealer, Jack Zigman, to locate in their area, without first considering a petition against this action, signed by the city residents.

A spokesman for the delegation, James Pow, charged that Stanley Street residents had been led like sheep to the slaughter".

Mr. Pow said that he had had the residents' protest in the hands of town officials before the end of May and had a letter from clerk comptroller O. W. Larry, dated June 1, telling him council would take the matter under consideration at the next "regular" meeting, June 7.

On June 2, at a special meeting, a by-law to enter into an agreement with Jack Zigman, was passed. An agreement was signed. By the terms of this Mr. Zigman was to receive $40,000 for his riverside lot, needed for the western approach of the new bridge. Part and parcel of the agreement was that council would provide Jack Zigman with an alternate site for his scrap yard. Mr. Zigman chose the Stanley Street site, at the base of Mount Pelion.

At last night's council meeting, Mr. Zigman claimed the agreement was "sewn up", and said he had received a letter of payment from the town, making the agreement binding.

"I'll tell you people the truth", Mr. Zigman said, "you made a deal with me".

In the light of the strong objections from the Stanley Street residents, council has been attempting to induce Mr. Zigman to consider another site for his yard.

But the matter may yet come before the courts, as there is a suggestion that the Stanley Street residents may retain a lawyer to fight their cause. With this in mind, the mayor and council would not commit themselves to any clear cut statement on the issue last night, and the delegation left the council chamber with no more assurance than that council would do all in its power to please all factions.

Farm Policies Outlined by All Candidates

TRENTON — At Roseneath (20 miles north of Cobourg) last night, Ian Reilly, NDP Northumberland candidate; George Hees, P.C., and Dr. Pauline Jewett, Liberal, outlined their farm policies of their parties to a meeting of the Farmers' Union.

Mr. Reilly said the NDP policy rests on the conviction that the farmer's interests will be preserved and strengthened as the cornerstone of Canadian agriculture had increased with the growth of the economy in the past 15 years had largely passed the farmer by, and that the farm incomes had not kept pace with the non-farm incomes.

Mr. Hees said the government would set up farm trade missions abroad, such as the 1960 trade missions in other produce.

He said the recent wheat sales to Russia and China had helped the western farmers, but that it was time the eastern farmers got some relief.

Dr. Jewett said that the Liberals' planned "war on poverty" would benefit the domestic market. She disagreed with Mr. Reilly and said the farmer's income had increased considerably in the past two and a half years of Liberal rule. Mills would have increased tobacco insurance for full time farm workers are other plans the Liberals would implement if re-elected, she said.

Mayor Wants Passengers Let On, Off Train

TRENTON — Mayor James MacDonald told the members of Trenton town council and reporters last night that he had been in Ottawa, last week, conferring with a CPR official in an attempt to induce the railway to let passengers on and off the train, making a brief, 15 minute stop of the crack scenic-domed Toronto to Montreal liner for a crew change in Trenton.

The mayor said he felt it was the right thing to do to "go to the railway," and not ever to head to the Department of Transport.

Mayor MacDonald said he had told the official of the need for a train outlet in Trenton, considering the town's population of 14,00 and the proximity of the RCAF station.

The official had been sympathetic, said the mayor, and had promised "some hope."

Candidates Visit Plant At Batawa

Separate School Board Seeks Amendment to Transit Commission Law

Amendment of existing city regulations to allow school boards and other such organizations to seek a solution to their own transportation problems, has been asked by the Belleville Separate School Board.

The request was made yesterday to city council by Mrs. Marie Huffman, chairman of the Separate School Management Committee, who said the board had been informed that its present arrangements providing transportation for 144 of its pupils was contrary to the regulations of the Belleville Transit Commission.

Under the present by-law the Belleville Transit Commission has the exclusive franchise for provision of bus transportation within the city.

Mrs. Huffman said that with approval of the Ontario Department of Education, the Separate School Board with the opening of school in September had decided that all grade 7 and 8 pupils in the city would be brought in to St. Michael's Academy.

SERVES THREE SCHOOLS

Accordingly the board had contracted with Mr. E. J. Wilkinson who had been transporting rural students to the city, to pick up students at St. Joseph's School, Holy Rosary School, and Our Lady of Fatima and bring them to St. Michael's.

The Transit Commission had agreed that Mr. Wilkinson be allowed to continue the above arrangement until October 31st and in the meantime had submitted two proposals. 1, for Separate School students to ride regular buses, or 2, charter service to be provided by the Transit Commission.

The cost for students to ride regular buses would be $38 per day and for the charter service $20 per day with neither of the proposals providing the advantages of the service provided by Mr. Wilkinson.

Mayor J. R. Ellis appointed a committee of Aldermen Ben Corke and Alderman Jack Deason to investigate and report back to council.

Base Coat Will Be Laid Before Fall

City council is still confident that the base coat of asphalt will be laid on Pinnacle St. before the fall freeze-up.

This assurance was given yesterday at city council by Mayor J. R. Ellis who said that gravel base on the Pinnacle St. section between Dundas and Bridge would be completed by the weekend after which vehicular traffic would be allowed.

The mayor was confident that the base coat would be in place by the end of November.

Ald. G. Brown Addresses Naturalists

"A letter was read from Mrs. W. Este, a former member who has moved to Carson, Ontario, saying how much she had enjoyed the Club.

Mr. I. Knight gave a short account of a conference he had attended where it was urged that roadsides be made more beautiful and not so heavily sprayed.

Mr. Hedley James introduced the speaker, Alderman George A. Brown of Belleville, who spoke on "Wild Life and Conservation of Forests". He had been a bird watcher since the age of six.

Mr. Brown's excellent photography and his interesting way of presenting his subject made it a very memorable evening. Miss Gertrude Lazier moved a hearty vote of thanks.

Parks Board Cleaning Up Corby Park

The first stage of a three-stage re-development program for Corby Park lying between William and Ann Streets north of Bridge Street is currently being carried out by the city parks board.

This year approximately $1,800 has been spent on the park, the work consisting of removal of undesirable plant material, diseased trees and overgrown shrubberies; regrading of the sub-soil; spreading of 600 yards of top soil fine grading and grass seeding and construction of a revised foot-path.

Fencing placed to protect the new seeding will remain until the grass is established.

The remainder of the park development will consist of finished treatment for the foot path system installation of an irrigation system, construction of a small tool and meterhouse; planting of roadsides and shrubbery, erection of rustic wood lighting standards with underground wiring and installation of a fountain and suitably located commemorative entrance monuments

Total cost of the re-development program is estimated at $9,000.

Corby Park, consisting of approximately one acre, was donated to the city of Belleville in 1905 and was laid out as a passive park area. The passive park idea will be continued under the re-development plan.

Level Crossings Closed But Trains Whistle

Why should trains continue to whistle for level crossings which no longer exist?

Yesterday at council Ald. Allin noted that although the level crossings at Grier and St. Charles Street had been dismantled trains still continue to blow for the crossings.

He wanted to know if something couldn't be done about the "unnecessary" whistle tooting.

Committee Will Be Asked to Meet in City

The Moira River Conservation Authority will invite the Ontario Legislature Select Committee on Conservation to hold sittings in Belleville.

This was noted at city council yesterday by Mr. Donald Wishart, chairman of the Moira Authority, who told council members that Belleville would be a central location for the committee to hold its hearings in this part of Ontario.

City council endorsed the brief of the Moira Authority which will be presented to the Select Committee on Conservation.

City Planning Director Addresses Rotary Club

Predicting a Canadian population of more than 35 million within the next 20 years, Belleville planning director, Perceval J. Beavis, told Belleville Rotarians at their luncheon meeting yesterday that this would probably mean a band of urban development 25 miles wide from Quebec City to Windsor containing 60 per cent of population and 80 per cent of manufacturing industry.

"To house this increase we will have to construct the equivalent of 21 new cities the size of Belleville every 10 years," he said.

Pointing out that most major cities will double their population and occupy three times their existing area, Mr. Beavis said that within 20 years we must build "more brick and mortar than has been built during the recorded history of Canada."

Mr. Beavis warned that no time should be lost in appraising Canada's needs over the next two decades. He quoted extensively from United States statistics and said the problem there was on a comparable scale. However, the rate of growth in Canada might well be greater than he had estimated.

"Apathy caused by the abundance we enjoy from a high standard of living is the greatest enemy," he said.

AMPLE WATER

Looking at the problem from the viewpoint of available resources, the planning director said North America has no ample supply of fresh drinkable water but American demand alone has grown from 60 gallons per person per day — the same as was delivered by the aqueducts of Ancient Rome — to about 600 gallons per day.

U.S. requirements, he said, will increase 53 per cent by 1980 and it was proposed to siphon off more of the Great Lakes. Provided the problem of pollution can be contained he felt this should satisfy urban needs in the U.S. for the foreseeable future.

He said pollution from sewage and other wastes was such that the U.S. will spend $800 million over the next decade on water purification, as well as a like amount for extension of trunk sewers.

The cost of sewage disposal in Canada is 10 cents per person per week and Mr. Beavis said this was very reasonable.

"However, if we are to conserve our supplies of clean water we must be prepared to pay more."

STANDARD HOUSING

Citing the city of London, Ontario, Mr. Beavis said the spring run-off in the Thames Valley was sufficient to supply the city for 10 years. However, plans for extracting water from Lake Huron and piping it to the city were being seriously considered.

On urban renewal and housing, Mr. Beavis said one-third of Canadians live in below-standard housing, a figure that was "perhaps high "because we accept a standard which is unattainable by about 80 per cent of the world population."

On city congestion, Mr. Beavis said in Los Angeles alone two-thirds of the downtown area was given over to the automobile.

"I think if we are to solve this enormous rate of expansion we have to move toward a greater acceptance of planning."

Mr. Beavis said planning could achieve its best results if it combined local experience and knowledge with the professional assistance of the planning officer.

Gerald Hyde introduced Mr. Beavis and he was thanked by Ross Booth.

Two new Rotarians were welcomed at the meeting and which was chaired by President Ernest Burnham.

Liberals Rally In Belleville

The Liberals have had the only party which has consistently advanced social legislation on a guaranteed progressive basis, Robert Temple, Liberal candidate seeking re-election in Hastings South said last night. "Now the Liberal government is determined to continue that tradition through the Canada Assistance Plan, which linked to the old-age security and existing security plans will provide total pensionable maximums up to $125.00 a month when the need exists."

At the same time he warned that to promise across-the-board increase of $100.00 old-age security was an unreliable pledge. It would irresponsibly help create a financial deficit at a time when the nation was being geared around an era of disastrous deficits,

Mr. Temple was speaking to a rally of party workers which was more than 400 to the Quinte Secondary School as the Liberal re-election bid in high gear. The rally peaked to full stride in the last days of campaigning.

"It's the Liberal Party that introduced universal welfare measures in a responsible fashion to this country," said Mr. Temple. "It included old-age security, family allowances, unemployment benefits and the Canada Pension Plan and we hope to continue these forward measures."

"Under existing legislation and proposed legislation already under way we'll raise senior citizens security up to $125.00 a month where the need exists"

DEFICITS

"We propose to create a fund-the board at this moment in our history when we are just getting out of huge deficits we cannot create deficits ever piled up would be irresponsible. It would create a deficit with an additional burden of 850 million dollars."

He proposed Canada Assistance Act, which already is being worked out in discussions with the provinces, would make more funds available for senior security.

"While all the promises the opposition has made, including increased spending and reduced taxation there would still be a difference of over 2 billion dollars or personal income tax would have to be increased by some 40 percent."

The Liberal government had been the first administration in years to reduce personal income tax.

"Yet to reduce 10 per cent personal income tax represented about 350 million dollars in the past year. It was made possible and achieved. This should give some idea of the reliability of responsible planning over promises.

The thieves made off with $416,028 from the vault, including $160,774 in cash and $255,254 in cheques.

Frank, a bachelor and ex-convict, was arrested Monday night in Garden City, then taken to the FBI office in Manhattan for fingerprinting and other processing. He was lodged in the federal house of detention.

Federal agents said Siegel, who had been employed as a salesman, had been convicted in Canada in 1961 for shoplifting and given a suspended sentence. He was described as six feet tall, 182 pounds, with brown hair and blue eyes.

BELIEVED SAME

The thieves who robbed the Brink's office in Syracuse are believed by police to be the same persons who attempted to rob a Quebec bank with a cannon last Feb. 26. They were frightened off.

Investigators believe that the thieves purchased two anti-tank guns from an arms supplier in Alexandria, Va., had it re-exported to a fictitious address in Plattsburgh, N.Y., then broke into the Plattsburgh warehouse of Fee at night and stole the guns.

Police believe the cannons were taken to Canada for the attempted robbery in Quebec.

The thieves in Syracuse left behind four gas masks, a homemade mount for the cannon, 31 recorded shell cases, welding equipment, blankets and mattresses — apparently used to muffle the sounds of the blast —and "enough nitroglycerine to blow down the building," police said.

Canada's Indians

One thing the next government is going to hear, more of is the welfare of Canada's Indian population.

Already there are signs and portents. Prime Minister Pearson was met on arrival at Vancouver last week by Linda Edwards, who is just 17 and Potlach Queen of the Simlach Indians. Her presence was perhaps no more than an act of symbolism, but nevertheless not without significance. Earlier in the week Mr. Pearson had been greeted by Indians at the Walpole Island (Ontario) Reserve, and going back further still it will be recalled that an Indian woman proposed Mr. Peason's nomination in Algoma East.

And there is the indomitable Kahn-Tineta Horn, whom the Canadian Club of Belleville has cause to remember. Any speaker who jolts an audience as Miss Horn did at Sir Winston Churchill school last Friday is someone to be reckoned with.

Miss Horn plans to go to Ottawa after the election to carry on her crusade for a better deal for Indians. Whether Mr. Pearson or Mr. Diefenbaker will be the target for her contention that Canadians are bound by earlier agreements guaranteeing the rights of Indians in perpetuity remains to be seen. Her cause, though, remains the same, and she expressed it recently in a letter to The Ottawa Journal.

"My efforts," wrote Miss Horn, "are always constructive. My principle is that the Indian must recognize the fact that only by hard work and the long climb upwards to being self supporting, that any interests—government, non-Indian or even of Indian ancestry—seeking to give Indians a program of fun and games instead of welfare, seeking to take away self-control and initiative from Indians, must be faced with all of the resolute power that a 22-year-old 115-lb. girl who earns $60 a week can provide."

If this young Mohawk woman, Montreal fashion model and great beauty, with her personal chant for democracy, succeeds only in making people think more about the Indian population and their needs, it will be a considerable achievement. Already the trend seems to be in that direction, and it is people like Kahn-Tineta Horn who are giving it impetus.

Those Statistics

People are not statistics, yet statistics are very much a part of our lives; and when we learned recently that Canada had welcomed its 100,000th immigrant of 1965 the news seemed to acquire some mystical significance and the person concerned a brief aura of fame.

However, for Elspeth Ann Whitley, the 20-year-old Scots-born ballerina who flew into Toronto recently to an official welcome, her stay in this country came to an untimely end. At a ballet rehearsal she aggravated a foot injury and was ordered by her doctor not to dance again until after Christmas. The ensuing inactivity, combined with homesickness was too much for Miss Whitley and she decided to fly home to Scotland. She vowed she would come back, and will surely be welcome if she does return.

Down in Florida the U.S. Coast Guard has also been busy counting heads—those of the refugees who have arrived in the state of the Caribbean separating Cuba from the U.S. mainland. The coast guard has just come up with the 999th and 1000th refugees to pass through the reception area at Key West.

And like Miss Whitley, with his own their side, they turned out to be a small boy of about 8 years, Miguel Perez, and his sister Bibian who in the picture released of the pair would appear to be about 9 or 10.

Student Capers

Universities traditionally are places which have a strong influence on the times in which we live and on political thought and evolution.

At the same time, from the look of some of the students it might be wondered what the country is coming to, what its fate is to be under such Bohemian-appearing young people. Apparently some students at the University of Montreal feel the same way—and the target of their wrath is the campus newspaper and its staff.

"Out with 'beards,' 'poets,' and 'socialists' was the theme of placards carried by student demonstrators in Montreal last week.

The journal concerned must be a scurrilous sheet indeed, for it has incurred the wrath of none other than Quebec Chief Justice Frederic Dorion. He described an article published in it as the work of "propagandists of disorder."

The editor of Quartier Latin is Jacques Elliott and he admitted that its general policy is oriented toward Quebec independence and socialism. What seems more disturbing was his statement that this was the policy approved unanimously by the student council.

In any university there are as many political view as there are poets, beards and oddballs, but it is an unsatisfactory and dangerous situation when a student body admits its embraces the kind of anarchic theories that go hand in hand with Quebec separatism and left-wing socialism.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 2nd, 1945

An Ontario magistrate recently expressed the belief that flogging the perpetrators of certain crimes is both justifiable and effective. The scoundrel who treats cruelly the victim he is plundering should be flogged for two reasons: because he is cruel and because he is dishonest. The deliberate premeditation of crime carefully planned as carried out by bank robbers does not justify any leniency in estimating the degree of severity of the punishment.

The chief object of penalization is to protect society, which would soon end in barbarism if capital punishment were abolished. Many years ago, in a fit of humanitarianism, the Legislature of the State of Michigan abolished capital punishm e nt. There has been no betterment of moral conditions. The reactionary capital offence is on the increase.

Human civilized society must depend on self-protection by executing the persons who deliberately plan the destruction of the individuals who are its constituting units.

To Your Good Health

Numbness, Tingling Frequent Occurrences

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are numbness of the tips of the middle fingers on the right hand, a burning feeling down the right arm and hand, and difficulty in finding a comfortable position in which to sit or sleep, classical symptoms of any ailment? If so is there any-therapy, medicinal or physical, other than aspirin?

Two doctors have agreed, independently, in my case that something is impinging on a nerve — one says a muscle, the other a vertebra, and that nothing can be done except to use aspirin. Do you think manipulative techniques might help?
— J. E. L.

Yes, such a combination of symptoms can be significant, and it is not, as a matter of fact, uncommon. Numbness, burning, stinging. A feeling of fingers "going to sleep," and so on, are rather frequent complaints, usually in or get into middle age or later

Sure, these things can, happen, under rather unusual circumstances, when we are young, but they usually don't. As we go on living we encounter late injuries. We also become gradually "ground down." Our bones change shape, not rapidly, but slowly, in the way a hinge of a door wears and gets creaky after years, and years of use. Sometimes a nerve, and sometimes a blood vessel, becomes pinched. Either situation can cause tingling, numbness or other such symptoms, not at the point at which the pinching takes place, but further along the arm (or legs)or in the fingers or toes

Saying that nothing can be done except to use aspirin is not necessarily so, and I trust that you somewhat misunderstood your doctors. I'm sure they knew that something else could be done, provided the discomfort warranted the effort and expense. Please believe me, doctors are aware that cost is important. A TV star may gladly spend a lot of money to get rid of a pimple on the nose a few days sooner. The rest of us will gladly lose a day and save some money.

But let's get back to the tingling and numbness. A change in the bones between the cervical rib, or some such condition, is the likely cause of pressure on nerve or blood vessel.

X-rays of the neck structures can also usually be depended on what they show, neck traction may help (drawing apart the vertebrae by applied tension together and stretching neck muscles). Or an operation to remove a segment of rib or other bone may be the answer. Manipulation, other than traction, is not likely to be of much benefit, but I certainly will not say that in some particular cases it may not be helpful.

The blocking of an artery may be at fault, a minor threat so far as total health is concerned, but strategically located so that it causes numbness, or a feeling of coldness in the extremities, or some such annoyance.

In some suitable cases, sympathectomy, or cutting of a certain nerve, can shut off the unpleasant sensations and improve circulation. And the patient wonders why an operation in, say, his chest, makes his fingers feel better But before whatever treatment is used, the first step is to find exactly what is causing the trouble.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is dizziness a symptom of diabetes? — Mrs. H. J.

Dizzy spells are a symptom of so many things that I wouldn't single out diabetes. Yes, someone who has diabetes and doesn't know it might have such spells.

Tidy Hairdos Impressed Him

Windsor Star

We wonder if somendfix are using one of their best assets to the best advantage in enhancing their feminine allure. We refer to their hair.

This thought came to mind as we were sitting in the rear of an audience. Our mind strayed off what the speaker was saying to look at the heads in front of us, male and female. We noted the various hair-dos and the variety, , somewhat weird, of the hats.

Three heads caught our attention. They were of adolescent girls. Each had lovely locks, one a naturally bright blond and the others brown. Two of the girls had their locks of shoulder length. The other had hers down below the shoulders.

These neatly combed locks were a delight to the eye. We forgot about all other heads in the audience while we enjoyed those of these lasses. And we thought this rear - view of the audience would have been much more pleasant had all the girls, and women, shown their hair to the best advantage instead of the odd arrangements most of them favored.

Wilson the Realist

Ottawa Citizen

Perhaps Mr. Harold Wilson's secret is his ability to face facts and his willingness to tell the public...what those facts are. People are prepared to face unpleasant truths and (to accept considerable hardship if they are taken into the confidence of their leaders, and it is refreshing to find a politician who is prepared to do so. There is every likelihood that if Mr. Wilson had practised disinformation or contended himself with bland platitudes about the future, he would no longer be in Number 10 Downing Street.

Ottawa Offbeat

Caricature Collectors Are Ottawa Status Symbols

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Notes from the Campaign Trail, — If must be something of a letdown for the taxpayers out across the land when, for the first time, they see the politicians in the flesh.

What a disappointment — or relief — after all the years of seeing those mad distortions of the cartoonists and newspaper editorial page cartoons to discover that the faces of Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker are, well, almost ordinary.

And what is to be more disappointing, realistic to confirm what they must have known all the time — that George Hees couldn't actually double for an old - time river - boat gambler, that Guy Favreau really bears no remote resemblance to Lucien Rivard, that Davie Fulton doesn't look much like an aging Little Boy Blue — reality can't be half the fun that imaginative imagery was.

It must kind of restore your faith in Canadian democracy to see for yourself that Prime Minister Pearson isn't exactly the slightly distraught if not completely helpless character with the untidy straw pile hair that some of the cartoonists depict . . . or that Conservative Leader Diefenbaker isn't quite the snarling - toothed wild man with the krinkled topknot of a mad cockatoo.

THERE'S ALWAYS Pic

People in the National Capital see the politicians every day, near-great day in, day out — except, of course, when the politicians are out campaigning across the land, which these times is just about every other year — and they know they're not the crazy-cat characters the caricatures make out.

To the Civil Servants, of the Capital — and they are legion, really, are there in Ottawa — Joan Diefenbaker, Letter Pearson, Paul Martin Jr. and the other political personalities from Parliament Hill are little more than friends and neighbors.

Just ordinary folks, really . . . the type you wouldn't turn around to look at twice if seen at after nodding hello on the street.

It is such an uncanny duplication, Pick in the flesh and Pick in the cartoons, that you hear yourself chuckling "will the real Mr .Pickersgill please stand up" or "which twin has the toni?"

Actually, the politicians rather like to have themselves caricatoned.

For when they appeared in the caricatures on the editorial pages, they knew that there has made the political grade as a Canadian Face-of-Fame.

They frame these cartoons and display them on the walls of their Parliament Hill offices, collecting them with something of the same pride that characters at Lovers collect Group of Seven paintings.

INSTANT DIEF!

A Conservative hawk will covered with the originals of political cartoons of yourself as the star attraction is a sure sign that you have arrived.

Dief, even in Opposition, remains the cartoonists' pin-up politician.

They may not always love him, but they sure love giving him the pictorial business.

The eyes blazing, the cut of the jaw so belligerent, make for an easy "instant Dief" that everybody recognizes.

"If the cartoonists could decide -it," says The Montreal Star's cartoonist McNally carving a wishful vote for the profession, "Dief would be permanent PM. His face makes our work play."

Most of the cartoons are done in the spirit of good clean political fun, but sometimes they can be savage, with the artist working with acid and an oyster knife in etching the more merciless of the caricatures.

Even then, even the most hideous, find their way into the collections on Parliament Hill, without the cartoonee's secretary must cringe when they go up on the Centre Block office walls.

Dief has been heard to wonder, when confronted by some particularly slashing caricature, whether people are in the campaign trail aren't perhaps a bit surprised to discover, from reacting some of the more outrageously grotesque distortions of his face, that, as he puts it, "I'm only human."

Letter to the Editor

Distillery Not A Liquor Outlet

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Regarding the news report about Thurlow township voting against liquor lounges and cocktail bars, in the October 21st issue, the statement "nearly 60 years ago—when Thurlow voted to abolish liquor outlets" was made.

If this is true the vote is not being enforced. An inspection was conducted a thousand cases of liquor per day is a liquor outlet. Liquor is being sold and used in Thurlow township. This production and sale is a considerable revenue and it is an outlet.

For this liquon issue a "Vote No" committee was formed. We, in the Thurlow Hall took place, does this committee fall apart or does it follow through and continue to fight for its principles and beliefs?

I doubt it! Thurlow township will not be dry!!! for another three years.

Shirley D. Skurka.

Editor's note:—The distillery in question is not a liquor outlet, in the sense usually given that term. While liquor is produced there, it is not sold to the consumer from the plant premises.

Out of Their Depth

Winnipeg Free Press

As judges of artistic worth, most police officers, good as they may be at their jobs, are generally poor at their dealings. Policemen who are called upon to be literary, art and theatre critics are almost always forced into a hilariously incongruous situation. The resulting laughter is often world - wide.

Comedians Slaves of Their Public

Reading about the "nervous breakdowns" of a widely known comedian, a friend asked why, in my opinion, so many comedians and humorists seem to be unhappy or discontented men in their personal lives. "Even Mark Twain," he said, "was a bitter and pessimistic person."

The best explanation that comes to mind is that a humorist presents only one p a r t of himself to the public — and this side is taken for the whole man. Naturally, the rest of the personality presents being "typed" for a lifetime as a mere jester.

Some years ago, after dealing with this topic in the column, I received a long letter from Groucho Marx, who had also wondered about it. His letter said, in part:

"It's a curious thing, but people expect me to be always flippant. When I'm not, they are literally disappointed. For example, last week I was at a night club where I watched a famous comedian do some of his pieces. It wasn't a particularly good show, but the comic knew it was out front, so I was obliged to go backstage and visit him after the performance.

"Almost immediately the usual insincere compliments, he told he was receiving a terrible time getting to sleep and that his nightly struggle with the demon Insomnia was reaching a new high. I assured him there was a cure for this — and suggested that, in the future, he sit in the audience while his show was on, and he'd have no further trouble sleeping.

"Now I agree with you, this is not a very tactful thing to say — nor is it a very practical ge-

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials moved into higher ground on quiet morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Abitibi and Algoma gained a fraction and 62¼. Walker Gooderham was up ¼ to 36¾ Massey-Ferguson ¼ to 34¾ and Turnbull Elevators which sagged 3 points Monday gained ¾ to 17¼.

Bank stocks were also quiet after slight losses Monday, however Toronto-Dominion was up ⅛ to 62¼. Investors Group A was up ¼ to 36¾.

Base metals showed slight gains with Cominco adding ½ at 51, Denison ¼ to 40 and Rio Algom ¼ at 20. International Nickel tacked on ¼ to 100½.

Activity in Monday's highflying issues subsided with Central Patricia unchanged at 2.00 while Newconex lost five cents to 7.70 and Conwest gained five cents to 7.65.

These issues all made sharp gains Monday on news of encouraging results from Pyramid Mining Co.'s Pine Point area property, in which they have a financial interest.

On index industrials were up .10 to 170.05, base metals .17 to 85.79, western oils .13 to 101.55 and the TSE index .10 to 160.07. Golds were down .04 to 159.79. Volume at 11 a.m. was 918,000 comsared with 983,000 at the same time Monday.

Industrials rallied on the exchange Monday, but the surge petered out before the close and the group ended slightly lower.

Primary metals paced the decline with Aluminium off 1¼ to 31½, Algoma 1¼ to 62¼ and Falco — which reported increased nine-month earnings — ¼ to 17¼.

Turnbull Elevatory sagged 3 to 6¾ after announcing it would not pay its 15-cent dividend Dec. 1. Royal Bank was down ⅛ to 73 and Canada Cement

Expecting Something

There I was, along with another dozen nervous males, sitting in pre-natal classes at the Recreation Centre.

I was one of the early ones there, because if there is anything that upsets me it is walking into a room full of strangers and having them stare at me. I would rather get there first so I can stare at them instead.

In every case, the wife was first in the room — I suspect it was not entirely out of politeness — and the husbands followed behind, sway behind.

I looked around for the diapers and pins and bottles and things, but there were none.

Then when everyone was settled, the nurse welcomed us and said we were going to see a triple feature on the screen.

I asked my wife if they had a cartoon first, but she told me no. She did not actually say "no," but I interpreted the elbow in the ribs as such.

The first movie was entitled "Biography of An Unborn," a very interesting film about the mechanics of birth, ending up with a close-up shot of a withered, screaming baby. The women breathed a loving sigh at the sight. The men wriggled in their seats.

When the lights came on, the nurse addressed the gathering with a very sensible and penetrating discussion on safety in the home.

She advised us to keep medicine cupboards locked, to cover light sockets, to leave plastic bags well out of baby's reach and to put extension cords away.

The warning about extension cords was made especially meaningful, when, the very next day, George Chuvalo's young son put one in his mouth and burned himself severely.

After the safety talk, I went back to the flickers. The second movie, entitled "From Generation to Generation," made its Belleville premiere. It was a beautiful film, with outstanding color photography, paralleling the changing seasons of nature with the birth, life and death of man.

In between the second and third film, juice and cookies were served. In many of the women were refusing a cookie that the nurse was prompted to remark, "It looks like you girls were listening to us when we were talking about diet."

My wife took a cookie. She did not eat it though, she gave it to me. I get a lot of seconds that way.

The third movie, "Your New Baby," was the real topper. It really set us straight on the ups and downs of parenthood.

After seeing that movie, I have gone into training for parenthood. I am trying to keep my weight down, I bought all the latest records on the top 10 charts and play them at the highest volume for two hours — this will enable me to handle the inevitable crying of my baby Hoy. Compared to some of those records, the baby's crying will probably sound like a minuet.

My next training project is to get my alarm to go off three times during the night. I do not hear the alarm ringing, but it wakes my wife up. This is good training for her as it builds up the stamina needed to get up in the middle of the night when baby cries for attention.

I have been trying unsuccessfully for a week now to feed a diaper. My feeding is not too bad, but I always stick the pin in the doll. I can see where this could be a problem.

Everybody tells me that I will be nervous when the time comes, but I do not agree with them at all, I won't be nervous, I'll be hysterical.

My only hope is that it does not happen on a Saturday night when a hockey game is on. It would be rather inconvenient to rent a portable television set to take to the hospital with me.

I have already ordered a set of golf clubs for the baby. I just have to wait and see whether we need men's or ladies' clubs.

Row Housing Application Is Approved

City council yesterday gave approval in principle to the application of Maurice H. Rollins Construction for the re - zoning of four lots on the east end of the city to allow for construction of row housing.

The request was before council two weeks ago but was referred to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board for recommendation. The board recommended that the application be approved.

The proposed residential units are to be some of the low rental housing units to be provided under the auspices of the Ontario Housing Corporation.

The proposed R 4 zoning provisions allow only for the erection of multiple attached housing units. No objection to the zoning change was voiced by area property owners.

Move to Buy Property Strikes Snag in Council

Purchase of 3.71 acres of property in the Coleman Flats area for the construction of a city parks board building, struck a snag in city council yesterday.

Cost of the property on Wallbridge Cres. and adjacent to the new city garage property, was to have been $6,000.

Alderman Bea Corke, finance committee chairman, said the proposal to buy the Coleman Flats property for parks board use was a "final crushing blow."

He said he had understood that the few public works building on Wallbridge Cres. and the new open garage is that area were to have been sufficiently large to also store parks board equipment.

"But here we have still another building planned, I don't know where it will end. It is sad that the taxpayers are driven into the ground."

Alderman Don Williams said the original intention of the parks board was to construct the parks board building on Zwick's Island but tests had shown that the filled area was not suitable for the planned construction.

The alderman felt, however, that the Coleman Flats areas would be a central location for the building and would also be close to the public works building. He said the cost of the land would be the same to the taxpayer as the parks board already had the money from funds reserved for park purposes.

PRICE TOO HIGH

There was also the feeling that the $6,000 price tag for the Flats property was too high, know where it will end. It is and that the Zwick's Island site should be further investigated.

A motion from Mayor Ellis to refer the matter for further consideration was carried.

Temple Visits In Deseronto

DESERONTO — A day spent mainstreeting in this town brought enthusiastic reminders of the current economic boom, when Hastings Lodge candidate Robert Temple said last night. Besides knocking on doors and talking over store counters, Mr. Temple also visited local industries.

Later he told a workers' riding-wide rally that crowded an estimated 600 into Quinte Secondary School, the Deseronto visit had further emphasized the change in economic conditions. "During the 1963 campaign I visited the plant of Ideal Vendors in this town when there was only some 17 people employed," he said. "Today there are 90 people employed there and the plant is working two shifts".

Other plants visited by the incumbent MP bidding for re-election were Metalfe Foods, Canadian Optical and Hawley Brothers.

Mental Health Speaker Attacks Competition

One of Ontario's top educators challenged Belleville parents Monday night to steadfastly refuse to use competition in the rearing of their children.

"You must trust me when I tell you competition will ruin your children and turn them into permanent emotional cripples," said Dorothy Urquhart, a consultant in teaching with the Toronto Board of Education. He spoke on the subject of learning to an audience of about 80 parents and student nurses attending the third lecture in the series "Meet Your School Aged Child," sponsored by the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

"Do you really accept your children as they are?" Mr. Urquhart asked his audience. "If so, they are perfectly fine just as they are. There is no need for them to change."

COMPARISONS ODIOUS

"If you compare your child unfavorably with others, if you urge him to work for higher marks if you expect him to come first in games, you will damage him irreparably. He will develop feelings of inadequacy, feel guilt ridden and eventually will believe he just can't cope."

To critics in the audience who refused to believe a child could be prepared for adult life unless exposed to competition in childhood, the educator had a quick reply. He said believed the world was no longer competitive. He has been told by executives that management is abandoning competition as a goal to better performance. Parents will never prepare a child for competition in adulthood by using it in child rearing.

The goal of learning, Mr. Urquhart said, is to teach the child to know himself. He should learn to recognize his strengths and his weaknesses and to accept them. If pushed to excell in things for which he has no talent or aptitude, he is sure to fail and be convinced he is inadequate.

"Competition can get in the way of learning to accept yourself," the speaker continued. "The successful person is not one who has fought others to survive. He is the person bolstered by the security of self-knowledge, who does not need the pressure of competition to make him perform at peak efficiency. If competition must be used, self-competition is the healthy way to do it."

SUITABLE REACTIONS

In Mr. Urquhart's opinion the second thing a child must be taught is how to grow into a happy, mentally healthy adult. He defined a mentally healthy person as one who reacts appropriately to any given situation. As an example of an unhealthy reaction, he cited society's unrealistic attitude toward funerals—the so-called "American way of death."

"Don't let a child grow to distrust his feelings," said the speaker. "He must be allowed to express his honest reactions. Instead of labeling behavior good or bad, look behind the behavior for the reason."

As a case in point, the speaker discussed the way to handle the youngster who tells lies. Children dislike lying, he claimed, and won't lie unless they think they have to. Instead of condemning the child outright for deceit, the wise parent should respect the child's need to tell a lie and seek the reason for it.

Next lecture in the series will be given at Education Hall on Monday night, when Richard Shooter, psychologist at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto will discuss disciplines.

MENU Magic from the Test Kitchen

For the Main Course

If you haven't tried it yet, dairy sour cream gives cauliflower a nice lift. Break one large head into small flowerets and cook in boiling salted water as usual. Drain and stir in ½ pint dairy sour cream. Season with a teaspoon caraway seeds, salt and pepper. Keep warm over low heat until ready to serve.

Heavenly Ending

After your next big dinner, finish off with this refreshing, light dessert. Grapefruit Cream. Simply melt 25 large marshmallows in the top of a double boiler along with 1 cup of grapefruit juice. Let cool before folding in ½ pint whipped cream. Pour into pretty sherbet dishes, sprinkle with coconut and chill. That's all there is to it.

Pumpkin Scotch Parfaits

Here's another dessert quickie made from a package of butterscotch instant pudding mix. Combine ¾ cup canned pumpkin with 1¼ cups cold milk and add a dash of cinnamon and cloves. Sprinkle with the pudding mix and beat 1 minute with a rotary beater. Pour into parfait glasses and serve topped with whipped cream.

Coffee A-Go-Go . . .

combines instant coffee with hot milk . . . a teaspoon or two per cup. It's marvellous with something sweet like chocolate brownies and provides the young moderns with plenty of pep for the latest dance craze.

Butterscotch Apples

November 's apple month, when warm sweaters like this one go hand in hand with tasty foods. Cream together ¼ cup soft butter and 1 cup brown sugar. Blend in ¼ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and ¼ cup chopped nuts. Sprinkle over top 12 large apple halves in a shallow baking dish. Bake in a 375°F oven, about 30 minutes. Delicious with thick pouring cream, but better still with ice cream.

Budget Saver

When economy is important try this beef pie: lightly brown 1 pound of minced beef, then stir in an envelope dehydrated onion soup mix, ½ cup skim milk, powder and 2 tablespoons flour. Add 2 cups water, and simmer until thickened. Spoon into an unbaked pastry shell, sprinkle with plenty of shredded processed cheese and bake, about 2⅝ minutes in a 400°F oven.

How to Get More Luncheon Money From Wife Problem

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the biggest unsolved problems of the North American husband today is how to get more luncheon money from his wife.

Here and there you still find an old-fashioned male who controls the family finances and hands his wife on a skimpy household allowance, for which she cusses restless in her street accoutring.

But in most homes it operates the other way. The husband meekly brings home his weekly pay check in his wife's purse, after patting him on the head, deposits the cheque to the bank.

Some wives on Monday give their husbands the bucks that are supposed to last them through the week. Other wives dole the allowance out daily in a pinch - penny fashion after breakfast.

But some husbands seem to be in a rebellious mood about their luncheon allowances, judging by a boil session at an office water cooler I overheard recently.

"I've been married 25 years and to that time the boss has given me five merit raises," volunteered a mortal veteran. "But how many merit raises has my wife given me in that time? Not one."

"A quarter of a century she's returned giving me 50 cents a day for lunch, and it was okay then. I could get a three-course dinner for that. Now I can't get me with a nickel to buy a cigar afterward.

"But she still gives me only four bits a day, and nowadays you're lucky to get a peanut butter sandwich for that."

RAIDS PIGGY BANK

"I know what you mean," remarked another husband. "The only way I've been able to pray alive is to shake a couple of quarters out of my kid's piggy bank every night and put in a couple of washers to replace them. But that can't go on much longer. The kid's getting wise."

"My wife thinks I'm keeping another woman on the quiet who gives me for lunch," said a third. "But if I had a woman who ate like a bird, I couldn't afford her—because I haven't enough to supply her with bird seed."

Wives don't seem to realize that a 1940 luncheon allowance won't fill a man's stomach in 1965. It won't even take out the wrinkles in it.

The so-called three-martini, five-course, two-hour businessman's lunch is a myth. The luncheon allowance many wives give their husbands wouldn't keep them welcome for more than 15 minutes on a Bowery bouncer's stool.

In the long run, however, the wives are really hurting themselves. If the average husband isn't passed out a little more generously to buy himself a decent mid-day meal, he soon won't be able to bring home the bacon—because he won't have the strength to take it.

Church Groups

ST. MARK'S W.A.

BONARLAW — The October meeting of St. Mark's W.A. opened with a potluck dinner, served cafeteria style, at the cottage of Mrs. B. Woodbeck at Oak Lake.

Following the dinner, the president, Mrs. Bigelow opened a meeting with a hymn. Mrs. J. Frost read the Scripture lesson. Mr. Stewart conducted the devotional exercises as outlined in the "Living Message."

The treasurer, Mrs. Neal, reported a good balance in the bank and also a donation from a long and faithful member, now a shut-in.

A short program, conducted by Mrs. Woodbeck, consisted of a reading and a contest. Mr. Stewart showed pictures of his trip to Denmark.

Century-old Material Found In Walls of Foxboro Home

"I had just left the air force," he said, "and friends asked us to help setting up our own business out here. This house had been vacant for 10 months, but it was in good condition.

The oldest thing from the wall is a book entitled, "The Constitution, By - laws and Rules of Order of Smithville Section of the Cadets of Temperance, No., 149, Instituted June 6th, 1852." The book was printed at "The Intelligencer" office in 1853.

The two - storey brick house in which Mr. and Mrs. Saunders now live and operate their fabric shop is believed to be in the neighborhood of 110 to 130 years old. It was built by one of the original settlers of Foxboro, often referred to as its founder, William Ashley.

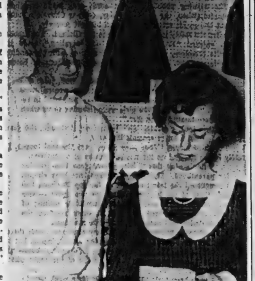
BUILT CARRIAGE FACTORY

William Ashley was born in Fredericksburgh in 1808. His parents came to Canada in 1830, preferring the inhospitable wilds of Canada over English rule to Massachusetts, where they had emigrated from England a few years before.

In 1826 William Ashley moved to Smithville and built a wagon and carriage factory there in 1835 beside Palliser's Mill. For a few years his business was thriving, and Mr. Ashley, who was also the first postmaster of Smithville, built the house the Saunders now live in.

"We are not sure of the exact date the house was built," Mr. Saunders said. "We believe it was around 1835 or 1840.

"An Atlas dated 1878 in the Belleville Library has a picture of the house. In the picture, a horse and carriage in Mr. Ashley's porch. The same lawn in front and more trees. The house itself is exactly the same as it is now, except for an old front porch and driving shed, which have been torn down. The front porch was replaced with a new one.



"Apparently when Mr. Ashley died he left the property to his son Charles."

The main walls of the two-storey, 11-room house are triple brick. There is a total of three acres of property along with the house.

Now William Ashley is dead and gone. He died October 10, 1895, at the age of 87.

But his house lives on, just as the village of Foxboro, in which he played such an important role, lives on.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders have been in business exactly one year. They have redecorated the interior of the house and now carry one of the most complete lines of material in the area. The public is cordially invited to come - out and share Foxboro Fabric's first anniversary with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Saunders of Foxboro Fabrics examine some century-old material they found in the wall of their house recently. One of the items was the constitution of the Cadets of Temperance, published by The Intelligencer in 1853.

The Belleville Lodge 123 Presents Ladies' Night

Last Thursday evening The Belleville Lodge, No. 123, A.F. & A.M., members were hosts to the ladies at the annual Ladies' Night. The event was under the direction of Wor. Bro. Harold J. McNish, the Worshipful Master of the Lodge.

Upwards of two hundred and fifty were in attendance and were entertained with a travelogue, "Inside Russia," presented by V. Wor. Bro. A. C. Ashforth, a past grand officer of the Grand Lodge, and an ex-president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank. The comments of the speaker and the picture shown by him of two visits to Russia and the privilege of living in the "free" Western world - Mr. Ashforth said that he in company with other Canadian representatives were interviewed in 1957 by Mr. Khrushchev. The speaker made several interesting comparisons of changes that occurred in the interval between both his visits.

The guest speaker was introduced by Rt. W. Bro. Raymond Gunsolus and the appreciation of those present was expressed by Rt. W. Bro. Russell Woodley.

Introducing the head table guests was Rt. W. Bro. Harry G. Bates. Bro. Ronald Poste of The Belleville Lodge, proposed the toast to Grand Lodge and Rt. Wor. Bro. Arthur M. Hewitt, District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District, responded. The toast to the honored guests—the ladies —was proposed by Bro. Wilbur Purcell, to which Mrs. Harold McNish suitably responded.

During the evening a humorous skit was given by Bro. William Campbell and Mr. Russell Jones and Lyle Bowen. The group participated in a demonstration and instructive session in the art of modern square dancing under the direction of J. W. Ketcheson.

During the banquet hour, dinner music was provided by Mr. Ronald Robertson, a teacher at the RCIVS on the Electrohorn organ, supplied through the courtesy of Hitchon Racio.

Caterers to the banquet were the Melrose United Church U.C.W.

Teach Love To Children Says Expert

MONTREAL (CP) — Today's parents should be more concerned about how much they are doing to teach their children to love than about sex education, Dr. Ilsea Gerstein, president of the second Canadian conference on children, said Monday.

"Parents should be concerned with the teaching of love and the expression of it than with teaching their children about sexual relationship," Dr. Gerstein, a psychologist by profession and vice-president of the Toronto Mental Health Clinic, said in an interview.

Dr. Gerstein was instrumental in organizing the first conference on children in 1959 and has continued to take an active part in the organization which seeks to promote closer communications between various groups and professions working with children.

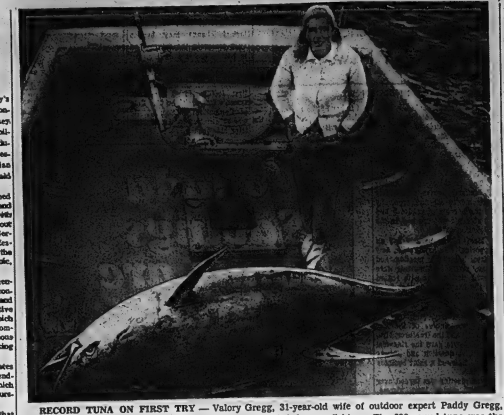
Dr. Gerstein suggested that today's young people are not receiving the kind of "moral" education that would teach them "the pitfalls of learning to love and live with someone for life."

"There is enormous pressure put on youngsters at school to get through to go to university to be successful. I think it's a pity if we're developing this type of society where the only basis of evaluation is the dollar sign."

Woman Stops Road Work At Sudbury



SUDBURY (CP)—Vowing she would "sooner die than allow construction to go ahead," Mrs. Jean Dixon faced a giant crane and ordered its operator to turn around. He did.

Improvement work was to start Monday on the road on which she lives. City council passed a bylaw in 1963 for the work despite objections from Mrs. Dixon and others.

"I'm not only fighting for my land," she said. "I'm fighting the injustice of this whole deal."

The road is the first of about 20 miles of "private roads" taken over by the city to be brought to standard as ordered by the Ontario Municipal Board in 1963.

Mrs. Dixon says there are discrepancies in several surveys done on the road. The homeowners say the reconstructed road will cut across their property.

RECORD TUNA ON FIRST TRY — Valory Gregg, 31-year-old wife of outdoor expert Paddy Gregg, caught this world-record tuna the first time she ever tried deepsea fishing. The 830-pound tuna was the largest bluefin caught anywhere in the world in 1964. Mrs. Gregg was helping her husband make a film on tuna fishing last September when she hooked into the giant bluefin in the Atlantic, just off Halifax. (CP Photo)

Tuna Better Take Another Tack Little Woman Might Be Back

By DAVE NICHOLSON

HALIFAX (CP)—The subject of angling can produce a strained silence in the Gregg household.

It isn't that Paddy Gregg, an outdoors specialist, wants to go fishing too often. It's just that his wife Valory, a rank amateur, seems to be better at it than he is.

Mrs. Gregg, a 31-year-old native of Fredericton, went deep sea fishing for the first time on Sept. 18, 1964. The result was an 830-pound tuna, the largest bluefin caught anywhere in the world during 1964.

It wasn't the first time this sort of thing had happened. Her husband produces an outdoors show for CBC television Here, and decided to film a feature on salmon fishing in the salmon Miramichi river of New Brunswick.

In the spring of 1964, Mr. Gregg and a film crew made the trip and Mrs. Gregg went along "for the ride. I didn't expect to catch anything because, after all, I had never gone salmon fishing before."

Mrs. Gregg's startling success convinced her husband he had better plan to include her in a show on tuna fishing the following September. They hired a charter vessel and began fishing in the Atlantic just off Halifax.

"I had no idea what I was supposed to do," says Mrs. Gregg. "My husband had caught a 200-pounder before, but I was sure I wouldn't be able to do anything."

Then the bluefin struck, and the battle lasted three hours and 20 minutes.

"I didn't know what to do after I hooked him, but the men on the boat gave me instructions. The first hour was wonderful but at the last I was almost out. The last half-hour was the hardest work I've ever done in my life."

When the giant bluefin was brought aboard, Mrs. Gregg's reaction was anything but outdoorsy.

"The thing scared me half to death. My only feeling was 'You mean to say I caught that?'"

LOVES OUTDOORS

Although she hasn't always been an expert fisherman, Mrs. Gregg has always been a lover of the outdoors. Her husband worked five years in Toronto and "they were hard years. I resented the lack of outdoor activity."

The Greggs now have moved to a new home surrounded by woods and the craggy coastline at Shad Bay, about 30 miles southwest of Halifax.

Being a housewife by the sea "isn't bad on rainy days," she says, "but it has to be something really drastic to keep me inside on a sunny day."

Three young children — two boys and a girl—haven't kept the Greggs indoors. The children already show signs of developing into keen outdoorsmen.

Mrs. Gregg fears her husband will be touchy about taking her fishing again, but he professes to be philosophic.

"Salmon fishing is a real bug," she says. "Once you've gone, you always want to go again. I want to go out for tuna again too—but I don't know if I'll catch another one."

Hat Fashion Show Features Women's Guild Coffee Party

The Sunshine Group of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church presented their second "Hat Fashion Show" and coffee party last Thursday evening.

A large selection of fall hats from Minico Millinery was superbly modelled by Mesdames W. Knox, M. Ing, J. Globe, M. Davidson, R. McLean and Miss Vickie Bridge. Commentary was by Mrs. Minico.

Mrs. F. Hossack was the lucky recipient of the door prize, an original creation from Minico Millinery.

Following the show refreshments were served buffet style.

U.C.W. Meetings

HILLIER U.C.W.

HILLIER — The U.C.W. of Hillier, as usual, held no meetings during the months of August and September. The first regular meeting of the fall season was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Goodmurphy with Mrs. Channell in the chair. She welcomed 15 members and one visitor.

Mrs. Phyllis Hamilton and Mrs. Priscilla MacGregor led the devotional period, including a chapter of the study book, "God and His Purpose." Mrs. Hamilton also read a thoughtful poem which, by witty comparing a man with his shoes, emphasized the value of the human condition. Mrs. MacGregor offered prayer.

Mrs. Channell introduced discussion on the change of time of the monthly meeting from the second Thursday to the second Wednesday of each month. The change met with unanimous approval. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Russell Forsythe on Nov. 10th.

The president reminded the members of the regional rally being held at Redeersville on November 3rd. She then thanked Mrs. Newcombe for taking over responsibility for the Sunday school. Mrs. Dafoe made a donation of $10 to provide papers for the Sunday school.

Plans were made for the annual potluck supper to be held on November 20th in the township hall.

A half hour was spent in the enjoyment of a lunch served by Mrs. Ross Goodmurphy and her helpers.

Ann Landers Girl's Parents Say Hearse Not So Bad

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I didn't think much of your answer to the parents who complained about their daughter's boy friend. The young man worked for his uncle who is a mortician. When he went calling on his girl, he often rode over in a hearse and then parked in front of the girl's house. Our daughter should be so lucky. She is dating a shady character who appeared out of nowhere. He has plenty of money to spend but no one seems to know for sure if he works or where. My husband thinks he is a bookie.

This character drives over here every evening in a lavender Cadillac with white sidewall tires and a bullet TV. If you think the hearse is a conversation piece, you should see the way our neighbors stand around and gawk.

ANN LANDERS

Some parents don't know when they are well off. I would like you to print this letter. It may cheer those folks up. — NOT HAPPY.

* * *

DEAR NOT: Here's the letter and I hope it makes everybody feel better. I've heard from several funeral directors, however, and they don't feel so good. Please read on.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You frequently state in your column that you welcome professional advice. As a funeral director I'd like to say that the young man who used the funeral coach for social calls was guilty of a breach of business ethics.

A family who has suffered a recent bereavement does not appreciate seeing a hearse employed as a vehicle of conveyance or pleasure.

Every profession and trade has a code to guide the conduct of its members. If that young man does not know better than to go visiting his girl in a hearse, someone did an excellently poor job of training him. — V.H.W.

* * *

DEAR V.H.W.: Thanks for your letter. I agree — a hearse should not be used as a joy wagon and I'm happy you set the young man straight.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think of a woman who insists that her husband take his annual vacation when she goes to the hospital for a check-up so he can come and visit her every day?

The doctors put her through every test under the sun but they couldn't find anything wrong with her. Nobody was surprised. The woman is a constant complainer. The couple could have gone to Europe five times on the money he has spent on doctors and hospital bills in the last twenty years.

The husband who got gypped out of his vacation is a very good guy. His wife is a sour puss. This stunt is typical of her. I am in a position to give you facts, not gossip, because I'm a relative, but I'm not saying who. Please print your answer. Thank you. — MAD.

* * *

DEAR MAD: You don't need to say who. I can guess. So why did you let your wife talk you into it?

A person who is in the hospital for a check-up is unusually occupied and/or exhausted. One hour's visit after work would have been plenty for both of you. Too bad, Dad.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them in her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lawson Quints, Ten Weeks Old, Taken to New Home

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP)—New Zealand's most famous babies—the Lawson quintuplets — now are well established in a home specially provided for them. The babies, tended by their parents and devoted staff, are coming along fine.

The big transfer from the National Women's Hospital, Auckland, where the babies were born, came when the quintuplets were 10 weeks old.

Until then they had been cared for in the premature ward by a team of doctors and nurses. A continuous film record had been kept of their progress, endless still photographs taken for medical records and a vast array of statistics recorded for learned papers in medical publications. The quintuplets must be among the most comprehensively documented babies in history.

Now the babies live in a big two-storey house set in its own spacious grounds in the outer Auckland suburb of Henderson.

The house was previously an obstetric hospital. By chance, the only other child of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Lawson, six-year-old daughter Leeann, was born in the house when it was used as a hospital.

The home has been provided by the Auckland Hospital Board under arrangements made with the New Zealand government and with the parents. The quintuplets will live there for a year or two until the permanent housing needs of the family become clearer.

CONTAINS NURSERY

The house has a self - contained flat for the normal private living needs of the Lawsons and a spacious nursery and quarters for staff tending the babies, in addition to a lounge for medical visitors and VIPs.

For the time being the parents are assisted by a staff of three nurses and a domestic helper.

They are gaining weight at markedly different rates, but all five have continued to make satisfactory progress. At 10 weeks old the weights were: Samuel, seven pounds, 13 ounces; Lisa, six pounds, eight ounces; Deborah, seven pounds, 15 ounces; Shirlene, eight pounds; Selina, six pounds.

The home now runs on a smooth routine. Mrs. Lawson helps with the feeding, bathing of the babies and the washing. "I am doing all I can for them and I shall be able to do more and more as time goes on," she says. "I want to have a hand in everything."

Waitresses Young, Pretty At Chateau

OTTAWA (CP)—Twelve attractive young waitresses dressed in period costumes started work Monday in the Chateau Laurier Hotel's cocktail lounge, replacing veteran waiters.

Lawyers for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), which represents 550 hotel employees, will seek an injunction in Toronto Wednesday to prevent the change.

The waiters are being relocated in other areas of the hotel, but fear a decrease in gratuities with the change.

Home and School Association News

NICHOLSON P.T.A.

On Tuesday evening, a large number of parents and members of the staff of Nicholson Catholic College, gathered in the new auditorium of the school for the first Parent-Teacher Association meeting of the current year.

The president, Mr. Arthur F. McCarthy, extended a hearty welcome to all and especially to the parents of grades 9 and 10 students who are now in the Nicholson extension.

Many of the parents had an opportunity to explore the new school before the meeting, and many favorable comments were heard, particularly with regard to the beautiful paintings hung in the halls donated by the Catholic Lending Library.

The secretary, Mrs. G. Gist, read the minutes of the last meeting; and the treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Doyle gave the financial report. A question and answer period followed a short business meeting.

The meeting was turned over to Rev. Sister Mary Teresa, principal of Nicholson Catholic College, who introduced the teaching staff. Sister Teresa explained the policy of the school and answered several questions put to her by the parents.

Father Gazely closed the meeting with prayer.

SEES MORE CHANGE

KINGSTON (CP) — Technological change may happen even faster in the future than is has in the last decade, Dr. George V. Haythorne, federal deputy labor minister, said Monday night. He delivered the first lecture in a series at Queen's University on The Role of Computers in Society. He was substituting for Labor Minister MacEachen.

That means rot-proof, warp-proof, dent-proof, blister-proof, peel-proof.
It's rodent-proof and fire-proof, too!

What more proof do you need?

"Well, for one thing," you ask, "will I have to keep repainting it every year or so? That's a nuisance. And expensive."

Answer: Johns-Manville Asbestos Siding will never need paint to preserve it. The colors are as beautifully permanent as the science of acrylics has been able to make them. Yet, if you should wish to change the color some day (you know what wives are like), this asbestos siding makes a perfect, fast-bonding surface for paint.

"Great," you say, "but what's so special about asbestos siding?"

Answer: You tell me. What other siding can offer you all of the above features? What's more, unlike metal siding it won't conduct electricity.

"OK," you admit grudgingly, "but is Johns-Manville asbestos siding easy to install?"

Answer: J-M siding is very adaptable. Comes in three different styles to suit your needs: Colorbestos, Rock-Shakes and Rockspan Clapboard!

To find out which style you need, see your nearest Johns-Manville dealer or home improvement contractor.

"How about colors?"
Answer: There's a whole rainbow-full.

"How economical is Johns-Manville Asbestos siding?"
Answer: Very.

"Is it really weatherproof?"
Answer: No fooling, it stands up better to everything.

"But I live in a lighthouse."
Answer: No problem.

WHOLE WHEAT

Today's lesson is easy and will give amateur yeast bakers a new confidence in their prowess.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

WHOLE WHEAT ROLLS (or rolls and 2 loaf bread):

1 package granular yeast, ½ cup lukewarm water, 3 tablespoons light brown sugar — divided, 2 cups milk, scalded (or 1 cup evaporated milk and 1 cup boiling water), 1 tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons margarine or shortening, 1½ tablespoons molasses (optional), 2 cups sifted but unsifted all-purpose flour, and sifted but unsifted whole wheat flour.

Sprinkle the yeast over the ½ cup lukewarm water, add 1 tablespoon of the brown sugar and let it soak 10 minutes, then give it a stir. Pour the scalded milk (or evaporated milk mixed with boiling water) into a large mixing bowl and add the remaining 2 tablespoons brown sugar, salt, margarine and molasses, if used, and let stand until cooled to lukewarm. Stir then beat in the 2 cups of flour and when smooth beat in the whole wheat flour as well as you can. Turn out on kneading board liberally sprinkled with white flour and knead. The success of whole wheat dough mixtures depends on the kneading. This should be kneaded 200 times. Ask your little helper to give you a hand with this kneading. It does not have to be expert help — any kind of pummelling and pounding will do. Return to bowl and let rise covered until more than doubled — about 2 or 3 hours. Punch down dough and divide in half. If you are going to make half into rolls and half into bread, shape half into a loaf and pat into a small greased loaf pan or small round pan to rise.

Shape remaining dough into a large roll under your palms — about 2 feet long. Cut into 12 or 18 pieces. I made 18 little rolls: 6 cloverleaf rolls and 6 sesame seed-topped round buns in the buttered muffin pan. I also made 6 "knots" in an 8 x 8" buttered pan. To make the cloverleaf rolls, shape little ¾" balls of dough between your palms and put 3 in each buttered muffin cup. To make sesame seed buns, shape a piece of dough into a 1½" ball, dip into milk, then into sesame seeds (on a saucer). To make the six knots, roll a piece of dough into a long pencil-shaped roll under your palms and tie in a single knot.

Let rise about 1½ hours. Bake rolls and bread at 375 deg. Fahr. Rolls take about 20 to 25 minutes. Bread requires nearly 40 minutes.

NOTE:

To my bread dough, I added ½ teaspoon garlic salt and 1 teaspoon onion flakes, just for fun, and it was good and different.

"Delayed Marriage" May Be Means of Birth Control

NEW YORK (CP)—A Roman Catholic scholar suggested Monday that "delayed marriage" may be an effective means of cutting down the world's birth rate and easing problems of over-population.

Rev. Francis C. Madigan, a Jesuit priest who direct, the research institute for Mindanao culture at Xavier University in the Philippines, writes in the current issue of The Catholic Weekly, America:

"A prominent Indian statistician has estimated that delaying marriage to India's age as average age of 25 for brides would reduce the birth rate by 30 per cent.

"I have also found, in a study of 1,074 households in Cagayan Oro City, where I teach, that delaying marriage to the age of 20 for brides makes a big difference. In general, there is a definite reduction in family size with every year of delay. A marriage after the age of 17."

He said the church may consider increasing the canonical age of marriage, the earliest age at which a Catholic may get married. He also suggested "government development corps" for men and women to enlist them in useful projects, with an incidental effect being to "delay marriage at least a few years."

Girls Getting Better Sex Education

MONTREA L(CP)—Girls receive a much better sex education than boys, says Dr. Douglas Cram, director of medical services for the board of education in London, Ont.

Dr. Cram, interviewed Monday during the second Canadian conference on children, said the reason is that "mothers are much more communicative in this field than fathers."

The pediatrician, discussing the sex education course given to all Grade 9 and 10 students in London schools, said teachers, however, have discovered a general lack of knowledge about sex among their students.

He said the sex education course, begun in 1942, now is taught mainly by physical education teachers as part of a health program, with gynecologists and obstetricians as special lecturers on a rotation basis.

"Obstetricians became concerned enough to take time to talk to the students because they found a tremendous lack of knowledge about sex," he said. "Pregnant girls who come to them did not seem to realize why they were in that position."

Dr. Cram said the students' attitude toward sex often depends whether the student has any respect for himself or herself as a person, or for the opposite sex.

"This is something we can't teach in school. It depends on the family, the church and other organizations."

TUG REACHES SAFETY

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A five-man crew, using an emergency tiller, brought the Canadian tugboat Soulanges into port Monday after it was adrift 20 hours in gale-force winds on Lake Ontario. The 72-foot tug from Toronto, ran into trouble when it met 35 to 50-foot waves whipped up Sunday afternoon by gale-force winds.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

PLAINFIELD PINWHEELS

PLAINFIELD — The fifth meeting of the Plainfield 4-H Club was held at the home of Mrs. Huffman, with nine members present.

Discussion centred around "Let's have a party". The topics of formal and informal invitations, thereof, accepting/declining, and entertainment was covered. Mrs. Huffman demonstrated the making of place cards.

At the sixth meeting party refreshments, party service, buffet service and food preparations were discussed. Mrs. Sullivan outlined how to be a good hostess, how to rate in public and how to behave at table. Mrs. Huffman gave a demonstration on making and decorating fancy cookies.

U.C.W. Meetings

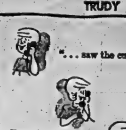
COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

The general meeting of College Hill U.C.W. was held in the Social Hall, Wednesday evening with Mrs. A. Dickens presiding.

Business consisted of completing plans for Presbytery dinner November 29; entertaining Holy Rosary C.W.L. at the December meeting and appointing conveners for the various booths for the fall bazaar November 10th.

After devotions, Mrs. R. Veasey introduced Dr. Swan and Mrs. Swan. Via stories and film a trip was enjoyed to the sunny island of Trinidad.

They told of conditions in the schools, the shortage of teachers, and the homes and ways of living at the time of their arrival.



They viewed the new modern schools, met the teachers of today who were the students in training a few years ago. In a country of its own independence Trinidad now is a modern country to compete with countries such as Canada. Dr. and Mrs. Swan have many friends in Trinidad and last spring they spent a few weeks among their friends, visiting again the Teachers' College in which they had taught, such an important part for many years, the elementary school and Theological College and the children they once taught are now teachers and executive leaders.

Handicrafts from Trinidad were on display.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and lunch served by the U.C.W. executive.

Bikini Big Eye-catcher At Preview of Swimwear

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — The bikini, skimpy in everything but personal popularity, was the big eye-catcher at a press preview Monday of swimwear for the 1966 season.

Although the bikini itself—usually with thigh cutouts—became even briefer, it appeared with coverups that ranged from jersey blouses and demure skimpy jackets to ruffled bell-bottom trousers.

Most of the suits by Montreal designer Beatrice Pham were ensembles, evidence of her opinion that fashion's current "total look" should be extended to beach garb.

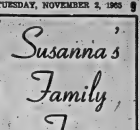
One coverup, shown in both pink and yellow terrycloth, provided a striped top and an A-line boundstooth skirt with an elastic leg, and was ideal for travelling back and forth to the pool or seaside.

New and attractive were bikinis of shiny vinyl that looked as if they had been cut from a slicker, but felt almost as soft as kid. One of these crease-proof suits came in pink and white polka dots, and was covered by a hooded bunny romper of pink terrycloth.

The brief trunk-like pants had a wide white hipster belt.

CARRY OVER FANS

Two additional carry - overs from the clothing industry fads were the granny look—interpreted in various styles in small flower prints — and the one-shoulder look.



The traditional sheath suit made an appearance, but usually with a side cutout or transparent gridwork that joined top and bottom and reclaimed it from conservatism.

The one-piece suits had low backs and sometimes "cowgirl yoke" cutouts, planned to fall along the part of the body where they are most effective.

Most of the suits came in various stretch fabrics, including lace and a plush paisley. Next in popularity were checkered and gingham. Colors were mostly soft pastels and black-and-white combinations to wild op-art designs in bright shades.

Those who want to cover up during what Miss Pierce has labelled "the year of the body" were offered bus two pieces.

One was a tunic-style suit with a flare, the other a belted dressmaker suit with a pleated skirt.

SHHHHH!!

Dear Susanna: You have helped me solve many problems from time to time, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank you. Now for one of my own solutions!

We like the look of a lace cloth on our dining table and the atmosphere it gives, but even with using pads, coasters and other aids, our lovely top was being heat-marked.

I found the answer by beginning an end of dark brown cloth the proper size to fit our table. Underneath I placed my silence cloth (plastic side up).

With this protection under the lace cloth, the appearance and effect are the same but the hot dishes and spills are harmless. These protectors are also easily laundered and kept fresh.—Mrs.

It would appear that even the younger ladies have troubles with decisions on what they'll wear this season. Certainly it's a trying situation for 3-year-old Linda Hagerman who sits amidst a pile of oversize skates. Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Hagerman of 60 Queen Street, Picton, is attempting to find something to fit at the annual skate exchange sponsored by the Picton Home and School Association and held in Queen Elizabeth School on Saturday.

Graduation Exercises Well Attended

PICTON (Staff) — A large crowd of proud parents and students crowded the auditorium of Prince Edward Collegiate on Saturday night to witness the graduation exercises for 1964-65.

The graduates attended a banquet given in their honor preceding the graduation, which was presided over by Principal John H. Syrett.

Bill received several top awards, scholarships and bursaries. These included three grade 13 awards for English, Mathematics and Chemistry; an Ontario Scholarship, University of Waterloo tuition scholarship, University Women's Club of Picton scholarship, Ontario Secondary School Teacher's Federation District Scholarship and Mathematical Association pin.

14 students received 70 per cent pins and diplomas were awarded for commercial standings and general technical proficiency. Six students received Ontario scholarships, they were: Bill Cunningham, Lillie Gibb, Linda Mayhew, Linda Pierce, Laurene Roblin and Diane VanDusen.

Saskatchewan — More than twice the 1963 turnout in Regina's six polls; 962 in Saskatoon, down from 1,079 in 1964 byelection; 240 voted in Swift Current; Moose Jaw-Lake Centre: Lighter than 1963.

Alberta — "Fairly light" in Lethbridge: "quite light" in Medicine Hat; Calgary North: 657 in 10 polls compared with 474 in 1963; Calgary South: 664 in nine polls, up from 561 in seven polls in 1963; Bow River: 68 voted.

Returning Officer Laura Greer of Burnaby - Coquitlam, home riding of New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas, said the poll was down 40 per cent from 1963.

Hotel Night Clerk Robbed Of $4,000

TORONTO (CP)—Two men held up a 25-year-old hotel night clerk early Monday and fled with more than $4,000, police said.

Gordon McPhail, clerk at the downtown Prince George Hotel, said the men wrestled him to the floor behind a counter before taking the money, which included $1,000 belonging to boxing promoter James (Diamond Jim) Riley of Detroit, here for Monday night's heavyweight fight between Georgia Chuvalo and Ernie Terrell.

Hallowe'en Damage May Bring Charges

PICTON (Staff) — Although Picton Police report less damage to stop signs and intersection markers than last year they do report more malicious damage to property and vehicles. In the Gladstone Ave. area residents have reported trees on their private lawns being severely damaged. Raymond McNally of Gladstone Ave. reported two blue spruce trees on his front lawn had the tops severed and Mrs. Mobray of the same street also had a locust tree nearly cut off. Damage to automobile aerials was another complaint received by police. Cars parked in the vicinity of the Prince Edward Collegiate were damaged by vandals and although some aerials were broken right off most were bent badly. Police claim they know the names of the culprits and charges may be pending. Some minor damage was also reported by Queen Elizabeth School where pranksters had thrown green paint and grease on the rear of the school building. Authorities say window sills and frames will have to be scraped and re - painted.

Ray Lennox New President Kiwanis Club

PICTON (Staff) — The annual election of officers for the Picton Kiwanis club was held Monday night at the regular dinner meeting in the Royal Hotel. President for the coming year will be Ray Lennox; 1st vice pres. Bill Strachan; 2nd vice pres. Garry Harris; treasurer, Evans Estabrook. The new slate of directors will be Arnold Besteman, Dr. Gerald Bradley, Gordon Giroux, Gary Harris, Edward Johns, Bill Lane, Jack LeHeup, Dr. Earle Taylor and Scotty McGinnis.

Also discussed at the meeting were plans for a forthcoming "theatre night."

FEWER MARRIAGES

In the first half of 1965, 60,471 East German marriages were recorded, 2,338 fewer than in the same period one year earlier.

Problems and Future Potential - - Brazil Has Both on Grand Scale

Brazil's president, Humberto Castello Branco, has abolished all political parties and given military courts sweeping powers explaining that "we need tranquillity for the nation's economic development." The problems faced by Castello Branco's revolutionary regime are discussed in this report by a Canadian Press reporter who visited the South American republic.

By BRENDA LARGE

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP)—Current problems and future potential—Brazil has both on a grand scale.

The world's fourth - largest country (3,287,000 square miles), it is rich in natural resources, has a fast-growing population of 80,000,000 and plenty of new industries.

It also has widespread poverty, an illiteracy rate estimated at about 50 per cent of the over-15 population, an unsettled economic situation plagued by runaway inflation, and one of the most unpredictable political climates in Latin America.

The political situation now is firmly controlled by a rightist military group for which the president of Brazil, 63-year-old Humberto Castello Branco, is the spokesman.

Branco, a former general, was chose as president in April, 1964, after a revolution tossed out the leftist government of wealthy landowner Joao Goulart.

But he lacks a majority in congress, where many supporters of Goulart still sit. And when he was unable to gain backing for constitutional changes, he simply put them into effect as a presidential decree.

Declaring "we need tranquillity for the nation's economic development," he abolished political parties, gave himself the power to declare a state of siege and rule by decree for up to 180 days, enlarged the supreme court, gave military courts broad powers and provided for indirect election of the president by Congress instead of by the people.

CURES SPENDING

The decree also limits debate on legislation originated by the president and forbids congress to amend presidential proposals when the amendment would mean increased public spending.

In his first year the government passed 200 new laws and constitutional amendments tidying up the banking and insurance tax laws and instituting agrarian reforms. He cut the national budget by 2 per cent and took stringent measures to halt inflation.

Under the Institutional Act of 1964 he gave the commanders of the three armed forces the right to depose any elected official in the country, including legislators.

The officials may have their political rights suspended for 10 years. Many suspected of being Communists, leftists or reformists had this penalty imposed on them after the revolution when the government purged all civic and state governments.

The Castello Branco government is heavily backed by the United States which has poured millions into the country in the last four years under the Alliance for Progress Latin aid program.

Washington is "motivated by the fear that unless inflation can be licked and economic and social conditions improved quickly, Brazil might be ripe for a Cuban-type Communist takeover.

MANY OPPOSE

But many of Brazil's intellectuals oppose the government because of measures that restrict political freedom.

It is said some of these intellectuals are "armchair Communists" who like to make a loud noise but who wouldn't want to risk landing in jail for their opinions. Others, however, are serious liberals who believe social, political and artistic freedom is being throttled.

They say Castello Branco is merely a puppet controlled by Brazil's strongest power group of the moment—a clique of top brass in the services who use anti-communism as their excuse to run the country as they please.

A presidential election is scheduled for the fall of 1966. The president has said it will be a free and democratic vote and that he intends to retire from the presidency as the constitution requires.

He has also insisted the vote would be by direct ballot but persistent rumors that he would move to make it an indirect vote now have been confirmed. Some observers also feel the government will simply postpone the election for another year or so.

Several opposition candidates have already signified their intention to run for the presidency in 1966. Violent reaction could result if the election is postponed. This could hole ill for stability of the country.

And, political observers say, stability is what Brazil needs more than anything else at this time if it hopes to realize its great future as an industrial nation.

My appeal is to the conscience of the nation...to all Canadians. Let us join together so that we may be worthy of this land and fulfill the dream of our founding fathers.
RT. HON. JOHN G. DIEFENBAKER

BUILD FOR THE FUTURE OF CANADA

Ours is a policy of incentive not restriction . . . of faith not fear

VOTE FOR RESPONSIBLE DECISIVE ACTION AT OTTAWA

1. CONFEDERATION CONFERENCE
Canada's unique union of provinces and cultures will be strengthened by an "open" Confederation Conference, to be called to draw up a blueprint of our national destiny. Closed conferences and secret deals have exaggerated differences and increased tensions. We will build Canada for the future.

2. NATIONAL PLAN FOR EDUCATION
Canada's first "National Plan for Education" means doubling of federal grants to universities and lower tuition fees. It will assist new building and provide more money for research in medicine, science and the humanities. It will step up the vocational school construction to give skills to young Canadians. It will provide agricultural school facilities.

3. 11% SALES TAX ON BUILDING MATERIALS, MACHINERY ELIMINATED
The sales tax on building materials and production machinery adds to the cost of homes and goods, raises prices in domestic and export markets, and jeopardizes important job-producing sectors of the economy. The elimination of this tax will be a first objective of a PC government.

4. HOMEOWNERS TAX DEDUCTION
As part of a national plan for education and to encourage home ownership, a Progressive Conservative government will immediately allow a deduction of municipal taxes up to $500 from taxable income for federal tax purposes. Rising school costs have put an unfair share of tax burden on the homeowners—almost to the breaking point.

5. URBAN POLICY
Progressive Conservative urban policy will bring stepped up urban renewal programs, a national-in-scope research program in municipal planning to help provinces and municipalities. It means recreational parks development around cities and towns. It means tax relief for the homeowner, NHA mortgages on older homes, and lower interest rates on instalment buying.

6. OLD AGE PENSIONS $100
Our senior citizens will not be left to suffer under the spiralling cost of living. The Canada Pension Plan forgets them. A Progressive Conservative government will provide $100 per month old age pension—WITHOUT A MEANS TEST. We owe this to those who have built our country.

7. NATIONAL PLAN FOR HEALTH
The Progressive Conservative party is committed to Medicare. It was a PC government that brought hospital insurance to Canadians. We will enlarge the same plan to cover all illnesses, including mental illness. It was a PC government that took the first steps to a nation-wide Medicare program in 1961 when it set up the Hall Commission to study health services. If you want a national health plan, including universal Medicare, vote Progressive Conservative on November 8.

8. NHA MORTGAGES FOR OLDER HOMES
NHA mortgages have been limited to new home construction. NHA mortgages on older homes will assist the mobility of people that is essential if wage-earners are to take full advantage of Canada's growth.

9. LOWER COST INSTALMENT BUYING
Present interest rates add 20% and more to the cost of necessary and basic consumer purchases bought on the instalment plan. We will provide urban dwellers with the same type of credit advantages now available to farmers. This will be done through a special Consumers Loans Act.

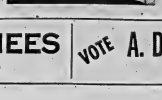
10. DEPARTMENT OF YOUTH AFFAIRS
A new federal department will be formed to coordinate the many federal activities in youth affairs.

11. FARM POLICY
The Progressive Conservative government was the first to open up wheat markets in Russia and China. A new PC government will begin an aggressive sales program for farm products, and give credit for export sales. A PC government will encourage a larger livestock population, with a new drive in the West for community pastures, forage banks, feed grain banks and water conservation programs and northern river diversion to provide water in the south. A PC government will establish an eastern feed grain agency, and a national dairy board with $4 per hundredweight for industrial milk, and extend crop insurance to cover livestock.

12. FOREIGN TRADE EXPANSION
The Progressive Conservative government opened new markets for Canadian goods throughout the world, creating the first commodity export trade surplus in years. Our new program will expand major port facilities in Canada, establish aggressive sales programs abroad, and welcome foreign investment in Canada without fear of discrimination by retroactive legislation.

13. NATIONAL POWER GRID
A Progressive Conservative government will establish a National Power Grid to carry electric power across Canada, east-to-west, north-to-south, making the best use of the supply available, and providing a national market for this energy.

14. WATER RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT
Water is one of Canada's priceless resources. A Progressive Conservative water resources policy will protect this supply for Canadians, develop an anti-pollution program, and build for future generations.



15. MAJOR PORT EXPANSION
Canada lost sales of 100 million bushels of grain in 1963-64 because of lack of port facilities. Our national grain handling facilities were built for an annual export of 300 million bushels. They should be large enough for 600 million bushels. Increased exports of pulp, lumber, sulphur, coal, iron ore, copper, lumber and potash demand immediate expansion of Canada's port facilities.

A Progressive Conservative government will reintroduce the ship-building subsidy for steel ships built in Canadian shipyards. This subsidy was removed by the present government.

16. RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT
Active resource development is the lifeblood of the Canadian economy. The Progressive Conservatives have imaginative policies for build Canada. Every resource industry will be encouraged, including East coast fishfishing which will be assisted by catch insurance.

Paper Claims Report Withheld Until End of Tourist Season

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario government report on radio-active contamination of drink-ing water in parts of the prov-ince has been withheld because "we didn't think it would be the gentlemanly thing to do to make this public before Nov. 8," J. K. Reynolds, chief executive of-ficer of the premier's office, said Monday.

However, The Globe and Mail says the report on water sup-plies in the Elliot Lake area of Northern Ontario and Bancroft, 70 miles northeast of Peterbor-ough, was ready in June.

"The report was earlier de-layed as a favor to the tourist industry in the Bancroft and Elliot Lake areas," the news-paper says.

The report, says the newspa-per, "suggests the federal gov-ernment has been delinquent by not combating radioactive pol-lution" in the two uranium mining areas.

A study was ordered last year by Premier John Robarts after reports were made of increased levels of radioactivity in water supplies used by residents of Elliot Lake, midway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie.

CONSIDERED RESORTS

Release of the report was first delayed because "it was feared resort operators in the Bancroft area, where slight pollution had been discovered, might suffer economically from a reopening of the subject during the tourist season," the newspaper says.

Prime Minister Pearson an-nounced the Nov. 8 general election Sept. 7, about the time the tourist season ended in On-tario.

"It was decided not to publish the report until after Nov. 8 be-cause of the repercussions it could have in the . . . election c a m p a i g n," the newspaper says.

The newspaper also says the report contains "recommenda-tions arrived at by the provin-cial health department on ac-ceptable standards of radio-active matter in drinking wa-ter" and says the responsibility for setting standards "should rest with the Atomic Energy Control Board, a federal body."

POLITICAL BLUE PLATE — Canadian voters are getting variety in the platform styles of the party leaders. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has been described as the last of the old-time, thunderous campaigners. Prime Minister Pearson's trade mark has been a grin and a relaxed approach. Tommy Douglas stirs up his audience with his appeals for social justice. Real Caouette, a thundering two-fisted orator is soaked with sweat at the end of an hour. Robert Thompson makes a quiet appeal in a well-modulated baritone. (CP Photo)

Platform Styles of Leaders Differ in Dramatic Fashion

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—If voters are apathetic about the current election campaign, it's difficult to blame the platform styles of the five federal leaders. Taken together, they offer the greatest variety since invention of the two-speed grandfather bone.

There's Prime Minister Pearson, bolo knot snug as ever, with his forehead and a crinkled grin on his face, telling his audience that a prime minister has a good deal in common with a football coach.

New Democratic leader Douglas, his five-foot-two frame almost hidden behind the rostrum, brings tears to some eyes with his impassioned plea for "social justice" in Canada.

Social Credit leader Thompson, speaking in a low-speed baritone with few inflections, tells his audiences it's time to be "responsible," to scrap "party politics."

And in Quebec, Creditiste leader Real Caouette face glistening with perspiration and hair askew, slices smoky air with both hands to denounce "Liberal conscription." Government denials do nothing to stem his flow.

DELIVERY CHANGED

The leaders haven't changed since the 1963 election, but observers feel that the speech-making styles have.

Mr. Pearson has ditched his prepared text, along with the fist-pounding and head movements that used to emphasize his words. Now he chats in an off-the-cuff fashion and his associates like it.

Mr. Diefenbaker, generally regarded as the last of the old-time thundering campaigners, is even more so than in 1963. He came out fighting in this campaign and his condemning finger hasn't stopped pointing.

"They are whittling away at Confederation . . . they are dissolving away at the unity . . . they forgot about the western farmer . . . they said Canada was bankrupt . . . they said it couldn't be done." He glares, his face like granite.

Mr. Douglas, Scottish-born ex-Baptist minister, usually spends the first 10 minutes of each speech telling jokes about Scots-men and Baptist ministers. "You can't hold a crowd until you start them laughing," he says, and there is no doubt about his success in that department.

Gently, the NDP chief steers his subjects toward more serious topics, preaching of poverty, of the domination of the economy by big interests and of the policies of big men. He ends on a highly-emotional pitch that clearly moves his audience.

STRESSES SCANDAL

Unlike Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Douglas makes only passing references to the integrity-in-government issue. The Conservative leader often devotes a third of his speeches to the matter, invariably beginning the same way: "It was on a night like this—warm — that Rivard asked the warden for the hose."

Mr. Pearson says little about the "Rivard Affair" in his major speeches.

He talks instead about national unity, the country's economic progress, low unemployment, the war on poverty and the desirability of a majority government.

The prime minister is best when he is close to his audience — on a low dais as opposed to a high stage—and can chat in normal tones. In Orillia, Ont., one night he held 2,400 people in silent attention, talking in quiet tones about his reasons for seeking a majority government.

KEEPS TO LOW-KEY

Mr. Thompson has never indulged in dramatics. The former teacher, chiropractor and Ethiopian Air Force trainer seldom raises his pitch. He speaks deliberately, always suggesting that policies be moved on a higher plane, toward the right.

"It's time we had leaders of responsibility" he will say. "We should take a more positive approach to the problems of the nation."

His speaking style is diametrically opposed to Mr. Caouette's. The Creditiste leader, who seems to reach full pitch only slightly walking to the platform, flays out at the government, corruption, high interest rates and "conscription" from the opening gun.

Swinging arms skim over the microphones as he dances back and forth on the stage. His throat becomes hoarse, his words faster and his gestures more dramatic. He leaves him soaked in perspiration at the end of an hour.

DIEF SPEAKS LONGEST

It's much the same with Mr. Diefenbaker. At the end of his speeches, which have run 90 minutes, the Conservative leader will retire backstage to be mimicked and don a fresh shirt.

Mr. Diefenbaker speaks longer than the others. He seldom stops under 75 minutes, though he often gives the indication of an earlier conclusion. "In conclusion," can merely mean a change in subject.

Mr. Pearson can go from 30 minutes to an hour, and Mr. Douglas generally sticks to a 50-minute limit. At that point, he says, "my mental alarm clock goes off."

In story - telling, the NDP leader invariably gets the biggest laughs. Most of the jokes are on himself and some clearly indicate that he isn't vain about his appearance.

Mr. Pearson's best jokes are also on himself and he can get pleasure mileage by harponing his war experiences.

Mr. Diefenbaker uses two or three standards — such as the time he was introduced as John Stodebaker—and he likes to tell about the time he sold newspapers to Sir Wilfred Laurier.

Mr. Thompson is not a natural joke-teller. Mr. Caouette aims most of his at the government, although his biggest crowd pleaser is his imitation of Mr. Diefenbaker speaking French.

MAY BE LAST

LEEDS, England (AP)—What may be the last death sentence for murder in Britain was imposed Monday, even though Parliament has voted the end of the death penalty. The law to end capital punishment had not received royal assent before the sentencing of David Stephen Chapman, 23, for drowning a night watchman at a swimming pool while robbing the pool's cash box.

Board Decides To Defer Boyd's Release

OTTAWA (CP) — Edwin Alonzo Boyd, once Canada's most-wanted criminal, must wait another year to see whether he is eligible for his second parole.

A parole board official said Monday the board has decided to defer any release for the 51-year-old man who broke out of jail twice before being charged with a string of bank robberies in 1951. Next consideration of his parole comes up in September, 1966.

Boyd, a wartime commando and former military policeman, was charged with six bank robberies after his arrest in 1951, but broke out of Toronto's Don jail.

He was recaptured after four months and charged with another two bank jobs. He escaped from jail once again but was caught a month later.

His first parole came after serving 10 years of the term, in October of 1962.

He went to Toronto. But he was back in Kingston four months later because of a series of parole violations, piling up unauthorized debts and his friendship with a 16-year-old girl.

Afro-Asian Summit Meet Falls Apart

ALGIERS (AP)—The second Afro-Asian summit conference has apparently been thrown a victim of the fierce political conflict between Russia and China, top ministers of the Afro-Asian world buried their hopes for the projected meeting and shelved it indefinitely. Already delayed twice, it was to have opened Friday.

The foreign ministers' reluctantly concluded that a summit could not be held now because it would be boycotted by Africa's most powerful member, China, and a number of other members.

Peking stayed away from the foreign ministers' conference here in June after refusing to attend any conference at this time which included the Soviet Union.

The Chinese also scored a point when the foreign ministers declined to adopt India's proposal to bring Russia into the Afro-Asian ranks now. But nearly all of the 41 countries represented favored inclusion of Russia if another summit meeting is ever held.

Federal Election Campaign Provides Long Pledge List

OTTAWA (CP) — A sentence that gets a good workout in any election campaign starts off: "If elected, we promise . . ."

The run for the federal election makes Nov. 8 is no exception. It has produced a long list of pledges by the parties covering almost every aspect of government operations.

LIBERALS

Prime Minister Pearson and his party spokesmen have emphasized the proposed medical care program, increased aid to education and an extensive farm program. Without going into specifics, they have mentioned some "unpopular" steps necessary in the near future to dampen down overheated sectors of the economy and to stem inflation.

Key promises:

—Medical care program by April 1, 1967.

—$500,000,000 over 15 years to aid medical and dental research and training.

—$40,000,000 university scholarship program over four years and higher university grants.

—Improved and extended crop insurance program.

—National dairy commission, similar marketing agencies for other products and feed grain agency for eastern Canada and British Columbia.

—Unemployment insurance for full - time farmworkers and prairie farm income support if necessary.

—Adjustment in Canada Pension Plan basic rate if necessary, plus increased old age pensions and benefits.

—Planning for long-term water use, with possibility it could be important export to U.S.

—$100,000,000 roads program for north.

—More funds for Atlantic Development Board and $25,000,000 investment in Nova Scotia coal industry.

CONSERVATIVES

Conservative leader Diefenbaker has stressed honesty in government and national unity, saying a confederation conference should be called to bring about needed changes in the constitution.

Key promises:

—Increased university grants and special tax deduction for private gifts to universities.

—More money for medical and dental educational and research programs and facilities.

—Eastern feed grain agency, acreage payments on crop loassng to eastern farmers and long - term reforestation program for second-grade eastern farm land.

—Increased basic wheat quotas and payments for on-farm grain storage.

—National water conservation policy including diversion from north to deficient areas.

—Removal of 11 - per - cent sales tax on production machinery.

—Cuts in corporation and personal income taxes and special tax deductions for home owners.

—Consumer loan plan, widening of lending scope for banks and near banks and protection against exorbitant interest rates and unscrupulous stock operations.

NEW DEMOCRATS

T. C. Douglas has made consumer protection a major issue for his party, along with a program for a planned economy. Key promises:

—Free university education with increased federal money for university capital costs and technical and vocational training.

—Universal medical care program.

—National development commission to spur industrial growth in underdeveloped areas and immediate inventory of resources, including crash program on water pollution, to map out future action.

—50-per-cent increase in income tax exemptions.

—Economic planning to lay down guidelines for prices, wages and production, plus steps to halt unjustified price increases.

—Legislation to protect consumers against misleading advertising, shoddy goods and dishonest practices.

—Ceiling for finance company interest rates and lower interest on housing loans.

SOCIAL CREDIT

Social Credit leader Thompson has accused the major parties of using patronage as a lure for campaign contributions. He has called on them to put responsible government first and party politics second. The platform says all Social Credit candidates have promises to work with all other MPs towards this end.

Key promises:

—Increased federal aid for education with formation of a federal-provincial affairs department, including an education bureau.

—Medical care program on a non-compulsory basis.

—Two-price system for wheat, with an export-import bank to finance overseas marketing of farm products.

—Government inquiry into farm machinery prices.

—Extensive study of resources in the Arctic to meet needs, before any step toward export.

—Major overhaul of tax structure.

—Empower Bank of Canada to provide money for government capital projects.

CREDITISTES

Creditiste Leader Caouette, campaigning only in Quebec, says his group will get enough seats so it can make demands on any national party seeking to govern. Aid to Quebec farmers and monetary programs have been main themes.

Key promises:

—Government allowances to individuals for purchase of private medical care insurance.

—Payment for eastern farmers when crop losses occur.

—Family allowance payments adjusted to living costs.

—Ban hof Canada pay $15,000,000,000 in dividends to allow Canadians to buy up total value of the country's production of goods and services.

SHE'S A DAME

LONDON (AP) — The Queen of Tonga, the bulky, smiling south sea island monarch who was crowned a dame of Queen Elizabeth's coronation, Monday was made a dame—the equivalent of a British knight. Queen Elizabeth named her a Dame Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. Queen Salote, 65, is the first woman to receive the decoration, usually given to ranking British ambassadors. Her kingdom has been under British domain since 1900.

Spotlight Seat
United Church Minister Tries to Win P.E.I. Seat

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — A United Church minister and a veteran of federal politics are two of the candidates seeking the support of more than 23,000 voters in Prince riding in the Nov. 8 general election.

Rev. David Macdonald, 29, pastor of the United Church at nearby Alberton, is nominated by the Progressive Conservatives. He is a newcomer to politics.

J. Watson Macnaught, 61, minister of mines and technical surveys, is four times a Liberal member of the House of Commons.

A late nomination by the New Democratic Party is Harvey G. Dawson, 48, a fisherman and former MP for the Egmont riding. P.E.I. Mr. Dawson, who fishers barely only Canadians Rob is the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is making his first appearance in politics.

The 42,000 inhabitants of Prince riding depend mainly on farming and fishing for their livelihood. The city of Summerside, population 10,000, depend on nearby RCAF Station Summerside. Per-capita income is less than $1,500.

Mr. Macdonald, a graduate of Prince of Wales College, Dalhousie University and Pine Hill Divinity College, was Canadian president of the United Church young people's organization from 1958 to 1960.

Mr. Macnaught was solicitor-general in the Liberal government until a July 7 cabinet shuffle saw him become minister of mines and technical surveys. A Summerside lawyer prior to the Second World War, he was elected to the House in 1945, 1949 and 1953.

Mr. Macnaught was again elected to the House in 1963 by defeating PC Lorne Mookley by 1,347 vote.

Mr. Macnaught is counting on a favorable reaction from Prince voters to the summer announcement that $3,000,000 causeway-bridge-tunnel will connect P.E.I. with mainland Canada by 1972.

Main local issues are aid for a west-shore lobster fishery; protection of resident voters at the RCAF station to amend forces integration, and guidance for the area's low-income farmers.

COUNT CRANES

WASHINGTON (AP)—A total of 24 whooping cranes — 11 adults and five young — now have reached the wintering grounds on the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf Coast.

Claims House Turned Into Political Arena

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—The leaders of the old-line parties scuttled Social Credit efforts to make the last two sessions of Parliament work, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Monday night.

Speaking at a political forum in his home constituency of Red Deer, Mr. Thompson said members are sent to Ottawa to debate and pass laws, but Lester Pearson and John Diefenbaker have turned the Commons into a political arena.

Mr. Thompson, on the last leg of his election campaign, was to deliver a major speech at a rally in Edmonton tonight. A proposed flying trip to the Peace River area of northern Alberta today was cancelled because of poor weather.

Mr. Thompson, who represented Red Deer in the last two Parliaments, said the Conservative minority government failed because Mr. Pearson aimed only to topple the Diefenbaker administration.

Austin Taylor Of B.C., Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Austin C. Taylor of Vancouver, a multi - millionaire businessman and philanthropist died here Monday night after an illness of several months.

The Vancouver businessman, awarded a CBE for wartime civilian service, was connected with numerous companies and was a promoter of thoroughbred horse racing in British Columbia. He was also the father-in-law of New York mayoralty candidate William F. Buckley.

His greatest business venture was in 1931, in the heart of the depression, when he aided money to take over a failing B.C. mine. He converted it into Bralorne Mines Ltd., one of Canada's leading gold producers.

Miriam Broom, owned by Mr. Taylor, was the only B.C. horse ever entered in the Kentucky Derby. It placed third.

He is survived by his wife and a son, in Vancouver; two daughters, Mrs. John Flourence of Pasadena, Calif., and Mrs. William Buckley of New York; and six grandchildren. Mr. Buckley is Conservative party candidate for mayor in today's New York City election.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

(With apologies to Gilbert and Sullivan):
Way out on their limb four ex-champions sat,
Warbling Vale, Chuvalo, Chuvalo
"He'll knock this guy Terrell into a cocked hat,
Will 'Vale, Chuvalo, Chuvalo."
So cocky were they with their prediction "know"
They overlooked Terrell's fast left-jab go-go
Today they are dining on huge chunks of crow
For picking Chuvalo, Chuvalo.

Rocky Marciano, Frittie Zivic, Carmen Basilio and Barney Ross, all former world champions in their respective classes should be fired from Local 354478533 of the Crystal Gazers' Union.

They join the ranks of other world champions who with their so-called expertise proclaimed to the sports world in general that one Sonny Liston would barbecue one Cassius Clay in the first set of a two-match Waltz of the Cauliflowers.

They apparently sold Massa Ernie Terrell short on the basis of the old ring cliche "She has he ever fought!" Mamie Mathes, true, but he was a shelf of his former self.

By the same token they must have tossed the facts that the Canadian heavyweight champion had what it requires to rule the "wreaks" in that the Canadian was fighting in Canada before a partizan home town crowd and lauded to the high heavens by patriotic "experts" of the news media into the balance of things.

Chuvalo screamed to high heaven that he was "jobbed" by the referee in his Madison Square Garden battle with Floyd Patterson. His hangers-on squawked about the chicanery of a Canadian fighter battling an American south of the border.

The Chuvalo entourage insisted on the next fight—this time against the WBA world champion, Ernie Terrell—be held in Toronto. They got what they wanted.

Despite the yelps, bleats and squawks, the Canadian was defeated by Patterson in New York—the movies proved that.

Last night in Toronto he was decisively beaten—the most rabid Canadian fan will admit that—by a better boxer who fought a carefully planned fight and won it going away.

Today the miasma of squawks and bleats arising from the Chuvalo camp is next to nauseating. Chuvalo and his master-minds turned on "Toronto", blaming the city in toto—sportswise—for the defeat. They talk of taking the decision to the courts.

Last night's defeat wipes out any aspirations Chuvalo had of bringing the first heavyweight championship back to Canada since Tommy Burns held it way back when. Interest, if any, will now be centred on the Clay-Patterson fight, the winner, 'tis reported, to meet Terrell for "the" or "a" world title.

However, this agrees nicely with exchampion Carmen Basilio who picked the Canadian to win and in his post-fight story wrote "Chuvalo lost his own fight."

Chuvalo knew well beforehand what kind of a fight the giant Chicago "world champion" had planned. The publicity tub-thumpers broadcast it to high heaven and Terrell himself stated if that Terrell would rely on that lightning jab to keep him at long range.

Chuvalo admitted at the Tweed Sports Celebrities dinner in a Toronto press conference that "If I can get in close to him, I will beat him."

He displayed poor sportsmanship in blaming "Toronto" for his defeat. Some 12,000 fans and $5,000 in closed circuit television helped pay his $45,000 wages for the night.

He might better admit he was beaten—and beaten decisively by a better man, a better boxer who fought a planned fight to the letter, instead of bleating about how he was "jobbed" by officials and his home town.

Terrell Decisions Chuvalo

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP) — Ernie Terrell parlayed a persistent left jab at long range and an effective armlock at close quarters into a 15-round decision over George Chuvalo Monday night in an easy defence of his World Boxing Association heavyweight title.

A disappointed crowd of 12,500 paid $124,567.50 in hopes of seeing the challenger become the first Canadian to win the heavyweight crown since Tommy Burns of Hanover, Ont., lost it in 1907. They cheered the 30-pound Canadian and booed the 205-pound Shabazz throughout the fight.

But few of those present, with the exception of the defiant Chuvalo, could seriously quarrel with the unanimous decision in favor of the six-foot-six Chicagoan.

Referee Sammy Luftspring scored it 72-65, Judge Fred Nobert called it 73-65 and Judge Billie Brown made it 69-65, all in Terrell's favor. The fight was scored under the five-point-must system, in which the winner of a round receives five points and the loser four or less.

All-Round Fight Gates Fell Short

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

About 25,000 fans across Canada paid an estimated $85,000 to see the World Boxing Association heavyweight title fight between George Chuvalo and Ernie Terrell on closed-circuit television Monday night.

The fight, which attracted a crowd of 12,500 at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, was won by Terrell. The Chicago fighter scored a unanimous decision over 15 rounds to retain the crown against the Toronto challenger.

Closed-circuit TV of the fight was shown in theatres and arenas in 29 Canadian centres with cable television carried in five centres in Western Canada.

The crowd was approximately one-third of capacity and the TV audience was probably short of what promoters were hoping for.

The live gate of $124,456.20 in Toronto was also short of predictions, which ranged up to $200,000.

SHOWN IN U.S.

The fight was also shown on closed-circuit TV in 14 cities in the United States, including pay TV in Hartford, Conn. No early returns were available from the U.S. centres.

Irving Schoenwald of Chicago, co-promoter of the fight with All-Canada Sports, predicted that revenue from closed-circuit television would reach $400,000.

With all but two of the Canadian centres reporting, the closed-circuit attendance totalled 23,098.

The crowds ranged from 360 in the 6,000-seat Georges Vanier Centre in Chicoutimi, Que., to 4,087 in the 7,500-seat Winnipeg Arena.

Estimated capacity for all Canadian centres showing the fight was 48,000.

PAY $6,000

About 1,500 turned up at the 2,500-seat Oshawa Coliseum and paid an estimated $6,000. Attendance in Kingston was 1,402 at the 3,314-seat Memorial Centre for a gate of $5,796.

North Bay reported gate receipts estimated at $4,950 as 950 paid their way into the 1,400 - seat theatre. Edmonton produced an estimated $5,000 in gate receipts, a crowd of 1,200 in the 4,200 - seat Edmonton Gardens paying $4 to $5 each.

Terrell's purse was either a guaranteed $45,000 or 35 per cent of the live gate and a share of the TV revenue, whichever was greater. His share of the live gate worked out to about $43,500.

Chuvalo was also guaranteed $45,000 or 25 per cent of the live gate and a share of the television returns. The Canadian's share of the live gate came to approximately $31,000.

IT'S DECISIVE

On a round-by-round basis the verdict was equally decisive. Luftspring scored it 10-3-2, Nobert 10-2-3 and Burke 7-5-3 in the champion's favor. Even Bucko gave Terrell a winning margin by the end of the ninth round.

The Toronto fighter, conceded five inches in height and reach, never stopped trying to nail Terrell. But the Chicagoan kept off with a steady succession of flicking left jabs and usually tied him up quickly whenever he got in close.

Both fighters were angry after the fight, Terrell accusing his opponent of repeated fouling and Chuvalo bitterly contesting the decision.

"I never thought Chuvalo would fight that way," said the champion. "I thought I was a respectable fighter."

He pointed to an inch-long gash in his left eyebrow, which he said was caused by butting, and added that the Canadian kept stepping on his feet.

WARNS BOTH

The referee warned both fighters during the eighth round, Chuvalo for butting and Terrell for a thumb in the eye. During disqualified Chuvalo for butting in a fight here five years ago.

Chuvalo said he was "willing to go to the Supreme Court" to protest the decision. "I can't expect a bad decision anywhere else, but not in my home town," said the 28-year-old Toronto native, angrily telling his manager, Irving Ungerman, that the bout should have been held elsewhere.

Chuvalo denied that any of Terrell's jabs had landed, but the officials and most of the crowd saw it differently. Although to give the champion many of the blows with his gloves, enough of them got through to give to champion a wide margin in the early going.

The proof was on Chuvalo's face—an angry bruise under his left eye and two five-inch cuts over his left eye that required a total of 10 stitches afterwards.

He landed the odd punch in every round, usually in his later attacks, and rallied strongly towards the end of the fight. However, Terrell never stopped moving away, flicking the left into Chuvalo's face, or wrapping his arms around him when Chuvalo threatened to get out of hand.

The stinging left drew blood from Chuvalo's nose early as the second round and did the damage to his right eye in the seventh and 14th, although none of the blows appeared to hamper the challenger's effectiveness.

The 26-year-old champion said he is ready for the winner of the Nov. 22 fight between Cassius Clay and Floyd Patterson whenever the WBA sanctions it. His adviser, Bernie Glickman, said he would immediately post the $25,000 bond required by the WBA to guarantee his fighter's appearance.

Chuvalo, who spent 5 minutes behind the locked door of his dressing room shouting at Ungerman and trainer Ted Mc-Grory, refused to talk to newsmen.

Whorter, repeatedly blamed the Toronto officials.

"Some home town," he said. "My home town messed me up. I expected to get messed up somewhere else, but not here."

The challenger said more than Terrell's punches had hurt him. "How could he hurt me if he didn't hit me? All those punches he threw I picked off with my gloves. All he did nice was jab."

Terrell's share of the purse was either a guaranteed $45,000 or 35 per cent of the live gate at Maple Leaf Gardens. Chuvalo earned $45,000 or 25 per cent.

NHL Scoring

Hull, Rousseau Tops

MONTREAL (CP) —Bobby Hull and Bobby Rousseau are tied in points atop the National Hockey League, but even Rousseau could hardly argue over who gets top billing.

It has to go to Hull, Chicago Black Hawks' left winger who has started the season with a goal - scoring spree that has given rise to all sorts of predictions as to the total he will score this year.

Statistics released today by NHL headquarters here show the Chicago Bomber and the Montreal right winger tied with 11 points apiece. However, Hull has eight goals and three assists in four games, while Rousseau has the reverse, three goals and eight assists, and in five outings.

Chicago holds a one-point lead over Montreal in the standings with eight points, exactly double the output of third-place Toronto Maple Leafs, who have played the same number of games. The Hawks' four victories all came on the road. They now start a five-game stand in Chicago Stadium.

Doug Mohns is one point back of the two leaders with 10 points —five goals and five assists.

THREE TIE THIRD

Jean Beliveau and Jacques Laperrier of Montreal and Stan Mikita of Chicago are locked for third position with seven points each.

Beliveau has four goals and three assists. Laperriere and Mikita, last season's scoring leader, each have one goal and six assists.

Phil Goyette and Doug Robinson of New York Rangers, Dick Duff of Montreal and Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio of Detroit Red Wings are grouped with five points apiece.

Robinson has a total on three goals and two assists, Delvecchio, Goyette and Duff have a goal and four assists, while How has yet to score his initial goal of the regular season, but has helped in five scores by his team-mates.

Glenn Hall of Chicago leads the goaltenders with a 1.75 goals-against average.

Arnie Brown of New York is the individual penalty leader with 19 minutes. The team leading the parade for misdemeanors is Montreal with 85 minutes.

"Thought He Was Respectable Fighter" —Terrell

"Chuvalo Butted, Stepped On Feet"

By STERLING TAYLOR

TORONTO (CP) — "I never thought Chuvalo would fight that way "I really thought he was a respectable fighter."

These were two of the first sentences champion Ernie Terrell of Chicago uttered as he reached his dressing room after winning a unanimous 15-round decision over George Chuvalo to retain his World Boxing Association heavyweight title.

"He kept stepping on my feet, too. Once my knees buckled, but it was because of leg cramps from Chuvalo's stepping on my feet."

Terrell said that Chuvalo opened the gash over his left eye in the 14th round, but added that he never doubted his own supremacy throughout the fight.

"I fought the refereeing was as fair as possible. Actually, you don't see much when you're fighting.

Sam Solomons, Terrell's trainer, had a few harsh words to say about Chuvalo's tactics.

"He was hitting low," Solomons said. "The ref wasn't calling them so I had to call him over between eighth and ninth rounds.

"He (the referee) said: 'I think you are using your thumb,'" Terrell said.

"He told Chuvalo to stop butting," Solomons added.

FOUND CHUVALO TOUGH

Terrell confessed that Chuvalo was "tougher and stronger than I thought."

"He only hit me with one good punch. That was in the 14th round—a right hand, glancing tender for Clay's title, recognized by everyone but the WBA.

"Everyone has always made fund of me, mostly because I'm a singer as well as a fighter. I don't know why people get this laughing image of me. I've never so much as had a drink. Besides, I've not lost a fight for a long time, and yet I keep dropping down in the standings.

Chuvalo Blames Toronto For Defeat

Blasts Manager

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo says he is prepared to go to the Supreme Court of Canada to protest the unanimous 15-round decision awarded Ernie Terrell in their World Boxing Association heavyweight championship fight Monday night.

"I'm willing to go to the Supreme Court with the official cards and protest this thing," shouted the unsuccessful challenger as he nursed a red bruise under his right eye and two five-inch cuts over his left eye.

"How could they do this to me?" he asked, near tears. "I can expect a bad decision anywhere else, but not in my hometown."

"Thank you, Toronto," shouted Chuvalo. "Thank you for nothing."

HAD SHOUTING MATCH

Their comments to the press followed a 45 - minute behind-locked - doors shouting match among Chuvalo, Ungerman and trainer Theodore McWhorter.

"You told me it was all right to fight here," he screamed at his manager. "How could you let this happen to me? I told you before about this town. We should have fought in Detroit."

"Are you blaming me?" asked Ungerman.

"I told you about this town," repeated the fighter.

"We didn't need this fight here," said McWhorter, who formerly worked out of Detroit. "In Detroit they don't kill a boy at it."

Chuvalo and Ungerman were both crying throughout their shouting match.

"I have no money now," shouted Chuvalo. "What am I fighting for? What do I have to scramble for? I won the fight."

HOW COULD YOU?

Chuvalo's wife, Lynne, entered the room soon after and asked Ungerman:

"How could you let them do that to him?"

Ungerman said that if Terrell deserved the decision then "boxing should be disbanded."

"They finished boxing," he replied to reporters. "And it was my fault. George wanted to fight in Detroit, but I insisted we have it here. I told him it was his home town."

"Some home town," said Chuvalo. "My home town messed me up. I expect to get messed up somewhere else, but not here."

HE THUMBED ME'

"He thumbed me repeatedly," he said when asked why he complained to the referee in the eighth and 11th rounds.

"I didn't get hit with any jabs. I hit him with more jabs than he hit me. You don't see me marked up. He didn't hit me with a good one at any time. All he did was run."

Asked if he had been hurt at any time, the challenger said:

"How could he hurt me if he didn't hit me? All those punches he threw I picked off on my gloves. All he did was run the whole night was run. I forced the fight and he ran."

Barney Ross, former world lightweight, junior welterweight and welterweight champion, said in an interview in the corridor outside the dressing room that he couldn't see "how a fighter can win going back."

He said Chuvalo "didn't throw enough punches, but all the other guy did was run."

He (Chuvalo) couldn't hit him if he couldn't get near him."

Carmen Basilio, former world champion in 147 the welterweight and middleweight divisions, was at ringside for Monday night's World Boxing Association heavyweight title fight between champion Ernie Terrell and challenger George Chuvalo. He gives his impressions in this story.

Written for The Canadian Press

By CARMEN BASILIO

TORONTO (CP)—I shed a tear for George Chuvalo Monday night.

He came to fight but did very little about it. I've been in those kinds of fights myself. There's only one way to fight cuties, or spoilers, as we call them in the trade, and it took me a long time to learn. Obviously, Chuvalo hasn't learned yet.

You can't win fights without punching and Chuvalo just didn't punch enough. He fought Ernie Terrell's fight most of the 15 rounds and in the late rounds, when he had Terrell in trouble, he couldn't unload with the big one.

Maybe I was prejudiced. I picked Chuvalo to win and thought for certain that he would fight the kind of fight that would bring him the title. Maybe he left his fight in the gym. Maybe he was overtrained. Maybe his reflexes aren't or weren't as sharp as they should be. These are patent excuses for us fighters when we lose.

But whatever the excuse, the answer came in the decision. Terrell won and on most cards he won it big. I didn't exactly agree with the decision. I thought it was closer but whether it's one point or 10, to the winner go the marbles.

Terrell fought as he figured to fight. That's what makes it so frustrating. He jabbed and ran and held and he did it all night long. Chuvalo just couldn't solve the obvious. He was a stationary target for the jab. When he should have been punching, he was catching. Sure, he caught most of those jabs on his gloves but enough got through to bloody his nose and he stood there waiting for a chance to get one big punch in and could never happen.

How do you score fights? Do you give it to the guy who's always trying to get to you or always trying? These are arguments that I can't settle. I've lost a few not thinking that sentence. George Chuvalo lost it last night because he did nothing about it. He was losing and it so easily. That's what hurts. He may never get another chance.

DIDN'T FOLLOW PLAN

I think the turning point in this fight came early. I gave the first round to Chuvalo because he fought his own fight. His left hook was a good punch that shook Terrell toward the end of the round and he was jabbing back. Had he followed that plan, he would have made it easy.

Terrell, however, set the pattern for the rest of the fight in the second round. He jabbed away more recklessly than I've even seen him do and he threw some combinations. That's when he got Chuvalo's nose to bleeding and that's when my friend George couldn't seem to get untracked.

I don't know what was in Chuvalo's mind but if I were in there I might have been muttering under my breath for Terrell to stand still and fight. You've got to be the boss and Chuvalo, with a few exceptions, was never the boss. He let Terrell run free, jab free and hold free. George Chuvalo lost his own fight.

Bruins Call Up Minor Help

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League called up two goalies and veteran forward Forbes Kennedy from minor league clubs Monday.

Goalie Bernie Parent, 20, was summoned from Oklahoma City Blazers of Central League and goalie Jack Norris from Los Angeles of the Western League. Kennedy was recalled from San Francisco of the Western League.

Parent, who helped Niagara Falls Flyers to the Memorial Cup last year, is expected to start against Chicago Wednesday night as the Bruins launch a three-game road trip after a three straight losses at home. Norris, who played the last half of the 1964-65 season with Boston, will be held in reserve.

Bourque, a regular goalie, Ed Johnston and Gerry Cheevers, are sidelined with injuries. Rookie Bob Hing, 18, who took over for Johnston last Saturday in an 8-2 rout by New York, will return to Niagara Falls.

Cobourg Jolts Juniors

Cobourg Cougars clawed their way back from an earlier defeat to whip the Belleville "B"s 8-2 in an OHA Junior "B" four - point tilt in the Lakeshore town last night.

Elsewhere in the six - team grouping, Oshawa blanked Peterborough 3-0 last night while on Sunday Trenton tied Kingston 4-4, in Kingston.

Belleville next meets the Lift-lock City crew in a pair of four - point games, here this Friday, at 8:00 p.m., and in Peterborough on Monday.

The Cougars were at full value for their first visit of the young season last night. They held the "B"s off the scoresheet until the final period while building a 6-0 lead. It was 1-0 at the end of the first and 4-0 after two beats.

Belleville's goals came seconds apart, at 12:00 and 12:31, of the third.

They were shortlived, however, when Earl Maurer put Cobourg at 14.04. Gerry Bambridge put the icing on the cake with a final tally in the game's dying seconds.

Brian Gillis tallied the winner's first - frame marker at the 15.35 mark and upped it to 2-0 at 8.08 of the second.

Bambridge got his first of two at 11.33 and Paul Herriott scored while Belleville had two men in the penalty box at 14.45 for the 4-0 count. Harold and G. Stevenson scored early in the third.

There were 16 penalties doled out with Belleville collecting ten of that total. All were two-minute sentences, including roughing calls against R. Stevenson and Steve White at 19.27 of the third.

Tough On Goalies

Bench Out Says Bower

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Bower, National Hockey League goaltender with Toronto Maple Leafs, has a complaint about being a bench-warmer.

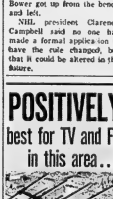
"You freeze."

Very packaged 10 pounds heavier and your feet go numb. You get so that you can't feel a thing."

Bower was complaining about a new NHL rule that states a fully-dressed goaltender must be on the bench to replace the player-pulled "unnecessarily" should he be injured.

Bower has been on the bench for the last three games and has had only a little action when regular goaltender Terry Sawchuk was struck on the face mask in a game at Detroit last week.

"But my feet were throbbing," he said, "I didn't feel right."



APPROACHED CLANCY

Bower has approached Frank (King) Clancy, assistant general manager of the Leafs, to try to have the rule changed.

The problem, he says, is that the second goaltenders perspire in the pre - game warmups then sit cold for the next 60 minutes. The pads absorb the perspiration and the clammed skates and heavy padding deaden the feeling in the feet.

His solution would be either to sit in the dressing room and watch the game on television, or to sit in a heated seat to give him room to relax his legs.

During Saturday night's game, it got so bad, that

JOHNNY BOWER

* * *

Bower got up from the bench and left.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said no one has made a formal application to have the rule changed, but that it could be altered in the future.

Chuvalo Battled

I can't understand it."

Asked whether he would post the $25,000 bond guaranteeing that he'll meet the Clay-Patterson winner, Terrell said he hadn't heard anything about it. WILL POST BOND

Bernie Glickman of Chicago, Terrell's adviser, said: "It will be posted tonight."

Terrell used his right hand only infrequently. "I didn't want to gamble," he explained. "When I did he (Chuvalo) would use his head."

Terrell started to say something about Ungerman (Irving Unger in an, Chuvalo's manager), but Solomon whispered in his fighter's ear and the champion said:

"Ungerman disagrees about everything. We did everything to suit him. I'll fight Chuvalo again if I have to."

Terrell said he believes he can beat Clay.

"I don't say' cheats about being able to beat someone, it means he's not sure. I never cheat against anyone. I don't have to do that to convince myself.

"I'll fight again as soon as the doctors okay it.

"Anyway, whoever everybody thinks the next toughest guy is that's the guy I will fight next."

The Trots

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Balenzano's bid for the three-year-old filly pacing championship was brought up short Monday night when she finished out of the money as the Canadian-owned Woodlawn Drummond took the $50,639.25 Lady Maud Pace at Roosevelt Raceway.

Under the guidance of Keith Waples, the daughter of Gene Abbe from the Drummond Stable of Quebec City stepped the mile in 2:06 2-5 for a 1½ length margin over another Canadian filly, Adios Alice from the stable of the Armstrong brothers of Brampton, Ont.

The Thunderbird Stable's Time Out of Caroga Lake, N.Y. trailed by another three-quarters of a length for third place in the field of 12, as Balenzano faded in the stretch and wound up fifth back of Bonnie Duane.

In winning $25,319.63 of the purse, Woodlawn Drummond boosted her career for the year to $79,109. As the second choice she paid $7, $5.40 and $3.20. Adios Alice returned $13.20 and $8.20, while Time Out returned $11.60.

CAMPBELL VILLE, Ont (CP)—An opening night crowd watched Ronnie Feagan come up with three victories in the first four races as Mohawk Raceway began a 30-night fall session Monday night.

The 23-year-old Goderich native, who leads current drivers with 123 wins, won with Lemac in the first and Eddie's Pride in the second to complete a $2a daily double.

Feagan sat out the third race, but returned behind Sullivan Lee, owned by Cecil Sacks of Desboro, Ont., in the fourth.

WIND SO R, Ont. (CP) — Kahla Kat, owned by Mrs. Edward Schreiner of Batavia, N.Y., captured the featured mile pace at Windsor Raceway Monday night before 5,000 fans. Driven by Harold Woodwood, Kahla Kat returned $7.70, $5.50 and $3.30.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Bobby Reid, owned by Reid Ballantine of Bad Axe, Mich., made his first start here a winner in the $1,500 trot at Batavia Downs Monday night. The five-year-old has been campaigning in Canada, where he won at Garden City Raceway in St. Catharines Oct. 22. He returned $13.60, leading all the way.

Coin Toss Determines Bye Team

TORONTO (CP)—League officials, anticipating a possible three-way tie for first place when the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association Football Conference ends this weekend, decided Monday that a toss of the coin will determine which college team gets a bye into the final.

The two losing teams will meet in a semi-final game here Wednesday, Nov. 10 with the final scheduled for here the following Saturday.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs, despite the 48-15 drubbing by University of Toronto Blues here Saturday, were in first place with a 4-1 record.

Blues and Queen's University Golden Gaels are deadlocked a game behind following Gaels' 16-6 comeback over winless McGill University Redmen.

Should both Queen's and Toronto win their respective games at London and Montreal this weekend, the unusual situation of a three-way tie will exist with Toronto, Queen's and Western sporting 4-2 records.

However, should both Toronto and Queen's lose Saturday's games Blues can still challenge for the championship Yates Cup on the strength of their impressive win over the first-place Mustangs here last Saturday.

Under league rules, a team finishing second in the conference standings can challenge for the Yates Cup only if it has defeated the first-place team at least once during the regular schedule.

Canada May Have Pace Queen

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Selectors of the trotting and pacing champions could well look to Canada when time comes to crown the three-year-old pacing queen.

Balenzano was thought to have the championship wrapped up but she could do no better than fifth Monday night in the $50,639 Lady Maud at Roosevelt

Suspend Player For Life

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (CP)—Don Cragg, 25-year-old forward with Brooklin Merchants of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series, has been suspended for life by the Canadian Lacrosse Association.

In a telephone interview Monday night, OLA president Jim Nash said that the suspension came as a result of an incident during a Sept. 22 Mann Cup playoff game for the senior Canadian title in New Westminster, B.C.

Nash said that the OLA decided to suspend the Oshawa native because of misconduct to referees during the game—the club in the best-of-seven series, which Brooklin lost 8-7.

Nash said Jack Wilson, OLA secretary, informed Gord Hammond, OLA secretary and referee-in-chief, of the move by wire after a meeting of the OLA Oct. 30.

Hammond said Monday night that the suspension would be discussed Nov. 14 at a meeting of the OLA in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

He said that Bill Vipond, manager of the Merchants, was informed of the suspension and that Vipond has decided to appeal to the OLA on the basis of Cragg's past record.

Nash said the wording of the wire was vague and did not specify whether or not Cragg, who also referees, could return to competition in another capacity.

Central Pro League

The 24-year-old rightwinger holds first place in the scoring statistics with four goals and four assists for eight points. His total last season included 39 assists for 64 points.

In second place is Andre Champagne of Tulsa Oilers, who has scored five goals and two assists in four games.

Football Scoring

Sutherin, Thelen Top EFC

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two come-from-behind performances marked the completion of the regular Eastern Football Conference schedule.

Don Sutherin of Hamilton Tiger Cats kicked 14 points in the last game of the season Sunday against Toronto Argonauts to overtake Moe Racine of Ottawa Roughriders for the individual scoring championship.

In rushing, Toronto's Dave Thelen ran 129 yards in the game against Hamilton to take that championship with 806 yards. He went into the game 62 yards behind Jim Dillard of Ottawa, who finished with 729 yards.

Sutherin's output for the season was 82 points, on 19 converts, 19 field goals and six singles. He went into Sunday's game seven points behind Racine and kicked three field goals, three singles and two converts.

Three other Hamilton players took individual championships.

INTERCEPTED NINE

Billy Wayne intercepted nine touchdowns, three more than Ottawa's Bob O'Billovich, and four more than teammate Garney Henley.

Joe Zuger, an alternate Hamilton quarterback, kicked 135 times during the season for an average of 44.5 yards. Close behind was Dave Mann of Argos, with 123 kicks and a 42.2 average.

Garney Henley returned 66 punts for 537 yards, well ahead of Montreal Alouettes' Ed Learn who carried 69 times for 379 yards.

In passing, Russ Jackson, Ottawa quarterback, finished first. He threw 130 completions for 18 touchdowns and had 13 interceptions.

Terry Evenshen, a rookie star with the Alouettes, caught 37 passes during the season for 621 yards and three touchdowns. He finished ahead of Ottawa's Ted Watkins, who amassed 34 passes for 723 yards and eight touchdowns. The title is decided by the number of passes caught.

In kickoff returns, Dick Shatto ran back 14 for 374 yards to lead. Bo Scott of Ottawa returned 13 for 361 yards and one touchdown. Another Ottawa player, Gene Gaines, ran back 20 kickoffs but for only 357 yards.

To Remember the Past Is to Forget the Present

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—To remember the past is to forget the present.

The clamor around you doesn't seem as important if you can sit back, relax and remember when—

Boys never wore their hair long after the age of seven.

More people had ridden in balloons than in airplanes.

The most delicious agony of childhood was spending a nickel in a penny candy store

—there were so many tempting possibilities of choice.

There wasn't much future in life for a fellow who couldn't learn how to harness a team.

Everybody called you the teacher's pet if she let you take the blackboard erasers outside and dust them during class.

Physicians were warning that the new dance craze—the Charleston—could cause permanent back trouble as well as broken bones.

Fashionable ladies wore high-button shoes.

A fellow could make a living in vaudeville by imitating bird cries.

A sissy was any boy whose mother wouldn't let him go barefoot all summer. The hero was the first boy to stub his toe so badly he had to wear a bandage on it.

If a motorist drove more than 100 miles without getting a flat tire, he bragged about it for days.

A speechtrift was a fellow who bought a suit that had only one pair of pants.

If you lived on a farm you were a hayseed; if you lived in a town of more than 10,000 population you were a city slicker.

It was easy to tell which family was the richest in the block. They had venetian blinds instead of curtains in the front window.

Those were the days! Remember?

Good Performers Mired In John Forsythe Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Elsa Lanchester, whose flattery manner anything unexpected, really conceals a thoughtful approach is likely to return Sunday," she to comedy, believes in developing a how to character as a basically normal person.

"If you don't start out playing an eccentric or a nut," the Brit, 60 perfection said, "you can turn all sorts of things—particularly small things—into surprise and comedy. But if the character is exaggerated to start, you have to do wild, outrageous things and keep getting wilder and more outrageous as you go along."

Thus, she said, she plays Miss Culver, the head mistress in John Forsythe's new school for young women, as a slightly vague, fuzzy but reasonable creature.

MAY SEEM FUNNY

"Then if Miss something not quite in character, even drink a glass of port or biscuit—

Monday night's episode—in which Forsythe, Miss Lanchester and the other adults scarcely figured in — concentrated on a 15-year-old student engineering an elopement with a 19-year-old from a nearby military school. The situations were artificial, the dialogue unreal, the comedy lines stale and the whole half hour a crashing bore.

After all those seasons of bursting health in the ratings, ABC's dedicated neuro-surgeon, Ben Casey is going. The cause of the show's malaise is Run For Your Life, a new NBC series with a hero who has been given two years to live.

The new series starring Ben Gazzara is a well-produced sleek and diversified show week in and week out. Its basic format—a hero trying to crowd 30 years of living into a few months—gives it plenty of flexibility.

The program Monday night was part murder mystery, part courtroom drama and part morality play—and all worth watching.

Paramount Studio Always Favorite of Jane Russell

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jane Russell was taking a bath in Johnny Hunter, her five-year-old blonde movie role in eight years (she did a guest appearance in Fate Is the Hunter less year.)

She displayed some blacked-shoe marks she acquired in the rigorous western, but she seemed to enjoy being back at work again.

"I was never wild about working," she ascertained, "but I did enjoy the studio life. When you're working at a studio, it's like being part of a big family. Paramount was always my favorite studio, and I find that a great many of the people I knew before are still here."

Jane has always brought a studied carelessness to her work, and not without reason. "Almost everything about my career has been accidental, even back to its beginnings," she explains.

In the beginning, of course, was The Outlaw and the biggest publicity build-up Howard Hughes could buy. His investment paid off, and Jane Russell became an international figure. She became the principal asset at RKO when the enigmatic multi-millionaire attempted a big-studio operation.

REMAINS LOYAL

Jane remained loyal when other studios beckoned.

"My agent, Lew Wasserman (now head of the MCA-Universal-Decca combine), said I was crazy to sign with Howard again," she recalled. "But why should I have gone off to MGM and work with people I didn't even know? Howard had been very good to me, and I felt that I owed him something."

Her loyalty paid off in what is one of the dream contracts of Hollywood history. Right now she is smack in the middle of a 20-year contract that brings her $1,500 a week.

"We originally made the deal for me to appear in six pictures in five years, with the money to be paid over a 20-year period," she said. "I made three pictures, and then Howard stopped making movies.

"I voluntarily extended the period two years against my agents' advice. 'Why give him the extension when you don't need to?' they said. I told them Howard had played square with me and I would play square with him."

The two years went by without another movie. Despite the grumblings of Hughes' board of directors, the cheques kept coming in and are scheduled to continue until 1975.

Retail Sales On Increase Says Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Continued buoyancy in the economy, at least in the near future, was indicated in two reports issued Monday by the bureau of statistics.

They said:

—Retail sales, up 5.4 per cent in the first half of this year over last, climbed seven per cent above year-earlier figures in August.

—Credit outstanding in nine lines of consumer and commercial financing at the end of July amounted to $6,181,000,000, up 18 per cent from a year earlier.

These indicated that the consumer is spending more and is willing to commit himself to pay in the future for even heavier expenditures, mainly on durable goods.

Computer Is Being Used To Improve Intricate Way Armed Services Vote Taken

OTTAWA—For the first time in a federal election, a defence department computer is being used to improve the intricate system for taking the armed services vote.

Besides providing the first permanent list of service voters, the computer is expected to reduce the chances of ballots being assigned to the wrong constituencies.

The service vote, announced several days after civilian voting results are known, changed the winner in the Newfoundland riding of St. John's West in 1962. But the election there was declared void when evidence was produced in court that 34 servicemen should have voted in other ridings.

For this election, the number eligible to vote under the Canadian Forces Voting Regulations totals 122,614. This includes 108,532 servicemen, 8,726 servicemen's wives at bases outside Canada, and 5,356 veterans in veterans affairs department hospitals across the country.

The over-all total of 122,614 is a drop from the 141,210 eligibles in the 1963 election.

ONE RESULT UPSET

In 1963, the service vote changed the winner in one riding: Hastings south, where Liberal Robert Temple wiped out Conservative Lee Grills' election-night margin of 92 votes.

A lengthy voting period—from 1 to 6—is provided to allow time for servicemen at sea or on troop movements to vote. Civilian voting is Nov. 8.

The armed forces vote system is often criticized because the voting shebavior of a particular group is isolated from the general vote. But officials see no alternative to counting the ballots after general voting ends because a security leak might affect the main civilian vote.

The computer has helped improve the system even though it probably will not cure all difficulties.

The system starts when the serviceman fills out Form 16 in duplicate, giving his name, age, rank, service number and place of ordinary residence.

He may change his ordinary residence once a year, in the months of January or February. The place of residence may be the home of a spouse, dependent, relative or next-of-kin, his current base or the place he lived immediately before enlisting.

PREPARES MASTER LIST

One copy of Form 16 goes to the serviceman's commanding officer, the other to Nelson Castonguay, the chief electoral officer. Using detailed maps and the postal guide, Mr. Castonguay's staff determines the correct riding and stamps its name on the form.

The form goes back to defence headquarters and into the computer. After the election writ is issued—Sept. 8 this time—the computer spits out a master list which in this election is expected to be 85 to 90 per cent up to date. Recent enlistments prevent a complete list being compiled.

A copy of the master list is sent to each of the four special returning officers, in Edmonton for the four western provinces and the northern territories, Ottawa for Ontario and Quebec, Halifax for the Atlantic provinces and London, England, for overseas personnel.

Each commanding officer prepares a list of all personnel in his unit, using his copy of form 16 to determine residence. One copy is kept by the use of the deputy returning officer, another sent to the special returning officer.

USES TWO ENVELOPES

When the serviceman votes, he first signs a declaration of ordinary residence on the back of a large brown envelope. This is checked with the commanding officer's list.

Avith a booklet containing names of ridings, candidates and their party affiliations, he enters the polling booth, selects his candidate and writes the name on the ballot.

After sealing the ballot inside a small brown envelope, he returns to the deputy returning officer and places the small envelope in the large one bearing his declaration. He seals this one which bears the name and address of the appropriate special returning officer, and mails it himself.

Rules require service polls to be open not less than three hours on three of the six voting days. Early voting is encouraged so ballots will be at the special returning officers' office before the deadline of 9 a.m. on the day after the general election—Nov. 9 in this case.

The special returning officer stamps the date on each envelope to prove arrival time. In the presence of scrutineers, the electoral district writes on the outer envelope is checked against the master list and the commanding officer's list.

SECRECY ENSURED

If the addresses or ridings don't jibe, further checks are made for clerical or other error. Cleared envelopes are tossed into bins marked with the names of all ridings.

Starting Nov. 9, a clerk appointed by the special returning officer opens the outer envelopes before two scrutineers and places the inner envelopes in the ballot boxes assigned to the ridings.

This step removes any serviceman's name from any connection with the ballot, thereby ensuring ballot secrecy.

The ballot boxes are then opened, the small envelopes opened and the ballots counted by pairs of scrutineers.

At least six scrutineers must be appointed to each special returning officer. The government appoints three, the leader of the Opposition two and the second largest opposition party one.

When Mr. Castonguay receives the results he telegraphs them to the returning officers in the ridings, then announces them on the Saturday or Sunday after the general election.

It's going to be a cold winter. Dress lightly.

You don't have to weigh yourself down during cold winters. Stanfield's fine cotton rib underwear weighs ounces, but keeps you warm all winter long. And the pullover-style short sleeve shirt (1411) has a patented nylon-reinforced neckband* that keeps its shape. In S.M.L. . . . it's yours for about $2.50. You can have the elastic-waist double-seat longs (1412) in sizes 30-40 for about $2.95. Boys' shirts are around $1.50, the longs around $1.95. Also in combinations, long or short sleeves. And you can dress them lighter in Stanfields "6000" line for men. (50% fine combed cotton and 50% English wool.)

*Exclusive with Stanfield's in Canada.

KIWANIS LISTS OFFICERS

MADOC — 18 members attended the election meeting of the local Kiwanis Club on Friday night at Blun's Hotel. The following are slated as officers for 1966: President, Don Harperson; vice-president, Jim Cox and treasurer, Gordon Johnson. Those elected directors, after the ballot had been counted by Wes Hulin, Doug Pigden and Ken Nicol are: Tom Burnside, Doug Graham, Paul Jones, Kel Kincaid, Jim McNab, Doug Pinkerton, Harry Roscoe and Bruce White.

Some members will be making a tour of the Marmoraton mine on Friday, along with another club coming from Etobicoke, with ex-member, Dr. Jim O'Brien, in escort.

INSPECTS ORGANS

Dr. George Maybee, organist of St. George's Cathedral, in Kingston, and Mr. John Van Elsworth of Watertown, N.Y., spent Saturday tuning the old manual organ in St. John's Church. They also visited Trinity Church and St. Peter's, inspecting their pipe organs.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION

The teachers of the Madoc public and township schools attended a one-day teachers' conference in Peterborough on Wednesday. The pupils of both schools had a holiday.

United States Showing Little Interest in Canada's Election

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — With Canada's Nov. 8 general election less than a week away, American indifference is perhaps even greater now than when the campaign began.

More news attention may have been paid in the last week to the last big wheat sale to China, although even this sort of Canadian development is getting to be old hat.

Meagre American reports of the campaign so far emphasize seeming apathy by Canadians themselves. There does not seem to be any handig that the U.S. resident can grab, even for those who try or who have a special interest in keeping abreast of politics north of the U.S. border.

The Canada-U.S. auto agreement was far too complex to penetrate far in the public mind. There is concern about water but little apparent interest in Canadian water at this time outside certain congressmen.

Canadian teach-ins hostile to American policy in Viet Nam are lumped in with similar phenomena here. As for Canadian accusations and counter-accusations about crime, the U.S. last year displayed pretty considerable indifference to its own election to the rags-to-riches controversy about Bobby Baker, the former Senate clerk and protege of Lyndon Baines Johnson who made it big while in a public office.

UNDERSTOOD ISSUE

Back in 1963, however, two clear arms was something the U.S. public could get its teeth into. Tied in with Canadian wrangling about being hard and soft on the U.S., it was more understandable.

But even at that, the U.S. interest in the Canadian election was a narrow one. A good example is the differing press reaction in May, 1963, when newly-elected Prime Minister Pearson called on the late president Kennedy at Hyannis Port.

Canadians at that time generally accepted that Pearson had pledged to accept nuclear warheads for missiles then in Canadian possession. That had been what the election often was about.

There does not appear to have been any opportunity this time to accuse the U.S. department of intervention—as happened when it took issue with John Diefenbaker, then prime minister, about Canada's obligation to accept nuclear arms.

NOTICE
PUBLIC NOTICE
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to the Dog Tax Act, Number A.D. 1952, being the 3rd Session, 5th Legislature, Regulations for the City of Belleville, Province of Ontario, dated the 15th day of May, A.D. 1952.
THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
A BY-LAW TO PROVIDE FOR AN EXPRESSION OF OPINION OF THE ELECTORS AS TO THE ADVISABILITY OF CONTINUING IN BELLEVILLE UPON A CERTAIN QUESTION.
WHEREAS it is deemed desirable by the Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville that the opinion of the electors be obtained on the question hereinafter set forth.
THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE ENACTS:
1. THAT on the same day in the month of December, 1952, and in each annual municipal elections are held in the same polling places and during the same hours as the municipal elections, the following submitted to the electors for the following question, viz:
"Are you in favor of moving pictures, theatrical performances, concerts and lectures ever being held on the Lord's Day within the limits of the City as permitted by Municipal By-law under the authority of an Act passed by the Ontario Act, 1950-51?"
2. THAT the Head of the Council, or a member of it appointed by him, shall attend at the City Hall in the City of Belleville on the 1st day of December, 1952, at the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon and if requested so to do shall appoint a person to act for him at the said City Hall and attend at the summing up of the votes by the clerk, and declare the result of the said poll to be as follows, viz:
(a) If a majority of the votes given on the said question are in the affirmative on the question and a majority in favour on behalf of the persons interested in the said poll are in the affirmative a vote on the affirmative.
(b) If a majority of the votes given on the said question are in the negative, then in the negative.
3. THAT at the same time and place that the poll is held the number of votes for each candidate for Municipal Office and the result declared the results of the aforesaid poll, and the Clerk shall certify the Clerk shall sum up the number of votes in the affirmative and the negative on the question and publicly declare the results of the same.
THIS BY-LAW shall come into force and take effect on the passing thereof.
Read a first time this 18th day of November, 1952.
Read a second time this 4th day of December, 1952.
Read a third time and finally passed this 4th day of October, 1952.
J. R. ELLIS, MAYOR.
ADAM S. STALKER, CITY CLERK.
I hereby certify that this is a true and exact copy of By-law No. 4042 which received three readings at the meeting held on the 4th day of October, 1952.

Successful Living
Older Man Taking Unfair Advantage

DEAR DORIS: I am 19 and in love with a man 31. He is married, but he is not happy. He says he loves me more than anything in this world. I have been seeing him for 10 months now.
Last night I said: "Do you believe me when I tell you I love you?" He said "No." I said "Why?" Then he said it was because I haven't told his wife about us. Doris, what am I supposed to do? Tell his wife just to prove I love him? I'm not the type interested in breaking a divorce but there is no such thing in his religion so that's out. — A FAITHFUL READER.
DORIS CLARE
DEAR FAITHFUL — He thinks you were born yesterday — and you nearly were, from where he sits.
No man of 31 was ever safer. He won't tell his wife himself; couldn't get a divorce if he wanted to, which he doesn't. And he has you sure won't tell her; and can fool you into taking the blame for the impasse.
He is wasting your time and will break your heart. Run, don't walk, from the arms of someone your own age (before they all marry somebody else).
★
DEAR DORIS: This may be out of your line but you help everybody so maybe you'll help me.
Last fall I took seven slips from geraniums that were my best friend in our garden. I grew them in a basement window, turning them every other day so that they grew beautiful round plants, and only one produced a bud. I nipped it off hoping to have flowers back in the summer.
The one thing is that out of them has had a bud since. I have seven beautiful green bushes and no flowers. I would appreciate it if you would tell me if this has ever happened before? And what is the wrong? — PLANT LOVER.
DEAR PLANT LOVER: Not you, but the plants, did wrong! Some geraniums will "go blind." Sort of a freak, or sickness. Just discard them.
P.S.: As a matter of fact, I'm a pure amateur, but my helpful nurseryman filled the gap.
★
Confidential to JEALOUS WIFE: Could it be he has nothing to confess? Either that or he fears he might lose you by admitting a thing — and his whole heart belongs to you.
You are jealous of both your husband and his pals in companionship and in physical relationships. Knowing about these important aspects of marriage can help, and I will send you a booklet explaining it. Send for it if you will write in again enclosing your right name and address on a stamped envelope.
★
(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster universities, and has had broad experience in social work. If you have a personal problem, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Never Studied Medicine Says Hospital Head

BERLIN (AP) — The head physician at a large West Berlin hospital has resigned, admitting he never formally studied medicine.

Walter Gunther, until two weeks ago head of the city sanitarium in the district of Neukoelln, said he had learned his profession in the hands of the state prosecutor.

Gunther also stepped down as a member of the local parliament and resigned from the Socialist Unity Party, which rules West Berlin.

His lawyer, Dr. Paul Ronge, said in the courts he also admitted his deception to the prosecutor's office in order to forestall action by the state. He said he could not explain why his client had decided to reveal himself as a fraud at his post as head physician at the sanitarium.

Prosecutor Guenther is a physician out of passion and calling," Ronge said. "He has practiced for 30 years in private hospitals and in official capacities, and can be called a medical phenomenon."

FRIENDLY DOCTOR

A member of Ronge's law firm said the office was being flooded with phone calls from Guenther's sympathetic patients.

Local authorities have not yet taken any formal action against Guenther, pending a further study of the law.

In his apartment, Guenther referred to some bouquets of flowers that he said his patients have sent to him and remarked:

"This looks like a funeral. It is a funeral, for that matter — my first-class one."

Guenther was wounded in the Second World War, then served as an aid in a military hospital. Later, he took over a substitute medical license from West Germany authorities after claiming his own documents had been lost in the war.

Moroccan King Helps Children

PARIS (Reuters) — American singer Josephine Baker said today King Hassan II of Morocco has saved her multiracial children's home in France.

The 53-year-old singer flew here from Casablanca after meeting the king in Fez Monday night. She said King Hassan gave her 30,000 francs ($8,400) for her chateau "Les Milandes."

Bailiffs were set to seize the home, where Miss Baker houses 12 children of different races, and sell it by auction unless she settled a 20,000-franc debt by Nov. 5.

The Moroccan monarch had also promised her 100,000 francs to help pay off the debt, the infinite period to take care of the children, Miss Baker said.

The prosecutor has due to be put up for sale twice last year but was saved by world-wide appeals.

Since then, Miss Baker has been touring off debts fixed by her lawyer last December at 1,000,000 francs ($218,000).

Diefenbaker Takes Stand On Communism

By KEN CLARE

HAMILTON (CP) — John Diefenbaker promised Monday night that if the Conservatives are elected Nov. 8 he will set up a parliamentary investigation of reports of Communist infiltration of European immigrants living in Canada.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the call for a parliamentary investigation was prompted by reports that Croations, Hungarians and other groups are getting propaganda in the mail sending support for Communist policies. Those with relatives in Europe have become concerned.

WILL NAME COMMITTEE

In his address, Mr. Diefenbaker said that if elected, a Conservative government would appoint a joint committee of the Senate and the House of Commons to fully examine the revelations of communism within our midst."

He added that a government formed by his party would continue to press at the United Nations for self-determination for 300,000,000 people behind the Iron Curtain.

The Conservative leader, beginning a final election foray into southwestern Ontario, was heckled almost from the moment he started to speak. However, he had a ready rejoinder for almost every comment.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Conservatives believe "we have an appointment with destiny."

He reiterated his promise for a national conference to reshape Confederation "to heal the wounds of discord" that he said have resulted from 31/2 years of Liberal government.

Appealing for voters to cross party lines, he said they will not get in by voting NDP. Support of the NDP means "throwing your vote away."

HAD TROUBLE

He said Saskatchewan ran into difficulty under a socialist government. Population fell sharply.

The Saskatchewan socialist leader, T. C. Douglas, finally decided that was no place for him and he left to lead the NDP.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked if there was any hope for Canada under a system that stifled Saskatchewan.

Mr. Diefenbaker attacked the Pearson government again for what he said was allowing organized crime to reach into the highest levels of government. He said he would set up a commission to clear up the matter and to see that international thugs and narcotics wrong-doers will never again find their way into the highest councils.

Mr. Diefenbaker was given a standing ovation when he walked into the church to join him on the platform was a giant picture of him with Premier Robarts of Ontario, in keeping with the party's 1965 unity theme.

DAVIS TAKES PART

Sharing the platform with Mr. Diefenbaker were the four Conservatives in Hamilton district ridings. Three were Liberal-held in the last parliament and the other was NDP.

One candidate was Lincoln Alexander, a Negro-born Hamilton lawyer running in Hamilton West. Mr. Diefenbaker called for the election of Mr. Alexander so that everybody will know that Canada is against discrimination.

After the meeting, Mr. Diefenbaker boarded his train for an overnight trip to Sarnia-Sound. From there today he whistle-stops to Sarnia. Two rallies are scheduled along the way.

Huge Crowd Greets P. M. At Winnipeg

By DAVE McINTOSH

WINNIPEG (CP)—Singer Sylvia Murphy, two bands, former evangelist Charles Templeton, a Beatle - like quintet, girls in tights — and Prime Minister Pearson, too.

That was the show that played before an overflow crowd of 5,000 in Winnipeg Auditorium Monday night.

The warm-up lasted 80 minutes and Mr. Pearson's speech, mainly on his chief campaign theme of majority government, only 25.

"Victory's nearing, despite the smearing."

When he finally got the microphone, Mr. Pearson ran into some heckling, booing and shouted interruptions. He took it in stride.

Mr. Templeton, one-time contender for the liberal leadership, the Canadian and husband of Miss Murphy, received heavy applause for his references to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker whom he described as the "flaming messenger" of 1958.

Mr. Templeton said Mr. Diefenbaker had added color and vitality to the Canadian political scene.

"I'll be sorry when he goes, but go he must," he declared.

'RETURN FOR FUNERAL'

He described the return of the Conservatives to Mr. Diefenbaker's fold as "shotgun marriages."

"They have come back hoping to be pallbearers at Mr. Diefenbaker's political funeral," he said as some hecklers shouted "hallelujah, hallelujah."

Mr. Pearson said the "thrilling" meeting showed that on Nov. 8 "the clock is not going to be turned back but will be put forward."

He said he was happy to speak in support of the Manitoba Liberal candidates who sat on the stage behind him.

The prime minister said there would be no certainty that another minority government would last more than a week or two. Such a situation would lead to insecurity, parliamentary confusion and more elections.

This was not a threat, he said. Another election would be inherent in a minority government situation. The opposition parties would hold the power of veto over the government.

"I don't believe in the veto in the United Nations or in Canada," he said.

Today Mr. Pearson makes a brief noon-hour stop at the Lakehead before flying on to Montreal for an evening rally.

Major Parties Failed to Protect Farmers -- Douglas

By MICHAEL GILLAN

REGINA (CP)—NDP Leader T. C. Douglas Monday charged the major parties with failing to protect the interests of Saskatchewan voters.

Mr. Douglas' one-day visit to the province he governed as premier for 17 years drew about 500 persons to an afternoon meeting in Weyburn in the riding of Assiniboia.

In Regina, a crowd of more than 2,500 persons spilled into the aisles and plugged entrances and exits at Exhibition Auditorium.

In Weyburn Mr. Douglas said farmers are getting the "short end of the stick" because the major parties are controlled by a "corporate elite" in Eastern Canada.

Neither party, he said, has made any moves to set up a Produce marketing control board to provide guaranteed prices for farm produce.

In Regina, he charged that both major parties are committed to passing legislation to force down the railway branch lines, a move he said will rob shippers, consumers and railway workers of any protection they have worked for.

'WILL END CONTROLS'

"The old controls over freight rates will be eliminated and the railways will be free to charge whatever they can force traffic to bear. This will wipe out every concession we have won," he said.

He said the major parties' approval of the Columbia River treaty showed their belief that the Prairies do not need water for irrigation against future drought and that Saskatchewan cannot expect diversified industries.

The New Democratic Party has opposed the treaty because it would forever prevent the Columbia being diverted to provide water for the South Saskatchewan River, Mr. Douglas said.

In both speeches Mr. Douglas reviewed his party's pledges of free university and technical school tuition, $100-a-month old age pensions at 65 without a means test, compulsory medical insurance and manpower re - training.

Mr. Douglas flew to Winnipeg today for an evening rally. In the afternoon he was to visit Selkirk riding.

Russian Spy Helped JFK To Solve Cuban Crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine Monday gave credit to a Russian spy with having assisted President John F. Kennedy during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis that Soviet nuclear forces were not in a state of war readiness.

The report cites the activities of Soviet Col. Oleg Penkovsky, executed by the Russians in 1963. Penkovsky's memoirs, being edited for publication, are said to reveal that he passed Britain and the United States some 5,000 items of military, political and economic intelligence.

Newsweek says in its current issue:

"Penkovsky knew full well that eventually the Soviet security apparatus would find him. But if the story that has been accepted in intelligence circles over the past few years is correct, he may at least have had the satisfaction of knowing that it was his greatest contribution to the West that led to his final downfall.

"Three days before John F. Kennedy delivered his dramatic ultimatum in Khrushchev at the height of the Cuban missile crisis, the story goes, the late president asked his advisers how he could be sure he was not touching off a nuclear war.

"He was told that the only way to find out was to check with our most secret source in Moscow.

"'Do it,' said the president— and 32 hours later the answer came back: 'Soviet nuclear forces not in a state of war readiness.'

"The 'secret source,' of course, was Penkovsky, and the message he sent probably cost him his life. Since there had been no time to follow the usual security procedures, he had irretrievably betrayed himself to the secret police. He was arrested immediately, and in May 1963, Penkovsky was cut down by a Soviet firing squad.

Later this month, Doubleday will publish The Penkovsky Papers, edited by former Newsweek senior editor Frank Gibney.

The notes and private recollections of the spy were alleged to have been smuggled to the West and turned over by Soviet defector Peter Deriabin, who translated them, Newsweek said.

Burns Defends Canada's Atom Gifts To India

Pacifist Burns Self To Death

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A pacifist self-immolated himself in flames in front of the Pentagon. His wife said he gave his life to protest the U.S. government's "deep military involvement" in Viet Nam.

Norman R. Morrison, a Baltimore Quaker, clutched his one-year-old baby daughter Emily in one arm as he began to burn late Tuesday. Screams of "drop the baby!" from onlookers may have saved her life, for the toll uninjured to the ground.

The 31 - year - old Morrison drenched himself in kerosene and kindled himself as a human torch in full view of hundreds of defense workers, servicemen and military men streaming for home, and within eyeshot of Defence Secretary Robert McNamara's office window.

However, McNamara was unaware of the incident while it was happening.

At first, nobody knew for certain what Morrison's protest meant, although papers and notes found on him indicate he once had attended a peace conference with the Viet Nam war.

The Washington Post quoted a Quaker friend of Morrison's as saying the dead man twice before had been dissuaded from immolating himself.

About five hours after Morrison's fiery death, his wife, in a statement issued through family friends, said:

"Norman Morrison has given his life today to express his concern over the great loss of life and human suffering caused by the war in Viet Nam.

AGAINST WAR

"He was protesting our government's step military involvement in this war. He felt that all citizens must speak their convictions about our country's action."

Morrison was taken to Fort Myer dispensary.

Blonde Emily, one of three small children in the Morrison family, was being tended by a nurse. She smiled, unharmed by the experience and too young to remember.

Later, Dr. Stephen Sheehy, Arlington, Va., county coroner, told reporters, 70 per cent of Morrison's body was covered with second- and third - degree burns which Sheehy said killed the pacifist.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Canada's chief disarmament negotiator, reassured the United Nations Tuesday that Canadian-Indian agreement to limit the atomic reactor in India contained an "unequivocal" understanding that the plant would be used for peaceful purposes only.

Burns was replying in the first political committee to last Friday's statement by Pakistan that India's present nuclear capability can be traced back to the Canadian donation of atomic reactor plants.

Pakistani delegate Aza Shahi had accused India in the statement of trying to block a treaty on the spread of nuclear weapons until she can build an atomic bomb.

Burns said a number of points raised by Pakistan regarding Canada's role in India's atomic energy program were "presented in terms which could have left a misleading impression."

He then pointed out that Canada had been one of the pioneers in the development of the system of safeguards of the international atomic energy agency.

Now that large reactors could be covered by this system, Burns said, Canada had started the process of transferring to the agency the administration of safeguards under previous bilateral arrangements — such as those with India.

During the period when the agency's safeguards did not expand to large reactors, said the Canadian delegate, Canada was among those countries leading the way to acceptance of safeguards by concluding a number of bilateral agreements embodying strict safeguard provisions.

Eskol Beats Gurion

By HAL McCLURE

With nearly half of the 5,069 voting districts reporting, Eshkol's Mapai Labor Party and its ally, the left-wing Achdut Havavd, seemed assured of at least 62 of the 120-seats in the Knesset (parliament). The two parties had 63 seats in the old Knesset.

The Mapai - Achdut Havoda coalition was polling about 39 per cent of the total vote, compared with 18.8 per cent for the right wing bloc of Herut and the Liberal parties and nine per cent for Ben-Gurion's new Rafi Party.

Eshkol now will be able to continue in power as head of a multi-party coalition similar to the Mapai-led governments which have ruled Israel for the 17 years of its existence.

Ben - Gurion, 79, quarrelled with Eshkol, 70, over the running of the government and the so-called "Lavon affair" a security mishap that occurred 10 years ago in Egypt. Ben-Gurion wanted a judicial inquiry into the incident but the Mapai leadership led by Eshkol wanted to forget it.

REJECT NEW PARTY

Ben - Gurion stormed out of Mapai after it refused to let Rafi, which he helped found, and to campaign against, Eshkol as leader of the new party. The new voters rejected both Ben-Gurion and the united rightist bloc.

A little more than six hours after the polls closed at midnight the Herut-Liberal bloc, called Gahal, conceded defeat and announced it would remain in opposition.

The Communists, who split into Arab and Zionist factions, made a move showing at the polls than four years ago when they won five Knesset seats. The Arab Communists were expected to win two seats and the Zionists perhaps one.

The only major incident was in Jerusalem's Mea Shearim quarter where several hundred religious zealots tried to stop Orthodox Jews from voting by passing out leaflets. There was no violence.

The sect — called Naturei Karta — does not believe in secular government of Israel, claiming it violates the Bible's messianic vision of a theocratic state.

Former Police Chief Admits Burning Hotel

QUEBEC (CP)—The former police and fire chief of Lacolraine, Que., in Quebec province's Eastern Townships, Tuesday was sentenced to two years in penitentiary for arson and conspiracy to commit arson.

Lorenzo Marcoux, 51, police and fire chief of Coleraine in 1955-57, pleaded guilty to having set ablaze the Hotel Beauvivage in nearby Neuville in 1962 and to having conspired to set this fire with Stephen Berube, part owner of the hotel.

Marcoux, now a carpenter in Quebec City, was sentenced to two years on each charge. Sentences will be served concurrently.

Berube has already pleaded guilty to conspiring to set the hotel fire and has been sentenced to a five-year jail term.

Moise Darabsaner, a Quebec City businessman, is awaiting trial in connection with this fire and others. He is charged with arson and conspiracy to commit arson.

RED CHIEF DIES

MOSCOW (AP)—The chief of the Soviet Communist Party's culture department, Dmitry A. Polikarpov, 60, died Monday, Pravda announced Tuesday. The cause of death was not announced. Polikarpov, 60, was a candidate member of the party's central committee.

Find Big "Molotov Cocktail" After Pearson's Rally Ends

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — "A big Molotov cocktail connected to a firing mechanism" was found Tuesday night in a hall where, minutes before, Prime Minister Pearson had addressed a big and noisily-fraught liberal election rally.

The description of the explosive device came from Montreal bomb-disposal police who were examining the components today.

It was found in the cavernous Showboat by building employees after the rally broke up.

The device found last, one bomb-disposal officer said, was "complete and ready to go off the moment it was switched on in the world to go, off."

It was discovered at a point about 200 feet from the stage where the prime minister spoke to about 2,000 persons.

CLOCK USED

The explosive device, wrapped in brown paper, consisted of a 9-gallon can of what police called an "inflammable liquid most likely gasoline," a bag of black powder immersed in the liquid and connected with two wires; and, attached to the wires, a large battery and a clock mechanism with its hands missing.

Police said they could not endanger the danger radius of the explosive, the primary effect of which would have been incendiary and not explosive.

The lack of brands on the clock meant police had no way of telling whose 9th mechanism was set to go off.

The mechanism "wasn't made with the throw - away stuff found in such things," said one officer. "Not still it was complex."

Last weekend three bombs were found in Quebec City. People said they may have been the work of pranksters or of publicity-hungry separatist terrorists.

Bomb at Pearson Rally Jolts Election Campaign

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Discovery of a bomb apparatus in the hall after Prime Minister Pearson's big Montreal rally Tuesday night added a jolt into the federal election campaign.

Toronto Conservative Leader Diefenbaker and NDP Leader Douglas follow Mr. Pearson into Canada's biggest city for competing night rallies.

The bomb was found shortly after a crowd of more than 3,000 had filed out of the Showboat building in Montreal's east end. It consisted of clockwork mechanism attached to a bag of black powder immersed in kerosinmabl liquid.

A telephone tipster had sent police searching for a bomb while the Liberal rally—a burst of chanting, heckling and fighting—was still in progress. They went about it quietly but didn't find anything. Observers found the unexploded apparatus later.

The prime minister, alternately speaking in English and French, had a tough time getting his 15-minute speech over. Nearly the people of Canada to roar at several points, including one when 20 young separatist demonstrators in the balcony broke from the hall and a fight erupted.

Mr. Pearson slashed out at the Conservatives and Mr. Diefenbaker as unfit to govern Canada.

Meanwhile, the object of attack was returning the fire in a speech to 1,400 persons at Wallaceburg, Ont.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberal government was the most dangerous and no plan to get there." The prime minister was seeking the people of Canada to a blank cheque while refusing to tell them what he plans to do.

Mr. Douglas had the night's biggest crowd — an estimated 4,700 in the Winnipeg Coliseum where Mr. Pearson had 5,000 the night before.

He pledged the NDP would reduce the interest rate on National Housing Act loans to three per cent from the current 6¼, promised to make loans for existing housing, and said:

"Giving the Liberals a majority is like giving Rip Van Winkle a sleeping pill."

Earlier in the day Mr. Pearson spoke to about 1,000 persons at a noon-hour rally in Fort William, raking NDP policies.

"I can't accept socialism as the basis for political action," he said. The ideals of social justice were being realized in the Liberal program.

Waterving to the scandal issue, he said:

"When I read some things being said ... boy, I'd like to get down and talk to them in their own language, but I'm not going to and I don't think you'd want me to."

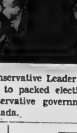
Mr. Diefenbaker while-he-stopped his way down the Lake Huron shore. At Goderich he said the government has induced an order halting prosecutions in the armed forces without direct authority fro mOttawa

"Is this a form of intimidation?" he asked.

(In Toronto, Defence Minister Hellyer said Mr. Diefenbaker's information was "entirely wrong.")

Social Credit Leader Thompson told 1,200 persons in the 6,700-seat Jubilee Auditorium at Edmonton that a minority government would be the best for the country if members of Parliament placed the national interest ahead of their own parties.

Today, while Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Douglas head into Montreal, the prime minister goes to Owen Sodnd and Lindsay, Ont., Mr. Thompson is at Red Deer and Penoka, Alta., and Creditiste Leader Real Caouette campaigns in Grasby, Que.



Mr. Diefenbaker is due to speak to the Maritime Richard arena located in the far eastern end of Montreal and Mr. Douglas is due to use the same Somart building where Mr. Pearson's rally was held.

Gales Plug Welland Canal With Ships

However, canal officials say it will be several days before the situation returns to normal.

Winds up to 70 miles an hour battered the canal Sunday and traffic was halted for as long as four hours. More than 65 ships awaited passage after the canal opened Sunday night.

Early Monday, there were 16 ships in transit, 30 waiting passage in Lake Ontario and 20 in Lake Erie. A speed-up in traffic control enabled pilots to move 36 ships Monday night.

A total of 13 ships were awaiting passage Tuesday in Lake Ontario and 24 in Lake Erie. Officials said 15 ships were moved in early traffic and the rest were to get under way as soon as pilots become available.

New York Has GOP As Mayor

NEW YORK (AP)—John V. Lindsay, a political maverick with a boyish grin, was elected this city's first Republican mayor in 20 years early today. He proposed "creation of a better city."

The 43-year-old liberal congressman's 136,000-vote victory over Democrat Abraham D. Beame in a brawy voter turnout marked him as a man to be reckoned with in national politics.

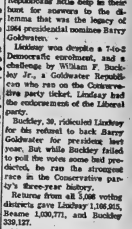
Beame, 59, city comptroller under retiring three - term mayor Robert F. Wagner, had been endorsed by President Johnson, Vice-President Hubert Humphrey and Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Republican Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller said Lindsay won a "hell of a victory."

But while Lindsay was reaping in heavy Democratic New York, Democrats were crushing Republican hopes with governorship victories in New Jersey and Virginia.

SUFFER SETBACK

In general, Tuesday's scattered elections in a handful of states offered comeback-minded Republicans little basis to their hunt for answers to the dilemma that was the legacy of 1964 presidential nominee Barry Goldwater.



Lindsay won despite a 7-to-6 Democratic enrolment, and a challenge by William F. Buckley Jr., a Goldwater Republican who ran on the Conservative party ticket. Lindsay had the endorsement of the Liberal group.

Buckley, 39, ridiculed Lindsay for his refusal to back Barry Goldwater for president last year. But while Buckley failed to poll the votes some had predicted, he ran the strongest race in the Conservative party's three-year history.

Returns from all 7,000 voting districts gave Lindsay 1,166,915, Beame 1,030,771, and Buckley 339,127.

Lindsay won by staging a

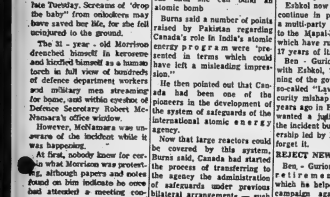
Purge of Indonesia's Reds Spreads to Cabinet, Colleges

From AP-Reuters

JAKARTA (CP)—The army's purge of Communists in Indonesia was reported today to have spread in parliament, the universities and more government agencies.

The official news agency Antara said 57 representatives of the Indonesian Communist party had been dismissed "temporarily" from the House of Representatives — an advisory body — and 14 Communist or pro-Communist universities and colleges had been closed in the continuing aftermath of the attempted Oct. 1 coup.

More than 1,200 Communists were fired by the maritime ministry, the army - controlled agency reported.



Among the Communists ousted from the parliament were the party's No. 2 and No. 3 leaders, M. H. Lukman and Njoto. Both are members of President Sukarno's cabinet. The party chief, D. N. Aidit, has been in hiding since the coup attempt.

Antara said the Jakarta military command had requested government agencies and institutions under its jurisdiction to suspend all personnel who were members of the Communist party, the pro-Peking PKI.

Indonesian crowds tore down the Chinese Communist flag and damaged the coat of arms in a wild demonstration Tuesday outside the Chinese consulate in Medan, north Sumatra. The mainly Moslem crowd chanted slogans about alleged Chinese involvement in the abortive coup.

Latest reports from troubled Central and East Java said Communist - led workers attempted to destroy a sugar refinery at Pragolan, in East Java. Five workers were arrested.

The armed forces newspaper Angkatan Bersendjata said about 3,000 Communists surrendered en masse to local military authorities in Klaten, one of the areas badly hit by Communist terrorism.

India-Pakistan Issues Outlined to Kiwanians

The India-Pakistan dispute over Jamu and Kashmir was viewed yesterday as a dispute between secular India and the religious state of Pakistan.

Speaking to the regular weekly meeting of Kiwanis Club, Dr. K. K. Nair of the Department of Agriculture's Research Institute outlined the issues involved in the dispute.

Dr. Nair, who moved to Belleville two months ago from his native India, said "India is a secular state, with no official religion of the state. Of the 450 million people, 380 million are Hindus, 50 million are Muslims and 13 million are Christians.

"The dispute goes back to 1947, before the transfer of power from the British in India. During the British rule there was British India and 500 Princely States in various stages of feudalism. These Princely States were ruled by a Prince, but British had paramount control over them and they were forced to pay taxes to Britain.

"In August, 1947, British paramountcy lapsed. The Princely States were given the option of either remaining independent or acceding to either India or Pakistan. Jamu and Kashmir was the only state that did not accede to either India of Pakistan.

ASKS AGREEMENT

"The Maharajah of Kashmir wanted to still remain neutral and he asked for an agreement from both India and Pakistan. However, at the same time he made an agreement for supplies with Pakistan.

"When Pakistan realized the Maharajah was just stalling, tribesmen, equipped with modern arms moved out of Pakistan and attacked Kashmir. The well-armed tribesmen were too strong for Kashmir's forces and the Maharajah appealed to India for assistance.

"India said she would help if, one, Kashmir would officially accede to India, and two, all political personnel were removed and popular government installed. The Maharajah agreed, and India airlifted personnel to Kashmir to repel the invaders.

"And so the fight went on in predominantly Muslim Kashmir between Indian soldiers and Pakistani tribesmen, who later were shown to be specially-trained forces of the Pakistani regular army.

"India took the whole problem to the United Nations, and when it was debated there, Pakistan refuted all claims they were guilty of aggression. They said they had not gone to do with the raiders.

"Finally a commission was set up to study the problem, and Pakistan, after refeated denials, admitted to complicity. The commission had many recommendations and India agreed to them all. However, Pakistan's armed forces infiltrated in Kashmir and the Indian Government, not wanting bloodshed, felt the only way to solve the problem was to stop it at its root. Therefore, India stepped in to Pakistan and the fight was on.

"Right now there is another standstill as the issues are discussed at the United National."

Speaking of his reception in Belleville, Dr. Nair said, "Ever since I came to Belleville I have met with nothing but welcome and friendship."

Curlers Get Late Start, Machine Broken

TRENTON — Curling at the Trenton Curling Rink has been set back two or three weeks at least, owing to a breakdown in the ice-making machine. Curling should start around Nov. 17.

Meanwhile, all the regular club rinks and the industrial league rinks have been formed up and are ready for action.

OMB TO HEAR CASE

The Ontario Municipal Board will be asked to approve the town's installation of a 164-inch watermain on Henry Street, between Dufferin Ave. and Queen Street. Estimated cost of the project (plus hydrants) is $20,790 of which the Trenton Public Utilities Commission will pay roughly $17,400 and owners, $9,300.

As the owners on this section have objected, they will be getting a watermain 10 inches larger than the owners on the street between Charles Street and McLellan, the PUC is taking on the difference in the cost of a 164-inch pipe and a six-inch pipe.

Nevertheless, several residents have objected, and an OMB hearing will be held to hear their objections to the installation.

MANAGER NAMED

Joan B. Knox, president of Knox Gelatine of Canada Ltd., has announced the appointment of J. B. (Ben) Froese as vice-president of the company in charge of Canadian operations.

Legion Will Hold Parade On Nov. 11

TRENTON — Nov. 5 to Nov. 11 has been proclaimed Remembrance Week in Trenton.

The special week, set aside to bolster those who lost their lives in the two great wars, will climax on Nov. 11 when the Trenton Legion branch will hold a parade through the streets to the cenotaph, where Remembrance Day service will be held.

Mayor Ian Beresford of Gananoque, who has a long service record with the Legion, will be the guest speaker at a Remembrance Day banquet in the Trenton Legion Hall on the evening of Nov. 11.

Council Settles Account With Rayner Co.

TRENTON — It looks as if the town will finally get its "differences" with the now defunct Rayner Construction Co. settled up. Rayner worked on the widening and reconstruction of Dufferin Ave., Dundas St. East and Sidney Street last year.

At Monday night's council meeting, council voted to pay Rayner $519.28 for perforated pipe which was ordered but not used and to authorize payment of $136.37 of a bill for $200 for water main fittings which were also ordered but not used—if the utility commissioner agrees to the payment.

Three two payments had been authorized by Jack Tomlinson, the town's consulting engineer for the job.

One payment of $146 for Rayner drawing fill across the river to a site not agreed upon initially, was recommended for payment by Mr. Tomlinson, but will be paid anyhow, on the recommendation of the chairman of public works, Councillor Joseph Gould. Mr. Gould said Rayner had been a good town a bulldozer, which had done "thousands of dollars" worth of work in the Stanley Heights landfill park, and he felt it only right Rayner should have the $146.

A sub-contractor, a Mr. Gimple, who did work on the opening of lights and a sign on the Lange and Fetter property (these were moved back for street widening) asked the town for $1,700 for the work, but will get a "without prejudice" payment of $343.21, on the recommendation of Mr. Tomlinson. Council, meeting either accept the payment—or bring matters to a head by demanding the full $1,700.

TOP QUOTA

Trenton blood donors topped their quota of 250 pints in Monday's clinic at the Legion Hall, and bettered last season's total of 238 pints, by donating 274 pints of blood. Eight persons were rejected. Mrs. G. A. Williamson was convener of the clinic.

WILL SHOW PICTURES

Local artist Marvel (Campbell) Garrett, the wife of high school principal John Garrett, has been invited by the Trenton Library Board to exhibit her pictures in the children's section of the library. Twenty eight representative pictures are now hanging on exhibit. Most are local scenes.

The library board plans to ask other local artists to show their work, following Mrs. Garrett's exhibition, which will last one month.

City Airman Now Retired

Corporal Maxwell R. Bone, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bone of 27 Earl Street, Belleville, is retiring from the RCAF after 23 years of continuous service.

During his RCAF career, Corporal Bone has served from as far east as Halifax to as far west as Swift Current. For the last years of his career he was employed as a Supply Clerk at RCAF Station Trenton.

Maxwell has two brothers, Allen, serving with the RCAF in Germany, and Jack, also retired from the RCAF.

PC Rally Held at Shannonville

"It is the policy of the Progressive Conservative Party to provide more and more capital with much better for the Eastern farmer. We intend to introduce a guarantee of $4 per cwt for industrial milk and establish an Eastern Canada Board for industry. We will establish an Eastern Canada Feed Grain Agency, and assure that farm credit is available under low interest rates for young people to expand and improve their farms.

"In the taxation field, we will allow homeowners to claim up to $500 as a deduction on their Federal Income Tax.

"We have pledged ourselves to raise immediately the Old Age Pension from $75 to $100 without a means test.

"I could go on step further myself and say that Old Age Pension should be tied in with the cost of living index.

"As far as Medical Health is concerned, the Progressive Conservative Party appointed the Hall Commission and when the party again forms a Government, we will give to you the best medical health plan in the world.

"It is our intention to start a new Youth Department to deal with all aspects of Youth today. We will increase per-capita grants to Universities from $2 to $5 and assure that every Canadian child will be guaranteed a university education if he so desires and has the qualifications."

Kinsmen Hear Temple at Dinner Meet

Benefits of the U.S.-Canada auto trade agreement were stressed last night to Belleville service club by Robert Temple, Liberal candidate in Hastings South.

So far this year 20,000 new jobs have been created in the auto industry and it will create 30,000 more jobs in the next two years, said the Liberal candidate who with Mrs. Temple attended the Kinsmen's Club ladies night event at the Shrine Club.

Car prices have been lowered and the export of cars and car parts more than doubled in $254 million he pointed out. Mr. Temple said this was the past, the opposition had been criticizing earlier in the campaign, Criticism, has been noticeably quiet, however, since the advantages of the agreement became apparent, he continued. And the facts are car prices are lower and employment has increased noticeably because tariff restrictions were lifted, he added.

The candidate also discussed a round of other issues in the campaign in a question-answer period with the Kinsmen.

Lawyer Named To Court Of Revision

TRENTON—Trenton lawyer, William G. Weston, has been appointed to the Trenton Court of Revision to replace the late Lloyd Worrall, who has moved to Ottawa.

The court, which deals with appeals against assessments, will start sittings tonight. Councillor Edward Todd is chairman.

Meanwhile, council has directed clerk comptroller O. W. Larry to write to Mr. Worrall, thanking the council's appreciation of his several years' service on the court.

PUT METERS IN

The Trenton Parking Commission has been invested with the authority by town council to place parking meters in the riverside laneway, back of the Front Street stores.

The one exception will be the Toronto-Dominion Bank, which has a written agreement with the town for free parking.

LIMIT LOADS

Trenton council Monday night passed a by-law, limiting the load limits on the town bridge to 30,000 pounds, or 15 tons.

The by-law must now be approved by the Department of Highways.

Fines, varying from $25 to $100 for a first offence, and from $50 to $200 for subsequent offences, will be levied against any truckers exceeding the limit, once the by-law is approved by the department.

Grand Total For Retarded Now $3,913

TRENTON — Mrs. Doris Webb, chairman of the 1965 drive for funds for the Trenton Brighton and District Association for the Retarded, said today the final grand total of the drive was $3,913.26.

Trenton, Brighton, Middleton Park, Smithfield, Carrying Place, Bayside, Glen Miller and Consecon were canvassed.

Meanwhile, Bert Boers, president of the area association, said today plans for buying a farm (with a house and barn on the property) for retarded adults, were "coming to a head" in the near future. But this item of business will be discussed at a general meeting of the association at the area school for the retarded, Thursday night, Nov. 4th.

NEW PRESIDENT

At a meeting of the Batawa Ski Club Monday night, John Cormack of Batawa was elected 1965-66 president.

The ski runs at Batawa are in the best shape ever, the meeting was told, and now all the members have to do is "pray for snow."

School Used For Meeting Of Liberals

TRENTON — Hart's Corners' School was just that a schoolhouse last night when 77 area persons, (six of them Grade Eight students from the school), came out to listen to Pauline Jewett, Liberal candidate in Northumberland.

Since the children have been taking quite an interest in the upcoming federal election, the principal, Kenneth Hutton, has added the blackboard with information about the election.

Miss Jewett was able to handle all questions about Liberal policies thrown at her from her "grown up" pupils and the youngsters, to the satisfaction of all.

Guidance Teachers To Meet

A conference is to be held at Moira Secondary School on Saturday, November 6th, the theme of which will be "In-Service Training of New Counsellors." Teachers are expected from the city and from points as far away as Ernestown and Cloyne.

The conference leader will be Miss Jean Graves, the Guidance Counsellor at the Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute. Miss Graves has had considerable experience in lecturing at Guidance workshops. She has received intensive training under Dr. Roger Billings, Director of Mental Health Clinic at Kingston and has taken summer courses in counselling at the University of Chicago under Dr. Carl Rogers at the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles and at the University of Texas. She has also served as an instructor at the Ontario Department of Education Toronto Summer Course In Guidance and at the Refresher Course for Guidance Specialists in 1964.

Miss Graves is offering her services as a regional resource person for the one year old Ontario School Counsellors' Association — primarily an association of guidance specialists who wish to foster more and better guidance services in the province.

The conference is being arranged by the district representative of OSCA, Mrs. Arthur Bradford, Head of Guidance at Moira Secondary School.

Builders Hear Construction Body's Official

Mr. P. D. Dalton, president of Dalton Engineering and Construction Co., Ltd., and vice president of the Canadian Construction Association addressed more than fifty members of the Belleville and District Builders Exchange at the Shrine Club on Monday. The subject of his talk was, of course, all births, marriages and deaths was required. This was unpopular and many refused to comply.

All births, marriages and deaths was required. This was unpopular and many refused to comply.

The surname business was so backward that in 1901 in York shire, Rev. Sabine Baring-Gould found many men born with a name but one spelling who were married under another and had led under a third.

Brittany, Cornwall and Burgess Hughes says, can all be from some ancient emigrant from Wales. The prefix ap England Pulton can be from Cologne Pickard and Packard came from Picardy across the English Channel.

BUILT HOUSES

Newbold, he reasons, comes from a man who built a rather good house in the new mead or house of stone or limber when most houses were fashioned from wattle.

Wade, he says, is a synonym for Ford, or a person who lived near the spot where a creek or river was forded. Bellows is from Bell House.

Hughes says individuals with the surnames of King, Duke, Prince or Queen drew the accompanion of calf-herding, a man who looked after a pack of calves. Herb and Lusher are not from fitting the bottle, but from the honorable office of Usher. Horn, he says, is a name of great antiquity, coming from a particle to Kent.

Hartland, on the other hand, comes from bald-head.

In the dialects, stod meant smooth, or pruned, and so it meant residence at a well-kept town.

Sorerum comes from swet which means wise.

New Book Explains Origin of Surnames

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—If your last name is Belcher it doesn't mean you had an accurate reputation for burping. It comes from a word meaning someone pretty —bel-ehere.

If your name is Allbones, be proud of it. It derives from Allbones, the first British martyr. And if your name is Onion, don't despair. It's from the good ole ancient Welsh personal name, Enion.

Shacklady—and there are lots of them in England—comes not from some one-time refused lady reduced to living in a hovel. Shacklady is a variation of Shakerley, a hamlet in Lancashire.

James Pennethorne Hughes discusses this name, and hundreds more, in his just-published book: Is Tby Name Weird? The Origins of Some Curious and Other Surnames.

"Some surnames which appear peculiar to outsiders in existances have been made for medieval spelling, almost universal illiteracy, the error of copying and the vagaries of English placelaw!, straightforward enough."

With hints and a number of source book suggestions, Hughes has written a 126-page book full of fascinating facts about surnames, many of them found in Canada and the United States.

BUGG NOT INSECT

As he emphasizes, the great majority of them are not from their seem. Take the last name Bugg.

"One thing the surnams certainly does not come from is the insect," says Hughes. "The great majority of Buggs in this country in the Middle Ages."

Hughes says Bugg may come from an old Scandinavian name meaning deity, or from burgh or borough.

The Normans apparently introduced last names to Britain. The recording of parishes, of

Pound Reaches Highest Level

LONDON (Reuters) — The pound today reached its highest level in nearly three years.

Within two hours of the opening of business at the foreign exchange market it rose by $0.0008 to $2.8000 in U.S.funds.

The gain was a reflection of overseas reaction to Thursday's announcement that Britain's gold and convertible currency reserves have risen $242,000,000 ($126,000,000) in the last month.

The true gain to the reserves was even greater because during the month some of the incoming funds were used to pay short-term overseas loans to central banks.

The Bank of England does not disclose the amount of repayments of these repayments but is financial circles the figure is believed to be about £50,000,000, bringing October's actual gain to about £100,000,000.

WELLINGTON (CP) — The New Zealand Parliament has given its verdict in favor of school uniforms rather than freedom for children to wear what they wish. It expressed the view that if choice of dress was allowed, it could lead to undesirable competition and greater expense for parents than a uniform.

Uniforms are almost universal in secondary schools in New Zealand. Many primary schools for younger children also stipulate the wearing of a uniform, but the rule is not rigid. Many state schools than private schools permit freedom of choice for younger children.

For boys, the favored uniform consists of open-necked shirt, short shorts, long stockings, winter and summer. A pullover or blazer is added in winter. A small cloth cap is usually worn. Only a few school uniforms provide for long trousers, usually as a wintering-out dress.

The girls' schools normally have a summer uniform of short-sleeved frock and hat, and a winter uniform often consisting of a gym tunic worn over a blouse and tie.

Petitioners to Parliament sought to change the system, but Parliament has decided that schools should not require uniforms or, alternatively, that uniforms be standardized throughout the country, saving expense where children have to move to another school.

The education committee of Parliament did not favor either suggestion. It felt that freedom of choice could lead to competition in dress and ultimately greater expense for parents.

However, the committee suggested the attention of school boards be drawn to the necessity for adopting a reasonable attitude toward the cost of uniforms.

When the subject is argued in the correspondence columns of the newspapers, most parents say they are thankful to be spared competition in dress with other pupils or demands to wear the more outlandish fashions to school.

U.S. Aluminum Stockpile May Be Unloaded

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Despite official declarations, President Johnson appears to be in a test of wills with the United States aluminum industry about higher prices.

Canada as the largest U.S. supplier of foreign aluminum—worth about $125,000,000 in all forms last year — is in the middle.

Particular Canadian concern is aroused by the Monday meeting of senior officials at the White House to discuss the possible unloading of some of the 1,200,000 tons of aluminum in the U.S. strategic reserve. The president has authority to free up to 500,000 tons and that could cut deeply into U.S. demand for the Canadian metal.

The situation arises over three smaller U.S. firms announced increases taking effect Friday. No word has come yet from the main producers, the Aluminum Co of America.

ORDERED MEETING

But domestic and foreign observers feel it is more than coincidence that the president—apparently by telephone from his Texas ranch—summoned the meeting.

A spokesman at the president's Texas ranch Monday said there was "no connection whatsoever" between the aluminum price increase and the White House meeting.

The official reason for that session was given as concern that rising imports of aluminum, from Canada, France and elsewhere, might damage the program to curb the drain of U.S. gold.

Treasurers, Clerks of Twps. Meet

Municipal clerks and treasurers from the various townships and villages making up the county of Hastings convened in Belleville today to hear talks relating to the carrying out of duties in their respective offices.

The group, representing about 40 of the different municipal offices in the county, listened to S. C. Jevons, Hastings County auditor and commissioner, to Clarke Fraser, who talked on retail sales tax as it applies to municipal corporations, and to Dean Taylor, department of Municipal Affairs.

Also on the agenda was a discussion on the possibility of township clerks and treasurers forming an association through which they could keep information on municipal problems. The first meeting was conducted by Earl Dafoe, clerk of Thurlow township.

During the session the group was welcomed to the city by County Warden Fred Beckett.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

14th BELLEVILLE CUBS AND SCOUTS

On Thursday evening the 14th Belleville Cubs and Scouts held a Hallowe'en Party attended by the ladies' auxiliary and group committee.

Mr. Dale Ashbury of the police force did a fine job of judging costumes with winners being cubs, Louis Turcotte; Steve Vos and Russell McPeak for the most original costume, scout winners were: Carl Howard, Kenny Vos and most original Kenny Atkinson.

The boys enjoyed a number of Halloween games, apple dunking, peanut scramble, candy scramble, after which they were treated to refreshments by sing-song, while the ladies prepared refreshments. Each boy was given a "treat filled bag".

Mr. Lorne Bunnett, chairman of the Group Committee was present to install the following slate of officers: president, Ed. Howard; vice-president, Ann Brant; secretary, Barb Crain, corresponding secretary, Glenn Vos; treasurer, Mildred Turcotte.

The ladies enjoyed a social half hour at which time everyone made for a euchre party to be held in Hillcrest School auditorium. On behalf of the ladies auxiliary special thanks were expressed to Mrs. P. Lucas for making fudge as a special treat.

ST. MICHAEL'S CUBS

Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. T. J. Boyle, who gave an inspiring talk on women's role in today's world.

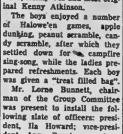
Plans were made for the annual bridge and euchre to be held soon.

The meeting was closed and refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Wright and her committee.



Civil Servants Seek Pay Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — The Staff Side Conference of civil service organizations called for the federal cabinet today there is "serious discontent" among 75,000 government employees in the A and B pay groups.

In a letter to Prime Minister Pearson, the conference has appealed for an immediate salary increase for the two groups. It has urged that they be given a raise in line with similar jobs in private industry.

The letter proposed an increase of at least four per cent for the 9,000 professionals in Group A and 6% per cent for the 67,000 clerical and administrative workers in Group B. The present salary for Group A bands is made retroactive to July 1, 1964, and those in Group B to Oct. 1, 1964.

COLLECTION DAY, THURSDAY

Tax Payments Are Higher Than This Time Last Year

Belleville property owners have a slightly better record this year for payment of taxes than they did in 1964. And this applies not only for payment of property taxes, but also for payment of business tax arrears.

According to the No. 3 administration report from the city treasurer's office covering the period from July 1st to September 30th. The collections to the end of. September were $2,951,740.69, or 83% per cent of the estimated roll. This compares with 81% per cent collected at the same time last year.

At the beginning of the year there was $62,143 outstanding in business taxes, but following a "get tough" policy adopted last spring at city hall, by September 30th this had been reduced to $27,776.

Of the total still outstanding, more than $11,415 is for 1961 and prior years.

Since the city manager's report for the first quarter, instalment of taxes became due October 31st and the percentage collected to date will by now have risen considerably.

In a normal year from 81 to 82 per cent of the taxes will be collected by the year end according to city treasurer C. Bell.

The city's assessment continues to rise as residential and other building activity continues.

Depending on the outcome of appeals to the court of revision, the city assessment department expects to add approximately $2,000,000 to the assessment roll this year.

This holds true the taxable assessment for the year 1966 to 66 will be approximately $107,000,000.

Centennial Park Urged By Liberal

At a meeting of the Northbrook Businessmen's Association in the Legion Hall on Nov. 1, Roy Cadwell, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Frontenac, said "what this area needs is more people, more money, more tourists and more business." He suggested that a Centennial Park in the riding would bring tourists to the area and would mean more business for all the people in the district.

He asked the businessmen present to give consideration to this proposal on a non-political basis, because it was in their own interests they should support a tourist attraction of this nature.

Mr. Cadwell mentioned that while he was in the Department of External Affairs, he had noted that other countries without the natural geographical advantages of Canada, and particularly the United States, developed tourist attractions which were beneficial to all the local business people.

"The tourist industry is our fourth largest business in terms of foreign exchange. We in this area should capitalize on the natural advantages that we have and the best way to do this would be by setting up a Centennial Park as a tourist attraction and which would also be of educational value to our own people."

Vancouver Magazine For About Town Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Life and About Town, a 60-cents-a-month week at how Canadian magazine in recent history. It is also a fine, slick publication otherwise.

"At its present rate of operation, it won't lose more than a million dollars in its first year of operation."

VL and AT, as the magazine is known, is the brain child of Donald Cromie, former publisher of The Sun.

It's a crowded field for the dozzy set—one picture shows a pooch wearing a bib "to keep him from drooling" on his freshly groomed hairdo."

It's also for the horsey set.

"Polo is back where it was in the halcyon '20s and '30s and British Columbia may be one reason are once again gleefully reining their necks on Sunday afternoons."

In a unique blend of formal informality, VL and AT uses the same type of advertisement by which the cheap houses are listed at $45,000, the most expensive at $125,000.

House parties get a large play, as does the theatre. A specity wedding is featured in detail and there are articles on bridge, the weather, dogs, and boating.

Yvonne L. Nix, has a long poem by Dr. Earle Birney extolling Vancouver as, among many other things, "a body, hardbacked, wampum shape and forever in need of swelling."

Both editorship and the opera are featured.

Among the advertisements is one by a trust company which offers a motorcycle to anyone opening a $20,000 account; a leading barber features a Boston mink.

And if you are shopping for reading material, take heart: Pornophiliac is available.

Price! The Yoga Vedanta book shop continues."

Victoria shows the pool and patio antics at the party thrown by the Cromiers for artists of the Royal Ballet, but do not show the police visit — a command performance on behalf of neighbors kept awake through the morning hours by a rock 'n' roll combo.

Vancouver and AT sets out Life's Happy Purpose as "a colorful chronicling of the new tempo and spirit of Vancouver's activities in the arts and sciences, entertainment, business and just leisurely good living."

Unsatisfactory Rail Schedules

The earlier sense of satisfaction felt in this area over Canadian Pacific's decision to retain its dayliner service from Brockville to Ottawa has changed to one of dismay following publication of the new schedules.

No one suspected that Canadian Pacific would provide other than speedy connections to tie in with the new Canadian National schedules between Toronto and Montreal. That was the case up to October 31, when passengers bound for Ottawa from this area got off at Brockville, walked across the platform to the waiting dayliner and were on their way to the capital within half-an-hour. One train arrived at Brockville at 1 p.m. standard time and passengers for Ottawa left for Ottawa 10 minutes later. In the case of the evening pool train which arrived in Brockville at 7.10 p.m. passengers for Ottawa had to wait a little longer, 20 minutes.

But this was nothing compared with what lies ahead for anyone planning to travel by train to the capital. Because of a 21-minute difference in CN and CP schedules passengers travelling to Ottawa from the Quinte district have a long stopover in Brockville. On the return journey it could be as much as seven hours.

As announced in this newspaper Monday, the evening eastbound CN Toronto-Montreal train, which serves the Quinte district through Belleville, arrives in Brockville at 6.11 p.m. The CPR dayliner arrives at 7.40 p.m. and departs on its Ottawa run at 7.50 p.m., 21 minutes before the arrival of the CN train.

Coming from Ottawa, passengers miss a westbound train leaving Brockville at 6.20 p.m. by 38 minutes. Passengers arriving in Brockville at 7.40 p.m. will have to wait until 12.03 a.m. to board a train for Belleville every day except Sunday when they will have to wait until 3 a.m. The latter schedule will involve a wait of more than seven hours.

A wait of more than three hours is faced at Brockville by anyone wanting to take the 7.50 p.m. dayliner to Ottawa, since the arrival time of the closest CN scheduled train is 4.25 p.m.

We said in an earlier editorial that cancellation of the dayliner service would have been an intolerable situation for the Quinte travelling public. Now that the service is being maintained, but with the schedules indicated above, the situation could scarcely be any worse.

Who would use the dayliner in such circumstances? Only those who have no alternative, businessmen? Why is there no provision for getting to Ottawa and back the same day?

A clue to Canadian Pacific's thinking in this matter is provided in a telegram in reply to a direct query from this newspaper regarding the new schedules. In it a CP spokesman says the purpose of the dayliner service "is to provide connections for Ottawa passengers to and from Toronto at the most convenient point, namely Smiths Falls."

"Following special request to provide direct service for passengers in the Brockville area to and from Ottawa," the message continues, "we agreed to extend our train to Brockville although our studies had indicated that traffic was extremely."

The telegram concludes with the following terse sentence: "No changes in the schedules are therefore contemplated." It is signed by I. B. Scott, assistant to the manager, public relations.

This is a take-it-or-leave-it attitude which is disappointing. It is a slap in the face to regular travellers from this region and to others who may be contemplating using the service now that the winter and Christmas season is here.

The schedules reflect a curious fact of the Canadian scene—that the nation's capital has perhaps the most inconvenient links with its hinterland and other major centres than those of any capital in the western world. Canadian Pacific should think again and recognize the fact that a considerable number of people from this area are now deprived of satisfactorily direct service to the capital.

Mr. Wilson's Mission

Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain, though outright success in his mission to Rhodesia eluded him, has succeeded beyond all expectation in preventing any immediate declaration of independence by the white majority in Salisbury.

Mr. Wilson is a tough personality. As his statements on the African Rhodesian problem, in Salisbury and on his return to London, indicate, Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith was left in no doubt as to the consequences that would attend precipitate action on his government's part.

Precious time has been won and the tension that had reached fever pitch a week or more ago has now subsided. Mr. Wilson told parliament the next day or two might show whether the Royal Commission idea can be made to work.

Meanwhile, Mr .Wilson has good reason to feel, as he put it himself, that he has done "everything in a man's power" to avoid the dangerous developments which appeared to be imminent before his visit to Salisbury.

Large congregations of worshippers were in attendance at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday to hear Professor R. J. McCracken, M.A., B.D., of McMaster University who was guest speaker.

In his morning sermon Professor McCracken made a forthright arraignment of modern Christianity which he typified as the comfortable, armchair, strolling - along - with - your - hand - in - your - pocket sort of Christianity.

"It is so easy these days to become a member of the average church," stated the preacher. "Show the slightest interest and the minister is on your doorstep, offering you a comfortable pew. But Christianity is no hobby," he asserted, "to be taken up for an hour or two and then laid aside when other activities come along. People have taken the measure of their churches and put in cushions instead."

"Twentieth century Christianity, to use a slang expression, has very little kick in it. There is not enough danger in it, nor is it a vital force in national or international life. Evils like the drink industry flourish right under its eyes. It is far from a strenuous enterprise, and yet that was the general condition of all first Christians."

Harry Ridley won the club championship at the Belleville Golf Club this afternoon and was the winner also last year. Mrs. Walter H. Reeves won the championship prize in the women's group for this year. The younger and less experienced golfers turned in creditable records during the past season, which was much to the satisfaction of Jock Mitchell, the club pro.

Legal shooting of pheasants in several counties opened on Nov. 1 and numerous local sportsmen were out looking for the birds. The open season was in effect only from the morning of Nov. 1 until sundown on the evening of Nov. 2. Hunters report that generally the pheasant upon hearing the shooting took to the tall timbers or for the most part hid themselves in the thick underbrush where shooting was impossible. Bags of one or two birds were recorded, but some hunters but few of them obtained the legal limit of three birds. Prince Edward and Northumberland counties were the districts hunted by most of the hunters.

To Your Good Health
Osteomyelitis Cured By Today's Antibiotics

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about osteomyelitis? I know a young man who had it, but was operated, and the bone was scraped. He has not had trouble since, except some pain when he gets tired. My questions are:

Is it a communicable or hereditary disease?

Is it crippling or incurable? Will it affect his life span or earning power? — Mrs. L. M.

It is not communicable; not hereditary.

It is not crippling. Before we had antibiotics, the disease quite often became chronic, and would flare up frequently. Today, however, the combination of antibiotics and good surgery results in most cases being cured. We cannot say that a case never can become chronic, but with proper attention it doesn't happen often.

The answer to the third question is that it will not affect this young man's life span or his earning power.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: About seven years ago I had a severe attack of diverticulitis. Since then I have had attacks off and on, although I watch my diet.

The doctor advised me never to take laxatives or enemas. However, several acquaintances who have had a similar trouble tell me they have periodic colon flushes and are never bothered by attacks. What is your opinion? — Mrs. E. R.

This problem is discussed in my booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You." (For a copy, send 20 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Chicago Sun - Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dunellen, N.J.) Diverticulitis is an inflamed case of the "ilosis" condition. I hope you'll read the booklet.

Your friends, I strongly suspect, didn't have as severe an attack as you did, and they would have gotten along just as well without their colon flushes. Such treatment is not necessary, and can do more harm than good. If your bowel regularity isn't as good as it should be, more bulk in the diet, ample liquid (meaning an extra glass of water now and then), and just a little attention to developing regular habits will help you, without irritating the 'divertik' problem. An occasional mild laxative, if needed, is all right. But by all means, don't assume the enemas (or colon flushes) will assure you of no further trouble. Your doctor knew what he was talking about.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a girl of 18 years. The moles I have had all my life are growing a little bigger every day. One on my side is causing me concern because it has changed from brown to black, partially. Is this a danger sign? Let me add that I am a coward when it comes to having a mole removed. — N. C.

If these moles really are growing, and if one is changing color, that can be serious, and you should consult your doctor. Your mention of the changing color may be significant. If the mole is irritated by your bra or girdle — more reason for urgent removal.

Don't be a coward about having a mole removed. You've been vaccinated repeatedly I'm sure. Well, for removal of a mole, you will need a prick of a needle no more bothersome than a vaccination, and that's all you'll feel. As for after effects, there may be a slight soreness, but I've known of vaccinations that were sorer than the aftermath of a mole removal.

Scots Shun Nova Scotia!

Halifax Chronicle - Herald

Nova Scotia may spend more on its tourist publicity than Scotland does, at least per head of population (as Scottish Tourist Board representative James McBoyle suggested in Halifax recently), but its message does not appear to be getting through as well as it should either in Old Scotland or in other parts of Britain.

For Mr. McBoyle, pro-Nova Scotia as he is, had to admit that the sights and landmarks in Canada that the average Scotsman wanted to see most were Niagra Falls and the Rockies. And this despite the fact that, apart from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia is the province of Canada closest to Scotland, both geographically and racially.

It is evident that if more Scots are to be attracted to this province, even more publicity dollars will have to be spent. Therein lies a special difficulty.

One of Nova Scotia's most successful tourist theme songs —the Scottishness of its traditions—which is so effective when sung in the United States, may fall a little flat in Edinburgh or Aberdeen.

One of the principle attractions of a holiday is to see something different. And although this may sound sacrilegious to some, the average Scotsman, even the Highlander, may yearn for a holiday away from tartans and kilts. Who knows, even away from bagpipes.

Ombudsman

Oshawa Times

Canada may soon have a proliferation of ombudsmen. Most provinces as well as the provincial government are considering the establishment of a commissioner to guard the interests of the individual in this era of constantly increasing bureaucracy.

The irony of the situation cannot be escaped. With more boards and government officials than ever before working in the public interest it has become necessary to set up a special office to assist citizens in protecting their rights. Nevertheless the wide concession is that an ombudsman modelled on the ones established in Scandinavian countries and Britain is required not only in Canada but in the United Kingdom as well.

Trees Target Of Poster "War"

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Each spring the City of Belleville stages its annual Beautify Belleville Campaign. We note that private policies are not interested in a beautiful city, for once again they are busy tacking up posters on trees, posts and poles.

Some cities have by-laws which forbid this — apparently Belleville does not.

We would like to remind the politicians that after the election is over, there is also no by-law against taking these posters down.

Let's keep Belleville, beautiful.

A Rare Kind Of Ability

By J. DONALD ADAMS
In Saturday Review

There is no more abused term in literary criticism than the phrase "creative writing".

Colleges the country over have courses in "creative writing", and summer schools featuring courses in "creative writing" multiply like rabbits. But the truth is that with notable exceptions the fundamentals of the ordinary skill of putting words together are ignored.

Every publishing house annually receives a host of manuscripts from aspiring writers and poets who are unable to construct a simple English sentence. Open a random as I often do, a batch of newly hatched books, particularly those known as "creative writing", and read a few pages carefully. Often they would not have passed muster in the 18th century schoolmarm of the little red schoolhouse lambasted in American memory.

My concern, however is not so much with the deficiencies that have been noted as with the narrow application of the term "creative writing". I resent the implication that only novelists, short story writers and dramatists actually create. It is one of the falsest assumptions ever made in literary history.

Although some of the worst abuses of the English tongue are to be found among the writers of nonfiction as sociologists, engineers, philosophers and psychologists, to mention the mayhem committed by legislators, cabinet ministers and officials (now and then a president), the fact remains that there are literary artists in every field whose product is far more creative than much of our current fiction and poetry.

If Boswell's "Life of Samuel Johnson" is not a great piece of creative writing, then scholars, the imaginative as well as scholarly historians, the essayists of Hazlitt, Macaulay and Hazlitt, of Thurber and E. B. White, the science writers like Rachel Carson in "The Sea Around Us," are more truly creative than the authors of the new blockbuster novels for which you must pay an exorbitant price and which are required only in Canada but in the United Kingdom as well.

Kiddie Menaced By Broken Glass

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

As a car-owning citizen who likes to walk down town from my home at least once every day for the fresh air and exercise I get from so doing, I would like to draw your attention to a situation which has been disturbing me for some considerable time. In walking down my block on the west hill, I usually take the sidewalk on the north side of Bridge St .West, down the hill to Front Street. From the top of the hill to Cedar Street the sidewalk is absolutely littered with hundreds of jagged pieces of broken glass from bottles of all description. Sometimes there are broken pieces on the roadway, also. The glass which falls on the roadway, I notice, is soon cleared away by some department of the city. The sidewalk, however, seems to enlarge its menacing quota of glass.

Often as I follow this hazardous path, I see happy, innocent children running and skipping on their way to or from Queen Mary School. In their exuberance, sometimes one of them trips and falls down. It is quite within the realm of possibility that one of these children could sustain a bad gash on his hand or knee from these numerous bits of sharp glass. (Even people of my age sometimes take a tumble.) I feel that it may be sustained by such a fall, just who is responsible for damage claims? Is it the City property—owner adjacent to that section of sidewalk?

At the moment of writing, autumn leaves are covering up and camouflaging most of the jagged bits of broken glass, which, to my mind, makes the area even more hazardous.

As I continue my walk to Front Street, I find that the condition of the sidewalk between Cedar Street and Coleman Street on the north side of the road to be in deplorable condition. It is littered and in dry weather and in bright sunlight. But in wet weather and in poor light and after dark, it is positively a menace to safety and comfort.

Not too long hence, the winter season will be upon us with its snowfalls and ice. I would like to congratulate the authorities upon the speed in which they have had the clearing of the streets and the sidewalks after a fall of snow. However, here again, I have another small bone to pick. I have noticed that at the north - west corner of Coleman and Bridge Streets, it seems to be the custom then to pile the snow from the road and the sidewalk on the right at the tip of the corner of that vital crossing, just where the pedestrians are obliged to walk. The result is that in order for the pedestrians to continue on their way, they have to walk either out in the road, or the property of the said gas station.

There are still plenty of people of all ages who use this sidewalk in the sections I have commented on, and, for their sakes I have presumed to write this letter.

Thanking you for the opportunity to speak my mind, I am, a slightly annoyed Citizen.

Canada Poses Geographical Riddle

By Sydney J. Harris

When I returned from a trip to Detroit recently, one of my sons asked me about the city, and I told him that in order to get to Canada from Detroit, I had to travel south — which most adults know.

He didn't believe it, until I showed him the map. And the reason he didn't believe it, of course, is that most people "take the map for the territory", as the semanticists put it.

In his mind, it was fixed that "Canada is north of the United States," so how could anyone travel south from an American city to get to Canada? Once I can an Illinois community for "more south" than the southern city of Richmond? And we are utterly baffled that the Pacific and Atlantic are reversed in Panama.

Even stranger than these is the fact that New York City lies west — not east, dear type-setter — of the Pacific. Take a ruler to a map of the Western Hemisphere, and you will learn that New York City is west of that part of the Pacific which washes Alaska's shores. We are simply not used to thinking in such terms, for New York is an "eastern" city.

All this is trivia, of course, insofar as geography is concerned. What is important is what these misconceptions reveal about our ways of thinking on more crucial subjects. When we get a "fix" on a certain place, a certain group of people, a certain nation, we regard them as we think they are, not as they really are.

Most of our conflicts arise not from disagreements about reality, but from distortions of reality. We do not even see the same object clearly enough to agree on what we are disagreeing about. This is why our conflicts are so tragic — and, usually, so insoluable.

Pacific Coast, and Reno is "inland," so it must be farther east.

A geographical oddity not so commonly known is that Jacksonville, Florida, is farther west than Cleveland, Ohio. And, also, that the southernmost tip of Illinois is farther south than the southern tip of Virginia. And at Panama, the sun rises in the Pacific and sets in the Atlantic.

These are not "tricks" because we are poor geographers, but because of the "fix" in our minds. The only way we get a "fix" on a certain place, a certain group of people, a certain nation, is to regard them as we think they are, not as they really are.

STOCKS SURGE

Other stocks in the Northwest Territories Pine Point area also were better as a late buying spree boosted prices. Convest was ahead 43 cents to 2.07. The companies form a group which is exploring the Pine Point area and also have interest in Pyramid Mining Ltd., which rocketed higher on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Monday.

Uraniums were mixed with Denison off ¼ to 39¾ and Rio Algom ahead 1 to 20¾. Preston, which has more than 40 per cent of the outstanding stock of Rio, tacked on ¾ to a 1965 high of 11 ½.

Western oils were stronger as Central Del Rio advanced ¼ to 11 ¼ and Place, a speculative issue, gained 15 cents to 1.45.

On index, industrials were up .23 to 170.24, base metals .94 to 86.56, western oils 1.07 to 102.59 and the TSE index was up .49 to 160.80. Golds were off .45 to 158.24. Volume was 719,000 as it a.m. compared with 918,000 at the same time Tuesday.

On the main list, Algoma Steel tacked on ¼ at 63, Moore Corp. ¼ at 94 and Dominion ¼ at 18¾. The standout issue was Dominion Lime which segged $1 to 3.35 in heavy trading.

The company said the unaudited financial statements of one of its major subsidiaries for the nine months ended Sept. 30 show that losses of about $1,200,000 were suffered by the subsidiary.

Banks were fractionally easier with Bank of Montreal off ¼ to 80¾, Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 61¼ and Nova Scotia the same amount to 72¾.

In base metal group, Combined, which controls the giant lead-zinc producer Pine Point, was ahead 1½ to 52 and CPR, which controls Cominco, ⅛ to $3.01 5/16.

Furniture Industry Just Emerging From Complacency

By LARRY DWORKIN

OTTAWA (CP) — The furniture industry is one of Canada's oldest but officials of the industry department say it is just emerging from complacency in its development.

"Until recently the industry made no appreciable advance in technology," one spokesman said.

"Within the next decade it will have to adjust to changing business requirements to meet the heavy demand of the growing population, or lose out to foreign competition."

The majority of furniture plants, which have grown from craftsmen's shops, are mass-type-owned. Many are second- and third - generation family operations still serving the same local markets.

The official said that because of family ownership "the industry is unable to obtain public financing, making it difficult to carry out sufficient concentration."

"Operations are on a very small scale and are too diversified to become efficient to compete with foreign producers."

In 1962 the industry had 2,144 establishments and only 22 had more than 200 employees.

In the United States, however, about 10 firms control 65 per cent of the industry. This makes for better utilization of materials and lower costs.

The official said that because of family ownership "the industry is unable to obtain public financing, making it difficult to carry out sufficient concentration."

Officials say that although Canadian exports of furniture have appeared discouraging in the past, market projections seem to point to a balance of trade in future years.

In 1964 Canada exported $6,199,000 of furniture, more than three times that...shipped in 1961. Imports for 1964 were $21,145,000, showing little change from 1961.

Laszlo Bastyronsavsky was a 15-year-old schoolboy in Budapest when the Hungarian uprising started Oct. 23, 1956. He escaped from Hungary that year and later came to Canada. He visited a boyhood in Budapest recently and tells about their conversations in this story.

By LASZLO BASTYOVANSZKY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Nine years ago the Hungarian people revolted against the Soviet puppet government with cries of "We want freedom of speech, freedom of worship; we never shall be slaves."

The slogans were soon drowned in the noise of exploding mortar shells and the gunfire as Soviet troops fought back to retain a grip on the small nation.

With flares street battles raging, an 18-year-old boy armed with a rifle crouched in the doorway of a downtown Budapest apartment block. He saw someone move from behind a pile of rubble across the street.

The boy aimed and fired. The man staggered and fell to the sidewalk, mortally wounded.

Moments later the boy ran across the street and stared at the body of his victim — a Russian soldier. Tears ran down the youth's dirt-covered cheeks. It was the first man he had ever killed.

Today the young man is a doctor in a large Budapest hospital. His eyes, filled with hate and bitterness nine years ago, appear calm but sad.

He managed to escape arrest for his part in the uprising and, at 27, is married and the father of a child. The family lives in a crowded flat a short distance from the spot where he killed the Russian soldier Oct. 23, 1956.

EVERYTHING CHANGED

The youth of nine years ago has changed. So has the streets of Budapest and the people of Hungary.

"I don't talk of the revolution any more," he says. "If the subject comes up in a chat it's just say, 'Those days of 1956.'"

He receives a modest salary which enables him and his family to live comfortably. The flat he occupies with three other relatives poses no major problem. Because of a serious apartment shortage in Budapest, flats are scarce and only doctors aren't given preferential treatment, he says.

What does he think of the present regime in Hungary?" he asked with the smile of a Hungarian ready to crack a joke.

"Absolutely nothing. This is what you have and this is what you have to live with."

The quip is a reflection of the lack of political discussion today. But along with resignation is the admission that things are better than they were nine years ago.

Stores are filled with goods comparable to what is found in Canadian stores. The country has been leaning to the West in the fields of fashion, nightclubs and motion pictures. More people own cars than ever before.

FREER SPEECH

"We can go to a cabaret and hear the MC poke mild fun at the government. This was unheard of in the mid-1950s. Today nothing happens to the critic cized by the one who criticizes."

The lad who once was ready to sacrifice his life seems content with the present. He can't afford a car, a washing machine or refrigerator, but "we have all the necessities of life and we can afford to take in a theatre or a movie once a week."

What happened to him in the last nine years? Did the spirit that prompted him to fight die when the uprising was crushed?

"My desire to be free of this Communist rule has not died," he insists. "I will always want to be free. I still dream about freedom and the things people in the West have—a house, a garden, a car and a good life for my daughter.

"We live better today than we did before 1956, yes. But this is only a shiny coating on a decaying shell."

Home and School Association News

HILLCREST SCHOOL

The first meeting of the year for the Hillcrest Home and School Association was held in the school auditorium on Wednesday evening.

The president, Mrs. M. McMechan, extended a warm welcome to all present and opened the meeting.

Grade 3 of last year won the attendance award. Since this class has been moved to Prince of Wales School this year, they passed on to this year's grade 5 class a science book purchased for the school on their behalf.

Mrs. McMechan introduced the new principal, Mr. G. Dale, who spoke briefly and introduced this year's teaching staff.

Guests for the evening were Mrs. L. Jourard, president of district council and Mr. John Welch. Mrs. Jourard's topic was "Why Have Home and School?" She explained that Home and School gave parents a chance to know what is going on at school, and the school a chance to know what is going on in the home. This aids pupil, teacher and parent.

Mr. Welch spoke on Federation, pointing out that by belonging to an affiliated Home and School Association we are linked with an association as far away as British Columbia. A question and answer period followed.

Mr. R. Schamerhorn extended his thanks to Mrs. Jourard and Mr. Welch on behalf of the association.

Mrs. McMechan added her thanks to the guest speakers and the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Lucas and Mrs. P. Tracey.

BLOOMS DEATH

AARHUS, Denmark (AP)—A bouquet of flowers may cheer up a hospital patient, but it also may kill him, a Danish scientist reported Tuesday. In a thesis at Aarhus University, Dr. Ove Jessen said the bacteria pseudomonas aeruginosa may be introduced to the patient through flowers. Though ordinarily harmless, the bacteria can be deadly to patients whose resistance is weakened, he warned.

Susanna's Family Fare

CALL OUT THE RESERVES

Dear Susanna: Before putting a pound of butter in the "butter keeper" in my refrigerator, I always cut it in four or five serving pieces. This eliminates removing the whole pound each time and is generally much handier.

When a whole day's visiting or shopping is the order of the day, my suggestion for the mothers of pre-schoolers will save many an embarrassing moment.

Take along an extra little outfit — underwear and all. This only takes a jiffy and is light as a breeze to carry, but it saves so much anxiety. One doesn't have to be frightened every minute about their getting soiled.

Keep the ideas coming, your column is great. — "In Appreciation"

Anyone who has ever coped with a toddler knows that "accidents" are his stock in trade. You name it and he's done it! — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: Enclosed please find two of my own ideas. I hope they will help out your Family Fare. — I never neglect to read it!

Place dust mop head into a worn nylon stocking. Knot the top and foot and wash the whole bundle in the machine with hot suds. Mop comes out nice and clean and the stocking prevents any lint from "spreading".

When writing an airmail letter, long paper which is thin, start on the end sheet. As that page is filled, write over it from the pad. Continue to use the last sheet in this way each time and it will eliminate impressions on the unused pages. — Mrs. J. Tieckstra.

Election Machinery Stored Behind Grandma's Kitchen

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP)— The tabulating machinery that labors to life when the campaign oratory of a federal election fades away is stored all the year of a grey-haired grandmother's spacious kitchen as the sprawling riding of Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador.

Edna Pearl Yetman, one of Newfoundland's two women returning officers in the Nov. 8 election, is at home with the gear in more than one capacity. Political contests are "as common in our house as steak and potatoes," she says.

Mrs. Yetman has been connected in an official capacity with all five federal elections since the province joined Confederation in 1949, serving as district clerk while husband Joseph was returning officer. Mrs. Yetman died earlier this year. "He had a bad heart and I used to do most of the work so I'm used to everything by now," she says.

The room behind her kitchen is a well-organized office, an efficient communication hub crammed with desks, telephones and mounds of instructions and messages.

And the more bulky tools of her trade sold over into the basement, where ballot boxes were kept until their distribution to the riding's 200 polling stations Oct. 25, nomination day.

"Distributing these boxes is no easy chore. They have to be flown into the northern area of the district and dropped by parachute to communities where a landing is not possible."

WOMAN ASSISTS

Mrs. Yetman is assisted this year by district clerk Harriet Laid of Grand Falls.

And once Mrs. Yetman's federal election job is over she will have another. She is also returning officer for the Nov. 16 municipal election here.

On Nov. 8 she expects to be up by 2 a.m. to prepare for a day of answering telephone inquiries (five phones are installed for the day) and making sure things run smoothly until counting of votes begins at 7 p.m.

The energetic grandmother—she has two sons and four grandchildren—has added her own election-night touch. While returns are being tabulated she serves fruit cake for everyone at headquarters.

"And it's not from the bakery, I thank to myself."

A native of Newtown, on Bonavista Bay, Mrs. Yetman has lived here for 26 years. She managed a hotel for 11½ years and has also worked as a switchboard operator and receptionist.

"But I like the fun and work of an election best of all."

The other returning officer in Newfoundland is Louise Saunders, a St. John's lawyer handling the fifth federal election in St. John's East.

"Very difficult but very enjoyable" is her description of the job.

IF you have a musical family, a few extra instruments in the Bucket Band. Basic raw materials are a washtub and broom handle from the hardware store. Many music stores carry a kit that includes a hoop, bass string, a large wooden tub washer, bolts-and-wing-nuts, and instructions for assembling. You can put it together yourself—and it's great fun for anyone with the "beat." (Thanks to Mrs. Joseph Greenlees, Stuart, Ila.) 1965 Publishers Newspaper Syndicate

LADIES' AUXILIARY HALLOWEEN PARTY

Guests of the Royal Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary on Friday evening came in from a cold night to be greeted by a warm, dimly lit hall, festooned with witches, skeletons and pumpkins. Music was provided by the Dan Fairman Orchestra. Costumes were varied and in some cases it was hard to tell which sex was under the costume. The prizes for the best comics went to Jim Woodcock and Bob Stouffe.

The most original costume was worn by Kay Young, who was dressed as a Spanish lady, Fete Archer won the man's prize. Prize for the best turnabout went to Florence Charlebois, and to Herb Seames, who was attired as a seductive harem beauty. Other guests were costumed as convicts, witches and cavaliers. The gentleman dressed as a clown turned somersaults to the crowd's amusement.

Jack Begley won a basket of apples and Mrs. Herb Seames won the special draw.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and everyone had a good time, thanks to Mrs. Daisy Jeffs, convener, and her assistants.

Successful Living

Debtor's Guilt Complex Makes Him Unfriendly

DEAR DORIS: I am 42, and I have been separated for 14 years. Then I met this man. I thought he was o.k. but then I found out he didn't have anything. He bought me all kinds of nice things. But the things he bought for me all went back to the store. He was in jail three times for drunk charges and I covered up for him with my relatives, including my son; so I finally broke up with him.

Now I am happy and am really sorry. But my son's wife told my 15-year-old daughter that just saying sorry is not good enough. My husband and my son were the worst enemies until last year because my husband was always drunk and also tried to kill me and my son. But my son is all for his father because he got money to buy my son's baby gifts. I had my son and wife stay at my house two years rent free and when they moved left me with a pile of bills to pay.

I was thinking of getting a statement written that in case of sickness or death I don't want my son and his wife to come and see me. I don't want any respect after I am dead. — HEARTBROKEN.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Guilt about a debt can make the debtor unfriendly; and your daughter-in-law never lived through those terrible times when you were raising your son.

Now they want the gifts. They justify friendship by saying that such a man as your husband can change; and they criticize your conscientious friendship with the other man to make their change of heart reasonable.

I'd still say don't close the door. Thank God for your teen-age daughter; and hold out hope that some day your son and his wife will see the light.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I have been brushing my teeth the last three months at least three times a day. But in vain. They are still yellow.

Please suggest methods of getting my teeth whiter and recommend to me the best tooth pastes. — FOURTEEN.

DEAR FOURTEEN: Chances are you have worked your way down to the enamel and that your teeth have a natural yellow color. If there is still doubt, have them cleaned once by your dentist.

Use a stiff brush and a tooth paste containing fluorides. The result should be shining clean teeth. Nothing wrong with creamy yellow instead of pearly white. The only way to change their natural shade is to wear caps on your front teeth. Some actors do this, but I don't advise it for anyone else.

Confidential to NELLY: Well, if you become a policewoman you'll be chasing others who are trying to escape from reality. Can't very well do this unless your own two feet are firmly on the ground. Daydreaming and watching TV are definitely not the way to do it. And good policewomen are in demand. Settle down!

Costume Jewelry Fakes It To Give an Authentic Look

The increasing emphasis on femininity in fall clothes has given costume jewelry greater importance than ever, reports the Jewelry Industry Council. Brightly and elegantly, costume jewelry accents the new soft an feminine fashions.

The "real look" in costume jewelry accents the new soft and with richer and bolder effects. Shades of gold are featured in the new creations, many with exciting and interesting finishes. Topaz, sapphire and jade colored stones give added glamour.

Tailored gold colored jewelry imparts the "casual look." Many of these creations have a light brushing of pretty colored stones to blend or contrast with a favorite ensemble. Gaining in popularity is silver jewelry.

Heirloom reproductions are still enjoying tremendous vogue and many new and unusual effects are available. A notable trend is a fascinating fashion of Oriental influence with exotic and flashing colored stones in large chunky bracelets and necklaces.

Beautiful pins, both small and large, continue front and center in style interest. A new idea is to wear a grouping of small coordinated pins or a very large one. Either choice is dashing, and adds a dramatic effect.

Bracelets have taken on new importance with the chunky look of multi-colored charms. Some charms are actually gold-colored filigreed ornaments to-tempered with handsome colored stones. Bangle bracelets are more varied and bigger than ever.

Earrings are longer and more dramatic with more color and unusual shapes. The pierced earring continues to soar in popularity as more and more women have at last enjoy the security and comfort of these pinned - on beauties.

For those women who are still hesitant about piercing their ears, and who want the covered earring look, a new type of earring making its appearance is called the clipon earring.

Pendants are still very much in evidence and have taken on mood themes. Some have a gaylight air, others a dazzling glamour, and still others on sure of-fashion.

Costume rings are bigger, more dramatic and more colorful.

Necklaces are more important looking and come in various sizes from the close choker to multi-stranded necklaces for the "Elsie" look in the high rise of fashions of fall.

Church Groups

C.A. HALLOWEEN PARTY

FRANKFORD — On Friday evening the C.A.'s of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle met in the recreation room of the parsonage for a social evening.

With the exception of judges, all who attended came in masquerade costumes.

The room was decorated with orange and black streamers, pumpkins, brooms, bats, cats and skeletons for the occasion.

Mrs. Willard Whitman conducted the program. A number of games were played and winners were Wayne Prince and Ian Sadler.

Treats were chosen for a two-legged race and the girls' team defeated the boys' team. Everyone enjoyed a balloon breaking game. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Post were the winners of a bubble game.

Ten C.A.'s participated in a "Jack-O-Lantern spiritual skit."

Mrs. Willard Whitman was the song leader for favorite gospel choruses with C.A. president, Glen Post, accompanist on the electric guitar.

The masqueraders unmasked, and the judges chose original best costume, Mr. Paul Spurrell; funniest costume, Mr. Richard Patrick, "hoobo" and Miss Linda Fisher and Miss Brenda Fisher.

Fish and chips were served and a time of fellowship was enjoyed.

SEAWAY APPOINTMENTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Peter E. R. Malcolm of Ottawa, member of the St. Lawrence Seaway authority since Nov. 8, 1961 has been appointed vice-president. It was announced Tuesday. His term of office ends in 1975. The transport department also announced that Delmer E. Taylor Fort Erie, Ont., chartered accountant, has been appointed a member of the seaway authority for a 10-year term beginning Dec. 1.

Women's Institutes

HILLIER W.I.

HILLIER—A crowd of 14 members and one visit attended the Women's Institute meeting in the hall on October 21. The president, Mrs. Jordan, opened the meeting.

It was decided to send a delegate to the area convention in November.

A letter was read concerning a tea and fashion show to be held in Demorestville hall, Nov. 6th.

The Institute will be holding its card parties Nov. 5th and 19th and Dec. 10th in the township hall with lunch and prizes.

Current events and the poem of the month were given. The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Wannamaker, who introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. J. Dick. Mrs. Dick spoke on her trip to London, England and Scotland and showed many pictures of these places.

A contest was held and Mrs. Louis Wright was the winner.

St. George's Guild Holds Fall Bazaar

St. George's Guild sponsored its annual fall bazaar and tea on Tuesday afternoon at St. George's Hall. The decorations, arranged by W. Collyer, featured a tea table centerpiece of of bittersweet and cedar sprays in a low bowl. This was flanked with orange and green candles in crystal holders and silver tea services.

Mrs. P. Welch, president of the Guild, welcomed guests at the door. Ticket convener was Mrs. R. Purgason.

Mrs. D. Donnely was convener of the event, while Mrs. Hawe was in charge of the kitchen. In addition to the apron booth convened by Mrs. H. Howe, there was a booth with 'mums, violets and foil covered sprays of oats for sale.

The cake table was in charge of Mrs. H. Armstrong and the homebaking was looked after by Mrs. J. Garvey.

Pouring tea during the afternoon were Mrs. R. B. Wright, Mrs. Sf. Pitt, Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. H. Wright.

Exercise, Well-balanced Diet Essential for Good Complexion and Figure

--Rubenstein

By MARGARET NESS

MONTREAL (CP) — Magnificent pastels are coming in for spring said Mala Rubinstein during a visit to Montreal, her first trip here since she visited 10 years ago with her late aunt, famous beauty authority Helena Rubinstein.

"Naturally, to complement the pastels spring will bring in a warmer make-up with emphasis on the eyes but with a softened look," she said.

Since Miss Rubinstein now takes over the spotlight held for so many years by Madame, as everyone called Helena Rubinstein, it's natural to compare their personalities. Mala was definitely molded and trained by her aunt but has retained her own individuality.

Madame Rubinstein adored large and eye-catching jewelry and wore lots of it all the time. The effect was sometimes bizarre but somehow suited the diminutive creator of a beauty empire. Miss Rubinstein believes in the uncluttered look.

Madame used vivid make-up. Mala plays it down with subtle art. There is a cool, poised charm about Mala. Madame was actually shy with strangers and accused a protective instinct even in hard-bitten newspaper reporters.

BOTH DEDICATED

But both were united in their desire to help women solve their skin and make-up problems.

Mala came to Montreal as guest panelist for an open meeting of the women's auxiliary of the Jewish General Hospital. On the panel topic of cosmetics, complexion and curves, Mala Rubinstein stressed the partnership of health and beauty, and said exercise and a well-balanced diet are essential for a good complexion and figure.

"If you're not sufficiently disciplined for regular exercises," said Miss Rubinstein, "at least you can take brisk walks and even twirl your feet while sitting to slim the ankles."

Miss Rubinstein is interested in both extremes of age. Young people suffer often from an inferiority complex due to skin troubles and older women need the help of make-up to make them feel more youthful and attractive. All the modern beauty aids were wonderful "morale boosters."

"Since we women are going to live some 20 year longer than our grandparents we want to be both more youthful and useful," she said. "We have to work hard at both."

LAMB CHOPS WITH RICE

Broiled lamb chops are a weakness of mine. If I were at the point of expiring and the message got through to my foggy brain that lamb chops were being served for dinner I'd recover.

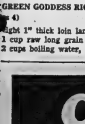
I coddle a patch of mint in my garden like a rare exotic plant, even though I know it would grow rampant if I never looked at it. I smugly snip off its tender tips to make mint sauce to serve with lamb chops and roasts.

The lamb chop meal I am describing was a picture. Lined up lengthwise on both sides of a platter were four sizzling golden brown thick chops - 8 in all to serve four. Between them was a lengthwise mound of rice topped with dairy sour cream, sprinkled with chopped chives and parsley. It was beautiful and my guests enjoyed it. It was an easy meal to prepare.

1 chicken bouillon cube,
1 teaspoon salt,
1 tablespoon chopped chives,
1 tablespoon chopped parsley,
¼ teaspoon garlic salt,
¼ cup fresh dairy sour cream (room temperature).

Mint Sauce: - 1 cup finely chopped fresh mint leaves, packed,
¼ cup boiling water,
1 teaspoon sugar,
¼ teaspoon salt,
¼ cup vinegar.

Green Goddess Rice: - In heavy saucepan add the 2 cups boiling water, chicken bouillon cube and 1 teaspoon salt to rice and bring to boil covered. Turn off heat for 5 minutes then turn on heat as low as possible and cook 25 minutes longer or until all water is absorbed and rice is tender.



Meanwhile beat broiler burner 10 minutes in advance. Arrange lamb chops on broiler pan and broil 3" from burner until first side is golden brown. Turn chops over, sprinkle with salt and broil other side until golden brown and cooked through - about 10 to 20 minutes for 1" thick chops. Arrange in two rows on long sides of prehested platter. Arrange cooked rice in a row between them. Stir chopped chives and parsley and garlic salt into sour cream and spread over surface of rice. Sprinkle top with additional chives and parsley and serve at once.

Combine Mint Sauce ingredients in order given.

Abloom for Fall

Fashion wears a feminine freshness this fall, as many styles take shape in an all-girl mood. Appropriately, femininity also blossoms with fresh, fragrant flowers by day and evening fashions.

The new season's corsages are simple, to complement rich colors and fabrics, and to blend effectively with the newly new mixtures of color and patterns.

Flowers can enhance fashion any time.

By daytime suits and dresses, FTD floral experts suggest a bold puff of petals — a single, large chrysanthemum centered in a ring of autumn leaves, or a round bubble of carnations.

For evening, the florist might fashion a delicate necklace of miniature roses for a jewel necklace, or a garland of blossoms to frame an off-the-face hairdo.

Bringing Up Baby

NOTES COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GLOVER, MOTHER OF 9

Speech, in a sense, begins at birth. It starts with needs, mainly crying. These early communications are reflex actions reflecting a response to some kind of discomfort or need. As sound progress, coos express a contentment if baby's comfortable, perhaps pleasure at the sight of you. Then jabbering begins and that's the time he may be asking for something or trying to tell you he's just made a wonderful discovery. Last stage: formation of real words, formed at first by copying you.

Sweet back-talk from you is a great help to your little babbler. The baby who is talked to often is more likely to form words sooner.

Great discovery for a teether. Gerber Teething Biscuits offer help in the comfort department of painful teething gets troublesome. Extra-hard, they give baby the biting satisfaction he wants and needs. Scalloped edges and waffle-surface make for easy holdability and maneuvering. Comforting unsalted taste, too, when you and baby go promenading. Each one is wrapped in moisture-proof cellophane for sanitary pocketing purposes.

Talk tactic. Baby talk, on your part, is fine when your sweet one is young. But once you hear those real first words, it's time to switch to the language as it should be spoken.

Tasty talk. When a happy babble follows a spoonful of good-tasting food, it may be a beckon for seconds. Could very well happen with Gerber Oatmeal, Rice Cereal or Mixed Cereal with Applesauce and Bananas. These ready-to-serve cereal-fruit combinations—in jars—offer cereal nourishment and fun your delight. Handy for a busy mother, too . . . all ready to serve "as it." (Sparkling glass jars are convenient for storing unused portions in refrigerator.) Serve for breakfast or lunch . . . and watch the smiles. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Council Votes to Build Activated Sludge Sewage Plant, Cost Is $490,000

CAMPBELLFORD — The council met in regular meeting Monday evening, November 1st.

Mayor Tanner reported the paving for which the E. J. MacFarland Construction Company had been paid in full for, about two years ago, had in spite of recent promises not been done as yet.

On motion of Councillor R. S. Bennett and Deputy Reeve Locke it was decided to accept the report of the Canadian British Consultant Engineers to build an activated sludge sewage disposal plant with both primary and secondary units. Councillor Bennett had a written motion prepared and with little preliminary discussion presented the motion to effect E. M. Ihey which was immediately passed by council with Reeve Brown and Councillor Hughes objecting.

COST IS $490,000

The plant cost had been estimated by Canadian, British Consultant Engineers to be $490,000. Reeve Brown spoke in favor of a sewage plant designed to service 3,500 population at a cost of $355,000, but his amendment was lost. The plant plan chosen is designed for a population of 5,000. It was disclosed that the Campbellford population which is in the neighborhood of 3,500 had increased only about 400 in the last 15 years. Over the past two years other types of sewage disposal had been inspected and Horsey and Barrington Consultant Engineers had chosen as their first choice a modern activated sludge plant it being installed presently at the new prison now being constructed in the near area.

MUST GET APPROVAL

As the O.W.R. and the consulting engineers have approved the activated sludge plant for Campbellford it now remains for the Ontario Municipal Board to approve the expenditure. Mayor Tanner announced at a previous council meeting that the O.M.B. had limited the town's expenditure to approximately $250,000.

The present mill rate in Campbellford is approximately 116 mills industrial and 104 mills residential. The expenditure for the sewage disposal may increase the present rates by 15 mills. Some taxpayers who find it difficult to pay the present taxes are deeply concerned.

WANT NEW TRUCK

Later in the meeting Councillor D. Sharp asked council to purchase a new truck, saying that the old truck had served its purpose and a new one would be more economical. Mayor Tanner objected saying that the town could not afford to buy a new truck at this time.

On motion of Councillors Sharp and Bennett it was decided to advertise for tenders on a new cab and chassis, tenders to close November 18th.

The Community Centre committee was present at council meeting. Clerk E. M. Ihey reported that the Bank of Montreal had to have assurance that arrangement be made for the full amount of cost, $122,000, regardless of amount of cash on hand.

Some change had to be made in construction materials but no expense would be added.

A by-law was prepared to provide for erection of the Community Centre and to borrow up to but not exceeding $122,000.

Reeve Brown reported the firemen are redecorating the fire hall and expect to hold open house for inspection of the new pumper when it arrives.

Councillor Dunk reported tires on a new police cruiser were worn out on a mileage of 8,000 miles. Chief Baird said the wearing out of the tires in such a short time was due to faulty front alignment when purchased. It was decided to buy two new tires. Chief Baird reported a radar demonstration was to be made this week.

Councillor Hughes, reporting for the Recreation Committee, asked for a grant for minor hockey. A grant of $200 was made. Due to the fact the arena is not yet built ice has to be rented for games and practice. There are peewees, bantams and midget and five places in the league: Hastings, Keene, Norwood, Campbellford and Warsaw.

Councillor Torrance reported the problem of irresponsible dumping at the town dump. He advised that a strong letter be sent to the dumpers over the river. Rural farmers camp of Piel Mc in the central highlands, looking for the guerrillas who have been besieging the camp.

Council Briefs

CAMPBELLFORD — Council members received an invitation to attend Commencement Exercises at CDHS on Friday evening, Nov. 5th.

Trees on Trent Drive have reached a height where there is some interference with electric wires. A committee was appointed to meet with PUC officials to consider some plan whereby the trees would not be cut in any way.

Correspondence was read from the Chamber of Commerce asking for two representatives to attend meeting in the by-law to Claus Parade committee. Deputy Reeve Locke and Councillor Sharp were appointed. A grant of $100 was made to the parade committee.

Correspondence was read from Public School Inspector D. G. Rikley re the Campbellford-Seymour School Area. The by-law for amalgamation has been approved by the Department of Education. Inspector Rikley has been appointed as referee to adjust rights and claims between the two areas involved. As at present there is not space available for kindergarten or auxiliary class pupils from Seymour township in the Campbellford schools. Campbellford will pay a larger percentage of the requisition for the next two years, and a six-mill levy will be placed on Campbellford Public School supporters, the money to be paid over to the Seymour-Campbellford Board. Based on the equalized assessment after two years the town of Campbellford will pay 50 percent and Seymour 45 percent.

Blazing Ship Heads for Land

LONDON (CP) — A blazing British freighter, threatened by gales as well as flames, steamed through heavy Atlantic waves today toward land.

The 8,956-ton British vessel Newfoundland, originally bound for Halifax, turned around in a gale 400 miles east of Nova Scotia Tuesday as the fire blazed in a hold.

A spokesman for the vessel's owners said all 39 men aboard appeared to be safe. "But we cannot say all danger is past. No one would say that about fire at sea."

Viet Cong Raids Govt. Outpost

SAIGON (AP)—Hundreds of Viet Cong guerrillas swarmed down from the mountains above coastal Quang Ngai today and made an unsuccessful attempt to overrun a South Vietnamese government outpost.

U.S. sources said an estimated 800 to 900 guerrillas attacked the outpost three miles northeast of Quang Ngai, in central South Viet Nam. U.S. jets bombed and strafed the Viet Cong as they retreated at daybreak, but there was no estimate of enemy casualties.

Moderate casualties were reported among the defenders of the outpost.

Troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division continued to sweep the jungles near the special forces camp of Piel Me in the central highlands, looking for the guerrillas who have been besieging the camp.

2nd Thurlow

2nd THURLOW — Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mitchell and family were Sunday visitors of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. McMahon at Purdy.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell spent a few days recently with relatives at Chatham, also with other friends enroute.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Atkins, Brighton, were recent visitors of the former's mother, Mrs. Douglas Atkins. They enjoyed a drive to Napanee, Marinaw, Newburg, Verona and other places.

Teachers and principal, Mrs. Claude Hennessey arranged a Hallowe'en party at the Stone Church bazaar on Wednesday afternoon.

EUCHRE PARTY

Mrs. J. Chumbley, Mrs. H. Thomson were hostesses for the Neighbors' Aid euchre on Friday night. Prizes were won by Mrs. Jim Dowell (nee Howard) who were married recently. Euchre was enjoyed by all after which Mr. S. Ray called the gathering to order and asked the couple to seats of honor. Mrs. Arnold Mitchell read an appropriate address expressing best wishes. Mrs. Ray presented them with a gift of money. Mr. and Mrs. Dowdle both expressed thanks. Lunch was served and a social time spent.

SECOND SHOWER

Neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dunley gathered at the Neighbors' Aid hall on Saturday night in honor of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Garrow, who were recently married. Euchre was enjoyed with prizes won as follows: Mr. Jim Dunley, Mrs. Rita Dunley; low, Mr. Jim Keene. An appropriate address was read by Mrs. Harry Grills, expressing best wishes. Margaret King presented them with a gift of money. Lunch was served and a social time spent. Mr. and Mrs. Garrah now reside in Kingston.

three-party "fusion" campaign in the manner of the late Fiorello La Guardia, the last Republican mayor, who left office in 1945 after three terms.

RUNNING MATES BEATEN

But Lindsay was unable to carry in his running mates—Liberal party chairmen Timothy Costello and Democrat Hilton Mellon, scouring side under wagon.

They were defeated by Beame's Democratic team, Queens District Attorney Frank O'Connor, who was the city council presidency, and Mario Procaccino, city comptroller.

Beame was bidding to become the first Jewish mayor in a city of 8,000,000 that is nearly one-fourth Jewish. Most of the Bronx and Brooklyn, with heavy Jewish populations, but lost Queens, Manhattan and Staten Island.

Lindsay cut deeply into a traditionally Democratic Jewish vote and held his own in Republican areas to put together a winning coalition. He also did down a bit the generally top-heavy vote Democrats usually win in Negro neighborhoods.

These gains for Lindsay were outweighed, however, by the unusually low vote in Brooklyn for Beame, who won the borough but did not get half the vote there.

NOT AS OVERPOWERING

It appeared that Buckley's votes were not as related from Beame. Beame's margins in Brooklyn, the Bronx and the Harlem areas of Manhattan were substantial, but nowhere near as overpowering as Democrats normally are in these areas.

Man Poses No Threat To Security

-- Cardin

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Cardin said Tuesday he will review all aspects of a spy case before deciding whether prosecution is justified.

He also said in a statement that a Canadian involved, now reported to be working for the post office in Yarmouth, N.S., "poses no threat to the security of the nation."

Prime Minister Pearson announced last May 31 in the Commons that the government was considering bringing charges against one of two Canadians involved in a spy case that resulted in the expulsion of two Russian diplomats.

Mr. Pearson said the man involved was a "junior civil servant" who worked outside Ottawa in a "non-sensitive" job and was privately in debt.

The prime minister praised the actions of another Canadian who came to officials at the outset of Russian attempts to get information and helped upset the scheme.

CARDIN COMMENTS

Referring to a report from Vancouver that the indictment prospect was in good health after working for the post office, Mr. Cardin's statement issued here said in part:

"The state of the man's health caused unavoidable delays in obtaining and assessing all the statements and evidences concerning his participation in espionage operations.

"The RCMP have been in close touch with the man throughout."

The two Russians declared "persons non grata" and expelled May 7 were a commercial attache, Mr. E. Petrochkov, and an embassy clerk, V. N. Pokutchkiv, of the Soviet Embassy here.

The external affairs department said the Russians paid the Canadians "thousands of dollars" after approaching them to get classified defence and intelligence data.

Princess Margaret Packs Secret Wardrobe For Her Long-Awaited Tour Of U.S.

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret excitedly packed a secret wardrobe today for her first visit to the United States.

The princess and her husband, (Lord Snowdon) arrive Thursday in San Francisco for a three-week tour. So even she has planned for at least 17 years.

British correspondents in the United States already are telling their readers here that the West Coast seems gripped by "Meg mania," with the social set scrimmaging for invitations to meet the princess.

The princess was 18 when she first asked her father, the late King George VI, for permission to visit the United States.

The King said wait. Then events took over, and the princess' ambition had to be shelved.

In 1952, her father died. Then came her sister's coronation, followed almost immediately by the crisis over Princess Margaret's romance with divorced royal equerry, Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

Within two years the princess had married Antony Armstrong-Jones and has since been busy with her two children — Lord Linley, 4, and Lady Sarah, 1.

A feature of the 30-day progress through the states is that considerable time has been left free for private and spontaneous engagements.

This means that the princess frequently will be able to step out of the royal receiving line to look at Americana at home.

Her guide on these "occasions" will be her friend Sharman Douglas, daughter of Lewis Douglas, still remembered here as one of the most popular American ambassadors ever to grace the Court of St. James's.

Miss Douglas will be the hostess for four days of relaxation at her father's Arizona ranch. Winfield has been planned for this part of the visit except a barbecue, and perhaps a flight by President Johnson's ranch in Texas if the president is not recovered enough to receive the guest pair at a formal White House dinner.

Miss Brown says the versatile model, one who can make herself look like a young girl or a middle-aged woman, will be kept busy.

"But there aren't many who are that versatile, and it's not so much a question of ability as structure."

It's difficult to calculate what a model will earn, she says. "The usual rate is $20 an hour for photography and $25 for a fashion show. Some girls do three hours of photography a week. Others work 20 hours."

The Experts Say

Lot of Commercial Models Are Mothers, Housekeepers

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—If you're a housewife with spare hours and a yen to work part-time, you might consider modelling.

"A lot of our commercial models are mothers and housekeepers," says Constance Brown, who runs a large modelling agency here.

The idea that models must be tall, skinny and strikingly beautiful is incorrect, says Miss Brown, who has 15 years experience in the field in New York and Montreal.

Her agency handles several areas of modelling: Live modelling for department stores, fashion houses and couturiers; still photography, commercial and fashion; and commercial and fashion television filming.

"In a city like New York, agencies would specialize in one of these areas but Montreal is not large enough."

Each category requires a different type of model, Miss Brown says. Housewives work mostly in commercial photography and TV commercials. "Here the girl-next-door type, not the kind of models seen in the fashion magazines, is required. This type of work usually involves advertising air travel, furniture or household products, and there is lots of it. We have models up to 70 years of age."

Fashion models are used for cosmetics advertisements, Miss Brown says, but this is a smaller part of the TV business.

JOBS FOR PETITES

The agency also hires teen-age models. Those working part-time are advanced high school or university students.

"And due to the youth craze the fashion industry is currently promoting, the petite model has more work than before. Under usual conditions the fashion model under five-foot-five was too short. But five-foot-three and four models are being used for the Chelsea, little-girl and go-go looks. This was unheard of until this year and I don't think it will last."

The girl with a nine-to-five job is out of luck for part-time modelling. "Most of the work is done during the day. Evening work is usually an extension of the day's work."

But those with work schedules that are adaptable can get work. "We have fashion illustrators, commercial artists, physiotherapists and nurses, for instance. They do not keep regular hours and so can combine both jobs."

Anyone interested in part-time or full-time modelling should take a course from a recognized agency, Miss Brown says. Montreal and Toronto are the most favorable locations but there are opportunities for similar work in other cities.

Her agency gives a six-month night course for $175 in which students are taught makeup, grooming, poise and the like.

"People who want to make their livelihood at modelling come mostly from the 18-to-28 age group. Those above or below those limits are not trying to make a living and usually do one or two assignments a month."

MAKEUP IMPORTANT

What makes a good model?

"She must first of all be an expert makeup artist for her own face. Most important, she must have a professional manner. She must be able to take directions well. The best models are highly organized. They are ready to go with all equipment needed 20 minutes ahead of time."

U.C.W. Meetings

VICTORIA UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

GORE — The Victoria U.C.W. met last Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Morris Pulver, with 11 members present.

Mrs. Hubert Townsend, president opened the meeting with a call to worship. Master Roger Pulver favored with a guitar solo. A number of items of business were discussed. Donations were handed in for relief work. Mrs. S. Brown invited members for the December meeting to her home.

Mrs. Frank Townsend led in the devotional which centred on the yellow of the spectrum which represents cowardice - "We can be cowards mentally, physically and morally."

An interesting paper on Robert Raikes, the founder of the Sunday School movement was read by Mrs. Herman Montgomery.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Pulver and committee and a social time enjoyed over the tea cups. Following lunch the T.V. program 'Mr. On The Spot', sponsored by the United Church, was enjoyed by those present.

I.O.D.E. Group Hears of Plans For Expo '67

Mrs. Ralph C. Ellis, Regent of St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E., opened the November meeting by receiving into membership, Mrs. G. A. Deline, who came from Eldon House Chapter in London. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Stan Kvarnds, Dundas St. West, with 20 members present.

The Regent reported that the minutes and year books of both the Provincial and National Chapters were on hand for perusal of members. An invitation to attend the play, "The Importance of Being Earnest," at B.C.I. was read.

Mrs. C. R. Whittemore, educational secretary, reported that she had attended graduation exercises and presented prizes at Moira Secondary School, Nicholson College, and Quinte Secondary School, and that the Regent had made the presentation at B.C.I. Mrs. Whittemore stressed that new Canadians should be encouraged to retain some aspects of their former lands.

Mrs. Watkiss, services secretary, reported that several parcels of books had been sent out, and that dolls, children's cut out books and puzzles were also sent to the Fox Nursing Home.

It was decided to send a donation to the Firemen's Fund for Christmas toys.

Mrs. Ken Macdonald said the Chapter will entertain the 14 students in the two basic English classes at B.C.I. on November 25th, at 8 p.m. when a film will be shown.

World Affairs convener, Mrs. George Hume, gave a paper on plans for Expo 67, Canada's centennial world's fair, which will open on April 28th, 1967, and will have as its theme "Man and His World." Mrs. Hume said that Expo had warned participating nations that universal exhibitions should not be a static showcase - any temptation to show the latest 'hardware' must be resisted." Expo intends to be more than just a fancy country fair.

The treasurer, Mrs. William Slade, presented a list of suggested expenditures.

Mrs. Hume, ways and means convener, presented for consideration the suggestion that the members be divided into four groups, each of which would work on a special money-making project.

The next meeting will be the Christmas dinner meeting to be held on Monday, December 6th.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS J. MULLIN

Mullin – Masterson

Pink, white and bronze mums adorned the altar in St. Edmunds Church, Stoco, recently, when Mary Helen Elizabeth Masterson, daughter of Mr. Francis Masterson of Stoco (and the late Mrs. Elizabeth Masterson) was united in marriage to Thomas Joseph Mullin, of Oshawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Mullin of Cannifton.

Father T. E. Brieland officiated at the double-ring ceremony and wedding music was provided by Mr. Lawrence Lesage who accompanied the soloist Mrs. Fergus Cassidy who sang appropriate nuptial selections.

Given in marriage by her brother the bride wore a beautiful scooped neckline styling of peau de soie complimented by a four inch band of scalloped lace which circled the waist of the gown. This same motif was carried on down into the skirt with two of the same bands of lace. The sheath bone of the gown were enhanced by the detachable train flowing from the waist of the back. The bridal headpiece was the new cap look of the matching lace and shoulder length tiered scalloped illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses with trailing ivy.

The maid of honor, Miss Lois Masterson, sister of the bride, wore a gown in gold nylon organza over taffeta in the street length with sheath styling, matching gold jacket in Alecon lace. The matching headpiece was of peau de soie to match the gown in pleated wedding ring circle with a back bow of self material, she carried a bouquet of bronze 'mums and trailing ivy.

Mr. Francis Mullin, brother of the bridegroom was the best man and Mr. Joseph Masterson, brother of the bride, and Mr. Gerald Nash were ushers.

For the dinner at the Stoco Motor Hotel, the bride's aunt, Mrs. John Lajoie Jr. of Tweed received the guests wearing a two-piece blue ensemble trimmed with lace, navy accessories with a corsage of feathered pink carnations. Later on in the afternoon, a reception was held at the St. Edmunds Parish Hall, Stoco.

For the wedding trip to Quebec City the bride chose a gold two-piece double knit suit with mink collar, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses.

On their return the couple will reside in Oshawa.

Trade Union Outlook Hampering Social Work Progress Says Expert

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal psychologist said Tuesday men and women capable of tackling and helping solve some of today's pressing social problems are prevented from doing so by professionals with a trade union mentality.

Speaking before 425 persons attending the second Canadian conference on children, Dr. M. S. Rabinovitch, a Stillman Memorial research scientist, said: "It is time to take a cold, objective look at qualifications because sometimes qualifications for membership in the trade union are confused with qualifications for doing the job."

Dr. Rabinovitch said delegates will hear "that we need more trained teachers, more trained social workers and so on. But this will never be the case, never was, might be terrible, if it were."

The psychologist said the trade-union attitude prevents a needed "imaginative mobilization of manpower, and particularly of women-power.

"Surely there is a tremendous mass of women - power right in front of our noses . . . there are so many discontented housewives."

COULD RUN HOMES

At a press conference after his address, Dr. Rabinovitch said one job for housewives who want to give their services was the running of group-living institutions that he said should be established to house children removed from multi-problem homes.

Turning to the family, he condemned society's present attitude to that institution, calling it sentimental, romantic and sanctimonious.

He suggested the family was failing to produce "socially-conscious children." Children are not given an opportunity to see how the community functions or to "take character out of their environment and shape it to theirs.

"How many children know where their father disappears when he leaves in the morning, or what he does until he reappears at night?" "How many have even seen his office?"

He said a common attitude today is that it is difficult to bring up children because we don't know much about tomorrow's world.

KNOW ENOUGH NOW

"But I submit we know enough to know that it is better for each child to grow up knowing how to live with himself, with independence of mind and spirit in a welfare state . . . to live with others of different language color, culture and outlook . . . and with the value and goal of knowledge that will enable them to get above their own environment and control it."

Earlier, Dr. Alan Thomas of Toronto, executive director of the Association for Adult Education, said he found that problems concerning children tend to be discussed on the technical level when they were often moral questions.

During a press conference, Dr. Thomas said he objected to raising the compulsory school age to 18 "because it will just make it harder to develop voluntary choice to become a learner." He said he thought the present law requiring young people to remain in school until the age of 16 "could be reduced a few years with benefits to us all."

Voluntary drive for education has to be developed in adults as well as children, he said. The present idea that everything has to be crammed into the secondary school period is changing.

"We need an adult population that chooses to learn all its life. And once children see parents in school and continuing to learn, their attitude to education completely changes."

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH W.A.
(Evening Branch)

The November business meeting of the Christ Church Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was held on Monday evening.

The service of meditation was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. Bougard, assisted by Mrs. Cherry Frith Mrs. L. Williams at the piano. It was noted that November is of real importance as it begins with All Saints Day and ends on St. Andrew's Day.

Reports of the various secretaries were heard and finandially the group has had a most successful year. The president thanked all for their hearty cooperation in the work for the Centennial Tea.

Subscriptions for the "Living Message" are now being accepted by Mrs. F. Goodfellow.

Mrs. P. Burton gave some highlights of the recent vestry council meeting.

A donation was made to the Little Helpers' secretary, Mrs. A. Smith, for carrying on her duties. Several expressed appreciation for remembrances they had received.

The 1966 church calendars were offered for sale as well as tickets for the Chi Rho 'Variety Night' later this month.

Mrs. Bougard showed movies of the recent Centennial Tea and her daughter's wedding which were enjoyed by all.

Tea and sandwiches were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Cooke and Mrs. A. Hedger.

Alouette Club Celebrates Hallowe'en

Last Saturday night, the French Alouette Club held its October social activity under the supervision of Mr. James Hollquist, president of the Club, which took the form of a Hallowe'en party.

After the children were back home from their "Trick or Treat" outing members of the club and friends gathered in the St. Joseph's Parish Hall. About 100 of them in costumes of all kinds made a most amusing group. Queen's, kings, noble princes were to meet with ghosts, pirates, beach boy and girl of the twenties, Indians, Hawaiian girls, cowboys and even a Martian lady visiting this planet.

The opening dance under the direction of Mr. Merrill Gordon, master of ceremonies, participants promenaded for the choice of the best costume.

Prizes were as follows: best couples, Miss Brenda Stone and Mr. Michael Thiffault; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Boisvert; Mr. and Mrs. James Hollquist Jr; spot dance winners were: Miss Lynda Seames and Mr. Robert Hullquist.

Door prizes went to Messrs. Al Sullivan, Alphee Berrigan and Jean-Francois Bellande. Guests were present from Belleville, Ottawa, Trenton, Montreal and Picton.

Learn-to-swim Program Puts Youngsters in Pool At Age of 9 Months

By DON MacLACHLAN

EDMONTON (CP)—The City of Edmonton's learn - to - swim program aims to put young stars in the pool before they go to school—some as early as nine months old.

"They can't do a heck of a lot at nine months," says Jack Boddington, supervisor of pools and swims. "But they get used to the water and learn faster.

"We've had two - year - olds splashing around in the deep end. Not on their own of course—using (flotation) bubbles—but actually controlling themselves."

The pre-school program, in which instructors show mothers how to teach their children to swim, is unique, Mr. Boddington says. Some 800 mothers brought children this year.

The city last year took over instruction of programs run by national and provincial aquatic organizations and "registration has never been so high," Mr. Boddington says.

In September there were 2,000 vacancies in various stages of the program. "About 3,000 came. The vacancies were filled within the first hour of registration."

The program last year produced 10,427 of the 30,248 Albertans who passed Canadian Red Cross water safety courses and 1,093 of the 3,300 Alberta graduates of the Royal Life Saving Society program.

In the Red Cross program, Alberta ran second to Ontario and in the life-saving program third to Ontario and Quebec. But, says Mr. Boddington, "on a per capita basis we were second in that too."

The former recreation supervisor of Jasper Place, now amalgamated with Edmonton in 1963, credits "vigorous" municipal swimming programs for Alberta's record.

More than 150 full and part-time instructors work in Edmonton, among them Bonnie Durnin, national synchronized swimming champion in 1961, who also placed fifth in the 1955 world surfing contest.

In the pre-school program, mothers go into the pools with their children and support them while instructors show them how to accustom their children to water and teach them to swim.

"When they're supported they automatically kick," Mr. Boddington says. "And then they discover they're moving. They also get orientated to water, get used to having their heads go under and being splashed.

"We also have a lot of five- and six - year - olds who can make it without their mothers to help them. Many are graduates of our pre-school class."

The city's program operates all year at four indoor pools and during summer at five outdoor pools as well. The system went $120,000 into the red in 1961.

Ann Landers
Child's Looks Are Always a Gamble

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice is usually excellent, but I think you could have done much better with your answer to the 13-year-old girl whose father said, "If you marry Chick you'll regret it because your children will be ugly and it's not fair to give kids a handicap like that."

ANN LANDERS

Haven't you noticed that some of the most beautiful people have ugly parents and some of the most gorgeous couples produce physically unattractive children.

What a child is going to look like is the biggest gamble known to mankind. It all depends on how the chromosomes and genes combine. If the little rascals that carry the worst features of both parents get together, you'll have a real loser. On the other hand, if the best features of two average looking people collide you may get a raving beauty or a screamingly handsome boy.

So, why didn't you tell the girl to give her Dad that word, Ann? — GOT THE BEST FROM BOTH.

* * *

DEAR COT: Why? Because I didn't think of it. But you did and I thank you for providing my readers with a heck of a lot better answer than I gave them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a middle-aged woman who was recently widowed. Several of my friends have been very generous about inviting me out to dinner and to their homes for cocktail parties.

My husband was never much of a drinker and neither am I. Now I find myself embarrassed when I am out for an evening and my friends order martinis, Manhattans, whiskey sours, and Bloody Marys because I don't know one drink from another usually order what the person next to me has.

I hate to admit it, Ann, but I am a poor drinker and two drinks make me feel dizzy and I get rather foolish. Will you please give me the names of some mild drinks that I can order with safety? — SOCIAL DRINKER.

DEAR SOCIAL: Soda pop, fruit juices, consequede, iced tea, gingerale, orange juice, tomato juice, pineapple juice, grapefruit juice and of course, there's always plain ice water.

The reason I prefer these beverages to the ones you named is because you can have as many as you want and you need never worry about feeling dizzy or acting foolish.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I received an engraved card announcing the marriage of a son of a close friend who lives in a nearby city.

The card arrived the day after the wedding. We feel badly that we didn't get the card in time to attend. Don't you think if they had really wanted us to come they would have mailed the card earlier?

We had planned to buy a wedding gift, but now we don't know if we should. Are we wrong to feel this way? How would you feel? — GOT THE WORD LATE.

* * *

DEAR LATE: You did not receive an invitation, you received an announcement. Some people appreciate a wedding announcement but since you are asking me how I would feel I will tell you that an announcement strikes me as a naked pitch for a present. Send a gift only if you feel like it.

* * *

Are you at war with your parents? Do they have too much to say in your life? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged by Parents? How to Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The million-dollar grapes

In 1934 Brights began to import young vines of the finest wine grapes grown in the world. You see six of the results here. These are admittedly, among the finest wines ever produced in Canada. If you insist on an imported label, you've wasted your time reading this far. If you ignore the label and judge the wine, waste no more time reading. Try these wines, soon. We envy you your first thrill of discovery.

President Champagne Canada's prize champagne. For any dinner, all gala occasions, especially weddings and anniversaries.

President Sauterne A light white wine for the table. With fish, fowl, white meats, salads.

President Sherry Ideal before dinner; with hors d'oeuvres, soup course.

President Extra Dry A dry delicate wine that inspires enconiums from all who try it. With fish, white meat, salads.

What could be more delightful, more acceptable than two or three of these famous wines, or a complete President Wine Cellar?

Young People From Quebec Most at Odds With Parents

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — What is the attitude of Canadian youth toward love, parents, culture, education?

Monique Lepitre, a high school student here, and three of her friends decided to go after the answers.

The four girls distributed a questionnaire to 150 young people 16 and 17 years old across the country.

From the replies the girls concluded that Canadian youth is unanimous on only one point:

Within the household it's the man's duty to work and the woman's to keep house and raise children.

The replies showed that attitude toward the older generation varied depending on the province.

For example, most young people in Ontario were willing to rely on their parents' judgment, experience and maturity.

In Saskatchewan, half thought the older generation dull, the remainder regarded it as "extraordinary" and said it was a failure to say that grownups didn't understand today's youth.

Answers from British Columbia suggested the young found their elders a little behind the times but otherwise they held them in respect and admiration.

The general attitude in Quebec was rebellious. "Their greatest fault is that they want to impose their experience on us while resisting the only probable experience is that which we acquire in living ourselves," was one typical reply.

CRITICIZE SCHOOLS

Asked to comment on the educational systems in their areas, only those in B.C. made generally favorable comments. School authorities were reproached for not granting students enough liberty and for overburdening students with work that would have no use in real life.

The teen-agers were asked to list the things for which they would risk their lives. In this order they were: to save a person in danger; in the name of freedom; their country or religion; the love of risk.

Asked to list what they considered the essential values of life they came up with this list: loyalty, intelligence, generosity, friendship, courage, fidelity, tolerance, a sense of humor, purity, energy, dynamism and disinterestedness.

The replies showed little emphasis on money in the quest for happiness. Miss Lepitre said they even showed a profound contempt for riches.

In the field of culture, the answers showed girls highly interested in new art forms while the boys were passive.

As for love, Miss Lepitre says that except for a disgruntled few, Canadian youth seems to agree "it is the essence of life; it is life."

Wednesday Week's Best Day...Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Friends, let us consider the days of the week. Which is the best?

I would like to say that a word for Wednesday. It is the true day when mankind stands upon the summit of himself. It is the day of absolute human integrity.

All days have their reasons for being. Let us consider their values.

Monday is the pal of the eager beaver and the foe of the tired beaver.

Monday is liked by people who study yoga, who enjoy beating their freedom against a discipline, who swim in the surf in the winter and get their picture in the papers for doing so.

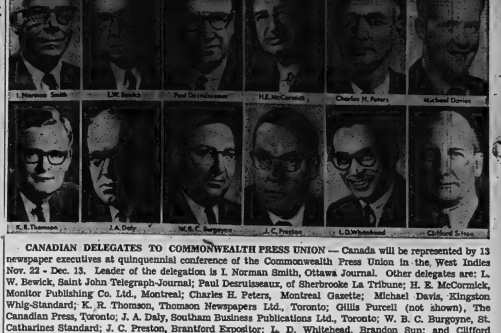
For the rest of humanity, Monday is a long ugh-h-h. It is a day when childhood goes back to school, man to his duty, and woman considers what to do with this week's laundry.

Tuesday is really at most an escapist's advance hey and Monday. Its only other use is that it is the one-time of the week on which to borrow money.

We now skip to Thursday, and will come back to Wednesday later. Thursday is the day before Friday. Thursday is the day you promise to pay money back but don't. Thursday is the day of suffocation of all endeavor. Thursday is the day when you begin to explain to yourself why you haven't done so far this week what you don't intend to do on Friday.

ANTICIPATE WEEKEND

Everybody knows what Friday is for. It is the day of the long lurch, the glad leap from responsibility, the plunge into the liberty of the weekend. It is the day to hide from the guy you borrowed money from on Tuesday and promised to pay back on Thursday.



Saturday is for going to football games, admiring the way your wife cutgeths grass, or artfully raking fallen leaves so that the wind will blow them into your neighbor's yard. It is also a great night to watch late shows on television.

Sunday is for considering heaven and endeavor and brooding about the incongruities of a divine injustice that has ordained Monday as the next day. It also is the best day to jump in the family buggy and make impolitible journeys to far-away friends who didn't expect you at the table and from whose home it takes you until midnight to return.

This, friends, leaves us the wealth of Wednesday. Wednesday is the peak of the week.

It is the necessary bridge between the ordeal of Monday and the freedom of Friday. It is the one day of the week when people can achieve purpose.

Anybody who can't get something done on Wednesday doesn't really know how to waste the rest of the week constructively. He is only like dying himself.

Soviet Poet Ydvtushenko New Movement Symbol

By JOHN REST

MOSCOW (CP) — Yevgeny Ydvtushenko, the intense young poet who personifies the movement for free artistic expression in the Soviet Union, is coming back strong after nearly two years of enforced silence.

Yevtushenko has had a number of poems published in recent months, notably Bratsk Hydroelectric Station, an epic running to about 10,000 lines.

Some people say you can judge the climate of the struggle for creative expression in Russia at any given time by noting the position of Yevtushenko.

He symbolized the germination of limited but deeply treasured liberties that the creative intelligentsia won following the death of Stalin.

After Premier Khrushchev cracked down on liberal artists in 1962 and 1963—no doubt feeling they were getting out of hand—Yevtushenko felt into official disgrace.

He did not reappear in public until last fall, at a time when there was widespread speculation about a new artistic thaw following the overthrow of Khrushchev.

STRAITJACKET EASED

Subsequent events seemed to discourage any expectation of a swift and fundamental loosening of controls. However, various signs have suggested that artists are becoming more confident and a little more disposed to experiment with forms and material previously considered taboo by guardians of ideological purity.

By any yardstick publication of Yevtushenko's new poems, in the magazine Yunost (Youth), is an important event in Soviet literary development.

Bratsk Hydroelectric Station is characterized by the same grasping for truth that marks all of the 32-year-old Yevtushenko's poetry.

This yearning is reflected in an early passage describing a journey across Russia he made with his wife Galya, in a small car. One evening at dusk, Galya got out the transistor radio which, says the poet, was "blazing in her hands."

"From it, unashamed before the stars,
"Lies . were "vivaciously pouring in many languages.
"Somewhere, do not lie and play."

Also like his earlier works, it combines social commentary with poetic lyricism. The whole flavored by a decidedly abstract quality.

The epic is built around a dialogue between the Bratsk hydro station in Siberia and an Egyptian pyramid, with the hydro station representing optimism and enlightenment, the pyramid pessimism and obscurantism.

Yevtushenko says in an introduction that he worked "painfully and happily" on the poem for two years—which would just about coincide with the period of his artistic exile under Khrushchev.

Its true epic style Yevtushenko invokes the names of a number of famous Russian poets in his "prayer before the poem," a kind of prologue—much as though he were invoking the muses.

All are pre-revolutionary, or straddle the period of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution. Among them are Boris Pasternak, who won the 1958 Nobel Prize for his novel Doctor Zhivago, but was forced by Khrushchev to reject it.

Pasternak, whom Yevtushenko knew personally, died in 1960, a tragic and lonely figure. His novel never has been published in the Soviet Union.

Yevtushenko, addressing the late poet-novelist, expresses the wish that "your candle would be burning beside me."

In a reference to Russia, Yevtushenko persevered the pyramid as seeing "snowdrifts instead of sands, peasants, workers and many serfs."

"There are officials, there is an army.
"There is probably its pharoah.

"I see a banner . . . Red.
"Oh,
"I know so many banners."

DARK DAYS RECALLED

Included in the panoramic sweep of Yevtushenko's poem, whose slant is towards contemporary Russia although it spans the ages, are references to the repression of the Stalin period.

One moving passage tells of a grandmother carrying "in hands careless" wild flowers to a prison camp, presumably for those in custody there.

An old Bolshevik, once falsely imprisoned, exhorts others not to betray their consciences:

"And if you should be in difficulty
"Do not betray your conscience or friend
"Then you would betray the dead and the living."

The rhyme scheme in Yevtushenko's poem is varied and irregular, as is the metre, which ranges from lambic pentameter to line of single words.

Reviews of the poem in Soviet publications have been lukewarm, vaguely hesitant and non-committal.

The prestigious Literaturnaya Gazeta (Literary Gazette) recognized in its account that Yevtushenko's language strikes "a response in the heart." But it accuses the poet of being superficial.

"The illness of superficiality is an oil Yevtushenko illness," it comments.

Castonguay Leads Double Life Running Voting, Redistribution

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay is leading a double life during this federal election.

By day he keeps the machinery operating smoothly for the Nov. 8 election. Working mainly by telephone from headquarters in a one-storey brick building in nearby Eastview, the 55-year-old Mr. Castonguay helps returning officers in 263 ridings unravel any snags they encounter.

By night he's occupied with his other job as the country's representation commissioner, co - ordinating the most complete redistribution of federal electoral ridings ever undertaken. It is a task that confuses uninterrupted although this election is being fought on the old boundaries set in 1952.

Since the election was called, Mr. Castonguay's cross-country trips on redistribution work have been cut. But as the fourth member of each provincial redistribution commission, he'll bury each night reading transcripts of evidence presented to commission hearings. He made his celebrant to the commission chairmen.

TOPS FATHER'S RECORD

This is the sixth election in which he has been chief electoral officer, breaking a record held by his father and predecessor, Jules, who ran five general elections between 1927 and 1949.

When the election call came, he moved from the office to the office, above a downtown restaurant, leaving it in the hands of his executive assistant, Ottawa Rough Rider fullback Ron Stewart.

Mr. Castonguay presents a fascinating study while handling the election over the telephone. A distinguished-looking man with greying hair and dark-rimmed glasses, he chain-smokes, sips coffee and scribbles notes on a pad while rattling off orders to returning officers.

He is fluent in French and English and knows the Canada Elections Act by heart. An articulate conversationalist with a good sense of humor, he is firm but light-hearted to hard-flog cost directions.

The telephone is usually saved for interpretations of the elections act. Requests for supplies and other material flow in over a special telegraph received installed in his office.

STAFF EXPANDS

During an election, his normal staff of 18 swells to more than 100 to prepare and mail the tons of supplies needed in each riding. An evening skeleton staff receives emergency calls, sometimes calling on the boss in difficult situations.

With deadlines for enumerations and nominations, the "in" basket must be cleared each day if possible, he said in an interview.

Finance department officers are installed in his office during an election to handle and pay the money owed to about 200,000 part-time personnel.

A few officers from the auditor-general's office are there as well to make sure the figures are correct. Estimated cost to the public treasury of running this election is about $13,000,000.

Between elections, Mr. Castonguay is kept busy preparing reports for Parliament, appearing before committees committees and running any by-elections.

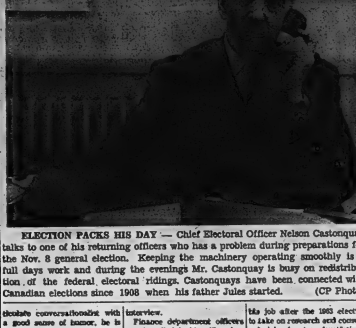
Mr. Castonguay almost quit this job after the 1963 election to take on research and consultant jobs for two foundations. But he stayed on when the Liberal government decided to proceed with the oft-delayed redistribution, a task that should be completed next year.

PONDER PERMANENT LIST

He has agreed to take on then the onerous job of studying the possibility of setting up a permanent voters' list aimed at shortening process election campaigns which run for six to eight weeks.



Castonguay have been connected with Canadian elections since 1936 when Jules Castonguay entered the office of the clerk of the Crown in chancery, which ran elections then.

In 1921 Parliament created the post of chief electoral officer and Jules in 1927 became the second holder of the office. He ran five elections during his 22 years.

Nelson entered the electoral office in 1934, becoming chief officer when his father retired after the 1949 election. The post ranks with a deputy-ministership. Appointment is by resolution of the House of Commons and he can remove him only by a two-thirds vote. Deputy returning officers are appointed by the returning officer.

He only break with the electoral office during the working life was for wartime service with the Royal Canadian Navy in which he became a lieutenant-commander.

He and his wife have four children—Lynne (Mrs. Peter Kirby of Montreal), Gillian, Sandy and Peter.

ELECTION PACKS HIS DAY — Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay talks to one of his returning officers who has a problem during preparations for the Nov. 8 general election. Keeping the machinery operating smoothly is a full days work and during the evenings Mr. Castonguay is busy on redistribution of the federal electoral ridings. Castonguays have been connected with Canadian elections since 1908 when his father Jules started. (CP Photo)

MINTO — Sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green in the sudden passing of her father, Mr. R. Lake of Stirling.

Mr. Jack Dunlay is a patient of Belleville hospital following a heart attack.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Jackson spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Keith Jackson of Streetsville.

SHOWER HONORS COUPLE

Selom U.C. hall was filled to capacity Saturday evening when relatives, friends and neighbors gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hagerman, formerly Lois Morrow on their recent marriage. Mr. Ivan Saries capably filled the duties of chairman, expressing happiness and best wishes to the bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. Verne Hagerman led in community singing. Readings were given by Miss Edna Tanner, Mrs. Ralph Clements, Mrs. Stanley Thompson and Mrs. Clare Hagerman. Musical selections were given by Larry Forestell, Cathy Wickens and Jane Clements.

Mr. Ross Saries then read the address and Joe and Lois were presented with a china cabinet .They also received individual gifts for which they expressed thanks. They invited all to visit them in their new home in Oshawa.

Mr. B. Belshaw of Stirling spoke briefly. Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Red Cross Plans Blood Donor Clinic

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Branch, Red Cross Society held its October meeting at the home of Miss Ruth Lloyd. Mrs. G. Walker, president, opened the meeting. Letters and verbal thanks were received from many who had been remembered while ill, and from those who had attended the dinner and social evening for senior citizens.

Miss Lloyd reported on women's work, Mrs. D. Dawson on loan cupboard and blood donors. Deseronto branch will be working in co - operation with Napanee at the next blood donors clinic to be held on November 18, 1965. How important this phase of work is was illustrated, when a member told of two boys in another part of Ontario who have hemophilia. The father and mother both told of their thankfulness for the blood donor service and what it meant to them and to their boys.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by Miss Lloyd and Mrs. G. Stuart.

Mr. Patrick Gregor of Petawawa Camp who has been holidaying here has left for British Columbia to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Loyst.

Dr. McVicker Has Resigned From Council

DESERONTO — Councillor Dr. D. C. McVicker resigned from council Monday evening, stating this was to be effective immediately, due to pressure of business. He mentioned he felt he was needed to attend to medical matters at the public school in a proper manner.

This action would make it possible for Dr. D. C. McVicker to be hired as M. O. H. The council to date has not been able to fill this position.

A resignation was also received from Mr. W. Cotter as plumbing inspector as Mr. Cotter has left to take up residence in Niagara Falls. Advertisements will be placed for applicants for this position.

The consulting engineer reported progress on the making of plans for the proposed changes in Highway curbing and drainage through town. The majority of modifications are to be paid for by Department of Highways.

Three extra police were on duty Hallowe'en night and no damage was done, except to one car that was badly scraped.

Costly Project To Fix Sewer Council Told

NAPANEE — Mr. R. Hooper, representative of the Napanee Co-Op, thanked council for prompt action on the drain in front of the Co-Op, but said he hoped they were not going to stop at this point, because it was still far from satisfactory. The old storm sewer is blocked at some point and rods cannot be used to unblock it. The water which backs up when a downpour occurs is very costly to the Co-Op in spoilage to goods and also damages the furnace. Mr. R. Marshall stated it would be a costly project to the town to fix it properly and the budget would not stand it this year but would certainly be included next year.

The Jaycees this year will be sponsoring the Santa Claus parade. Permission was granted by council to hold this parade on December 4 with the usual police and fire department protection.

The Department of Highways recently widened the Highway 41 and the section which is within Napanee limits will be deeded to the town. No mention was made of the CNR property being included, therefore the council will not accept deed until this property is included in the parcel. Napanee will be responsible for the cutting of weeds and mowplowing on this section.

The Napanee and District Secondary School Board requested and received an endorsement of approval on the proposed addition to the Napanee school. The council voted unanimously on this approval and acceptance of their share of the cost.

Hydro and telephone poles on the Newburg road are to be re-located further away from the road, before this a survey will be secured to make sure they are on town property, if the price of the survey does not exceed $300. The cost of relocation will be approximately $1,100.

DAIRY GIVEN REFUND

Wilmott's Dairy will be given a refund of $187 on sewage treatment charges. They are no longer bottling milk or cream in Napanee and are not using water for these purposes.

Public Welfare committee brought in a report which was approved. No licence will be granted to any nursing home that does not make a definite effort to supply with the recommendation of the Medical Officer of Health and the Fire Chief as required by the Nursing Homes By-law of the town. Secondly, that the M.O.H. and Fire Chief take immediate action to condemn any place of abode, unfit for human habitation and report to Municipal council.

The nursing homes in Napanee will receive an extension of one month before being issued with their licences, as they are in the process of renovation to bring these homes up to date. Caird's nursing home will discontinue operation. A monthly inspection by M.O.H. and Fire Chief was voted in by council. This will keep Napanee Nursing homes up to date and safe from hazards. Mayor Smart stated the owners are co-operating.

The 60-day period given before prosecuting anyone operating a stone quarry in town, has expired. Many conflicting reports have been received as to whether the H. J. McFarland Co., are still quarrying on Robin's hill. Mayor Smart after leaving the chair made a motion, that the police inspect daily until further notice to make sure the quarry is not being operated, if so it is to be reported to the town solicitor. The council does not want to the removal of stone, which has been previously blasted and crushed.

ADMIT COMPLICITY

STUTTGART, West Germany (Reuters) — Two former SS (Nazi elite) soldiers admitted Tuesday taking part in mass shootings of Jewish men, women and children in the Polish town of Tarnopol, Galicia. Former SS Sgt. Willie Herrmann, 56, admitted participation in three mass shootings but denied any individual murders. He is accused of nine direct murders and complicity in more than 1,000. Former SS Sgt. Horst Guenther Winkler, 58, who is accused of helping to shoot 600 Jews, admitted taking part in one massacre of 300.

P.M. Fields Questions In TV Interview

TORONTO (CP)—Will this be Prime Minister Pearson's last election ?

Mr. Pearson, 68, said in a television interview Tuesday night he has been asked several times in the last week whether this will be his last election and his answer has always been yes.

"But ask me again on Nov. 9," he said.

The prime minister was fielding questions from Donald Gordon of the political science department, University of Alberta, Calgary, Claude Ryan of Le Devoir, Montreal, and Shaun Sutton of the Winnipeg Free Press in the CBC program The Men and the Issues.

Mr. Pearson said on the recorded program his government would have introduced major legislation on railways, banking and unemployment during the last Parliament, had the House not spent three months on the flag debate.

He said this was another reason for electing a majority Liberal government in the federal election Monday.

Questioned on his statement that another election will be necessary if a minority government is elected, the prime minister said he was not trying to blackmail the country with the threat of another election.

Everyone knows a minority governments lead to early elections, Mr. Pearson said.

Even Office Janitor Gets Rich In Rocketing Pyramid Mines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lead and zinc scorned by the prospectors of gold rush days has rocketed Pyramid Mines Ltd. to a boom in which even the office janitor got rich.

Stock in Pyramid, and other mines in the Pine Point area of the Northwest Territories, caused another thundering din on the Vancouver Stock Exchange Tuesday.

In excitement, the rush for stock recalled the frenziest Toronto trading in Windfall shares —but as one mining source put it:

"The big differences is that Windfall had no ore. This place has."

Proof of the ore is a drill core from a 62-foot section of a hole on Pyramid's property. The core assayed 8.37 per cent lead and 14.46 per cent zinc.

It was the first proof that Pyramid had found rich ore. Pine Point Mines Ltd. had any hope.

RICH IN LEAD

Pine Point Mines Itself, controlled by Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., is rich in lead and zinc.

Its 20 million reserves average 4.8 per cent lead and 7.4 per cent zinc.

Pyramid's one spectacular drill core was taken from a spot about three miles from Pine Point Mines property.

The successful Pine Point operation is ringed with claims staked by Consolidated Mining companies whose stock advanced this week along with Pyramid.

Riding the crest were operators large and small—bartenders, housewives and anybody else who could fight his way into a broker's office early Monday.

Alex Lenee, president of Pyramid, said in an interview that everyone he knows has made money on the deal.

Even the janitor of the building has $10,000 worth of stock," he said. "The postman does a good thing, too."

Mr. Lenee, along with prospector John Tancowny, formed Pyramid about three years ago.

Mr. Lenee has been threatened since the hectic trading started, by an anonymous telephone caller. He writes it off as the work of a "kook."

"I can't think why anyone would have anything against me," he said.

Police put a guard around his home Monday night.

The Pine Point area was worked over around the turn of the century by prospectors looking for gold.

His base metals were ignored at the time, but an attempt was made about 20 years later to develop them.

In 1929, oxen were used to haul a large compressor to Pine Point.

Warm weather and mosquitoes greeted the ox team, and the normally docile animals charged for the nearest waterhole, dragging the compressor behind them.

Aside from the oxen, those with unhappy memories of Pine Point include former investors who had nothing to sell when the price hit the peak Monday.

Many of them sold last week —when the stock (then unlisted) had clambered to $4.45 from about $1.20 some six weeks before.

Plenty of Gimmicks Used By Candidates to Woo Voters

OTTAWA (CP) — Gimmicks range from a Brigitte Bardot film and garbage bags to vats of perfume and gallons of rum in the Nov. 8 federal election campaign.

Campaign gimmicks tend to be as wildly individual as the 1,011 candidates for 265 House of Commons seats.

Headquarters of all parties report a straight-laced national campaign with none of the truth squads, coloring books and odd dollars that marked the 1962 and 1963 contests.

Whatever imagination, aspiration, inspiration and even desperation among the individual candidates makes up for any staidness at party headquarters.

Lucien Rivard, Rhinoceros candidate in Montreal Papineau, officially opened an outdoor rink in Valleyfield, Que., by watering it with a garden hose.

Mr. Rivard is a reporter with Montreal's Presse. Last winter his stint-and, he relates, escaped from Bordeaux Jail after being given permission to water the prisoners' rink in 42-degree weather. The other Lucien also used a hose to go over the prison walls.

COVER EVERYTHING

A survey of campaign gimmicks, or innovations as the parties prefer to describe them, spells irony, humor and even idiocy.

Harold Wilson, New Democratic candidate in Russell, paid $35 for a large balloon, painted his name on it, filled it with helium, and moored it 30 feet above an eastend property. Some one cut the mooring line and the balloon floated off.

With scandal in government a campaign issue, some Liberals are handing out red cardboard laundry bags while some Conservatives issue blue plastic garbage bags.

The nuances are up to the voter to sort out as he fills a bag with his wildwash or campaign literature.

In British Columbia, Social Credit hopeful Jack Lobinski lights children in Burnaby-Richmond with plastic bottles filled with candy pills and the inscription:

"Social Credit—your prescription for curing Canada's ills."

NOW A RECORD

Social Credit, which issued a comic book in 1963 featuring leader Robert Thompson, this time is distributing a plastic record featuring Mr. Thompson.

In Labelle, Conservative Gerard Vermette has solved the problem of voter apathy by showing a Brigitte Bardot movie at his western Quebec rallies.

Howard Grafftey, Conservative in Brome - Missisquoi, is showing a film based on a day in his life on Parliament Hill. He had a Montreal film company produce it at his own expense.

Liberal gimmicks on a national scale are mild compared with 1963, when the truth squad, headed by Judy LaMarsh, followed the Diefenbaker tirail for three days before dispersing under heavy fire.

The Diefenbaker and Diefenbollar of 1962 were followed in 1963 by a PC reply, 'a 100 per cent stable Canadian dollar' bearing a photo of Mr. Diefenbaker.

There was also a Liberal election coloring book—"this is a Canadian voter. Color him fed up."

"Last time we went in for gimmicks in a big way," said Liberal information officer Paul Boutreau in Montreal. "This time we decided against it altogether and advised candidates accordingly.

In Algoma East, Prime Minister Pearson's riding, there were free drinks after one Liberal rally. Mr. Pearson wasn't there.

Perhaps western Liberals give small envelopes of instant coffee. One of them, Mrs. Margaret Leonard in Winnipeg South, hands out coffee kits inscribed with her name because she doesn't have time to stop for coffee with those inviting her in during door-to-door campaigning.

Liberal Jack Austin, in Vancouver-Kingsway, issues aspirins, "for those who find minority government a headache."

The New Democrats also claim a straight-forward campaign.

But kids in Winnipeg South found themselves getting green cardboard apples on Halloween with the NDP message: "Sidney Green is ripe for election Nov. 8."

In Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount on Halloween, the Conservative candidate had his nephew, Taylor Hutchison, carry from door to door a placard saying "vote for my uncle Alex Hutchison."

Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver appear to be the gimmick-filled centres. The Marxtimes, where rum has always been enough, appears serene to go do the Prairies.

Liberal opponent Steve Otto hands out vials of "first class" perfume—he had 3,000 to 4,000 — to lovely girls. His election errs about 20 bus stops a morning, handing out tickets.

That traditional Quebec gimmick, packing a ballot with namesakes, cropped up in Montreal Hochelaga on nomination day.

Gerard Pelletier the printer entered the fray as an Independent after Gerard Pelletier the editor and Liberal candidate. The printer withdrew eventually.

In the spirit of it all, the Rhinoceros party, a spoof on politics, is making big plans for the next federal election.

It says it will raise $10,000 for deposits for 50 candidates, then run them all in the same riding, which merely called on Britain to do whatever was necessary to prevent unlawful independence by Rhodesia but even so it is practically assured of getting the required two-thirds majority when it comes up for approval in the General Assembly.

Whereas only seven countries—South Africa and Portugal—opposed the earlier resolution, Monday night's draft resolution was opposed by eight countries including the United States and Canada. Britain did not participate in the vote as it has done when the previous resolution came up before the UN membership.

NO USEFUL PURPOSE

The countries voting against the draft resolution Monday night, with the exception of South Africa, expressed their distaste for Smith's proposal aimed at leaving the self-governing colony in the hands of a white minority.

But they agreed with Britain's argument that it would serve no useful purpose while attempts were being made to work out a constitutional settlement on peaceful terms.

Those abstaining as well as those opposing the draft resolution also objected to the use of military force, saying that neither the committee nor the General Assembly should be asked to urge a country to use military force. They felt this was a matter for the Security Council to decide.

Nevertheless, the sense of urgency behind the Afro-Asian initiative regarding Rhodesia expresses the fear in these countries that if Rhodesia is allowed to gain independence under the present constitution, there would be a great danger of the permanent entrenchment on the African continent of another minority-ruled government on the northern border of South Africa.

Car Insurance Rates Headed One Way -- Up

HALIFAX (CP)—J. B. Humphrey of Toronto, past president of the the All Canada Insurance Federation, said Tuesday automobile insurance rates are headed one way—up.

Mr. Humphrey told a Halifax service club:

"I think that insurance rates generally will go up again not only next year, but the year after that—and the year after that."

He predicted a six-per-cent average increase across Canada.

He said the upward trend had been evident since the end of the Second World War when more prosperity multiplied traffic in North America.

"We began increasing our rates, but every time we increased them, the accident rates jumped even more. It wasn't until June this year, following three major increases in premiums, that we were able to catch up with the accident explosion."

As a result of the backlog, he said insurance companies took in about $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 less in premiums last year than was paid out in claims.

"I am sorry — but we cannot continue to give money away."

He said only a war or major recession, limiting the amount of driving, could halt the rising rates. Higher medical expenses and faster cars and increased disability compensation for accident victims contribute to the rise.

Reasonably simple changes in automobile design—efficient bumpers, bolt-on fenders and easier-to-repair body panels — could help reduce total insurance costs by about 10 per cent.

Egg Producers Warned Not to Increase Flocks

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario egg producers are trying to step egg production even more this winter as they were last.

The Ontario Egg and Fowl Producers' Marketing Board is warning egg producers not to increase their flocks. An oversupply last winter shook the industry severely.

E. A. Loomis, secretary of the board, said Monday a small rise in egg production can cause a sharp drop in prices.

Early this year, egg prices dropped so low—as cheap as 31 for four dozen Grade A large—because many large producers had increased the market.

Since the winter low, egg prices have risen to the highest level for the Toronto supermarket Tuesday were charging 79 or 75 cents for Grade A large, and 69 cents getting 51 to 52 cents a dozen.

The current high prices could encourage many of the 4,000 egg producers who left the business in the last year to come back in be sick.

Afro-Asian Bloc in UN Helps to Cool Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— The stubborn stand by the Afro-Asian bloc in the United Nations has helped cool Rhodesia's determination to seize independence immediately without Britain's consent.

The Afro-Asian and Asian nations, comprising the bulk of the membership in the 117-nation world organization, have stated loudly at the UN and in other parts of the world that they will break off relations with South Africa on the African continent—even if it means bloodshed.

It was this outcry, reinforced by such countries as Canada and the United States, that brought Premier Ian Smith of the white minority-ruled colony of Rhodesia to delay carrying out his threat of a unilateral declaration of independence.

The danger of bloodshed in Africa in the event of Rhodesia's seizure of independence from Prime Minister Wilson in Salisbury where he finally got Smith to agree to the establishment of a three-man royal commission to work out constitutional guarantees for the rights of Rhodesia's 4,000,000 non-whites before the white minority totals only 220,000.

STRONGER RESOLUTION

But despite the decision to set up a royal commission, the Afro-Asian countries, supported by the Soviet Union and the eastern European Communist bloc, pressed on in the UN trusteeship committee to push through Monday night a new draft resolution—much stronger than one passed a couple of weeks earlier—urging Britain to use military force if necessary to suspend the constitution of Rhodesia and enforce universal adult suffrage.

The new draft resolution did not get the overwhelming support of the previous resolution

Helicopter Will Become Polling Station in North

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—A helicopter is to be used as a mobile polling station in Canada's most isolated and remote constituency Nov. 8.

Stan (Red) Williams of Yellowknife, returning officer for the 1,504,953-square-mile electoral district of Northwest Territories, has asked the three candidates, Conservative, Liberal and NDP, to send representatives on the helicopter.

It also would carry a deputy returning officer, clerk and an Indian - English interpreter to operate polling stations at Resolute Lake, Rae Lake and Snare Lake.

The three settlements, within a 130-mile arc north of Yellowknife, which is 750 miles north of Edmonton, have been made accessible to Boak - equipped aircraft by freeze-up and have no residents believed capable of handling polling and ballots. Its 617 Eskimo and Indian residents are supposed to be paradise.

In the Franklin district which includes the islands and peninsulas north of the Arctic coastline, the majority of the ballot boxes are being dropped by parachute. One box, destined for Spence Bay on Boothia Peninsula, 1,400 miles north of Winnipeg, may go in by dogsled because fog in the area has made flying impossible.

The 127 polling stations in the Northwest Territories are officially listed as rural. Most could better be described as remote.

The districts includes all Canada north of the 60th parallel except the Yukon and far northern Quebec and Labrador.

Many of the polling stations are launched from bases in the Arctic Circle, and some are visited only once or twice a year by aircraft on a regular problem.

The Eskimos of Belcher Islands, in the southeast bulge of Hudson Bay, 850 miles northeast of Winnipeg, haven't seen a ballot box since the district was extended to the eastern and Arctic in 1912.

Mr. Williams commissioned a pilot to get the ballot box in "if he knows where it is." He hasn't heard whether the ballot has arrived.

Wireless, radio telephone, telephone and telegraph lines, as well as the Distant Early Warning radar line communication facilities, will be used to transmit the results of the vote. Some returns may reach Yellowknife via Newfoundland, British Columbia and the United States.

But, it's anyone's guess how soon the ballot boxes can be brought out of the returning officer in "civilization."

Spotlight Seat

Beauce Constituents Selective Unpredictable

ST. JOSEPH DE BEAUCE, Que. (CP)—The rural constituency of Beauce votes against politicians in the manner of haughty women — selectively and unpredictably.

Once a Liberal fortress, then independent, Liberal again and recently Social Credit, Beauce is being wooed this time by the leader of the New Democratic Party, Tommy Douglas, as well as by the district's incumbent MP, Gerard Perron.

Mr. Perron, elected in 1962 and 1963 as a Social Credit MP but later a follower of Creditiste Real Caouette, was 2,005 votes in his newly-created riding in the four-way 1963 race.

Second to him was Liberal Jean - Paul Bacon, a former member for Beauce and the Parizeau party candidate again this time. The NDP placed fourth in 1963 with 740 votes while the Conservative candidate was third.

The two years since have seen Robert Cliche, 44, whose family has rural descendants, take over the Quebec leadership of the NDP and plunge into the fight for his native Beauce.

THE MAIN CONTENDER?

Mr. Cliche is the New Democratic vote was in 1963, observers say. Mr. Cliche could be a main contender in the Nov. 8 polling, with Mr. Racine looked upon by the man to beat.

Mr. Perron, 45, a hotel-keeper in this community of 4,000 in southeast of Quebec City, polled 12,627 votes in 1963, against 10,522 for Mr. Racine and 1,134 for the Conservatives.

The Conservatives are fielding a man this time too—Pierre Bardoux.

Mr. Perron may be operating under a handicap — his inplanned since the hectic trading started, by an anonymous telephone caller. He writes it off as the work of a "kook."

"I can't think why anyone would have anything against me," he said.

Police put a guard around his home Monday night.

St. Thomas District Hamlet Chosen Site of Ford Plant

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Company's proposal to build a plant in Talbotville, Ont., had area business and civic leaders dreaming dreams of prosperity Tuesday night.

But around the rural crossroads of Talbotville itself, it was just another day.

Ford's announcement, made in Oakville, said the passenger car assembly project had been approved in principle. The statement had few details but it did say the plant will be in a tiny hamlet five miles from St. Thomas, it was confirmation of a rumor now 24 hours old.

Mayor Donald R. Stokes of St. Thomas said the announcement was "in a welcoming news" and would mean a real boom to the whole area, industrially and commercially.

The July reports indicated the plant would cost about $75,000,000 and employ up to 3,000 persons. This has not been confirmed.

Mayor Gordon Stronach of London said "it is too bad" the plant would not locate inside London because of the tax assessment revenue it would provide. But, he added, the city will grow "by leaps and bounds" as a result of it anyway.

GLAD IT'S SETTLED

Ford was on a site in Talbotville were somewhat less impressed. Many of them, who did not want to sell, said Ford thing" for months 'now, said they just want it settled so they can get on with what they're doing.

Ford did not say where it might build the plant but has options on two 700-acre parcels of land north and south of the community.

An exuberant N. G. Tufford, mayor of Southwold Township which encompasses Talbotville, said the plant probably would represent three to four times the township's present $6,255,000 assessment.

Tufford, George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers union, said:

"This is a genuine expansion. I am glad to see it, but if it means taking employment from elsewhere I'm against it."

He echoed the sentiments of Harry Raleigh, president of the London and District Labor Council, who also said local residents should be given the first opportunity at employment.

Omemee Doctor Gets $4,000 From Council

OMEMEE, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Jules Sobrian of this village near Peterborough was awarded $4,000 from the village council Monday for property he bought from the school board last year for $300.

The council wanted the property for a tourist park site but Dr. Sobrian, who intended to build an office and home on the site, refused its offers. When the department of education refused to interfere with the sale, council started expropriation proceedings.

The land was formerly the site of the village public school, closed because of an amalgamation of school districts. Dr. Sobrian bought it and a short time later the school building burned down.

At one time the doctor—a West Indian and Omemee's only colored resident and only physician—carried a gun for protection as he made his rounds. He claimed his life had been threatened because of the controversy.

The dispute was heard Monday before an arbitration board which approved the $4,000 settlement.

Barron Lampoons Toronto From Safety of Calgary

By DAN FOWERS

CALGARY (CP)—Sid Barron is a suburbanite who can't stand suburbia, a cartoonist who works for a newspaper published in Toronto but refuses to live there because he hates that city.

Readers of the Toronto Star who relish his cartoons on the editorial page can tell from the content that he doesn't think much of suburban living. But they'd hardly guess he lives in Calgary—his Toronto cartoons have an unmistakable flavor.

"About last spring I felt that Toronto was just about as cramped as I thought it was and suggested to the Star editors that I move out to Calgary and mail my stuff."

The 48-year-old cartoonist and painter had been living in Toronto's Don Mills — suburbia's suburbia — and the conformity got too much for him.

"All the people seemed to be executives. They all played golf and they all had power lawnmowers. I've been trying to get out of suburbia for a long time. We're back in it here but at least here we can look out the windows at the mountains."

Barron, his wife Maggie and their two children live in a nest home at the edge of Calgary's western suburbs. From their living room window they can see the rolling foothills that stretch west to the Rockies.

STRICTLY LOCAL

Barron, who also does some work for the Calgary Albertan isn't a political cartoonist. His forte is suburbia in his editorial cartoon, puts a healthy amount of detail and plenty of labels. Inevitably there's a bored-looking cat, often with some catty comment to make. And there's almost always a rickety biplane towing a sign that, in Toronto, reads "Wall Sale!," and in Calgary says "Arbor Day Motor Trains Pretty Today."

When Star executive a woman approaches Harold, one of the Barron regulars, at a bus stop and grabs his arm: "Hi . . . I'm planning to marry for money . . . . Do you have a lot of money?" Harold and the other two men are all reading the same newspaper folded the same way. A sign on a factory reads, "Poor - Square Piston Rings."

When a cartoon is for the Albertan, Harold becomes Ralph and the labels are changed to conform to the Calgary locale but the humor is much the same.

In one cartoon Ralph is stretched out in a camp cot in the paddlecreek oil company office after returning from vacation. A fellow worker is saying to another employee: "Just got back from a two-week vacation in the Okanagan . . . the boss is good that way . . . puts in a cot and gives them a couple of days to adjust to reality." A sign on a bulletin board says: "Employees must refrain from free-lance drilling in their spare time. Thank you." One of the office staff wears a shirt button saying: "New Boy."

BORN IN TORONTO

Barron, who works in an office at the Albertan, has a subscription to The Star and gets many ideas from reading the paper. He makes regular trips to Toronto.

He says certain themes of suburban life are applicable to any city in North America.

Barron was born in Toronto. His family moved to Victoria when he was 18 months old. Until he was 20 he worked off and on as a commercial artist in Victoria and Vancouver.

When a job as a commercial art teacher fell through, a relative at the Victoria Times suggested he try cartooning and in 1950 he was hired by the Times. He found "all those English people in Victoria" as usual subjects for suburbia cartoons.

Refused a Canada Council grant in 1961, to go to Spain, he went anyway. He tried to paint but found the "riches and atmosphere" didn't help and decided to return to Canada.

He stopped in Toronto to see his old friends, Charles Templeton, then a Star editor, and Pierre Berton, a Star columnist at the time. Someone suggested he try cartoons for The Star. He began filling in when regular Star cartoonist Duncan Macpherson was out of town.

But his Don Mills neighbors scared him. He found "you could work in an office and get to know people but they would never ask you out to their home," and he was bothered by that old "driving obsession for money." And so the Barrons headed west to Calgary.

Unfair Labor Practice Says Board Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board has ruled that a Chicago local of the International Longshoremen's Association engaged in unfair labor practices by refusing to load grain aboard ships of a Canadian firm.

The 5-to-2 decision involved refusal by Continental Grain Co. workers to handle cargo at Continental's Chicago elevator in 1963 for the ship Howard L. Shaw and John Ericsson owned by Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd. of Toronto.

The refusal resulted in fines totalling $42,800 imposed by the U.S. district court on the 344-member ILA Local 438 Grain Elevator, Flour and Feed Mill Workers. These penalties eventually were reduced to $20,000 and paid. It cost Upper Lakes more than $200,000 in out-of-pocket expenses during the 115-day wait by the Shaw and its crew for a grain cargo which was never loaded.

The Shaw was damaged during its load stay at Continental's Calumet River elevator by a blast of six dynamite sticks Sept. 7, 1963.

The Ericsson, a long-disused coal-burning whaleback, was sent to Chicago by Upper Lakes after the Shaw gave up its berth at Continental Sept. 20, 1963, but the Ericsson returned to Canada in ballast Nov. 28.

VOTE SELVES RAISE

ROME (AP)—All parties in the Italian parliament buried their differences Thursday to give final approval to a 5-per-cent pay increase. This will increase the average take-home pay for a deputy or senator from 500,000 lire ($800) a month to 750,000 lire ($1,200).

Socialized Medicine, Doctors Bungling Causing Problems

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Britain's socialized hospital system appears to be stumbling from trouble to trouble.

Amid all the headaches of trying to persuade doctors not to quit, of avoiding strike threats to strike and of trying to shore up depleted hospital staffs comes word of bungling in the operating rooms.

Wrong patients have been wheeled in; wrong kinks amputated; wrong parts of the body opened and swabs, sponges and drainage tubes left in after the patients are sown up and wheeled out.

Five swabs were left in one patient last year, says Dr. Brooke Barnett, assistant secretary of the British Medical Defence Union.

His report, delivered at a Harrogate conference Oct. 6, came as a rather minor shock to a nation steeped in national health troubles of one kind or another.

"Operation blunders cost £3,000,000," blundered The Daily Mail. Both the Medical Defence Union and the national health department claimed the figure was wide of the mark; that total annual indemnities were never that much.

NUMBER SAID SMALL

As for the number of operating errors, the officials argued they were small compared with the total of about 2,000,000 operations performed in 1964.

Nevertheless, while both the health department and the medical defence union claimed that Dr. Barnett's account of bungling had been badly misheaded by the British press, the medical defence union provided a Canadian reporter with these 1964 figures:

—In 17 cases, operations had been performed either on the wrong limb or the wrong side of the limb.

—In two cases, operations were performed on the wrong patients.

—In 10 cases, surgeons had somehow carried out the wrong operations.

—In 34 cases, swabs, packs or sponges had been left in patients' bodies after the operations were completed.

CONFIRM REPORT

The figures appeared to confirm Dr. Barnett's original report. He disclosed that when the number of wrong operations increased to 24 in 1961 from nine in 1960, discussions were held with the Royal College of Surgeons to tighten surgery procedures.

The discussions seemed to produce results. In 1962, the number of wrong operations dropped to 15—but in 1964 they more than doubled to 39.

Many of Britain's hospitals are overcrowded and understaffed. Nurses have complained of working long exhausting shifts. The exodus of British doctors to greener fields in Canada and the United States has intensified the problem.

The gap has been partly filled by a flow of young doctors from India and Pakistan who now hold about 41 per cent of all junior hospital staff appointments in Britain. But the medical shortage persists. In some cases patients have been told they may have to wait as long as five years for a non-emergency operation.

Inflation Almost Way of Life In Brazil Says Planning Boss

Brazil's revolutionary government has moved to ensure political stability by decreeing such nonelectoral measures as the abolition of political parties. But its main problem is still inflation, as explained in this story by a Canadian Press reporter.

By BRENDA LARGE

RIO DE JANEIRO (CP)— To us, inflation has almost become a way of life.

The speaker was Sebastiao de Sant'anne e Silva, secretary-general of Brazil's newly-created ministry of planning and economic co-ordination.

In a humid Rio office packed with graphs, blackboards and economic reports, Mr. Silva talked about his country's latest battle to control rising prices, a battle aimed at stabilizing the economy and making Brazil more attractive to foreign investors, including Canadians.

"The statistics are these," he said, opening a weighty survey. "Prices rose 16 per cent a year between 1941 and 1951, 20 per cent a year between 1951 and 1958, 52 per cent in 1959 and, after dropping in 1960, reached 85 per cent in 1962 and 81 per cent in 1963."

Economists estimate that if the inflation had gone unchecked, it would have resulted in an annual price rise of 150 per cent by the end of 1964.

But then came the revolution. Inflation grew at a staggering rate under the leftist government of Joao Goulart, which took office in 1961, and in April, 1964, it was swept out by conservative military forces. President Humberto Castello Branco, a former army general, took over.

Since then, it has been the president's most urgent concern to control inflation. His restrictive measures have not always been popular, but the government feels it presents trends continue the Brazilian economy will be relatively stable by 1966 or 1967.

The first thing President Castello Branco did was appoint Roberto Campos, an energetic young economic planner now said to be one of the most powerful men in the Brazilian government, as head of the ministry of economic co-ordination.

Campos prepared an action program for 1964-65 containing a series of priority measures designed to check inflation gradually.

"A very quick attack on inflation would have meant a depression and greater unemployment than we have to deal with now," said Mr. Silva, who is Campos' chief assistant in the planning ministry.

He says the causes of inflation were easy to isolate:

"There was a budgetary deficit of more than 50 per cent of the government revenue, the Bank of Brazil's uncontrolled easy credit policy during the Goulart regime, and the government's salary policy which allowed the minimum wage to increase far faster than the cost of living."

The Brazilian monetary unit, the cruziero, which had been valued on the exchange market at 80 cruzieros to one U.S. dollar in 1956, reached a record 2,000 cruzieros to one U.S. dollar just before the 1964 revolution.

Something had to be done quickly. The new president, who has a reputation among his people of being quiet but extremely stubborn, made an immediate cut in all public expenditures.

This meant a slowdown in construction in Brasilia, the country's impressive but expensive new capital in the heart of the country. But since work on Brasilia had all but stopped during the Goulart regime, this move came as no surprise to the people of the capital district.

In the last few months, construction has been cautiously begun again, but the president and Campos are keeping a tight hold on the purse strings.

Castello Branco asked the Brazilian parliament for a change in the constitution which allowed him to increase personal, excise and corporation taxes. A number of other measures designed to halt the breakneck price rise gradually were put into effect.

Silva was asked how effective these measures have been.

"Well, of course it is too soon to tell. We hope that this year the price rise will be only 40 per cent, instead of the 150 per cent it might have been if steps had not been taken.

"If the trend continues, we hope to have the economy stabilized at the end of 1966, and with no budgetary deficit at all."

The government economist indicated he believes the economic situation in Brazil is on the road to stability and growth if—and that's a big if—the volatile political state of the big South American country remains stable.

ACTION SPEAKS LOUDER THAN PROMISES!

Since 1963 the Constituency of Hastings South was mentioned, time after time, by the local, national and international news media. It always appeared along with the name of its active MP Robert Temple.

Now it is commonly known that Members of the Press which includes newspapers, radio and TV are dedicated to duly recognize and report events of interest, the places and people they concern.

So it is apparent your Member of Parliament in the last government at Ottawa said and did a great deal – both in the interest of Hastings South and its citizens. It appears from the publicity below that Hastings South has benefited in many ways from Robert Temple's positive representation and that he as your MP is destined to play an even more productive role in the affairs of his constituents and riding in future governments.

ALL OF WHICH ADDS TO THE MANY OTHER REASONS WHY

Robert Temple

SHOULD BE SENT BACK TO OTTAWA TO CONTINUE POSITIVE ... VIGOROUS REPRESENTATION

This Impressive Spokesman for Hastings South in The Parliament of Canada prompted wide press comment. Editorials and Clippings reproduced here are More Proof of an Active Representation.

Quebec Campaign Ominously Sedate, Are Creditistes Dying or Flying High?

By CY FOX

QUEBEC (CP) — The election campaign in Quebec has been almost ominously sedate and the chief question to emerge is whether Real Caouette's Creditistes are a spent or still-potential political force.

Such questions, asked in a strictly uncharacteristic spirit of detachment, have been much more in evidence than rip-roaring politics in conversations among Quebec voters, who usually reveal in their rich traditions of election-time rhetoric.

Acting like poll-takers rather than passionate participants in some critical campaign, the Quebecers also have been popping other questions that go with the Creditistes' time and fate-of-the-province decline:

—How many Creditiste or formerly Social Credit seats can the Liberals pick off to bolster their 47-seat standing in the last parliamentary contingent from Quebec?

—Can the Conservatives, who captured eight of the 75 Quebec seats in 1963, hang on to or increase that number Nov. 8?

—Can the New Democratic Party siphon off Creditiste votes or reap a harvest from the discontent of some Quebec farmers?

The Liberals nationally are out for an absolute majority after 18 months as a minority government. They need at least 133 seats.

If they can bite into the share of Quebec seats that went Social Credit in 1962 they will do it, providing they at least retain the remainder of the 129 seats they won in the rest of Canada.

CAOUETTE FAVORED

The forceful and fiery Mr. Caouette, one of the few politicians to clash with the public meeting as a main means of electoral expression, is favored to retain Villeneuve in northwestern Quebec.

But there are half a dozen other seats captured in 1963 for Social Credit where the margin was slim. And the 1963 break-off of the Quebec Ralliement des Creditistes from the national Social Credit party left a number of scars, the effects of which have been compounded by squabbles among Social Creditors since then.

Quebecers, usually vocal in expressing their political opinions, are keeping mum and this leaves the sensation of something ominous. How will it express itself federally?

If the answer lies in a urge of support for the Liberals, then the areas of hairbreadth Social Credit victories in 1963 are where observers will be looking for extra Liberal seats.

The Liberals have hopes, too, in conservative areas where members of the last Parliament have departed the federal scene — in an anti-Diefenbaker huff or otherwise. There are three such constituencies, including Trois-Rivieres, the old base of Leon Balcer.

"There is no place for a French - Canadian in the Diefenbaker party," Mr. Balcer declared when he left federal politics in September. The Liberals have gleefully taken up the refrain.

But Trois-Rivieres may not fall to the Liberals after all, depending on the performance not only of Conservative Jean Methot but also of a late entry Independent J. A. Mongrain, the best - known of the paper contre's five contenders.

Mr. Mongrain, like Mr. Caouette, belongs to a diminishing breed of politician able to spellbind a crowd with fire-flecked rhetoric.

Another is Gilles Gregoire, the Creditiste second-in-command, in Lapointe. And there is ex-labor chief Jean Marchand, a Liberal lieutenant in Creditiste Quebec West and one of a trio of Liberal candidates touted by the party as harbingers of its new, more "democratic" orientation in Quebec.

The Dorion report on the Lesage-Lévesque-Favreau affair left the Liberals in Quebec badly in need of a "new look," though the disclosures seem a source what less powerful factor here than they may be in other provinces, where voters are not directly involved.

Dr. Guy Marcoux's statements on the 1963 Affaire of the Six—the six Social Creditors who, he says, were enticed into a coalition with the Lesage government, may hurt the Liberals. But observers also suggest the Creditistes may suffer from the possibly unflattering light in which some of their current stalwarts are cast.

An interesting element in the Quebec campaign is Robert Cliche (pronounced Kleesh), a fresh and ebullient personality who leads the New Democratic Party and is contesting Beauce. He is the first to make a go of his party in the province, which is traditionally suspicious of any group at all enamored of centralizing planning.

The NDP, which has never won a seat in Liberal - dominated Quebec, is contesting a record 71 seats while the Liberals, Creditistes and Conservatives have candidates in all 75. There are no candidates under the banner of Social Credit.

FEAR CREDITISTES

The Conservatives may benefit from the fear expressed by some organizers in the camp of the Union Nationale that the Creditistes will run a well-concentrated campaign for the next provincial election.

Union Nationale, now theirs taken no official stand in recent federal campaigns although its federal campaigns although its organizers had previously viewed the Creditistes with some warmth.

Liberal Premier Jean Lesage has declared his support for the party in its federal battle but has taken no part in the campaign.

The 1963 election gave Social Credit 20 seats in the province, but when the Creditistes broke away, they took 13 MPs as five remained with national Social Credit leader Robert Thompson and two crossed to Conservative benches.

Real Caouette, whose son Gilles is given a good chance of victory winning in Creditiste Labelle, began his campaign to the strains of press reports that his crowds were falling off.

But later campaign trips into the Lake St. John area, with its Argyrmled farmers, saw bigger, more-enthusiastic gatherings.

One of the Social Creditors who became a Conservative is Gerard Ouellet, who represented Rimouski. His switch apparently alienated many of his supporters whose political loyalties still lie with the Creditistes.

Local Conservatives, for their part, are said to have been miffed at the way Mr. Ouellet was ushered into their party by the central leadership. The NDP's Raymond D'Astoli may get Conservatives votes as a result and the fight seems to be between him and Liberal Guy Leblanc.

Three other razor-thin Social Credit victories were scored in the Eastern Townships last time and this area is tabbed as a likely location for a Liberal surge if there is to be one.

Dr. Marcoux, in Quebec Mooimorency, is running this time as an independent, as are four of the other Quebecers who remained Social Credit o the end of the last Parliament.

STOLE SPIKE

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP)—Stephen Martin, 17, a bricklayer, was fined £5 ($15) Monday for stealing the spike off the top of a policeman's helmet on display at an exhibition in Portsmouth police station. "I was going to put the spike in a policeman's pocket for a joke," he told the magistrate, "but I was arrested before I could do so."

Waves Cool Hot Deck of Burning Ship

LONDON (Reuters) — The 6,000-ton British freighter Newfoundland, its cargo of vegetable oil ablaze, changed course today to let 40-foot Atlantic waves wash over its hot deck as it struggled toward the Irish coast.

The manoeuvre worked and the Newfoundland's captain, Lieutenant Ian Pollock, ordered other ships to stand by for assistance. An RAF plane continued to circle overhead to keep an eye on the vessel's progress, however.

This was one of many maritime dramas enacted as the gales whipping the coasts of Britain and Northern Europe slackened gradually after several days of havoc.

In the Baltic Sea, gales with 67-mile-an-hour gusts forced 10 Poles to abandon their 30-ton yacht southeast of Oslund Island when it was blown far off course.

The British cargo ship Saxifrey rescued them after picking up a distress call.

STOCKS, BONDS, DEPLETION AND TAX CREDITS

There is no deduction from bond interest except when the taxpayer has purchased bonds on a time payment plan or through payroll deductions, then he may deduct the amount of carrying charges he pays from the interest received.

Dividend payable stocks are subject to a depletion allowance if the company derives its income from underground workings, such as mines, gas and oil wells. The percentage rate of such depletion depends on the extent of the profit made by the company in this respect. The rate will sometimes vary from year to year. The rates of depletion on any certain stock for the current year may be obtained from the nearest income tax office or can supply them. The dividend reported on the return is the net amount after the depletion and carrying charges have been deducted.

Tax credits which are applicable to strictly Canadian stock dividends are deductible from the gross amount of income tax payable. The rate of credit is always the same; that is 20 per cent of the amount of the net dividends reported. To be qualified for this tax credit the dividend must be from a Canadian Corporation, doing business in Canada and paying taxes in Canada.

A corporation may have its head office in Canada but its operations are in another country and all its taxes paid to the other country. In such cases as this there is no tax credit allowed on the dividends. Two examples of this would be Brazilian Traction and International Petroleum. There are many others so it is advisable to check before filing your return.

When the taxpayer receives dividends from various sources he should attach a list to his return showing the depletion and carrying charges deducted. Carrying charges claimed should be verified by a receipt if of a substantial nature.

For a personal reply, enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope, plus 25c for each question.

Question 1. I inherited some stocks in a Northern Ontario mine. What can I deduct from the dividends I receive?

Answer. You can reduce the amount of dividends by the depletion rate applicable to that mine, which is usually 33⅓ per cent but check on this first. You can reduce your tax by 20 per cent of the net dividends reported.

Question 2. Does the 20 per cent tax credit apply to Canada Saving Bond interest?

ANSWER. No. This tax credit applies only to Canadian dividends and is allowed, to offset somewhat the corporation tax paid by the company on its profits before the dividends were declared.

DEPEND ON MINES

At least 500,000 Canadians are directly dependent upon mines for their livelihood.

Maritimes Judge Governments By Their Economic Records

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP)—The worth of a federal government is traditionally measured by an economic yardstick in the Atlantic provinces.

Thus, the Liberal administration of Prime Minister Pearson is apparently being judged by what it has or has not done to increase the area's share of Canadian affluence.

The Liberals, who won 20 of the 33 Atlantic provinces seats in the 1963 election, are campaigning here for the Nov. 8 voting on their record of contribution to the region's economic growth with an over-all appeal for a majority government to preserve national unity.

With the federal election campaign nearing its climax, the Progressive Conservatives have intensified their concentration on alleged Liberal mistakes and a comparison of John Diefenbaker's regional efforts while prime minister with those of Mr. Pearson. The Conservatives hold the remaining 13 Atlantic seats at Parliament's dissolution.

Both parties claim the four provinces have received best deals from their respective administrations in Ottawa — the Liberals in the last 2½ years and the Conservatives in the six years prior to 1963. Both are aware that in every election this century, the Maritimes have signalled the national voting trend in varying degrees.

The region went Liberal in 1963, Conservative the three previous elections and before 1957 it was a Liberal camp for 22 years.

RIDING DOOMED

The leaders of the two oldline parties hold key rallies about a month apart in this port city, centre of the two-member Halifax riding, probably facing its last election before redistribution creates three single-member constituencies.

Mr. Diefenbaker launched his campaign here Sept. 24 with promise that the entire Atlantic region will be designated a special area for economic development. "That is Conservative policy and it will be carried into effect," he said.

He also assured his listeners that the Atlantic Development Board "will have sufficient money to carry out its demands" and guaranteed special allowances for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick coal universities, which have a high percentage of outside students.

Mr. Pearson drew a crowd of 7,000 to the Halifax Forum Oct. 22, the biggest of the campaign to that date. He defended his decision to have the Supreme Court of Canada decide whether the provinces or the federal government have jurisdiction over offshore mineral rights — a theory true in the Atlantic Provinces.

VOICE COMPLAINTS

If the provinces are awarded the rights, then they will go unchallenged, the prime minister said. If the federal government is awarded the rights, then it should work out a method of developing them with the provinces, possibly giving the provinces control.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had told his rally that Mr. Pearson was "passing the buck" by referring the offshore minerals question to the supreme Court.

Premiers Stanfield of Nova Scotia and Shaw of Prince Edward Island, along with other Conservative spokesmen, have expressed concern over the federal government's attitude regarding offshore mineral rights and say they are disappointed the whole Atlantic region has not been treated as a special development area.

Mr. Stanfield, almost as prominent a figure in the Conservatives' Nova Scotia campaign as Mr. Diefenbaker, says the Pearson government is not prepared to increase adjustment grants to the Atlantic provinces. And Mr. Shaw, who returned from a trip to Europe in late October, says Prince Edward Island has been "brushed off with a scrap of per-capita allocation which really does not represent our needs at all."

Both premiers have greeted major Liberal announcements with reservation. Mr. Stanfield says a new $25,000,000 federal investment in Cape Breton coal mines must be accompanied by market guarantees, while Mr. Shaw insists a $140,000,000 New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island causeway project was originally initiated by Mr. Diefenbaker.

TWO PREMIERS HAPPY

Things were never better in New Brunswick and Newfoundland, say Liberal Premiers Robichaud and Smallwood.

Mr. Robichaud says the New Brunswick has "never been dealt with better than we have been under the federal Liberal government." Mr. Smallwood says "Pearson has been a good friend to Newfoundland," where all seven seats went Liberal in 1963.

The Atlantic region is one part of Canada where this New Democrats and Social Credits have almost consistently failed to break the pattern of a two-party system.

NDP leader T. C. Douglas has held a series of one-night stands in various Maritime centres, drawing a crowd of 1,500 at Sydney.

The party has fielded 29 candidates in the four Atlantic provinces, six more than for last election.

However, the NDP has been able to elect only one member in a Cape Breton seat since its formation, upsetting the reputation of the old Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in the region.

The Social Credit party has yet to win anywhere east of Quebec and this election is trying for only four seats, a decrease of eight candidates from 1963. One Creditiste is running in New Brunswick.

SEEKS FATHER'S SEAT

Meanwhile, Labor Minister Mac Eachen, seeking re-election in Inverness - Richmond, N.S. and Transport Minister Pickersgill, running again in his adopted home constituency of Bonavista - Twillingate, Nfld., have been the most active of the region's four cabinet ministers on the hustings outside of their own ridings.

Fisheries Minister Robichaud in Gloucester, N.B., and Solicitor - General MacKeagh in Prince, P.E.I., have stayed close to home with occasional forays into adjoining provinces.

J. Angus MacLean, former Conservative fisheries minister, is striving to maintain his 1962 majority of more than 2,000 in Queens, P.E.I., while Hugh John Flemming, ex-cabinet minister in the Diefenbaker administration, is running again in the New Brunswick riding of Victoria-Carleton.

One of the more interesting contests shapes up in Digby-Annapolis-Kings, N.S., where J. Patrick Nowlan is carrying Conservative colors in the riding held by his late father, former revenue minister George Nowlan, since 1949. His Liberal opponent is John E. Shaffner, a prominent businessman, who advised George Nowlan's majority to 416 votes in 1963.

Three women are seeking federal seats Nov. 8, all of them in New Brunswick. Liberal Mrs. Margaret Rideout is seeking re-election in Westmorland; Mrs. Dorothy Dearborn is a Liberal candidate again in Kent, and newcomer Mrs. Emelia Nugent is running for the New Democrats in Restigouche-Madawaska.

TIMES ARE GOOD

BUT LET'S FACE FACTS!

WHO REALLY PLANNED AND LAID THE FOUNDATION FOR THE PRESENT DAY ECONOMY? — IT WAS THE PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT BETWEEN 1957 and 1963

THIS WAS DONE BY SUCH BOLD IMAGINATIVE ACTION AS:

1. Devaluation of the Dollar to boost our trade and make Canada competitive in foreign markets
2. The Trade Crusades instituted by George Hees, which have substantially increased Canada's Export Trade.
3. Promoted technical and trade training to make skilled workers out of untrained personnel.
4. Initiated the sale of Canadian Wheat to Russia and China.

LET'S LOOK AT THE RESULTS!

A prosperous Economy brought about by Careful, Purposeful Planning and by Positive Action by the Progressive Conservative Government, the Foundation of which was so strong that it has withstood the Bungling of the Liberal Government ... We enjoy Good Times in Spite of the Liberal Government.

Since Laurier's 1891 Victory Quebec Has Endorsed Liberals

With 75 MPs, Quebec fills more than one-quarter of the 265 seats in Parliament. But only once since 1891 has it failed to give the Liberals a bigger share than any other party. This story traces the history of federal voting patterns in the province.

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — Except for the massive Conservative sweep of 1958, the Liberal party has been winning the biggest share of Quebec seats in federal elections for more than seven decades.

It was in 1891 that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, as head of the federal Liberals, captured his native Quebec. It was only the second time in seven elections beginning with Confederation, the Liberals having previously won a majority of the province's seats only in 1874.

But it set a pattern that was to continue unbroken for 67 years.

In 1896, Laurier's party increased its strength in Quebec to 49 from the 1891 figure of 35 while the Conservative representation in the province dropped to 16 from 30. The development was part of a nationwide Liberal swing that made the French - speaking Laurier prime minister.

Canada's first prime minister, Conservative Sir John A. Macdonald, found a solid French-Canadian partner in George Etienne Cartier during the years immediately following Confederation in 1867.

The alliance was assisted by the fact that for many church men and traditionalists in the largely Roman Catholic province, some Liberals seemed hostile to sound order and anti-clerical in the manner of the "radical" thinkers of Europe at that time.

HURT BY SCANDAL

The Liberals (Rouges) were not to be trusted, went this view and the Conservatives (Bleus) found themselves with Quebec virtually in the electoral bag—except for the election of 1874, when the province voted in 23 Liberals as against 32 Conservatives on the strength of an election-time scandal fatal to the Tories across Canada.

As the years went by, church hostility toward Liberal ideologies lessened. A factor, too, was the rule of Laurier, who like some other influential Catholics insisted that victory for the Rouges would not undermine the church.

Then came church differences with the Conservative government over maintenance of separate Catholic schools in some areas outside Quebec inhabited by substantial French-speaking minorities.

A climactic event in the swing of Quebec into the federal Liberal camp was the execution in 1885 of Louis Riel for his "Red River "rebellion."

With the eloquent Laurier at their head, the Liberals maintained a strong hold on Quebec up to the election of 1911.

In that year, the conservatives and nationalists in the province collaborated to increase their and - Liberal strength to 27 from the previous Tory holding of 11 seats. Though the government still held 37. There was one independent elected.

OPPOSED TREATY

The Conservatives had sharply opposed Laurier's plan for a reciprocal trade treaty with the United States. The Nationalists, under Henri Bourassa, opposed the prime minister's policies on the possible Canadian involvement in British naval operations.

The serious Liberal losses in Quebec were part of a national victory by the man who was to be Canada's next prime minister, Sir Robert Borden.

Borden continued in office through the First World War, which brought the country's first of two conscription crises.

The province stayed Liberal through the rise to power of William Lyon Mackenzie King in 1921, the fall of his Liberal government before the Tory forces of R. B. Bennett and King's return to office in 1935.

Bennett's victory came in 1930. He took 127 Commons seats nationally to 88 for the Liberals and 20 for other parties. In Quebec, the Tory strength rose to 24 seats from four, while the Liberals plummeted to 40 from 60. A single independent seat belonged to the still-vigorous Bourassa.

AIDED BY LAPOINTE

With the Liberal steamroller back to form in 1935 and 1940, the King government rode out the conscription storm of the Second World War.

Initially, during the war, the Liberal prime minister had such men as the veteran Ernest Lapointe, prosperity and memories of the Tory-implemented conscription of 1917 to boost his Quebec fortunes, suggests Rowald I. Cohen of Montreal in a post - published book, Quebec Votes (GaJe Publications Ltd.).

Later came Louis St. Laurent and what Cohen calls a "hapless" Tory campaign in the general election of 1945. The result that year was 61 Liberals in the new Parliament from Quebec with the Conservatives reduced to a single MP from the province.

The St. Laurent era, with the Quebec City lawyer as prime minister, formally began with the election of 1949. Mr. St. Laurent's native province, like the country personally, backed him solidly then and in the election of 1953.

The Liberals, pushed from power in 1957 by the Tories under John Diefenbaker, found themselves with an only slightly-reduced Quebec delegation of 62 following that year's election.

BIG SETBACK

But the province soon was swept up by the huge momentum of the Diefenbaker bandwagon and returned 50 of the 208 Conservative MPs elected in 1958. The Liberals, with 25 Quebec seats, had suffered a beating unparalleled in the province since the days of Macdonald and Cartier.

But the reaction against Mr. Diefenbaker was swift in Quebec. In 1962, when he was returned as head of a minority government with 116 seats in Parliament, his Quebec contingent rank to 14, the Liberals meantime climbing to 35. A newly-significant force, Social Credit, powered home 26 winners in the province that year.

Then came the year of the most recent federal election, 1963, and a further whittling away of Tory strength in Quebec, to eight. Social Credit sank somewhat too—to 20.

The Liberals meanwhile won 47 seats in the province, Lester B. Pearson taking national power with 129 seats.

"Just imagine," said the sweet young voice over the telephone, "Bobby Hull scoring 140 goals."

"That," the unseen, unknown admirer of the Hawks' Titan was told, "is tantamount to Hunkmouth reaching the moon by Christmas; Bay Scout troops being sent to Vietnam; the commies taking next Monday's election and this agent winning a Walnut-Frog tournament."

Whatever makes you think that young Mr. Hull will hustle 140 pucks past the NHL cage guardians?" she was asked.

Her voice had a definite Point Anne accent. The burghers of the cement-manufacturing hallwick speak with a more sophisticated dialect since they humbled a city slicker softball club and won a championship.

"I don't think he will score 140 goals — or half that amount," she gurgled with a giggle.

"But, just imagine!"

It is a matter of simple arithmetic that if Hull maintains his two-a-game pace over the 70-game schedule he will rack up nearly a gross of dollar-makers.

Chicago coach, Billy Reay, smiled when he was informed of the simple answer. "Nobody does that," he said. "But he should have a great year if he can avoid injuries and not run into too many dry spells."

All the birds in the Chicago rookery have their talons crossed, from the veterans with greying plumage to the rookie fledgelings just sprouting their wings.

They remember that Hull went into a goal-scoring first-half orbit last year that saw him rack up 32 goals. He was headed, the experts said, for an all-time record.

Slumps are no respecter of athletes. They'll put the finger on any muscle-magnate from pinochle to polo. They come in assorted sizes—long, short and forever.

Hull wasn't bypassed. The slump gremlins perched on his shoulders and his critics at home and abroad (and that includes the village and Point Anne) swung into the chorus "I-told-you-so—a flash in hockey pants."

Aiding and abetting the slump-jerks was the fact the "M's" of the National Hockey League James Bond scented a pal their best "007's" on the tail of the blonde sharpshooter. He had mere tails than a television peacock has feathers.

This undoubtedly had a lot to do with Hull's inability to score in the second half of the schedule.

Some say it was a gremlin from the "good guys" that perched on Hull's shoulder and whispered to him to use those muscles for convincing his "tails" that he wasn't the Hawks Number One push-around boy.

But this did not prove as effective as the "slumps" that struck him almost periodically. He ended the season with only 16 goals in the second half and a total of 30.

However it does appear—at least so far—that the "007's" of the oppositions' tail gang hold little fear for him. A Montreal newspaper on Friday quoted the Habs' coach Toe Blake as quipping "we'll have to put a pair of tails on Hull tomorrow night."

It proved to be Hull's head over the Habs tail. For the blonde bomber not only racked up a pair of goals but assisted in another duo of markers.

Perhaps the Hawk foemen had better concentrate on looking for the puck instead of Hull. If they do they won't have to use radar to find him. He won't be too far away.

Galbraith Pays $13,000 For Trotter

Galbraith, who operates a stable of trotters and pacers from his farm 20 miles south of Owen Sound, paid $13,000 for Court Rodney, a six-year-old gelding. The trotter, a colverted pacer, has earned more than $81,000 in his career.

The four-day sale, which ends Thursday, reached the half-way point Tuesday. Canadians purchased 36 horses the first two days, paying a total of $178,250.

Select stock from leading United States stables, along with top yearlings from the Armstrong brothers' stable of Brampton, Ont., is due to go on the auction block today.

Loss Not Road's End For Chuvalo

By JERRY GLADMAN,

TORONTO (CP)—Where now for George Chuvalo?

This appears to be the main question posed by boxing fans following the Canadian champion's unsuccessful bid to capture the World Boxing Association heavyweight championship from Ernie Terrell Monday night.

It's obvious the 15-round decision won by Terrell knocked the 28-year-old Chuvalo out of the muddled title picture for the time being at least.

Terrell will await the outcome of a 15-round match between Cassius Clay and Floyd Patterson in Las Vegas Nov. 22 in hopes of getting a bout with the winner.

This would clear up the confused heavyweight championship situation that resulted after the WBA stripped Clay of the crown for signing a return match with former champion Sonny Liston.

The WBA has refused to recognize the Clay - Patterson clash as a heavyweight title bout.

MAY COME BAC K
Chuvalo?

It's conceivable he might work his way back into the title scene, but that won't be for at least another year—if at all. In the meantime, the Canadian might find that a series of bouts in Europe could provide him with a few lucrative purses.

And there is still Madison Square Garden where Chuvalo won the hearts of New Yorkers with a pair of rousing bouts against Doug Jones and Patterson. He stopped Jones in 11 rounds last October and lost a 12-round decision to Patterson four months later.

It was Chuvalo's two-fisted, aggressive style, featuring a ceaseless body attack, and determination that won praise from New York fight fans and boxing writers.

Says Harry Markson, boxing promoter at the Garden:

"He can come and fight for me in New York as soon as he's rested and we'll pack the house. "His fights against Jones and Patterson . . . were the best in many years and Chuvalo rates as a top favorite with New York people.

"There are big pay days in chivalo's future. And I hope his next one is in New York."

Of Chuvalo's manager, Irving Ungerman said the loss "cost our boy a cool million." He was referring to the money Chuvalo might have earned in future championship bouts.

"Right now we have made no plans for the future, but neither of us is quitting," said Ungerman.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay claims he can fight five opponents such as Ernie Terrell in one night.

Clay said he did not watch the closed-circuit telecast of Monday night's fight in Toronto in which Ernie Terrell successfully defended his World Boxing Association championship title against Canadian champion George Chuvalo.

"I didn't see it, but I heard it was dull," Clay said.

"I'll fight five guys like Terrell in the same ring in the same night," he added.

Even Pay Day Had Its Arguments

TORONTO (CP)—Ernie Terrell, World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, and his opponent in Monday night's fight, Canadian champion George Chuvalo, picked up their $42,000 cheques Tuesday.

The money didn't come easily, however, as the principals and their lawyers argued over the rates of pay, the nationality of the money and the expenses at Maple Leaf Gardens, scene of the title fight.

Bernie Glickman of Chicago, Terrell's adviser, said he would file $25,000 bond with the WBA to guarantee Terrell's appearance against the winner of the Cassius Clay - Floyd Patterson fight at Las Vegas Nov. 22.

Suffers Heart Attack

Conacher In Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Charlie Conacher, former National Hockey League star and a member of hockey's Hall of Fame, was taken to hospital Tuesday after suffering a heart attack at his home.

Officials at Toronto General Hospital reported that Conacher, 53, later underwent an operation. They said his condition was fair at first and Tuesday night said he was improved.

Born in Toronto, Conacher joined Toronto Maple Leafs in the NHL after helping Toronto Marlboros to a Memorial Cup championship in 1929. He played 12 seasons in the NHL, 10 of them with the Leafs, one with Detroit Red Wings and two with New York Americans, retiring after the 1940-41 season.

During his career the right-winger, who possessed a hard shot, scored 225 goals and was the league scoring champion in 1933-34 and 1934-35.

Conacher is a member of the Toronto family of outstanding athletes that included the late Lionel Conacher, voted Canada's athlete of the half-century in 1950. Charlie coached junior hockey until 1947, when he joined Chicago Black Hawks as a coach, remaining with them until 1948-50.

Active in sports after retiring from hockey, he went through a heavy schedule 10 days ago when he had as his guest, entertainer Bing Crosby. He took the singer pheasant hunting at Nicholson's Hand near Trenton, Ont., and later accompanied him to a horse race, the Canadian Championship Stakes, at Woodbine Race Track.

Will Finish In "Red"

Rider 'Patients' Need Cup Cure

By BOB MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Football fans here are growing restless but it's nothing that the Grey Cup can't cure.

Despite Ottawa Rough Riders' record of never missing the Eastern Footb a l l Conference playoffs during the 52 year reign of coach Frank Clair, lately the team has been like the hesitant that never makes it to the altar on her own.

The Riders reached the Grey Cup final only once in those 10 years—in 1960 when they won a 16-4 upset victory over Edmonton Eskimos — and they have not finished higher than second.

Riders are in the playoffs again this year after their second-place finish, and have the home field advantage for Saturday's sudden-death semi-final against Montreal Alouettes. The winner meets Toronto Argonauts in the two-game, total-point EFC final.

A win Saturay would put the Riders in the finals for the fourth time in six years—a record most teams would be proud to own. But anything short of the Grey Cup is bound to be a letdown for the fans. ONCE UNDERDOGS

In the past, the Riders were underdogs operating on the lowest budget in the East.

This year things were different. With backfielders Bo Scott and Jim Dillard signing three-year contracts after considering moves to U.S. pro football, the experts picked Ottawa as the team to beat.

Even Clair went out on a limb in a pre-season forecast—the first time he has ever predicted his team would reach the cup final.

With quarterback Russ Jackson and halfback Ron Stewart, Dillard and Scott gave Ottawa a solid running attack. Three holdovers — flanker Whit Tucker and ends Ted Watkins and Jay Roberts—provided the receivers for Jackson's rollout passes.

On paper, it was the best backfield in Canada.

And the Riders started the season that way, winning five of their first six games. But the Riders managed only two wins in their last eight starts to finish the season with an even 7-7 record.

ATTENDANCE DROPS

The decline was reflected in attendance figures in their last three games, pushing total attendance down 23,518 from last season when the Riders averaged 20,240 per game.

The drop means a loss of about $70,000 in revenue and will put the team in the red for the year.

"We won't know how much we'll lose for a while yet," general manager Red O'Quinn said in an interview. "We have to't go all the bills in yet."

Clair, who almost left on his own last year when Toronto was looking for a coach, is on the first year of a three-year pact said to be worth about $30,000 a year.

Rumors of his possible dismissal have been denied by the club executive. Vice-president Sam Berger said:

"The matter has never been discussed by the executive, and our last meeting was only last Friday."

Minor Hockey Season Gets Under Way

The Belleville Minor Hockey Association opened what is expected to be another banner season at Memorial Arena last night.

Games were scheduled in the novice and midget divisions.

The tyke section swings into action tonight with the peewees and bantams slated to open on Saturday. The novices also play Friday evening.

NOVICE

Teepees edged the Leafs 5-4 in the only tight game of the three tilts played. Dave Taylor spearheaded the winners' attack with a three - goal effort. Peter Crawford and Mike Watt bagged singletons. For the Leafs, Mark Coates and Wayne Warner potted two goals apiece.

Bruins whitewashed the Hawks by an 8-0 score. Steve Cowan was the three - goal performer. Tim Whalen and Rodney Mallory each scored twice and Bruce Sutherland completed the attack.

Maroons whipped the Wings 10-1 with three players scoring all the winners' goals. Johnny Edwards paced the pack with four markers while three each went to Richard Barrett and Jeff Soule. Steve Gray was the lone goal - getter.

MIDGET

Canadiens thumped the Leafs 7-3 behind the goal-scoring leadership of Doug MacCormack, who fired three markers. Ken Masek scored twice, Ron Fuller and Joe Scanlan once each. Fuller drew two assists, John Caughey, Rick McIlquham, Jon Lemsden and Brian Woodley one each. Reid Mallory fired both Leaf tallies with Bill Janitsch helping on each.

Wings topped the Hawks 5-1 on single goals by Bill Roman, Teddy Waite, M. Acquafreddo, Damon Richardson and A. Jones. Richardson, Jones, B. James and R. Thompson got helpers. Kevin Allan had the Hawk goal, unassisted.

Hawks Hop Into Third, Nip London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharine's Black Hawks jumped from eighth into a four-way tie for third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series by defeating London Nationals 5-3 Tuesday night before 2,435 fans.

Doug Shelton's second goal at 16:47 of the third period with his team short-handed broke a 3-3 tie and set up the Hawks' game-from-behind victory.

Shelton scored again with 54 seconds remaining after London pulled goalie Rocky Farr in favor of an extra forward.

Shelton's three-goal performance gave him a total of 11 goals and helped his team to its third win in eight starts.

Bob Sicinski and Richie Bayes scored the other St. Catharines goals.

Bob Cook, Dave Gorman and Moe St. Jacques were the London scorers.

Gaels Draw Finals Bye

TORONTO (CP)—If the Ontario Universities Athletic Association Football ends in a three-way tie for first place when the schedule ends this weekend, Queen's University is assured of a berth in the final.

The situation was resolved here Tuesday with a coin toss Queen's, University of Western Ontario and University of Toronto.

The possibility of a three-way tie arose from last weekend's games as Toronto defeated Western 43 - 15 and Queen's whipped McGill University Redmen 16-6.

The results left Western Mustangs in first place with a 4-1 record followed by Toronto and Queen's with 3-2 records.

Queen's close out the season Saturday against the Mustangs in London while McGill meets Toronto at Montreal.

If a three-way tie should develop this year both the semi-final and final games will be played at Toronto's Varsity Stadium to take full advantage of the seating capacity available to the colleges.

The semi-final between the Blues and Mustangs would be played Wed., Nov. 10 with the winner meeting Queen's on Sat., Nov. 13.

Hawks Seek Fifth In Home Opener

Leafs At New York

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks will try to strengthen their National Hockey League lead tonight when they take on Boston Bruins at Chicago Stadium.

The game is the first of the season at Chicago Stadium for the Hawks, who have won four straight games on the road. Chicago, with a game in hand, holds a one-point lead over Montreal Canadiens in the standings.

In other NHL action tonight, Toronto Maple Leafs meet a rejuvenated New York Rangers club at Madison Square Garden. The Broins, the league's only winless entry, will unveil three fourth goaltender in four games.

Boston recalled 20-year-old Bernie Parent from Oklahoma City of the Central Professional Hockey League, but is in full in for injured goalies Ed Johnston and Gerry Cheevers.

Boston also called up Jack Norris from Los Angeles of the Western League to serve as a reserve goalie, required under league rules.

RETURN RING

The Bruins returned 18-year-old Bob Ring to Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league. Flyers won the Memorial Cup with Parent in each last year.

Ring was pressed into action after Johnston suffered a leg injury in Boston's third straight loss, an 8-3 rout by New York last Saturday.

* * *

PHIL GOYETTE

* * *

New York has won only one game in three starts but a win would give the Rangers four points and a tie for third-place with Toronto.

The Leafs have won two of seven games and lost two so far this year.

Phil Goyette, starting his 10th season in the NHL and his third with New York, is certain the Rangers will make the playoffs this season.

"We've got a lot more drive than last year. The young fellows have a lot more confidence in themselves and we feel we can beat anybody."

Goyette, who celebrated his 32nd birthday Sunday, could achieve two milestones in tonight's game.

One goal would give the centre 300 real one assist would give him 300 assists for a career total of 300 points.

Barring injury Goyette will achieve another career mark Sunday when Detroit Red Wings visit New York. It will be Goyette's 500th NHL game.

Wanted I Juvenile Players

"To be or not to be" that is the question facing the juvenile division of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

A division spokesman said that juvenile registrations permit the formation of two teams only. It is understood a team from the OSD will be available.

However a fourth team is necessary to round out a playable division.

With this in mind the BMHA executive will hold two open practices in an effort to recruit players.

The practices will be held Sunday, November 7, 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. and Sunday, November 14th, 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.

A game between the two teams entered, the Tigers and Aces, is scheduled for Tuesday, November 9th, at 10 p.m.

The league is slated to open on Tuesday, November 16th.

A meeting for coaches and other interested parties will be held in Trenton on Sunday, November 7th, starting 5 p.m.

Blues Star Heads For Score Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gerry Sternberg stands a shade under six feet and his 170 pounds belie his ability as a football player.

But he was a late season cut by Edmonton Eskimo this year and rival defensive unit in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association Football Conference agree unanimously he should have remained with the Western Conference club.

The 22-year-old arts student is one reason why University of Toronto Blues are in the thick of the race this season.

His three touchdowns against University of Western Ontario Mustangs moved him into the league scoring lead with Mustang fullback Art Froese, each with 48 points.

He also carried the ball for 113 yards and moved into second place among the league rushers with 341 yards. Froese leads the league with 400 yards.

Sternberg's offensive yardage for the season totals 586 yards with 345 yards coming on passes, second in the league to team-mate Mike Eben who is far in front in that department with 405 yards.

Many Als Two-Way Players

MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Trimble, coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, said Tuesday night several Als will be playing two ways in Saturday's sudden death playoff game against Ottawa Rough Riders in Ottawa.

One of the players who may see two-way action is quarterback Bernie Faloney.

"Common sense dictates that you have to go with your best 24 players as long as you can," said Trimble. "I'm not kidding when I say that Faloney may play some defence."

Trimble said he is confident Montreal can win. The Als closed out the season last Saturday by beating the Rough Riders 16-8.

Will Buy Club For $500,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—A syndicate is expected to ratify an agreement this week to purchase Vancouver Ca n a d i a n Western Hockey League Franchise, the club's territorial rights and assets for $500,000.

The syndicate has applied for the National Hockey League franchise that the major league has approved for Vancouver.

Cyrus McLean, head of the syndicate of 11 men, said Tuesday the $500,000 will purchase 90 per cent of the club.

Varsity Gets Estate Share

LONDON (CP)—The University of Toronto is likely to get substantial benefits from the $18,000,000 estate of the late Peter Fuld, his friend and adviser said Tuesday.

A Montreal man named Walter Kent also will benefit added Philip Hartley, a London solicitor who successfully defended Fuld's original will in Britain's High Court.

Fuld, a native of Germany who became a Canadian citizen in 1946, died in Frankfurt three years ago at the age of 41. His death from a malignant brain tumor set off an involved quarrel over his estate.

After 91 days of hearings, the longest and most expensive case in a British probate court, Sir Leslie Scarman, High Court justice, Monday accepted the legality of Fuld's original will and rejected three later codicils which had been supported by Dr. Herman Tarnesby, a psychiatrist.

Sir Leslie said he could not rely on Tarnesby's evidence. He praised Hartley as being Fuld's "true and loyal friend and adviser."

Ottawa's Oldest Teen Enjoys Church Work

By PETE McNAUGHTON

OTTAWA (CP)—The dean of Ottawa's disc jockeys is a mild-mannered, scholarly looking father of seven who spends much of his spare time doing church work.

Gord Atkinson, who at 38 laughingly refers to himself as "Ottawa's oldest teen - ager," has held the job of pleasing CFRA radio listeners during the prime evening hours for more than 11 years—longer than any other disc jockey in the area.

He has two programs—a variety performance called Showbill from 4 to 7 p.m. and Campus Club, a half-hour at 7.30 geared mainly to a teen-age audience. Both have consistently fared well in the rating system that determines in large part whether a disc jockey keeps his job.

"The ratings show Gord in a dominant position in the early evening," says Terry Kielty, CFRA station manager. "By 7:30 when Campus Club comes on, he has taken over the No. 1 spot."

Figures testify to Atkinson's popularity. The busy CFRA staff has issued more than 6,000 memberships to the Campus Club in five years.

The affable modern Atkinson looks and sounds more like a school teacher than a top disc jockey.

ENJOYS CHURCH WORK

His most time-consuming off-the-air activity is the work he and his wife Elaine put into a Roman Catholic church group called the Christian Family Movement, in which young couples exchange visits with couples from other faiths.

"I really enjoy this—more than emceeing dances, although I'm not against dances, of course."

Atkinson credits his ability to survive in a highly competitive business, normally dominated by raucous - voiced and younger announcers, to the practice of varying his music—"from Manitoual to the Beatles, so to speak"—instead of concentrating on rock 'n' roll.

"Showbill isn't a program just for kids," he says. "It's a variety show for the entire family like the Ed Sullivan show and I try to find something for everyone."

One of the most called-upon singers in Gord's personal idol, Bing Crosby, with whom he corresponds although they met only once, about 20 years ago.

Gord goes to great pains to make the program as up-to-date reflection of happenings in the business. To this end, he spends hours each day going through trade magazines for items of interest which he rewrites and intersperses in Showbill. He feels the extensive research pays off.

To keep the kids interested in his teen-age Campus Club, he selects two boys and two girls in each high school to act as club vice-presidents and report on school activities.

He also gives a party once a year at which a campus queen is selected on the basis of personality and marks, is crowned. A bowling tournament for the boys draws a full entry list every year.

The mild-mannered Atkinson is apt to become indignant on one topic:

"I refuse to play anything offensive on the air. When I started the Campus Club my sponsors said they'd rather have 2,000 well-dressed good kids listening than 20,000 delinquents.

"So if a song has suggestive lyrics or something in it mocking parents—you know, saying parents are dumb and kids know everything—it just won't get on one of my turntables.

"I figured hard sell is one thing I as a parent wouldn't approve of."

Atkinson got into the radio business in Toronto in 1947. His first announcing job was with CFRB in Toronto. Then he moved to CHUM in Toronto for five years before leaving the Ontario capital to be a star at CFRA's entertainment editor.

Although he realizes the day will come when he will be considered too old to run a teen-age program, he says he wants to stay at CFRA so maybe he'll eventually get out of the Campus Club and just do Showbill. That's a program age doesn't enter into."

Off-beat Adventure Series Apparent Hit of Season

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the apparent hits of the new television season is an offbeat adventure series, I Spy, which features a pair of co-beat stars, Robert Culp and Bill Cosby.

They combine well. Culp with his crisp but sensitive style, Cosby with a wise humor. Both are athletic, which came in handy when they were required to race across scenery on Hong Kong and Japan locations.

Aside from the fact that I Spy seems to possess quality in a season grimly lacking in it, the notable feature of the series is that one of the co-stars is a Negro.

Bill Cosby views this fact with uneconcern. He was skeptical when a producer Sheldon Leonard suggested the co-starring a year ago. "When it happens, I'll believe it," he said.

It happened, and Cosby now is merely trying to do a job rewarding not his race but his talent. "I've been true throughout his fast-rising, three-year career. His humor positives in night clubs, concerts and television have largely concerned the joys and sorrows of urban living.

NOT EMPHASIZED

On I Spy, race is neither stressed nor ignored.

On older days, he spends his hours at the wheel composing music—and lyrics to go with them.

"Sometimes I try to set down my impressions of people in terms of music," Skelton continued. "I felt that Greer Garson was a concerto of classical simplicity. Patricia Neal was a sparkling musale."

TUNES RECORDED

Skelton, who was born in Vincennes, Ind., more often, whistles—tunes into the microphone, and they are later transcribed. Some of his work has been so impressive that four of his songs will be used in a forthcoming motion picture and others will be the basis of a record album.

The comedian, famous for his pantomime skills, is the son of a circus clown who died shortly after Red was born. Red surprised his friends—as well as serious critics of art—by his skill at painting. He attempted only pictures of clowns.

"I don't paint clowns any more," he said. "Somehow, I've gotten away from that."

He sees nothing remarkable in his broad interests in the creative areas, and thinks they are not closely related — comedy, pantomime, poetry, music, paintings.

"It's all just communicating with people," he reflected. "You just use different approaches."

Skelton's 2-day Work Week Actually Greatly Extended

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Red Skelton, now in his 16th consecutive season as the star of a television variety hour, appears to have one of the world's easiest, high - paying 9-to-5 official work week of two days.

The 52-year-old comedian arrives at CBS' Hollywood headquarters early Monday, embraces, confers with writers, rewrites and improvises endlessly for two hectic days, concluding with the taping of his show before an audience Wednesday night.

The minute the show is over, Skelton goes directly to his dressing room, gets into mod clothes, and soon is in his car traveling the 125 miles back to his Skelton home in Palm Springs.

Skelton, his wife Georgia and their daughters, Valentina, 14, spend most of the time at their desert home. Skelton uses his other residence, a palatial hilltop house in Bel-Air, only on his two nights in Los Angeles.

The house is equipped with a tape recorder and Skelton, while driving, wears a microphone around his neck.

Sometimes he "writes," dictating short stories or outlining plot ideas.

"I must have written about 600 of these stories," Skelton said.

Russian War Documentary Becomes Feature Movie

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — A Russian war documentary has become a feature film production, and a highly successful one, judging from the attendance.

The Great Patriotic War is the official Soviet chronicle of the events of 1941-45 when the U.S.S.R. was locked in desperate struggle with the German army.

The movie, years in planning and preparation, is a superb production in its treatment of the Soviet war effort, sensitive and well-edited.

It is particularly effective in its portrayal of the human side of war — mothers clinging to sons about to leave for the front, children going to school with bombed buildings; pretty girls tossing flowers at soldiers.

The film, which lasts a little more than two hours, is composed of wartime newsreel footage and presents a grand show war in all its horror. Pictures of soldiers being blown apart by an artillery shell alternate with shots of bodies of starvation victims lying in the streets of besieged Leningrad.

The production is unashamedly pro-Communist, even when the Red Army is in full retreat it appears that the Germans are taking all the punishment.

For a Westerner, the production is marred by a recurring propaganda tone and a number of distortions. Emphasis is placed on Nazi atrocities though often they don't fit into the narrative.

OUT OF CONTEXT

For instance, while the Soviet-German battle is still in its early stages, gruesome pictures are shown of piled-up corpses in a Nazi concentration camp. The pictures could only have been taken after the camp was occupied by the Soviet army toward the end of the war.

The Western Allied campaigns in Italy and Normandy are depicted in such a way as to suggest they werent in the same league as the titanic struggle on the plains of the Soviet Union.

Politically, the movie's interest lies in the fact it includes four brief shots of Stalin, the first on the Soviet screen in 1956. Khrushchev launched his campaign to destroy the late dictator's image in 1956.

Stalin's reappearance is part of a plan by the men who deposed Khrushchev to rehabilitate Stalin at least to the point of recognizing that he existed and led the U.S.S.R. through the war.

An interesting exercise for a foreigner is to observe the reaction of Russian viewers. They seem to watch with detached professionalism, far less personally involved than you might expect. They don't gasp at scenes of terror or laugh at the occasional grimly funny incident.

The impression may, of course, simply be a foreigner's misreading of the Russian mind. The viewers may well be intensely involved in an undemonstrative and private kind of way.

Roslin
MINISTER ORDAINED

ROSLIN — A group from here attended the Ordination service held at St. John's Anglican Church Sterling recently when Mr. Virgil Earl, who is in charge of the Parish of Roslin, was ordained deacon, and Rev. James Thompson of Madoc, was ordained priest by the Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans of Kingston.

BAZAAR AND EUCHRE

A successful bazaar and euchre was held in the Roslin Parish hall on Friday evening, under the auspices of St. John's Guild Moneymore.

Prize winners at euchre were: ladies, Mrs. Boulton, of Belleville; gent. Mr. Murray Morgan of West Huntingdon, and lucky plate prize, Mr. William Bates.

Hellyer Denies Statement by Diefenbaker

By KEN CLARK

SARNIA (CP) — Campaigning in southwestern Ontario, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday "strange things are happening" in armed forces recruiting.

He told an election rally in nearby Goderich that a "telegram went out from Ottawa on Nov. 1 to all areas and commands cancelling promotions without special authority from Ottawa."

He asked the crowd of 600: "What's the reason for this notice being sent out at this time? Is this a form of intimidation?"

Mr. Diefenbaker asked if it was "sent out at the present time in order to keep commanding officers or those in higher ranks regarding the talking of the election?"

He also said promotions in trade categories have been frozen, and that there is a feeling of despondency and fear in the armed forces.

(In Toronto, Defence Minister Paul Hellyer issued a statement saying:

("The statement of Mr. Diefenbaker's that promotions are frozen is absolutely false. Promotions are not frozen. There will be more promotions in this year than last year and there will be more than the average in each of the last five years.

("I do not know where Mr. Diefenbaker is getting his information but it is certainly wrong.")

In an apparent reference to compulsory retirement under the Liberal government's program to integrate the three services, Mr. Diefenbaker said it is a shame men are being retired.

He said a Conservative government would give cash bonuses to skilled armed forces workers to keep them in the service. For those who were forced out and want to come back, he said, the same bonus premium would be paid.

Mr. Diefenbaker whistle-stopped Tuesday by train throughout southwestern Ontario, his last campaign foray into the region. The bulkhead for 20 Conservatives won by the party in 1963 are to be that area.

He started the tour in Owen Sound and ended it in Sarnia where he spent the night. After a breakfast reception here today he goes by train to Toronto to catch a plane to Montreal for a night rally.

Mr. Diefenbaker drew crowds ranging from the Harriston to 600 at Listowel—but most of the Listowel greeters were children let out from school to see the 70-year-old campaigner.

He stopped off at Neustadt, to visit the house where he was born Sept. 18, 1895.

Following the afternoon rally at Goderich he achieved a crowd of 1,400 at nearby Wingham during a 30-second whistle-stop.

He drew a small audience at Clinton, was about the same size as that drawn by Prime Minister Pearson a week ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that after two and a half years of "incompetency, inability and uncertainty" Mr. Pearson is asking for a majority government, more answers in Parliament.

He accused the Liberals of tearing the country asunder. Mr. Pearson is asking for a blank cheque, power without responsibility, he said.

P.M. Given Rough Time in Montreal

By STEWART MacLEOD

MONTREAL (CP)—Discovery of an unexploded bomb capped a rough time Monday for Prime Minister Pearson's Montreal rally Tuesday night after flights, chanting and heckling gave him the most disorderly meeting of his campaign.

Acting on a telephone tip, plainclothes police searched for the explosive, while the rally was in progress—unbeknown to the crowd of 2,000 in the hall.

It was only after the rally was over that the cleaning staff found the incendiary device near the main door, about 200 feet from the stage of the huge Montreal Forum. Mr. and Mrs. Pearson shared with many Montreal candidates, their wives and the crowd at the time.

The bomb consisted of clock workings, a bag of powder and some unidentified inflammable liquid which police said was "most likely gasoline." It had apparently been set to go off although police couldn't say when.

EJECT 3 HECKLERS

The chanting and heckling kept the prime minister's speech to 15 minutes. At one point about 100 young people were turned out by ushers and party workers, and for a brief period a major eruption threatened.

Through it all, Mr. Pearson kept delivering his speech, hammering the Conservatives and proudly pointing to Liberal achievement.

The speech was carried to radio stations throughout the province, but many of the people in the auditorium failed to hear much of it. Along with other difficulties, the public loudspeaker system was not fully effective.

Some 20 separatists were outside the building prior to the meeting, staging passersby to boycott the Nov. 8 general election. Four of the young demonstrators were taken into custody for failing to obey police orders.

Then the disorders broke out inside, all off by chants of "vive Francaise" (in French) when the speakers talked in English.

Mr. Pearson, at one point, was people heard Mr. Pearson, both the Conservatives, and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

"Do you want a government . . . by a party and a leader that has no understanding of what is going on in Canada today and then tries to cover this up by slanderous and emasculating honest and honorable politicians from Quebec?"

He asked a series of these questions, each time attracting loud cries of "No."

Most of people, who didn't fill the hall, were party supporters and they gave Mr. Pearson a rousing ovation. They also cheered to drown out the boos from the group at the rear, and the combination of noise almost drowned out the speaker's words in mid-sentence.

Interviewing out at the Conservatives for opposing the new Canadian flag and for allegedly failing to understand cooperative federalism," the new Canadian and the new Quebec, the prime minister renewed his plea for majority government.

NDP Leader Argues Against Majority Govt.

By MIKE GILLAN

WINNIPEG (CP) — With Prime Minister Pearson's appeal for a majority government still echoing in the rafters, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas argued in Civic Auditorium Tuesday night that a majority would put the Liberals to sleep.

He told his large audience of the campaign — 4,700 persons who filled the auditorium and spilled into a concert hall behind the main stage—that "giving the Liberals a majority is like giving Rip Van Winkle a sleeping pill."

The prime minister, Mr. Douglas charged, called the Nov. 8 election to try for a majority to avoid implementing measures the opposition would have forced on Ottawa.

Mr. Pearson could have put through a medical insurance program, increased old age pensions and turned money over to the provinces to abolish university tuition fees without an election because the NDP would have supported him, he said.

The prime minister drew an overflow crowd of more than 3,000 to the same auditorium Monday night.

Minority Govt. Favored by Socred Leader

EDMONTON (CP) — More Social Credit MPs are needed in the Commons to help give Alberta a square deal in Confederation, party leader Robert Thompson said at a rally here Tuesday night.

He spoke to about 1,500 persons in the 2,500-seat Northlands Alberta Jubilee Auditorium at a rally for the Social Credit candidates in the three Edmonton city ridings.

Mr. Thompson said Canada would be better off with a minority government per-cent-old MPs ready to cast aside petty politics and debate issues on their merits.

Majority governments in the past hadn't produced "those things that are needed." That was why both Liberals and Conservatives had "disastrous administrations in the last three years.

The national leader repeated his plea "for a return to the spirit of Confederation when the provinces were solid behind their differences and stood together on things they agreed upon."

Ellis Jukes's suggestion of a department of federal - provincial affairs would help wipe out causes of disunity in the country.

The department would carry out continuing consultation with the provinces to iron out jurisdictional disputes.

Ten Centres Fail to Seek Centennial Aid

TORONTO (CP) — An estimated 10 Ontario municipalities of nearly 1,000 have not sought grants for centennial projects.

A provincial government spokesman said Tuesday municipalities that did not apply for grants probably are mainly in the north and in unorganized areas.

The deadline for applications was in August. The spokesman said the federal and provincial governments, which make the grants jointly, have approved 330 projects and are considering about 230 more. Some of the latter are combined applications involving several municipalities.

The unwillingness of some municipalities to collect will leave about $1,000,000 in a joint federal-provincial fund set up for the program.

Ontario is considering allocating the money left over to some other centennial project.

Now Only Court Can Put Child in Reform School

TORONTO (CP) — The New Ontario Training Schools Act, signed into law Monday, says the reform institutions minister can no longer order a child placed in a training school.

The act, approved by the legislature last March, says a child may be admitted to a training school only by court order when the child has broken a law punishable by imprisonment if he were an adult, or where the parents or guardians are unable to control the child or provide for his social, emotional or educational needs.

It also must be proved that the child's needs can be better satisfied in a training school than elsewhere.

Anyone with a legitimate interest in the child can appeal a court order under the new act.

Reform institutions Minister Allan Grossman said Tuesday the philosophy of the new act is to create a framework for action to be taken for, rather than against, the child.

Deadly Poison Missing, Change Water Supply On Princess Margaret's Plane

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret left for her first visit to the United States today but the royal flight was 17 minutes late because of an anonymous telephone call that strychnine nitrate, a deadly poison, has been put into the plane's water supply.

The royal airliner's entire water supply was changed because of the report. A consignment of 30 pounds of strychnine nitrate crystals was missing from London Airport and police launched a countrywide search for it. There was enough of the poison to kill 500,000 people.

Later, chemical analysis of the water drained from the tanks showed no traces of strychnine, BOAC officials said.

The box, consigned from India to Hungary, disappeared Wednesday from a warehouse at London Airport, Scotland Yard announced.

It contains 30 pounds of strychnine nitrate crystals — a deadly poison that looks like soap flakes. Strychnine nitrate is used in small doses as a drug for heart ailments.

Chemists said a child who even touched the crystals and then licked his fingers would almost certainly die.

Warnings went out on television and radio after the box was reported missing. A description of the poison was circulated to residents near the airport. Police in other cities were placed on the alert.

A massive hunt around London Airport was under way for the wooden box, in case it was still on the airfield.

Princess Margaret and her husband took off at 11:17 a.m. GMT (6:17 a.m. EST) on a British Overseas Airways Corporation's VC-10 jet liner.

BOAC security men and police supervised the water-changing operation. An airline spokesman said this was done "as a precautionary measure" following the phone call.

London Airport was under strict security supervision because of a phone call received Wednesday night that the princess's airliner would be downed "either by a bomb or other diabolous methods."

Aviation ministry police guarded the jet airliner throughout the night and right to departure time.

The Queen's 25-year-old sister was accompanied by her husband, Lord Snowdon. Also in the royal party were Margaret's lady-in-waiting, Lady Elisabeth Cavendish, and her private secretary, Maj. Francis Legh.

Among those who saw the royal couple off at London Airport were the Earl of Westmoreland, the Queen's lord-in-waiting, who said farewell on behalf of the monarch; and U.S. Ambassador David Bruce and his wife.

The princess was scheduled

6 Hurt In Pinnacle St. Gas Blast

Police Waited Hundred Days For Bandits

PLANTAGENET, Ont. (CP)—Two plainclothes policemen who foiled a $5000 bank robbery here Wednesday had been lying in wait for the bandits since last August.

Acting on a tip-off, Ontario Provincial Police said, the two men arrived in town by car each morning and drove into a small garage next to the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

The men drove out of town again each day after 3 p.m. They had been doing this every working day for the last 100 days.

On Wednesday, three was no change in their routine until a little after 11 o'clock in the morning when their lucky number came up — wrecked the well-laid plan of the three bank robbers.

Here's what happened:

Three men wearing red fleece jackets entered the bank at 11.05 a.m. One of them approached teller Beatrice Hoodie.

"No fooling now . . . It's all over," he said.

Mrs. Hoodie and six other bank employees, including manager Ludovic Paillard, were forced to lie on the floor while the bandits, two of them wearing white masks, looted cash drawers and the open safe.

Meanwhile, one of the employees managed to trip an alarm which alerted the two armed police officers hiding in the garage next to the bank building.

As the three men ran from the bank, the money in three shopping bags, the officers moved from their hiding place. One commanded:

"Stop or I'll shoot."

Two of the robbers made li

Construction equipment sits idle while firemen fight the blaze at 293 Pinnacle Street caused by a gas explosion in the basement. The explosion blew out all the windows of the house, scattered glass and furniture all over the road and threw Bell Telephone lineman Dave Craig, 24, right across the street, a distance of 75 feet.

Think Pipe Wrenched By Shovel

Cause of a gas explosion Wednesday on Belleville's biggest public works project that blasted six workmen — one of them seriously — was still under investigation today.

The explosion ripped through a frame home housing a vacant coffee shop on Pinnacle Street as work crews were digging a trench during the current rebuilding of the main traffic artery.

The blast ignited a fire that gutted the two-storey building.

Most seriously hurt was 24-year-old Bell Telephone employee David Craig, R. R. 5, Belleville.

Craig, locating an underground phone cable for excavation crews, was buried 75 feet across Pinnacle Street by the blast.

He suffered severe shock and lacerations — cuffed by flying glass from the coffee shop's display window — and last night was rushed to hospital in Kingston.

Minor injuries — mostly face cuts — were sustained by five other workmen at the work crew at the site with Craig.

RECEIVE TREATMENT

They were construction workers Jack Young, 54, 173 Collings East and Delbert Carr, Codrington, and city public works employees William Hannah, 31, 75 George Street; Kinnear Kellar, 39, 340 Herchimer Avenue and Gordon Riddell, 35, 170 Avondale Road.

They were released after emergency treatment at Belleville General Hospital.

The explosion occurred after a mechanical shovel wrenched a gas line outside the building.

A spokesman for Lakeland Natural Gas in Belleville said investigation had shown no fault with gas installations inside the house.

The full force of the blast struck Craig, as he stood outside the coffee shop.

SAW MAN TOSSED

Diane McCallum, 20, working at Belleview Glass across the street, said she saw the telephone company worker being buried by the force of the explosion.

"It just exploded out through the window and blew him right across the street," she said.

Miss McCallum, daughter of Emerson McCallum, owner of Belleview Glass, dashed outside as workers gathered round the injured man.

She yelled at them to leave him still and held his head until an ambulance arrived.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Narrowest escape in the blast was probably that of Mrs. Mary Phillip, wife of owner, husband Phillip, owned the building.

Feeling ill, Mrs. Van Dusen

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Four crew members aboard the 80-foot tug, Misford rescued today by a 25-foot ...hirled lifeboat from the Canadian icebreaker Alexander Henry. Rescue officials said the men are "safe and in good condition."

Aboard the tug were Capt. Ed Nelson, engineer Grant Harrison and crew William Biron and Stanley Ritchie, all of Sault Ste. Marie.

The tug was towing a 236-foot gravel barge, the Charles E. Johnson, when they collided Wednesday night in Upper St. Mary's River 12 miles east of here.

Temple Named Director ...y Society

According to an announcement reaching here today Robert Temple of Belleville has been appointed to the Board of Directors for the Canadian Society for the Prevention of Crime along with two other members of parliament in the last federal government — the Hon. Alvin Hamilton former Conservative Minister of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce representative for Skeena.

Commenting on his appointment Mr. Temple said he felt honored his name had been considered for this endeavor in deterrent activity pointing out that the Society had the support of judges, lawyers, religious groups, prison psychiatrists, ...son psychologists, social ...rkers, treatment supervisors, and many other who work with delinquents and criminals.

Many of our volunteer workers will be university students who plan some day to work with people — future doctors, lawyers, teachers and social workers, he added.

The Society is actively engaged in dealing with the problems of criminals paying particular attention to delinquent children and trying to restore them for a productive role in life while they are still time.

Mr. Temple who served as co-chairman of the Justice Committee in the House of Commons pointed out that one of the aims of the Society was to generate penal reform in general.

Sevigny Returns to Side of Chief With Handshake and Rousing Speech

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Another of the cabinet defectors of 1963 returned to John Diefenbaker's side Wednesday night.

Pierre Sevigny, the associate defence minister who quit the government in a huff during the cabinet crisis of that year, strode onto the stage at the Conservative leader's Montreal rally, shook his hand and delivered a crowd-rousing speech in his support.

Mr. Diefenbaker now has snatched up—publicity, anyway—his differences with George Hees, trade minister; Douglas Harkness, defence minister; and Mr. Sevigny, all of whom resigned during the fateful week in which the Diefenbaker government collapsed.

About 4,000 persons turned up for the election rally in the 6,000 - seat Maurice Richard Arena.

A few miles east of that stone, NDP Leader Douglas spoke to about 2,500 in the 4,000-seat Showmart building.

Their competing rallies wound up the campaign visits of all major party leaders in Canada's biggest city. Only four days remain before the Nov. 8 federal vote.

Prime Minister Pearson, meanwhile, held a night rally in Lindsay, a Conservative stronghold in central Ontario where 1,400 overflowed a high school auditorium to hear him repeat his plea for a majority government.

Hecklers and demonstrators dogged the Liberal and Conservative rallies.

A half-dozen young demonstrators walked into the hall as Mr. Pearson rose to speak and touched off a small fight. They carried placards lettered "Mr. Pearson the crime minister" and "You stole our vote".—a

68 Cadets Missing On Plane

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP)—An Argentine Air Force transport with 68 cadets and crew aboard was missing today in Central America. When last heard from, one of its four engines was on fire.

The DC-4, en route to the United States via El Salvador and Mexico, reported trouble Wednesday morning when it was 75 miles from Puerto Limon, on Costa Rica's Atlantic coast.

The plane vanished between the Canal Zone and El Salvador. Military sources said it may have been near Bocas del Toro, on the Panamanian coast about 150 miles west of the Canal Zone, when it radioed its last report.

U.S. planes continued the search today. One American plane braved bad weather Wednesday night to fly on the lookout for flares. Six U.S. Air Force planes searched in vain during daylight Wednesday.

Bomb Was Not One Of Explosives

MONTREAL (CP)—The Molotov cocktail-like device found in a Montreal meeting place after a rally involving Prime Minister Pearson "may not have had any possibility of exploding and apparently, at worst, could have made a small fire."

That was the word Wednesday from inspector Roland Perron of the Montreal police, on the basis of preliminary reports from the police laboratory.

The device, consisting of inflammable liquid, wires, a battery, powder and a clock mechanism, was found after the noisy meeting Tuesday night in the huge, concrete-block Show-

Need Plan To Retain Engineers

TORONTO (CP) — Canada must do more to keep the engineers it has and attract back others in the work crew at the site with Craig. engineers who have left, the Canadian Council of Professional Engineers was told Wednesday.

John Hirsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, said industry, for example, could use the talents of its engineers more effectively.

He was on a four-man panel which agreed that Canadian industry should do more to keep the country's engineers at home.

A. J.S. Canning, president of Union Carbide Canada Ltd. said past president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said there will be a shortage of engineers "for as long into the future as we can gaze."

Tonight Le Gros Charles Will Say Oui Or Non To La Belle France

PARIS (CP) — President de Gaulle says "Oui ou non" tonight to the NO. 1 question in France—whether he will run on Dec. 5 for another seven years in office. He will be 75 Nov. 22.

Most political observers think de Gaulle will say yes. A small minority thinks he has decided to step aside. No one pretends to have inside information or to be sure.

All public opinion polls have indicated that a majority of the electorate would return de Gaulle to power if he ran again.

The head of the French state will be elected by universal suffrage for the first time since Louis Napoleon Bonaparte was elected president in 1848.

De Gaulle makes his decision public in a radio-television address at 8 p.m. (2 p.m. EST). There was speculation that his revelation would not come until his closing sentence.

The suspense element has been so carefully built up that de Gaulle was certain to have an almost saturation audience.

A myriad of special precautions have been taken to assure that the word did not leak out ahead of time.

Political observers have been sifting every word and every move of the president for more than a year in attempts to divine his intentions.

One of the reasons for the uncertainty was a complete absence of recent information on the state of his health, a key factor in his decision.

De Gaulle's last serious illness was nearly 19 months ago, when a prostate tumor was removed. Six months later he made a strenuous three-week tour of Latin America and showed no outward ill effects.

Since then he has carried on as usual.

De Gaulle did not plan to record his television speech until late in the afternoon. All persons present in the special studio at the Elysee Palace were to be kept in the building until the telecast started. Reporters were barred from the palace until then.

Changes in Cell Blocks Advocated by City Doctor In Testifying at Inquest

Changes in cell installations at Belleville police headquarters to guard against possible suicides were advocated last night by a city doctor.

Dr. F. R. Ross made the suggestions while testifying into the death of a man found hanging in the cells by his belt.

A coroner's jury ruled the death of Francis Charles Mooney, 65, was caused by asphyxiation July 27 when he hanged himself with his own belt from a cell door. There were no recommendations.

Dr. Ross, called to the cells when Mooney was found by police, suggested the present barred doors in the cell block could be made solid at the top to prevent any possible recurrence of suicide by hanging.

Ways might also be found to remove water from toilets and to give prisoners softer beds than the concrete blocks now used.

However, prisoners should not be able to strip such beds "as I've seen people previously hanging themselves by the bed sheets," said the doctor.

Inspector Ernest Hitchcroft said solid cell doors would be impractical because the cells were too small for such close confinement.

The cell block had been approved by the Department of Reform Institutions, he added, and there was a standing order that duty sergeants check the block every 30 minutes.

Mooney had been lodged in the cells on a drunk charge — his fifth since May.

Sergeant Douglas Ellis described him as a "harmless, likeable chap" who always apologized for causing any inconvenience to police.

The sergeant said he gave the man a free run of the cell block instead of confining him in his individual cell, and checked on Mooney every half-hour.

Sergeant Sam Cook, who went on duty at midnight, also said he checked the cell regularly. About 7:15 a.m. he asked Constable William Spencer to look at the prisoner and it was at that time Mooney was discovered dead.

Some time previously, said the sergeant, he had heard a door slam over the intercom in the police garage which is adjacent to the cell block.

This, however, was nothing unusual when prisoners were not closely confined to a cell.

Constable Spencer administered respiration to the man while emergency ambulance and fire units were called.

Dr. Ross said he worked over Mooney for 20 minutes before pronouncing him dead.

Coroner for the Inquest was Dr. B. D. Foster.

Drury Claims Government Not Delinquent

OTTAWA (CP)—The suggestion that the federal government has been delinquent by not combating radioactive pollution in the uranium mining areas of Elliot Lake and Bancroft is "far from the facts," Industry Minister Drury said in a statement Wednesday.

Mr. Drury was commenting on a Toronto story which said an unreleased Ontario government report on water supplies in the Elliot Lake-Bancroft area "suggests the federal government has been delinquent by not combating radioactive pollution" in the uranium-mining areas.

The story, in the Globe and Mail, said the report states that responsibility for setting standards "and to cope with any Atomic Energy Control Board."

Mr. Drury, minister responsible for the board, said any newspaper's suggestion of delinquency was "far from the facts."

"I am assured by the Hon. Mr. Simonett, minister of energy and resources management of Ontario, that he also is fully satisfied that adequate steps have been taken, and are being taken, by officials of both the Ontario and the federal departments having responsibilities in this matter to safeguard

Final Plans For Poppy Tag Day Made

The Belleville Poppy Fund Committee met at the Royal Canadian Legion hall, Tuesday, November 2nd, and besides committee members there were two representatives from the Legion and two from Army, Navy and Air Force Auxiliaries.

Final plans and preparations have been made for the Poppy Tag Days, Friday, November 5th and Saturday, November 6th, so that on Remembrance Day, November 11th, every man, woman and child in our city will be able to wear a Poppy, while paying honor and tribute to the gallant comrades who died in war, so that you and I are free. It is very important that our children understand the meaning of the Poppy and Remembrance Day.

The blood-red Flanders Poppy replies is a symbol of remembrance of those thousands of gallant Canadians who sacrificed their lives on the altar of freedom, in two World Wars. It is also the means of fulfilling two other most worthy purposes.

The manufacture of poppy replicas and wreaths, has been concentrated in the hands of men who were disabled in the conflict. In the Veterans shops, men who are unemployable in ordinary occupations find the manufacture of these little flowers a sacred and, cooperative task. Their handicaps not be nimble, but they are creating true memorials.

The disabilities of these poppies is the means by which local centres such as the Belleville Poppy Fund, raise money for the splendid purpose of bringing relief to the distressed and disabled veterans and his dependents. There are some with invisible disability, no outward scars, permanently unbalanced, but have fought a losing battle, within themselves, they are not permanently disabled, require sympathetic aid from their comrades. Thus, the Flanders Poppy helps to aid for the living from the dead.

Thanks to radio station CJBQ, Mr. Hedley Graham (Mr. Poppy), can be heard at 6.30 p.m. November 4th. His comments on this subject will be much appreciated. He has received the nickname "Mr. Poppy" from the children for the many hours he has donated over the last some twenty years to this interest.

All members of A.N. & A.F. Vets, the Legion and Ladies Auxiliaries are asked to meet at the Legion in uniform at 4 p.m. November 5th, and 10 a.m., November 6th, to help tag or do some driving.

Dr. H. Craig Yacht Club Commodore

Dr. Harold Craig of Belleville was elected commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, at the annual meeting held recently.

In his report address to the members, Commodore Craig paid tribute to the Flag Officers and members of the Club for the past year, citing in particular, John Howe and Ed Reynolds who were awarded gently for the welfare of the organization.

Looking to the year ahead, we look forward to providing activities and entertainment for everyone, boaters and non-boaters alike", and added, "we wish to continue to offer a friendly refined, and clubish atmosphere to our members and their guests".

On the subject of our Junior Sailing Program, which just completed the largest and best since its inception, we would like to see more encouragement in this direction and greater development given to the entire program".

Commodore Craig stated that the Club wished to support the Bay of Quinte (Belleville) Power Squadron many of whose objectives are similar to those of the Yacht Club.

Summing up the projected program of the Club for the coming year, the Commodore looked forward to seeing continued growth in membership, and activities — ashore and afloat.

Prime Minister, Hellyer Will Visit Trenton

TRENTON — Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson will be in Trenton on Saturday." As soon as the time of the Liberal leaders visit is known, CJBQ and local newspapers will carry the announcement.

Tonight, Defence Minister Paul Hellyer will speak at a Liberal rally in the Trenton Legion hall. Robert Temple, Liberal candidate for Hastings South, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club tonight and will also attend the rally with Mr. Hellyer.

WILL ATTEND RALLY

New Democratic Party supporters from this area will journey to Toronto tonight to attend a giant rally in Maple Leaf Gardens, where national NDP leader, Tommy Douglas, will be the keynote speaker.

Thorold Hoskin, NDP candidate in Hastings South will be on the platform. Northumberland NDP candidate, Ian Reilley, will be unable to attend the meeting, but it is expected Jack Owen, NDP candidate in Prince Edward-Lennox will attend.

Meanwhile, the three local candidates are touring their districts, visiting industry and making a house-to-house visiting campaign.

Property Option Not Renewed By Corporation

TRENTON — The town's dealings with scrap dealer Jack Zigman took on a new twist yesterday. It was announced that expropriation proceedings would be launched against Mr. Zigman for the demolition of his Front Street property.

At Monday night's council meeting, Mr. Zigman intimated he had the town "sewn up" by an iron clad agreement to purchase his scrap yard and to provide him with an alternate business site.

A delegation of Stanley Street residents came before council to protest Mr. Zigman's choice of a site in their area.

It now develops, what Mr. Zigman referred to as an "agreement" is in fact an "option" the town idlik on his property last spring. The option expired on Aug. 4, and was not renewed by the town.

THREE OFFERS MADE

Trenton council has received three offers for the old armory site on Sidney Street; one from St. Peter's Church, one from the Trenton Developer Stan Stemerocki and one from the Quinte Realty Company. Prices offered have not been revealed.

However, at the instigation of Councillor Duncan McDonald, council will consider whether or not it could consider building a home for the aged within the foreseeable future. The site would be ideal for this purpose, the councillor contends.

Mrs. G. Hees Attends Tea In Trenton

TRENTON — "She's lovely!" That was the general concensus about Mrs. George Hees at yesterday's Progressive Conservative Women's tea in the Twin Elms.

The tea was convened by Mrs. W. Urquhart, chairman of Ward 1 and also in charge of the tea with RCAF ladies.

Mrs. Lee Grills and Mrs. Hees poured tea for the ladies — and the few gentlemen who accompanied Mr. Grills to the outing.

Mrs. Hees is tall, with blonde hair, steel blue eyes and a ready, and sincere, smile. After she had spoken personally to the 30 some ladies present, she was motored to Canterbury Hall where another tea, this time put on by the ladies of St. George's Anglican Church, was in progress.

Speaking to the ladies, Mr. Grills said he felt very optimistic about the outcome of the November 8 election.

"I won't settle for anything less than a win," he said.

Mr. Grills reminded his listeners of his six years of service to the South Hastings riding, and promised the RCAF ladies present he would continue to look into the problems of the service. He said that he and national P.C. leader, John Diefenbaker, were agreed that a "premium" should be offered to men who had left the service to civil status.

"This isn't an election 'gag'; it's a matter of economy."

Mr. Grills was introduced by Mrs. Irene Markvart, president of the Trenton P.C. Women's organization and also thanked by her. Mrs. Markvart reminded the ladies of a P.C. get-together tonight at the Club Canara and a rally in the Community Gardens at Trenton Friday night at which Mr. Grills and Mr. Hees will speak.

Mr. Grills will also appear on Kingston TV at 11.25 p.m. Friday.

He added that Margaret among other things wants to take a stroll along New York's Fifth Avenue.

"That's something she definitely wants to do—and it hasn't been planned for," he said.

MADE ONE VISIT

Lord Snowdon has visited the United States once before, before he was married when he was photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones. Margaret's only trip to North America was a visit to Canada in 1948. — —

CNR Orders 30 Diesels

MONTREAL — Canadian National Railways has ordered thirty high-powered diesel locomotives at a cost of $8.5 million.

It is the first large purchase of diesels since the dieselization program to replace steam powered locomotives was completed by CN in 1960.

Ten of the locomotives, at 3,000 H.P. each, will be built by General Motors Diesel Ltd. at London, Ont. and twenty, each of 2,400 H.P. will be manufactured by Montreal Locomotive Works Ltd. at Montreal.

Spotlight Seat

Rustic Northumberland Riding Glitters in the National Eye

By JOHN LeBLANC

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Political glamor has been pitchforked in large chunks over the normally - humdrum back courses in one of Northumberland constituency. Never until this federal election has the largely rustic riding on Lake Ontario glittered so in the national eye.

And never has it provided more intriguing — and insecticable—electoral conundrum.

The glamor has been developed up in jobs around the peninsulas of George Hees, making a return to the political wars for the first time since his dramatic walkout from John Diefenbaker's cabinet in 1963, and Pauline Jewett, a personable and brilliant Liberal professor who won the contest in the election of that year.

A win for Mr. Hees will put Northumberland in the Conservative front row, possibly in the cabinet if the Conservatives get all the way, though Mr. Diefenbaker is being enigmatic about this. If Miss Jewett beats the former cabinet minister, her own stature leaps.

In any event, what the electors of Northumberland do Nov. 8 will affect Mr. Hees' position one way or another in the east. Conservative leadership is one major reason why politicians across the country are watching this riding so closely.

Mr. Hees, 56, whose former Commons seat was Toronto Brockdale, enjoys a reputation as been completely out of party politics as president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges when he suddenly threw his hat into Northumberland.

CLUMPS AROUND FARMS

The dapper, athletic millionaire set up barn on a family-owned farm (with swimming pool) near here. He has been strategic-arriving in this largest riding (pop. 93,500) and changing around the conservative views of the farmyards in an energetic scramble for Northumberland's approval in a nicely 25,000 votes.

Miss Jewett, 34, with a string of degrees including a Ph.D. in political economy, has been described as looking like Katherine Hepburn and talking like Lauren Bacall. She jumped into Northumberland politics from the staff of Carleton University in Ottawa and is about as rustic as Mr. Hees, whom she defeated by 2,000 votes after Mr. Fleyus. Mr. Hees calls her "that nice lady."

Miss Jewett has described herself as the underdog in the contest and is campaigning close to home on the theme of the sins of Mr. Hees.

With the background in government and finance, Mr. Hees is promising a crusade to sell farm produce and another to bring more industry to Cobourg. He also suggested doling something for Northumberland's tobacco growers by proposing they take over Rhodesia's tobacco quota in Britain in the event of a boycott arising from that country's independence policy.

While he is getting millions ago out of an $8,000,000 federal prison at Warkworth and for reconstruction at Cobourg Harbor. However, both sides are generally agreed the local political issues are secondary to the battle of personalities and the background of leadership aspirations of Mr. Hees.

A third candidate is to the running—Ken Carter, 25, of the NDP, a union organizer—but he describes himself as a "token" opponent. The NDP polled only 621 votes in 1963.

Mr. Hees' campaign got some help when he and Mr. Diefenbaker staged a reconciliation scene in the riding, their first face-to-face meeting since the trade minister left the Conservative administration of 1963. Miss Jewett has appeared on TV with Prime Minister Pearson.

Arctic Fossils Oldest

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—A geologist's curiosity about an interesting ledge of rocks in the Canadian Arctic may have yielded the oldest animal remains ever found.

The fossils are believed to be at least 720,000,000 years old—peaking back the known dates of animal life by at least 120,000,000 years.

The discovery was described today by Prof. Andrew H. McNair of the Dartmouth College geology department of the Geological Society of America's annual meeting.

The fossilized remains are of small, clamlike creatures called brachiopods. They may be even older than 720,000,000 years since the age - telling process called radio-dating establishes only a minimum.

In the same ledge were several kinds of fossilized tracks and trails made by burrowing wormlike animals and small shells and spines of an unknown species.

NOTES LEDGE

McNair and six Dartmouth students spent two weeks last summer on Victoria Island. He said while returning to camp one day he noted the rock ledge about one half mile away.

"I was cold and tired and almost didn't go to inspect it," McNair said. "But when I did, I knew how gold prospectors felt when they stumbled across the mother lode."

Previous fossil finds have shown advanced species such as the brachiopods existed in the Cambrian era which began about 600,000,000 years ago. The only life known previously was that of simple aquatic plants and the mainly reproductive stores of plants.

General Burns

One of Canada's most enduring public personalities is Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns. As this country's chief disarmament negotiator the former commander of the world's first United Nations peace force—in Egypt's Gaza Strip—has one of the most thankless of tasks.

Yet, for all its frustrations—and they seem less problematical since the conclusion of wholesale nuclear bomb tests by the United States and the Soviet Union—General Burns brings to his position a rare sense of dedication, as well as unlimited patience.

These are typically Canadian characteristics, embodying those qualities that in others of his mettle, from pioneer days up to the present, have helped bring this country to its envied position as one of the most stable and prosperous nations on earth.

In the news again in connection with Canada's decision to build an atomic reactor for India, General Burns has reassured the United Nations that the agreement with India, contained an "unequivocal" understanding that the plant would be used for peaceful purposes only.

His statement stemmed from an accusation by Pakistan that India was trying to block a treaty on the spread of nuclear weapons until it had its own atomic bomb.

General Burns pointed out that Canada was one of the pioneers in the development of safeguards of the international atomic energy agency.

Canada is fortunate in having a man of General Burns' calibre in disarmament negotiations. His experience in this sphere is unequalled. The length of service alone he has come to be regarded as a man to be trusted, not only by his own countrymen but also by his counterparts from other countries.

Students and Fees

University students are forever up in arms about this or that issue. And we suppose this is a good thing, so long as their protests are constructive and do not interfere with the main reason for their presence in a place of higher learning—study.

In Vancouver (as usual, soggy with rain these autumn days) University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser students marched downtown carrying placards protesting tuition fees, of all things.

Their destination was a hotel where Canadian university presidents were meeting.

One would have thought they would have taken their plea to Prime Minister Pearson during his visit to UBC. However, no mention was made in the Vancouver report of such an approach being made.

Dr. J. A. Corry, president of Queen's University, Kingston, was there, and he told the students: "I am pleased to see that in spite of the inclement weather so many of you have come to emphasize your concern for the need for higher education in Canada. You have used a memorable way of bringing this matter to our attention."

Dr. Corry's statement was a diplomatic one, but it probably left the students unconvinced. The question of university fees and the need to assist students to make their way through college is one that will have to be tackled by the new government.

A Curious Habit

A classic piece was once written on the pipe smoker's habit of saving old matches by replacing them in the box once they have been ignited.

The writer explained this curious practice by saying smokers felt the match was a sort of extension of their personality, like the umbilical cord between unborn child and its mother, and that to throw it away is to feel a sense of loss. Or it might stem from a subconscious feeling on the part of the smoker that his is a messy habit and that replacing the burned match in the box somehow absolves him to be in really a tidy person. Other theories were advanced, among them the idea that it is indicative of some sort of pagan rite.

Now Canadians are not great pipe smokers like the British, but in other spheres, one that parallels what we have been discussing, they have no peers. We refer to the extraordinary male practice of chewing the end of a toothpick.

The toothpick is seldom used for the practice that is intended. Rather the restaurant diner pays his bill, extracts a toothpick from the restaurant supply and walks out rolling the wretched thing around his mouth as if he were rolling a cigarette.

It is an extraordinary habit and one that is difficult to explain, unless it be that the toothpick is a sort of prop and that a fellow can better face the world with one between his lips.

And if habitues were suddenly told that constant sucking of the toothpick was a cause of cancer of the mouth, they likely would continue, like the cigarette smoker, to indulge the habit!

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Because of its extensive use in both war and peace, rayon has become an accepted item in the daily life of Canadian men and women. But few know that rayon actually is made from spruce wood.

The story of rayon, which went to war in parachute abroad lines, uniform linings, high - tensile yarns in heavy-duty aircraft tires, and covering for signal wires and will fill a vital peacetime position in dresses, hosiery gloves, undies and other items, begins in the forests of the Dominion. A giant spruce is felled, carried to a mill where it becomes pulp. This is formed into gleaming white sheets of cellulose woodpulp for the rayon mill. Torn to shreds by machinery, then processed in chemicals, the pulp is transformed into a clear, orange-brown liquid called viscose.

Viscose is rayon yarn in the raw. Forced through microscopic holes in an acid bath which hardens it into extremely fine filaments it becomes rayon thread. At the cloth makers, the thread is woven into handsome fabrics to be fashioned into gowns and other items.

Walker; first vice president, W. R. Vallance; second vice president, H. Weddon; directors — S. J. Weddon, W. J. Diamond, Fred D. Diamond, John Harris, Jesse Harris, George Harris, A. C. Wilson, H. J. Clarke and A. J. Thrasher; representatives to the Ontario Horticultural Society, W. J. Diamond, John Harris and W. J. Clarke.

Changing Times

Moose Jaw Times-Herald

It is said commentary on the progress of education in the province of Quebec, that the Hudson's Bay Company, which the ancestors of the present-day generation in Quebec knew and had no difficulty in identifying, is to be known by the simple title "La Baie," instead of "Campagne de la Baie d'Hudson." The change is being made in order that the French people of today will be able to identify the company and its stores.

To Your Good Health

Folk With Bad Hearts Can Live Many Years

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I retired in 1961 my problem was diagnosed as coronary heart disease. The severe chest pains have long since disappeared, and so has shortness of breath unless I forego rest periods after meals.

However, a bluish tint prevails around my lips. It is more pronounced when I am tired.

What is your guess as to my longevity in view of this, as well as that I'm always occupied in some benevolent enterprise? It seems I'm busier now at 70 working for free than when I was earning a substantial salary. — S. H. P.

* * *

I broke my crystal ball long ago and refuse to predict longevity. Disgustingly healthy people get run over by cars or develop some unexpected disease, and die. And people with dangerous conditions succeed in taking care of themselves very effectively and outlive others who seemingly have nothing to worry about.

There's more truth than nonsense in the adage about the way to live a long life: have a more cheerful outlook that you have to take care of it.

This is true of several kinds of heart disease. A cracked heart will still serve us for a long time if given half a chance. Many people who develop heart disease refuse to believe this, and insist on going along at the rate they are used to — with disastrous results.

At the other extreme, there are people with comparatively mild heart trouble (not that we can call such a thing really "mild") who ought to remain moderately active, but they don't. They are so overwhelmed and frightened that they go into reverse and don't do anything. That's bad for them, too.

* * *

So what about you? You have a serious heart condition, but you have learned the one great lesson: Remain active within your limitations, and know what the limitations are!

You have, in the last four years, rid yourself of your heart pains, and you have learned the amount of rest you need in order to avoid shortness of breath. If only we could convince all heart patients of the importance of these simple but vital facts, we would be far ahead. But to some people simply refuse to honor the great simplicities.

Yes, you have some blueness of the lips, but that is scarcely surprising. You know your heart isn't as strong as it used to be.

You remain active and interesting mentally. You need protect yourself against trying to do too much.

I can't guess how long you will live. I couldn't guess even if you didn't have a heart that needs to be babied along. But barring the unexpected you ought to have some years of continuing your benevolent activities.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a friend who has gone blind from cataracts. He has been to a specialist but they tell him there is no help for them because he has diabetes. Is this true? — Mrs. C. S.

There may be some misinterpretation or misunderstanding of what he was told. Diabetes in itself does not preclude removal of cataracts. Many people with diabetes are aided by such surgery.

However, if the diabetes has damaged the back of the eye, removal of the cataracts would do no good. Changes in the eye, other than cataracts, can occur from diabetes.

Removal of cataracts is beneficial only if the rest of the eye is in adequately good condition.

Note to H. T. F.: Are you sure your doctor didn't say "carunclе" instead of "cataract"? A caruncle is a small, fleshy growth, usually harmless but sometimes a nuisance.

Avoiding Bias—Or How to See Election in a Nutshell

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Notes from the Campaign Trail. — The great difficulty in reporting this election campaign, writes a senior political correspondent of one of the big Metro dailies that maintains a good-sized news bureau in Ottawa, "is to be both fair and objective."

In the crunch of the campaign, statements, charges, counter-charges, defences and attacks cut down to the basic bare — and often too-spare — bones, stripped, even bleached clean of the usually necessary qualifications.

The difficulty, then, with any reporting it is to include the unspoken qualifications which often may shadow or even shape the bare black-and-white facts in more closely approaching the usually grey-shaded truth. To sketch in the balancing background.

The skill or even the trick required is for the knowing reportorial hand and understanding mind to do it without running the risk of being charged, even denounced, as unfairly slanting or bending the line of truth. To fill in the frequently omitted but usually pertinent and relevant background information without distorting the picture.

To hear the laments and cries of "bias" from both Liberal and Conservative camps, few, if any, are the fortunate correspondents who have found the successful formula.

CHRONIC COMPLAINT

But if it's difficult to please the Grits and Tories, it's impossible with the New Dems and Socreds.

The campaign brass, tour managers, public relations aides and assorted key assistants forever complain, in sorrow more than anger, about "distortion" of everything from the reported size of last night's big rally to the misquoting of the Prime Man's "umpteenth run-down of his Party's policy and platform.

And when these Political Men Friday are assumed to reflect the mood and mind of their Party generally, sometimes are sufficiently irritated by largely-imagined "bias" to speak for themselves — and what they've assumed that both Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker are oversensitively suspicious of getting a less than fair and objective publicity break.

The measure of judgement seems to be that if the report doesn't fit the preconceived opinion of the political facts, then it's unfair. If the bare bleached facts don't fit the mood, then with meat of necessary qualifications or explanation, then it's bias.

The visiting press, American and British, isn't bothered by such a problem. They simply ignore it.

The Americans handle the campaign reporting and writing in accordingly to their national viewpoint.

The British are the interesting and entertaining ones.

They write of the campaign as a spectator sport, across pints of Jazz. And this just might be the best way of doing it.

MAGIC WORD: Accommodation

As he has for every campaign and royal tour for more years than he prefers to count to remember, Rene MacColl, Chief Foreign Correspondent of The Daily Express and personal reportorial globe-trotter for Sir Max Aitken, as he was for his father, the late Lord Beaverbrook, has jetted over to tell the British all about it.

For his 2,000,000 English readers, Rene MacColl has reduced the complexities of the political stakes and issues to a bare, personality contest.

He rips away the window dressing to forecast what might be called "The Basic Mike and Dief" in as hard and clear-cutting style as for his race forecast:

"The big man with the starring, hypnotic eyes, the rippling grey hair in a flying wedge, the rasping, demanding voice of an elder prophet, the born-again microphones.

"And Dief people, fish-packed into the stiflingly-crowded auditorium, listening, become electric.

"This is Mr. John Diefenbaker making his emotional appeal to the Canadian people, sincere and fraught with bitterness and personal enmity.

"It's a pure-calling, slambang affair whose outcome will be close.

"Although there are five Parties in the field, the blood feud is between Diefenbaker's Conservatives and Lester Pearson's Liberals.

"Mike Pearson is the bow-tied dentist's son who succeeded to the Nobel Prizeman, the born-rimmed intellectual more at home in the marble of the UN than on Main Street.

"Dief is the erstwhile country criminal lawyer from the great wheat plains of the Far West, crackerbarrel - colnfortable in any small town or county seat."

And that, in a taut 200 words, is the campaign, as true to the basic facts of political life more as it was in 1963, '62 or even '58. The issues may change, but the men are unchanging.

Poppy Fund Sale Is This Weekend

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am writing your valuable paper in regard to the coming Poppy street sale that will take place this weekend on the streets of Belleville and we ask your support; as in the past you have always co-operated to the fullest in our campaigns, for which we thank you.

The Belleville Poppy Fund Committee is made up of the following Veterans' organizations: Belleville Br. No. 59 Royal Canadian Legion —Phay Willis Ex Services Women's Br. No. 587 — Royal Canadian Legion, Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans Association Unit 201—Royal Canadian Airforce Association, Wing 412 and their respective ladies auxiliaries. These workers from the organization mentioned will be on the streets on Friday afternoon — 4 p.m. and Saturday afternoon from Nov. 5 and 6. You will have the opportunity to make your donation for a Blood Red Poppy, "The Flower of Remembrance", to be worn tribute to the 104,000 young Canadians who paid the supreme Sacrifice in two world wars and Korea and the two thousand and forty nine Belleville boys who served during peace on the Cenotaph who laid down their lives for Canada, and let us Remember.

The Remembrance Poppy wreath sale has been tremendously successful each year and report that 275 emblems have been sold in Belleville and district. The Salesmanship of the Merchants, Manufacturers, fraternal organizations, offices, educational institutions, Veterans Organizations, Government offices and other organizations has been extended to the Cenotaph at the Remembrance Day Service at 11 a.m. Nov. 11 each year.

We wish to again inform the citizens that all poppies and wreaths sold in Canada each year are manufactured by Veterans Industries and the Ontario and Canada Unit is on the grounds of Sunnybrook Hospital Toronto and is owned and operated by the Army, Navy and Airforce Affairs and only b a disabled Veterans are employed and find gainful employment throughout the year. After the costs of poppies and wreaths are taken care of the profits are used locally for the welfare of deserving Veterans and their dependents. Any welfare cases is in voucher form and is available a few hours after their application has been investigated by the welfare committee.

Let us Remember them by purchasing a Poppy and wearing it on Remembrance Day.

Thank you for your kind consideration.

Yours truly,
Lloyd Liddle,
Chairman, Belleville Poppy Fund Committee

Jobs for Quebec

Montreal Gazette

The creation of a huge new industry where only farms were 17 months ago is one of the greatest industrial success stories industry that Quebec has made. As Premier Lesage said, in opening the new assembly plant of General Motors at Ste. Therese, the gains to Quebec will come not only from the plant itself and the direct employment it will offer. The gains will come from the "multiplier effect" of a new industry. Industry makes industry; jobs make jobs.

Strictly Personal

Time Heals Those Election Rifts

By Sydney J. Harris

Purely Personal Prejudices: All those profound differences between political candidates, that loom so large on election day, usually dwindle a few months after election to the point that the candidate one supported seems barely discernible from the candidate one opposed, and the same old problems are evaded in the same old way.

The beauty of "spacing" children many years apart lies in the fact that each parent has time to learn the mistakes that were made with the older ones — which permits us to make exactly the opposite mistakes with the younger ones.

Absurd as the British custom of wearing wigs in court may seem to Americans, it makes more sense to insist on tradition and formality than to allow the shabbily casual procedures that take place in American courtrooms; respect for the law, like respect for religion, begins with an appreciation of its ancient symbols.

(Speaking of symbols, it is a common error among moderns to believe that" the ancients "glorified war" — but the very first book of the Western world, Homer's; "Illad," depicts Ares, the god of war, as a coward, a bully and a fool — moreover, the Trojan side, which he supported, was defeated by the Greeks, supported by Athena, goddes of wisdom.)

The relationship between two persons who don't like each other and know it is negligible, compared to the tension between two persons who don't like each other and won't admit it to themselves.

One of the silliest things a parent can do is to praise a child as "good" for eating its food; children must never be made to feel that eating is a favor they bestow upon parents, for then the dining-table becomes a blackmailing office.

U.S. Army and Navy officers need to be reminded of a remark in the London Times Literary Supplement: "One reason that British senior officers are held in such respect is that comparatively few of them have written their memoirs." Military men generally look as foolish in print as would Shelley commanding a tank corps.

If most clubs exercise so vigilant an admissions policy as they seem to, how does it happen that so many misfits not only slip past the blackball but also manage to get on the admissions committee?

Sometimes the only way a small town can feel important is to put up a "Radar Control" higher sign where it isn't needed.

It is one of the supreme ironies of language that the word "semantic" has become just as misused and abused as the words it tries to analyze.

COUNTY ASSESSMENT COMMISSIONER S. C. Jevons goes over assessment rolls with two of his county assessors, Donald Armstrong and Roger Smith.

Computers Badly Programmed Can Produce Terrible Mess County Assessors Discover

Modern day electronic computers, now seeing increasing use across the country, are fine for reducing office work-load and for producing fast answers providing they are properly programmed and the correct information is fed into them.

But when the answers received are incorrect those same computers can throw an office personnel for a loop.

That would be the case in any office, but particularly so when the work being done is for assessment departments and other municipal offices dealing in taxpayers' money.

Just this has been discovered by the Hastings County Assessment commissioner's department and also at Belleville city hall after certain phases of office work were farmed out to an Ottawa data processing firm.

In both instances the return of the completed work was promised by a certain date, but the rolls were not returned when promised, and insofar as the county was concerned, when the rolls were received, they were found to be incorrect.

IN TERRIBLE SHAPE

"The rolls were in a terrible shape," said Mr. J. C. Jevons, county assessment commissioner. "To say the least we were unhappy."

Mr. Jevons said there were ten basic errors in the rolls when they were received, some of them serious and others not so serious.

Some of the trouble was said to have been faulty computer programming at the Ottawa data processing centre. Other errors had been made by key punch operators, also at the lawn. Mr. Jevons admitted that some of the errors had even been made in his own department.

But with a completely new county assessment roll now having been set up within the past year, Mr. Jevons said some errors in the assessment department were to be expected.

"But nothing like what turned up was anticipated," he said.

The end result of the errors has been that the 27 county municipal assessment rolls are being re-edited and the completed rolls will be approximately six weeks later than expected.

WORKING OVERTIME

Ten of the rolls have now been re-edited and the remainder will be done just as soon as possible. But to do the extra work, the assessment department staff has been working 12 to 14 hour days.

And in the meantime the city has also been having its problems.

City council last spring also decided to have the Ottawa computer service prepare its rolls and print the 1965 municipal voters' list. A definite promise was made that the voters list would be returned for distribution by October 26th.

But that's not the way it turned out.

As the end of September city hall was advised by the Ottawa firm that it would be unable to return the voters' list by the promised date and other arrangements had to be made.

"I had to have the voters' lists out by the end of October so it was necessary to prepare the lists by hand from assessors' field service," City Clerk Adam Stalker said.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds reported this week that while the lists had been prepared in time only with the full co-operation of city hall department staffs.

As a result of the delay some of the township lists have also been written by hand.

SOME BENEFITS

But, as the old saying goes, "it's an ill wind that blows no good."

County Assessor Commissioner Jevons says the additional work by the department will help to clear up any weaknesses in the county assessing system and has been responsible for adding the staff into a co-operative unit.

And at the same time troubles with computer programming will be ironed out.

Mr. Jevons feels that much of the trouble at Ottawa was the result of the computer service staff being asked to do too much work.

"Computer programmers were working 24 hours and more at a stretch," he said.

In any event, the county assessment rolls were not to be put into use until the 1966 taxation year.

And before then the trouble will have been corrected.

In fact the computer programming service in Ottawa has already assured Mr. Jevons that the troubles have been corrected.

"Assessment rolls are an entirely new field for computer programmers, and it was expected there would be a few mistakes," Mr. Jevons said. "They have now assured me that all the bugs have been worked out."

African Nations Demanding Portuguese Quit Continent

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—African nations openly their fight to change out white rule on their continent into the UN Security Council today with new demands that Portugal be driven from the continent.

Stormy debate was expected in the council when Portuguese Foreign Minister Alberto Franco Nogueira be permitted to speak after many African nations that his government is using military force to quell any move toward independence in its African territories.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization was also expected to come under fire. The African nations called Portugal has been receiving political and military support from its Atlantic allies.

The Africans asked the council to follow up the Portuguese debate with debate on their demands for an end to racial segregation in South Africa.

The African group has also indicated it may bring the issue of trouble in Rhodesia now before the General Assembly—into the Security Council to meet sooner. Ousting of Rhodesia's white minority makes a unilateral declaration of independence, an emergency council session is considered certain.

Four Groups Hear Talks by Robert Temple

With topics geared to the immediate interest of his audience Hastings South Liberal candidate, Robert Temple, yesterday spoke at a series of meetings as his personal campaign neared a climax in Belleville.

In the morning he spoke at a candidate's meeting at ICIVS; the afternoon saw a speech at the Senior Citizens' Club; at night he spoke to student Key Club members at Kiwanis Centre and to Program-5 job re-training students at Quinte Secondary.

He told the senior citizens that under the proposed Canada Assistance plan up to $125 would be made available for senior security "where the need exists."

He charged that it would be irresponsible to increase old age pensions when the board at this "this time when our economy and budgeting is just being balanced for the first time since 1957."

"This would mean that many couples who are not in need would receive an increase of $100," he warned.

HELP THOSE IN NEED

It would be more responsible to increase the pension up to $125 for those who were in real need, he added.

Accompanied by Mrs. Temple the candidate took part in the judging of a bazaar sponsored by the club.

The responsibility of an MP making Quinte County School meeting brought a lively question and answer period with the re-training students after Mr. Temple spoke on various issues including an outline of the new auto pact with the United States.

The agreement already has made its point in doubled exports and more jobs, he said.

Mother of Five Must Spend Time in Jail

A mother of five today was given two weeks in Belleville T-Y. Wills to prepare for a brief jail sentence for shoplifting.

"I'm going to give you a very short term in jail," he told the woman. "Possible care to be considered and there's got to be some kind of example to be set. Others have to be others for the same thing."

She was arrested Halloween night at Rideau Stores with merchandise valued at $13 including nylons, tobacco, pipes and a housecoat.

The woman's husband can only work a half-day each week because of illness, OPP constable Ed McAllister told the magistrate.

Ages of the children range from 21 to two years.

COUNTY ASSESSMENT COMMISSIONER S. C. Jevons goes over assessment rolls with two of his county assessors, Donald Armstrong and Roger Smith.

Computers Badly Programmed Can Produce Terrible Mess County Assessors Discover

Modern day electronic computers, now seeing increasing use across the country, are fine for reducing office work-load and for producing fast answers — providing they are properly programmed and the correct information is fed into them.

But when the answers received are incorrect those same computers can throw office personnel for a loop.

That would be the case in any office, but particularly so when the work being done is for assessment departments and other municipal offices dealing in large sums of money.

Just this has been discovered by the Hastings County Assessment Commissioner's department and also at Belleville city hall after certain phases of office work were farmed out to an Ottawa data processing firm.

In both instances the return of the completed work was promised by a certain date, but the rolls were not returned when promised, and insofar as the county was concerned, when the rolls were received, they were found to be incorrect.

IN TERRIBLE SHAPE

"The rolls were in a terrible shape," said Mr. J. C. Jevons, county assessment commissioner. "To say the least we were unhappy."

Mr. Jevons said there were basic errors in the rolls when they were received, and of them serious and others not so serious.

Some of the trouble was said to have been faulty computer programming at the Ottawa data processing centre. Other errors had been made by key punch operators, also at Ottawa. Mr. Jevons admitted that some of the errors had even been made in his own department

But with a completely new county assessment system having been set up within the past year, Mr. Jevons said some errors in the assessment department were to be expected.

"But nothing like what turned up was anticipated," he said.

The end result of the errors has been that the 27 county municipal assessment rolls are being re-edited and the completed rolls will be approximately six weeks later than expected.

WORKING OVERTIME

Ten of the rolls have now been re-edited and the remainder will be done just as soon as possible. But to do the extra work, the assessment department staff has been working 12 to 14 hour days.

And in the meantime the city has also been having its problems.

City council last spring also decided to have the Ottawa computer service prepare its rolls and print the 1965 municipal voters' list. A definite promise was made that the voters list would be returned for distribution by October 26th.

But that's not the way it turned out.

At the end of September city hall was advised by the Ottawa firm that it would be unable to return the voters' list by the promised date and other arrangements had to be made.

"I had to have the voters' lists out by the end of October so it was necessary to prepare the lists by hand from assessors' field sheets," City Clerk Adam Stalker said.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds reported this week that the lists had been prepared in time only with the full co-operation of city hall department staffs.

As a result of the delay some of the township lists have also been written by hand.

SOME BENEFITS

But, he did say, saying goes, "It's an ill wind that blows no one good."

County Assessment Commissioner Jevons says the additional work by his department will help to turn up any weaknesses in the county assessing system and had been responsible for adding the staff into a co-operative unit.

And at the same time troubles with computer programming will be ironed out.

Mr. Jevons feels that much of the trouble at Ottawa was the result of the computer service staff being asked to do too much work.

"Computer programmers were working 24 hours and more at a stretch," he said.

In any event, the county assessment rolls were not to be put into use until the 1966 taxation year.

And before then the trouble will have been corrected.

"Assessment rolls are an entirely new field for computer programmers, and it was expected there would be a few mistakes," Mr. Jevons said. "They have now assured us that all the bugs have been worked out."

Mother of Five Must Spend Time in Jail

A mother of five today was given two weeks by Magistrate T.Y. Wild to pay a fine or a brief jail sentence for shoplifting.

"I'm going to give you a very short term in jail," he told the woman. "The public has to be considered and there's got to be some place to put you to show what will happen to others for the same thing."

She was arrested Hallowe'en night at Ritway Stores with merchandise valued at $13 — including nylons, tobacco, slippers and a housecoat.

The woman's husband can only work a half-day each week because of illness, OPP constable Ed McAllister told the magistrate.

African Nations Demanding Portuguese Quit Continent

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—African nations carry their fight to wipe out white rule on their continent into the UN Security Council today with new demands that Portugal be driven from the continent.

Stormy debate was expected in the council when Portuguese Foreign Minister Alberto Franco Nogueira parried charges put by 32 African nations that his government is using military force to quell any move toward independence in its African territories.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization was also expected to come under fire. The African states say Portugal has been receiving political and military support from its Atlantic allies.

The Africans asked the council to follow up the Portuguese debate with debate on their demands for an end to racial segregation in South Africa.

The African group has also demanded it may bring the issue of white rule in Rhodesia — now before the General Assembly — before the security Council to seek quicker action. If Rhodesia's white minority makes a unilateral declaration of independence, an emergency council session is considered certain.

Four Groups Hear Talks by Robert Temple

With topics geared to the immediate interest of his audience in Hastings South Liberal candidate, Robert Temple, yesterday spoke at a series of meetings at his personal campaigning neared a climax in Belleville.

In the morning he spoke at a candidate's meeting at BCIVS; the afternoon saw a speech at the Senior Citizens' Club; and that night he spoke to student Key Club members at Kiwanis Centre and to Program-2 job retraining students at Quinte Secondary.

He told the senior citizens that under the proposed Canada Assistance plan up to $125 would be made available for senior security "where the need exists."

He charged that it would be irresponsible to increase old age pensions across the board at this time when our economy and budgeting is just being balanced for the first time since 1957.

"This would mean that many couples who are not in the need would receive an increase of $100," he warned.

HELP THOSE IN NEED

It would be more responsible to increase the pension up-to $125 for those who were in real need," he added.

Accompanied by Mrs. Temple the candidate was present at the opening of a bazaar sponsored by the club.

The responsibility of an MP to maintain contact with his home riding during his representing it is national affairs was part of the candidate's address to the Key Club meeting.

An MP must serve on three different fronts at once, he said: his individual constituents, his riding and his country.

The Quinte Secondary School meeting brought a lively question and answer period with the re-training students after Mr. Temple spoke on various issues —including an outline of the new auto pact with the United States.

The agreement already has made its point is doubled exports and more jobs, he said.

Cornucopias Featured At Rebekah Bazaar

Quintene Rebekahs' fall tea and bazaar was held at the IOOF Hall on Front Street on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Orese Adams, P.N.G., convened the event, assisted by Mrs. Eva Judge, P.N.G. Taking tickets at the door were Mrs. Clara Ironside, PNG., and Mrs. Annie Webb, and Noble Grand Mrs. Jill Empey, and Vice-Grand Mrs. Mayzell Sills received the guests at the door.

The tea theme was carried out in the tea room with fruits of the harvest arranged in centrepieces on all the tables, and with potted 'mums in shades of bronze and yellow placed around the hall. Mrs. Bernice Hall, P.N.G., was tea room convener and co-convener was Mrs. Wins Reed.

Greeting the guests in front of a white picket fence flanked with pedestals holding potted 'mums, which formed the entrance to the tea room, were Mrs. Annie Rose, PDDP; Mrs. Janet Twiddy, P.N.G., and Mrs. Winnifred Francis, P.N.G. The tea table was centred with a large gilded wire net horn of plenty, filled with fruits and vegetables, and embellished with grapes and red maple leaves. On either side of the centrepiece were crystal candelabra holding golden tapers. Each quartet table was covered with a tiny replica of the horn of plenty on the tea table. Those pouring tea during the afternoon were: Mrs. Joyce Fisher, DDP of Thomasburg; Mrs. Hilla Cooper, PNG., Mrs. Mary Plumpton, PDDP; Mrs. Ethel Sandercock, PNG; Mrs. Viola Davis, PDDP, and Mrs. Ella Addy, PNG.

ANTIQUE TEA SERVICE

The silver tea service in use during the afternoon was a historic five-piece set presented to Dr. Oronhyatekha, Mohawk doctor, who lived in Deseronto and who founded the Independent Order of Foresters. The service was presented to Dr. Oronhyatekha by friends in London and Oxford, England, at Christmas 1875 "in appreciation of his eminent abilities and distinguished services in the civilization and education of the Indians of North America." The tea service was lent for the occasion by Mrs. Alex Pierson, the former Ann Bristow of this city.

Mrs. Marguerite Wessells and Mrs. Phylias Pope were in charge of the kitchen and Mrs. Mae Robinson made the tea.

Convener of the fancy work and Christmas gift booth was Mrs. Dorothy Webber, assisted by Mrs. Grace Airey. As well as an array of gifts suitable for the coming festive season, tickets on a draw for a real colored wool blanket were sold at this booth. It was won by Mrs. Mayzell, 430 Dundas St.

At a nearby table in charge of Mrs. Jessie Blakely and Mrs. Lorne Rorabeck, fancy aprons of all descriptions were on sale as well as tickets on a set of embroidered pillow slips.

Winner of this draw was Mrs. Pearl Holmes, 57 Everett St.

Highlight of the candy booth were two plates of home-made candies, decorated with pink sugared sprays of roses. Serving tickets on these belonged to Mrs. Christine Philp, 122 Yeomans Street, Mrs. Grace Jones, 30 Meyers Street and Mrs. Florence Pollitt, R.R. 7, Belleville. Mrs. Joyce Joyce, assisted by Mrs. Elda Sopha, was in charge of candy sales.

The home baking table, always a magnet for the crowd, was looked after by Mrs. Ruby Way and Mrs. Ruby Way. Lucky winners of two Christmas cakes raffled at this booth were Mrs. M. Gregg, 215 Cannifton Road and Mrs. Beverly Phillips, 402 Bagot St., Kingston.

A Chatty Cathy doll, complete with wardrobe, was the feature of the children's table. Mrs. Florence Pollitt, PNG, and Mrs. Grace Akey and Sheila on a draw for the doll, won by Mrs. Ethel Ostrom, 27 Johnson St. Also for sale at this booth were teen-aged dolls and clothes, educational aprons for children, dolls' cradles, mitts and baby's sweater sets.

At the green thumb booth, Mrs. Adams, PNG, and Mrs. Phyliss Burley, PDDP, were in charge of the sale of dahlia roots, card. African violets and arrangements of artificial flowers. Winner of the draw for a table centrepiece of artificial gold, orange and turquoise flowers and berries was Mrs. Annis Webb, 128 Dundas St.

Larry Pollitt, convener of the men's table, and Douglas Simpson, co-convener, were in charge of a draw on a Teflon coated frying pan. Their booth also had fruits, vegetables and pocket-books for sale. Holder of the lucky ticket on the frying pan was Gordon Bird, Brighton.

Mrs. Clara Ironside, 8 Holland Street and Mrs. Pearl Holmes were the winners of the two floral pieces from the tea room.

Making fashionable circles for fall are a full-brimmed hat and a wide ring of flowers, Flared roller, in velour edged with grosgrain, has bold, full shape matched by a chrysanthemum corsage framed in autumn leaves.

Dresses Keep Step With New Trends

Dresses take their ease this fall in bloused and blazed shapes. They're reed-slim — or dirndl-skirted. They're smock-shaped, with high yokes accented by braid or smocking, with high-belted boks accentuated by low - placed pockets, with soft bow or self scarves to enhance necklines.

They're costume components — shifty and shelveless to accompany a coat, or add a d d flowing of sleeve and active of skirt to pair with a little bolero, perhaps in a heavy knit fabric. They're costumes in themselves — two-piece styles, showing off the blazed, bloused, smocked and pleated trends, or c o a t dresses, newest with side closings.

"LONDON LOOK" COMES TO FASHION FOREFRONT

They're English dandies, with the London look of crisp white bibs or ruffled fill-ins. They're made for movement — daytime or discotheque, imaginative styles that make the most of crochet-look suits, "naked" wools, fluid crepes and jerseys.

Dressers, in short, partake of all the ladylike elegance and young verve that characterize the fall '65 fashion season.

For daytime, the soft, easy silhouette leads. Basic simplicity may rely on the drape and fluidity of line for fashion interest or the softening influence of ruffles, lace, b o w s, scarves may appear.

SLEEVES ARE NEWS

When sleeves are pressed, they are unpressed indeed. The long, full sleeve with buttoned cuff and the flared, kimono-like s l e e v e take their place in the fall dress picture.

Along with softness and ease, dressers also express the strict and spare "Courreges" l o o k. Almost always, however, the soft touch is apparent.

Slim, sculptured coat dresses, for instance, move toward easy A-shapings, as do dressers with paneled fronts. Welt seaming, a Courreges-look signature, shows up in combination with fluid, feminine skirts.

Some designers like the strict look for late daff in opulent, "all girl" fabrics — richly colored velveteens.

Whatever the dress l o o k, there is a fabric to complement it — soft or strict.

COLLECT OLD ARMS

WAKEFIELD, England (CP) An elephant gun and an Adams revolver of the type used by Billy the Kid are among the weapons handed in to Yorkshire police during the current amnesty on illegal ownership. Autumn Splendor Decor Highlights Guild Tea

With beautiful summer-like weather prevailing the Evening Branch of St. Margaret's Guild held an autumn tea and bazaar in the church hall yesterday afternoon.

The successful event which was officially opened by the minister, Rev. J. K. Dunlop, was graciously convened by Mrs. W. J. Black. Guests were warmly greeted into the sun filled hall by Mrs. J. A. Dunlop, honorary president, and Mrs. F. Woldnik, president of the Guild.

Upon entering the hall, the color scheme of brown, green and brilliant orange was much in evidence, with the decorating theme "Autumn Splendor" in charge of Mrs. G. Sands, well presented.

The tea room convener was Mrs. R. Anderson, assisted by Mrs. J. Ritchie, Mrs. L. Lemay and Mrs. R. Hayes. Here, the focal point of interest was the long white covered tea table attractively centred with a wicker compotier filled to overflowing with an arrangement of fruit. Adding to the decor were candelabra of colorful autumn blooms backgrounded with brown and brilliant orange candles in silver single holders. Bright colored serviettes of brown, green and yellow and the silver tea services completed the setting.

The guest tables were also resplendent, carrying out the theme of the event with each covered with white luncheon cloth highlighted with centrepiece consisting of a solitaire taper rising from lace doilies and encircled with yellow, orange and brown carnations.

TEA POURERS

A fine gesture of fellowship was noted when members of neighboring churches poured tea throughout the afternoon. These included: Mrs. D. V. Dumaine, St. Joseph's Church; Mrs. E. B. Skuce, Lutheran Church; Mrs. M. J. Stotesbury, St. Columba Church and Mrs. J. A. Glover from Eastminster United Church.

The kitchen convener was Mrs. C. Palmer assisted by a number of other ladies of the parish and others who assisted with the serving and replenishing.

The various sales tables had a splendid array of merchandise and the homebaking located at the far end of the platform was perhaps the most popular with its display of pies, cakes, tarts, cookies, date loaves and many other delicacies. Sales were in charge of Mrs. P. Pickering assisted by Mrs. G. Mountford, Mrs. W. Rohlls, and Mrs. G. Bellwood A second table of homecooking was available for the benefit of those coming at a later hour.

Next was the candy table with an assortment of creams, fudges, and novelty candies all displayed in cellophane topped boxes, cups and baskets, along with taffy apples and bags of popcorn. The table was convened by Mrs. A. Duke assisted by Mrs. W. Ford.

Many lovely aprons were on display with both half size and full length shown along with a number of pinafores for the little girls. These were in charge of Mrs. T. A. Collyer assisted by Mrs. R. McKnight.

DOLLY CLOTHING

An excellent supply of dolls' clothing ranging from pyjama sets to full skirts of evening wear and purse and hat sets was in charge of Mrs W. Lindsey assisted by Mrs. E. G. Tucker. The children's wear booth had many knitted items to suitable for the youngsters especially with the colder weather now at hand and this table was in charge of Mrs. S. Wiggins assisted by Mrs. B. Bishop.

A number of mysterious packages were displayed at the parcel post located at one corner of the hall with Mrs. R. Grant in charge, while a fish pond for the younger set was in charge of the Junior Auxiliary under the leadership of Miss Janice Worrall.

Nursery for the tiny tots was looked after by Mrs. C. A. Kemp, Mrs. K. Flynn, Mrs. B. Shillington and Mrs. H. Brown.

Ticket sales and advertising for this annual event were in charge of Mrs. M. Coles.

Patterns, Colors and Fibres Make Carpet News for Fall

There are more synthet i c fibres used in carpets this year, as acrylic fibres gain in popularity and as new, fibres enter the field. In addition, improved varieties of older fibres such as nylon and rayon continue to appear.

Another improvement is increased soil resistance, achieved partly through use of synthetic fibres, and partly by use of various dirt resistant finishes.

PATTERN IS IMPORTANT

In colors, decorator tones are gaining on the popular neutral tints such as gold, avocado, and beige This means that colors such as burnt orange, bright red, and royal blue will be seen more often.

Pattern is extremely important. Manufacturers can now work away floral designs into tufted carpet. Formerly p a l terns were available only in more expensive woven carpets.

While patterned wall-to-wall is still low, it is definitely becoming more and more a part of the home decorating picture.

Patterns are actually o n l y one of the latest technological improvements in rug manufacture that manufacturers have developed.

Surface textures also reflect increased know-how, and r u g companies now routinely employ such devices as shearing, carving, varied pile heights and swirly extra-shaggy piles to create exciting effects.

Fringes, trims, and other decorative embellishments are popular this fall, too, especially in accent rugs.

These accent rugs are often quite expensive in terms of the area they cover, and retailers now suggest that a carpet pad be used as a protection from undue wear on the rug. An underlay of latex foam rubber grips the floor, reducing the danger of skids.

The rise in the use of synthetics has greatly increased the importance of carpet padding, because the synth e t i c fibres as a group are not as resilient as wool, and latex foam rubber carpet pads can help them feel soft and luxurious underfoot.

CLAMP ON SWINDLERS

ZOMBA, M a l a w i (AP) — Prime Minister Hastings Banda has pushed legislation through Parliament providing life imprisonment for public servants convicted of theft and punishing relatives who benefit by their illegal gains. "Call it dictatorship if you like," Dr. Banda said, "but as long as I live no one will get away with it."

Robes Taking Many Shapes, All Newly Soft

Softness is the mood for fall, and many and lovely are the ways to dish softness in robes for fall. Gone are the days of the big, fat dusters!

Now, displayed at all the spheres of the Orient at-home, the robe becomes a long, slim column, high fitting and narrow, or a short indian rajah coat.

Cut and shaped, with a small waisted look are especially fully popular for at - home wear. These look great and feminine — in quilted gingham with ruffles and lots of ruffles.

As in other fashion f a c t, ruffles and cotton quilt form the winning combination for at-home wear in the simple mood, and shifty — sometimes with matching booties — or long and flowing in the complex mood.

When meant as a cover-up for fall's sleepwear, the robe can be a petticoat with a cape effect over a soft, shifty gown. A classic robe covers the stitch shape of the jumpsuit nicely.

Many new fabrics and textures appear in the robes for fall: crepes, filmy chiffons, satins, bonded jersey, polyester-filled cotton quilt, and a l s o those luxurious, warm brushed flannel and fleece.

WHO NEEDS EAR MUFFS?

Dear Susanna: Just used this idea yesterday. I dried freshly-glued repaired earrings in an army upright position by crocking them in a small glass filled with toothpicks. The earrings snuggled softly in among the picks. — Mrs. Shirley Nadeau

What do you think about this one? On second thought don't answer that! Those of us who may not be able to afford the whole coat bit this year, can console ourselves with a somewhat smaller substitution that is all the rage. A perky pair of mink covered earrings.

We will need: Some scissors, a squirt of good glue, an old mink trimmed garment (or a small part of a mink tail will do perfectly) a pair of two-piece buttons (the kind made with shanks, or necks specifically for covering), and a couple of earring brees with the little spikes onto which the buttons can be slipped. These last two items are available at dressmaker's supply centres.

Split open a piece of the mink tail, so that the hide is on one side and fur on the other, cut two circles to fit bottons just as though you were covering them with cloth, and everything else will slip right into place.

VOILA! We now have a pair of furry fashionable earrings. They may not be as cozy as a coat, but I think I'd rather be stylish than warm anyway — wouldn't you? — SUSANNA SOFT SOAP

Dear Susanna: Instead of making down small bits of soap to use them up, I simply soak them slightly to soften them and then press each piece into the large cake of soap we are currently using, that is also wet and a bit soft. — Christie Mole

Sees Urgent Need For World Literacy

DEAR DORIS: Is there something which a women's club can do to help the cause of World Literacy? I understand this is a special concern of UNESCO. — MRS. EXECUTIVE.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR MRS. EXECUTIVE: Indeed there is. UNESCO says literacy keeps over 700 million people "fingerless and blind." And there are far more illiterate women than men.

Illiteracy means a farmer cannot read directions about fertilizing his soil. It means primitive methods of survival, first aid, sanitation — and a complete shut-out from most of the vast store of knowledge of the world.

First you should learn more about the need. A manual prepared by Mushtaq Ahmed, former Director of Literacy Village, in India, outlines the type of simple reading matter needed by adults just learning to read. It may be obtained from World Literacy (Canada) Inc., 370 Dundas Street West, Toronto 23, Ontario, for $1.25.

Then you can start collecting books which the manual suggests are suitable. You can also raise money for direct contributions to the program; and a request to be put on the mailing list for World Literacy's periodic bulletin will keep news coming to your club. Request particularly the "World Review" issue for May, 1965. This is the monthly letter of the United Nations' Association in Canada. The May issue outlines UNESCO's World Wide Campaign Against Illiteracy.

DEAR DORIS: I just love Elvis Presley. I can't keep my mind on anything else but him. My school average has dropped and my mother is constantly giving me lectures. I wrote a speech on him at school and got back for that.

I'd like to know a way to keep my mind off him at least so I can get a decent mark in school. — AN ELVIS PRESLEY FAN.

* * *

DEAR E. F. FAN: Falling for a singing star is nothing new, but it isn't practical. The antidote is to make friends with some real flesh-and-blood boys.

A satisfying evening with your pals will give you self-expression and release all those pent-up sighs! Then you can sleep, and wake, and accept the sober fact that life is not only beauty but duty.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I perspire. I don't mean like you or anyone else I know but in a terrible way. Every day when I dress I perspire until I go to bed. I have to wear a sweater even on the hottest days so nobody will notice. My armpits are always soaked down to my waist.

Doris, this is no exaggeration. What can I do? Is there any way that I can ever wear a blouse like everyone else? Are there any pills that can stop this terrible nervous perspiration? — ASHAMED.

* * *

DEAR ASHAMED: Perhaps it is nervousness, as you suggest. Or diet may be doing it. Spicy foods, too much coffee or other stimulants make people perspire.

But since in your case it is excessive, it may well be due to some seriously underlying condition. Get to the doctor — now.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: As I am not a Canadian could you please advise me as to the custom regarding baby showers? For instance, if a shower is given for me, what is my obligation afterwards to anyone who may attend? — CZECH.

DEAR CZECH: At the time, you register delight as you open each gift; and you make a little speech of thanks. Afterwards, a note to the one giving the shower, appreciating the thoughtfulness and work done, is indicated.

Invite any special friends around to see the baby later.

1965 CHRISTMAS FRUIT CAKE

Responsibility is serious. Responsibility for the excellence of your 1965 Christmas Fruit Cake is dead serious. But the choices and decisions have been made and I hope my fruit-cake-reader-friends will be happy with the results.

We are, Beside my typewriter is a plate of the 1965 fruit cake sliced ideally for the staff to enjoy as they prepare the copy.

1965 MEDIUM-DARK FRUIT CAKE (approximately 5¼ pounds)

Notes: 1) I baked our cakes in two standard-size loaf pans. 2) There is no baking powder in this cake.

½ lb. mixed peel (1¼ cups),
½ lb. dried, quartered, red and green maraschino cherries (1¼ cups when quartered),
1 lb. coarsely chopped candied pineapple,
1 lb. sultana raisins,
¾ lb. seeded Muscat raisins (1¼ cups),
¾ lb. currants (¾ cup),
½ cup sherry (or pineapple or apple juice),
½ lb. blanched almonds (1 cup chopped),
½ lb. chopped walnuts (1¾ cups chopped),
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour,
½ teaspoon mace (or nutmeg),
½ teaspoon cinnamon,
½ teaspoon cloves,
½ teaspoon baking soda,
2 large eggs,
1 teaspoon almond flavoring,
½ cup (¼ lb.) butter,
2 cups light brown sugar, packed.

In a large bowl mix all of the fruits (not the nuts) with the sherry or fruit juice and allow to soak — overnight, if possible, or while you mix batter. Sift the sifted flour with the spices and baking soda. Stir ¼ cup of this flour mixture through the nuts, in a large mixing bowl cream the butter until light, beat in the sugar until fluffy, then beat in the eggs, one at a time, beating well between additions. Beat in almond flavoring. Add floured nuts and fruit mixture and stir until smoothly blended. Have ready 2 standard loaf pans lined with 3 layers heavy wax paper, buttered. Turn batter into them and smooth top. Put shallow water pan in bottom of oven. Place cakes at centre of oven and bake at 275 deg. Fahr. 2¼ to 2¾ hours — replenishing water as it evaporates. Let cakes cool in pans and store, in refrigerator, well wrapped, without removing wax paper. Slices beautifully.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

RIVER VALLEY DREAMERS

STIRLING — The fifth meeting of River Valley Dreamers 4-H Girls Club was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Irvan on Saturday afternoon.

President Judy Bush opened the meeting with the 4-H Pledge and Yvonne Goldcamp read an account of the meeting held the previous week. Each member told what she liked to entertain and mentioned one duty of a hostess toward her guest.

Special pamphlets with recipes were distributed to the members. The hostess gave a demonstration on making fancy cookies and Mrs. Gerald Brooks demonstrated Swedish cakes.

The discussion centred around party,refreshments which stressed simple and attractive places. The linen dishes and silver should be in readiness for the event. It should be remembered to keep sandwiches in a cool place and to arrange them at the last minute in order to keep them tasty. The leaders explained the proper equipment needed to arrange a party, always making the arrangements around what is in the house.

The picnic suggestions gave the advice to always climb a fence where there is a post and always clear up trash before leaving the picnic grounds. Fires should be lit away from bushes and buildings and all fires should be thoroughly soaked with water before departing.

The house assignment was the fashion and table centre and to arrange a buffet table.

Served Twenty Years As Lighthouse Keeper

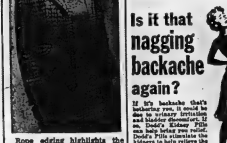
MAIN-A-DIEU, N.S. (CP) — Miss Campbell, 62, is retiring at the end of November after 20 years as lighthouse keeper on lonely Scatarj Island, two miles from this community on Cape Breton's south coast.

The only full-time lightkeeper in Nova Scotia, Mrs. Campbell took over the operation of the island's western light in September, 1945, following the death of her husband. Mr. Campbell had been in charge of the station since 1930.

The light may become an automatically controlled unit when Mrs. Campbell leaves, thus ending the Campbell dynasty at the Main-a-Dieu lighthouse. Her father - in - law was appointed keeper by the federal transport department in 1912.

She plans to live with her daughter in Bridgewater, N.S., following retirement. From now on it will just be "light housekeeping" for her, she says with a grin.

Mrs. Campbell raised three children on Scatari Island and one of her two sons was drowned in 1960 while serving as assistant lightkeeper at another Nova Scotia station. Most of the 20 years, however, she lived with only the companionship of the unpredictable sea.



She isn't "grieved" at the prospects of quitting, but she says she'll miss the lonely cliffs and pounding surf.

MESSENGERS GROUP

RAWDON — The October meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Messengers was held in the church hall last Sunday with an attendance of 38.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell opened the meeting and Carolyn Merrick was pianist for the hymns. Joyce Jeffs gave the call to worship and Donnie Campbell read the Bible lesson. Mrs. Clarence Scott read the meditation. Others assisting with the devotional were Tony Talisman and Terry Bailey.

During the business period it was decided to have the annual Christmas party at the church hall on Saturday evening, November 27 and the boxes will be packed for the Fred Victor Mission.

Joyce Jeffs took over as president in the absence of Judy McAdam. Bonnie Williams gave her report. The year's study books were completed when Mrs. Scott conducted the junior study and Mrs. McConnell the primary study chapter.

The program consisted of a piano solo by Jeannette Hoard; a harmonica selection by Randy Scott and a reading by Debbie Graft.

At the close each child received a Hallowe'en treat.

Teachers Ask Increase in Pensions

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Council of Women agreed Wednesday to renew requests that the Ontario government raise the minimum pension for school teachers.

Some retired teachers receive pensions of about $50 a month.

The council, holding its two-day annual meeting, hoped its efforts would strengthen the hand of teachers' groups who are trying to raise the minimum pension.

They reinforced a national council interest in having laws governing domicile changed so that a women does not automatically have her husband's domicile, regardless of whether they live in the same place or not.

Some consideration was given to a study by the councils of inequalities in the legal standings of men and women.

Picton Council Approves Bonds for School Addition

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Town Council this week approved a motion authorizing County Council to issue debentures for $500,000 to help pay for a $1,700,000 addition to Prince Edward Collegiate Institute. Picton thus becomes the second municipality to approve the recommendation of the high school board. Hillier Township passed an identical motion at the end of last month.

The town's approval comes after a long series of debates concerning the nature and cost of such a proposed addition. The plans must still be approved by the other contributing municipalities, County Council, the Municipal Board and Department of Education, which has already given it's tentative approval. The debentures, if finally approved, will extend over a period of 20 years. The two senior governments will bear the bulk of the cost for the addition.

Absent when council votes were taken were Mayor H J. McFarland and Councillor Dr. Lionel Dockrill. Yea votes were recorded by Councillors Mrs. George Elson, Donald King, Mrs. Bessie Ward, Robert Walmsley and Deputy Reeve Donald Thompson. Nay votes were cast by Andrew Jarvis and Reeve Bernard Hepburn.

APPROVE RESERVOIRS

Town council also gave the Public Utilities Commission the green light to proceed with plans for extensions to the municipal water works system. The PUC plan calls for construction of a new covered 2,000,000-gallon reservoir on the hill and a smaller 500,000-gallon reservoir near the water purification plant.

PUC chairman J. H. Ward, who was at the meeting, told council the commission was waiting council's approval in principle of the project and of debentures to cover the cost. The commission has already made a lengthy submission to Ottawa and the Department of National Defence has replied that the appropriate department is studying the proposal for the reservoir on Department property near Camp Picton. Mr. Ward said the commission wanted assurance that the town council would approve the project so that the consulting engineers could proceed with planning and specifications.

Mr. Ward said that although he is unable to say how much the project will cost until tenders are in, it will be less than $250,000.

Council subsequently passed a motion authorizing the commission to proceed with its plans with the assurance that it will raise debentures for the project not to exceed $250,000.

Think Pipe

went to her bedroom at the back of the couple's groundfloor apartment. The blast occurred in the front of the house.

The upstairs apartment was occupied by Mrs. Jean Fraser and her daughters Frances, 21, and Ann, 12. All were away from home at the time.

Ann Fraser goes to Queen Victoria School with Christopher Van Dusen, 8, who lived with his grandparents on the groundfloor. She told him of the incident as they left school for home.

Fire spread rapidly through the frame structure but firefighters were able to contain it and save the shell of the building.

A dairy directly opposite the Van Dusen property which daily chalks a motto on a blackboard, had its device changed while firemen were fighting the blaze.

Earlier in the day it had advertised customer parking.

During the fire a motto suddenly appeared: "Fire Sale Now On."

The Van Dusen home also was assigned as a polling station for next Monday's federal election.

The office of riding returning officer William Van Tassel announced today the polling location had been transferred to St. Michael's Academy.

MOVE TO CLEAN BATHS

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia has asked indignantly why public bathhouses aren't up to scratch. Those being built now aren't as good as those dating from Czarist days, the paper said, and are designed only for show. The drainage is bad, the equipment old and they are not kept clean.

Nursing Cadets Help Pack Christmas Seals

A group of nine St. John Nursing Cadets and two leaders gathered at the home of Mrs. A. N. Hallam, Bleecker Avenue, last night to pack TB Christmas Seals in envelopes for distribution.

Mrs. Hallam, executive secretary of Hastings County Tuberculosis Association, said, "A total of 19,500 letters are being sent out, covering all of Hastings County.

"Each envelope contains seals, a message from the Association and a return envelope. We send them to people, hoping they will make use of them on their Christmas mail.

"A person can contribute whatever amounts he wants to for use of the seals. The average contribution is $2."

Funds from the seals are used in case finding for tuberculin testing of students, a follow-up on the families of positive reactors, regular X-raying of persons in contact with the public and mobile clinics at fairs and industries.

The money is also used for health education—films, pamphlets, posters and booklets on TB and associated diseases; social and rehabilitation— all possible assistance to patients and their families, and grants —research and Ongwanda Sanitorium.

Mrs. H. W. Reid, Cadet Nursing superintendent, and Miss Mary Ann McGuire, Reg. N., Cadet Divisional Nursing Officer, were in charge of the nursing cadets. Cadets were Christine Reed, Betty Rashotte, Christine Storms, Helen Wringe, Linda Gordon, Brenda Tripp, Susan Short, Bonnie McQuaid and Patsy Dezelan.

Mr. Hallam said, "Altogether about 100 people will be here in the next week, packing the envelopes. Still to come are the Point Anne Girl Guides, the Management committee and their wives and the Kinsmen Club."

TOWNSMEN JOIN IN

ST. ALBANS, England (CP)—Shopkeepers in this Hertfordshire down offered examples of their wares to be blessed at local harvest thanksgiving services. Tavern - keepers offered small bottles of whiskey, gin and brandy, which were later given, with the farm produce, to old-age pensioners.

What Women Are Doing

Mrs. W. Scrymgeour, Senior Regent

The Women of the Moose is the women's chapter affiliated with the Loyal Order of the Moose Lodge. The first chapter was organized in 1916 and called the National Auxiliary of the Supreme Loyal Order of the Moose.

This name remained the same until 1933 when it was changed to Women of the Moose. The local chapter, meeting every second and fourth Thursday, and at present has an approximate membership of 300, the meetings are conducted along the same lines as other lodges with members working for the various degrees. The public is welcome at any of the open meetings.

This year's Senior Regent (or president) is Mrs. W. Scrymgeour.

Chief work of the group is to help children and families in need and donate to all local charities. Most of the proceeds from social evenings, euchres and suppers go towards the welfare of families in Belleville and vicinity with special attention being given to those who have been burnt out.

Each year Christmas gifts are sent to the patients at the Ontario Hospital for Women at Cobourg, and, as well, the group holds a banquet for the local White Cane Club.

The Women of the Moose also donate funds to Mooseheart, which originated in 1913 when Senator J. J. Davis was present for a laying of a corner stone in a circus tent and which now has grown to the finest city in the world which is devoted exclusively to the care of children. As well as helping Mooseheart donations are made to the senior citizens at Mooseheaven, Orange Grove, Florida. These two homes are open to all Moose members and their families.

To round out the year's activities a joint Christmas tree for children of both the men's and women's orders is held and a cheque is sent every year to the Firemen's Christmas fund.

This is the 32nd in a series about women's organizations in Belleville and their activities.

Divorce to Become Cheaper And Easier in Soviet Union

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — Divorce is going to become cheaper and easier in the Soviet Union.

A new draft law has been under preparation for some time and although details are secret enough material has been published in the press to indicate the general outline.

The likelihood is there will be at least a partial return to pre-war times when all it took to get a Russian divorce was three rubles and a trip to the registry office.

Today it costs as much as 200 rubles (just at the official rate of exchange) for a couple to have a marriage dissolved. Few get away with less than 100 rubles. Part of the cost, 40 rubles, is for newspaper publication of intention to divorce. Indications are that this requirement will be scrapped.

It is also likely court procedures will be dispensed with in cases where both parties agree to the divorce and there are no children. District registration offices, of which there are 17 in Moscow, will do the job for a nominal fee.

Divorce applications now are heard in two separate courts which try to reconcile the couple before granting a decree. But they are so swamped with cases that they find it impossible to investigate properly.

Only contested cases which demand thorough study of a family conflict, and certain cases involving children, are likely to continue being dealt with by a court.

LAW HAS FAILED

"Complicated divorce laws were established to strengthen the family, prevent unfounded divorces, safeguard the interests of children," wrote three juridical experts recently.

"Did they prove good? No. Very often people live together without being married because they cannot get a divorce from a former wife or husband. . . . Not only is respect for law undermined but the morals of our society as well."

The present law was introduced during the Second World War to counteract the danger of a runaway divorce rate resulting from separation of millions of young wives and husbands.

No figures are published on divorce but one gets the impression it is quite common. The usual ground is incompatibility. This problem often arises from family conflicts engendered by crowded living conditions, especially when a couple lives with parents.

Drunkenness is commonly involved, and a recent study in Leningrad showed half the cases involved drunken husbands.

Another change being contemplated affects illegitimate children. The father's name is not now mentioned in the child's registration papers or, in later life, his work passport, but the name will probably be included under the new law.

The father of a child born out of wedlock would also be required to make monthly payments to the mother. The state now makes these payments.

There has been no indication of any change in the alimony system—25 to 50 per cent of a man's salary depending on the number of children. Alimony is normally not paid when there are no children.

Woman Lands 428-pound Blue Marlin

HONOLULU (AP) — Mrs. Jeanette Alford of Miami, Fla., has filed a claim for a world record for both men and women after landing a 428-pound Pacific blue marlin on a 50-pound test line.

The catch was made Tuesday off the Kona Coast of Hawaii Island.

Mrs. Alford, wife of an Eastern Airlines pilot and a veteran sports fisherwoman, fought the Pacific bluefin an hour, two minutes before bringing it in.

The world record in this line classification is held by Mrs. Sally Perry of Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., with a 234-pound, 8-ounce blue boated Aug. 23, 1960.

Art Teachers Hold Meeting In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Surrounded by art and handicrafts from many countries, vivid children's water colors and stacks of paint pots, more than 200 Canadian art teachers started their annual convention here Wednesday night.

The Chateau Laurier's Peacock Alley, a long salon, has been converted into an exhibition hall for the four-day meeting of the Canadian Society for Education Through Art.

The society, founded 10 years ago, is made up of art teachers working at all levels of education from primary schools to university. They come from every province.

The meeting opened informally. Following registration, the teachers strolled among exhibits which a number of embassies have contributed.

Ceylon showed delicately embroidered bedspread, dramatic wood carvings and burnished brassware. The French embassy's display featured representations of works by a group of French artists including Monet, Renoir, Pissarro and Gauguin. Iran's display featured Persian carpets.

Today the meeting will be opened by the society's president, John Tokaryk, a teacher at Woodroffe high school here.

Panel discussions on trends in Canadian art, and trends in art education are expected to be among the highlights of the meeting, which ends Saturday with the election of new officers.

Mr. Tokaryk said in an interview that one subject which the teachers will probably discuss will be increased exchanges of art between provinces, and with other countries.

One unique part of this year's meeting will be a "meet the artists" session at the National Gallery of Canada. Canadian artists Arthur Lismer and A. Y. Jackson are expected to be among a group of artists represented in the gallery's collection to meet the teachers Friday afternoon.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with the wedding write-up, but should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

Ann Landers

Nail-biter Says No Psychiatrists Needed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read your answer to the 15-year-old girl who bites her fingernails way down. You said, "When you find out what's eating you you'll stop eating your nails. Get professional help."

ANN LANDERS

Almost every day in your screwball column you are telling someone to get professional help. Pray tell, Ann Landers, what is eating you? If you had your way every third person in the United States and Canada would be going to a psychiatrist.

In the first place there are not enough psychiatrists to go around. In the second place they are too blooming expensive. In the third place, most psychiatrists are nuttier than a fruitcake and they need professional help.

Isn't it barely possible that the girl who bites her nails is a little nervous? I've known people who have bitten their nails all their lives and never ended up in the hatch.

Yours for sanes and sounder advice. — ALSO A NAIL BITER.

* * *

DEAR ALSO: Some nail-biters aren't a bit concerned about the habit, but the girl who wrote wanted advice and I offered it. You would probably chew your nails up to the elbow before you'd admit something was bothering you.

True, there aren't enough psychiatrists to go around but this is no reason not to recommend professional help.

Psychiatry is not the sure-cure for all mankind's ills, but it has restored many wretched, useless people to a life of productivity and contentment and I support it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem you've never heard of. My husband thinks he is a race horse. Harry refuses to eat anything but oats. When I serve him delicious T-bone steaks and double-thick lamb chops he snorts and refuses to settle down until I slip a bag of oats around his neck.

Harry thinks he won the Kentucky Derby. Last night he was repeating their story and one of the listeners who has known Harry all his life said, "Are you saying you rode the winner of the Derby?" My husband replied, "Rode nothing . . . I was the winner."

Ann, what am I going to do? Now he wants to sleep in the barn and it's getting very cold. Don't tell me to take him to a psychiatrist. He won't go to anyone but a veterinarian. — DESPERATE.

* * *

DEAR DESPERATE: So your husband thinks he's a horse? Well, you have a more serious problem. You think you are a comedian. Get a part-time job and stop wasting my time with phony letters.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A recent column has stirred up considerable conflict among my friends. I am referring to your statement that the parents of the bridesmaids should be invited to the wedding "no matter how small the church is."

We believe such advice is small-townish and impractical. Often the guest list must be abbreviated because of family obligations on both sides. This means many friends must be omitted — close friends at that — and it is hoped that they will understand.

Does it make sense then, that the parents of the bridesmaids who are often nodding acquaintances (or total strangers) be invited simply so they can enjoy themselves seeing their darling daughter in the wedding procession.

Your advice is usually pretty sound, Ann, but this time I think you should eat your words. — VOICE FROM THE 50TH FLOOR.

DEAR VOICE: Gulp, Gulp!

Low-heeled Shoes Are High Fashion in Paris

By PEGG YMASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Low-heeled shoes are high fashion in Paris.

Nothing dates a woman faster today than spike heels worn in the daytime, say leading shoe designers.

"It constitutes a major revolution to have induced French women to abandon their beloved high heels," says the director of the Christian Dior shoe salon. "By present standards, stiletto heels seem as inappropriate for streetwear as an evening dress worn in the morning."

The oxford and brogue-type shoe, now so popular, was formerly strictly the preserve of elderly English maiden ladies. No Frenchwoman under the age of 70 would have dreamed of wearing a "sensible shoe" anywhere except on the golf course.

Then such influential couturiers as Dior, St. Laurent and Balenciaga, and shoe designer Roger Vivier, launched a whole new psychological approach to footwear. They have succeeded in convincing women that it is more elegant to walk than to wobble, safer to stride than to stumble.

Roger Vivier launched his "amazon" line with rounded toes and flat heels in contrast to high-cut vamps and baby-boot styles.

Balenciaga featured mannish-looking brogues, worn with schoolgirl coats and heavy-ribbed woollen stockings.

The best-selling shoe in the Dior custom-made salon is a beige suede oxford with this "sensible" laces and an inch-high stacked leather heel.

Low-heeled "baby doll" and "Mary Jane" pumps with cross-strap or low-slung ankle bracelet are the popular new style for the teen-age group. They are also being worn by many not-so-junior women. One couturier, Louis Feraud, features flat-heeled baby-doll shoes in shiny patent-paint shades of red, yellow, and orange patent leather.

White shoes, traditionally restricted to summer wear, are a dominant new winter trend, launched as the logical evolution of Andre Courreges' famous white boot.

Roger Vivier is selling as many pairs of the low-heeled guardsman-style shoes with silver buckle in white patent leather as in black. White shoes are worn with all white ensembles and dark-toned handbags.

The French government's solicit banning stiletto heels in museums and embassies in order to protect valuable old parquet floors has proved to be one of the strongest fashion influences in formal footwear.

Young Ladies Not Joining Institutes

STRATFORD (CP) — "Women are still joiners, but what are they joining—curling clubs, social clubs, or Women's Institutes?"

This is a key question confronting Women's Institutes, of Ontario.

Mrs. Trivers of Thessalon told the annual Loodon-area convention Wednesday that the WIs need to change their image to appeal to younger women.

A questionnaire distributed three years ago showed that more than half of the WI members in Ontario are more than 50 years of age, she said.

Mrs. Stanley Mollard of Parkhill, a provincial board director, said:

"The WI was created for a community of young marrieds, but with the passing years the young women became older women and the WIs changed to meet their changed needs."

Mother's Helper

TO a rather disinterested eater, a sandwich cut in bite-size pieces looks less formidable than two large halves. Regardless of appetite, small pieces are easier for small fingers to handle. Don't put too much at a time on a "picky" eater's plate—and try not to watch! Too much attention to food doesn't help.

Stepping right out of a copy of "Alice in-Wonderland," the look of fall dresses for little girls highlights such beguiling ideas as puffed sleeves, hand smocking, full skirts. Styles shown are in machine-washable, val-dyed all-cotton fabrics.

Leather Turns Up in Many Exciting New Ideas All Around the House

From replacing Dad's favorite chair to re-doing the living room from wall to wall, there are decorating ideas galore in the world of leather furniture and furnishings.

Whatever the color scheme, leather comes in shades to suit — more than 500 hues, advises Leather Industries of America.

To grace a living room or study, leather sofas come in strictly-for-two to 10-foot lengths in comfortably contemporary, formal big not fussy, or elegantly "old world" styles.

For the males in the family are classic leather-upholstered armchairs, for study or reading corners.

Up-to-the-minute dining chairs are covered in an elegant tortoise shell patent leather.

Rich leather panoling in a deep color makes a conversation piece for the foyer. If the front door opens directly into the living room, a screen of pierced leather creates the illusion of a foyer. It does equal-ly well between living and dining space.

Other uses are leather covered headboards and cabinet fronts, throw pillows (try suede for a different effect), hooded leather desk accessories, cocktail and end tables with inlaid leather tops and leather-covered lamps of all shapes and sizes.

Senior Citizens Hold Annual Tea

The members of the Senior Citizens' Club held their annual fall bazaar and tea on Wednesday afternoon, at the Recreation Centre.

The hall was truly flower-filled, with large baskets of fall blooms lining the walls and each small table centred with a vase of white and pink 'mums. The tea table was covered with an ecru linen cutwork cloth and centred with a large arrangement of golden chrysanthemums flanked by red and green candles in silver candelabra. This table flower arrangement went to the lucky winner of the door prize, who was Mrs. Barbara Radway.

Alderman Don Williams, chairman of Parks and Recreation committee, officially opened the bazaar. Overall conveners were Mrs. Essie Bone, Mrs. Eva Laffman and Mrs. Marjorie Clapp, president of the Club. Mrs. Clapp and Mrs. Bone received the guests at the door. Treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. Vera Bell and Mrs. Mabel Cook.

VARIOUS TABLES

Those convening the various tables were Mrs. Keitha Ferguson — homebaking; Mrs. Hattie Vickers — candy; Mrs. Lulu Longhurst - aprons; Mrs. Laura Hyde - fancy work, and Mrs. Marion Simpson and Mrs. Mabel Doyle - white elephant table.

In charge of the kitchen was Mrs. June Finkle.

Mrs. Margaret Robinson, Mary Wannamaker, Mrs. Nellie Bly, Mrs. Myrtle McKinnon, Mrs. Lizzie Reid and Mrs. Lottie Fox poured tea.

Piano music during the afternoon was provided by Mrs. Lulu Adams.

Mr. Lee Grills and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Temple attended the tea and these two gentlemen each spoke on the current topic nearest their hearts — the pending Federal election.

BELTED IN FASHION

Small or large, buckled or tie, belts are everywhere for fall. Large belts accent hip line skirts on long-waisted dresses. Small tie belts help give the new London look to high-bosomed dresses, suits, coats and many separates.

When the Shepherd family left their butcher shop in Kent and emigrated to the Canadian West in 1906, they had no real idea of what they were in for, nor any pressing reason for leaving England.

But they wanted a change and they were prepared to work hard to make a new life. They were ideal pioneers.

They established themselves well, with a butcher shop in Girvin, Sask., and with homesteads in the names of all the family who were old enough.

The Shepherd family—mother and father, son George, his five younger brothers and a sister—created several thriving farms out of unbroken wilderness.

Their story, a piece of local history, a stirring passage of Canadiana and an engrossing human document, is told in West of Yesterday (McClelland and Stewart). George Shepherd, now curator of the Western Development Museum in Saskatoon, is the author.

He recalls that when the family arrived it had among its baggage a Boer War rifle and some shotguns, a pole-axe, a keg of railroad spikes (for building log houses—on the treeless prairie) and a 700-pound piano.

But the Shepherds were also clever and courageous, both qualities that were often needed, as well as stubborn.

The sons moved off to different parts of Saskatchewan as they grew up.

George moved to the Cypress Hills, near Swift Current. There, especially when the 1930s almost destroyed the value of his farm, he spent more and more of his time collecting the reminiscences of older settlers, including those who could remember the Red Rebellions and the last Indian wars.

A farm accident put him in hospital for 18 months in 1948, but his depth of experience and knowledge of history made George Shepherd the right man to run the new museum a few years later.

They also made him the right man to write a huge and fascinating memoir of the West, a distillation of that experience.

Haida, the story of Canada's most famous ship of the Second World War, has been reissued in paperback by Oxford. Publication coincides with the success of a group of businessmen to save the destroyer from the scrap heap and set her up as a museum in Toronto. The book, written in 1947 by William Scatter, one of the men who helped save Haida, won the Governor-General's Award that year.

A group of American expatriates living in Rome form the central characters of Knights and Dragons (McGraw-Hill Canada), a novel by Elizabeth Spencer.

It tells of the failure of a marriage and the effects of that failure on the former wife of a distinguished American philosopher and intellectual. She falls in love with a young American in Venice but their romance is doomed and she ends with her personality diminished rather than enhanced.

The author does not spell out how this comes about, however, and some readers may be puzzled by the treatment of the characters in the novel, all of them frustrated in one way or another.

But Miss Spencer, an American who now lives with her husband and two children, writes with style and distinction.

The Last of the Great Picnics (McClelland and Stewart) is a heart-warming little piece of fiction about an Ottawa Valley farm boy who met Sir John A. Macdonald and saw a balloon ascension at a July 1 picnic at Perth, Ont., in the 1880s.

The author is 62 - year - old Leslie McFarlane, a widely-known television playwright who lives at Whitby, Ont., near Oshawa, but was born at Carleton Place, 17 miles from Perth.

The title may be puzzling to Canadians with a farm background who know that there have been many great picnics since the 1880s. But that takes nothing away from the pleasant little book.

WATCH FOR GIANT BIRDS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) A party of experienced bird watchers is trying to count the remaining California condors at their 53,000 - acre sanctuary. They expect about 40 of the birds, North America's largest with a wing-span of up to 10 feet, remain alive.

Skeleton Crews Now Operating Gas Services

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Emergency service is being maintained by skeleton crews as 313 service employees of Union Gas Co. Ltd., here and in Sarnia, remained on strike throughout Wednesday.

The strike, which began in the early hours of Wednesday, was called by Local 9-758 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (CLC) after it claimed that talks leading to a new three-year contract between the union and company had broken down in Toronto Tuesday.

But in the Chatham headquarters of the company, it was denied that talks had broken down. "They have been adjourned to allow consideration of the latest bargaining proposals," a spokesman said.

More than 140 of the total number on strike are employed in Windsor, where gas distribution depots and a business office of the company were picketed Wednesday.

ISSUES STATEMENT

In a statement, the company said that the strikers included service, maintenance and other operating employees in the communities in Essex and Lambton counties in southwestern Ontario.

"We would like to emphasize the company's intention to maintain gas supplies to all municipalities without interruption. It will, however, be necessary to curtail certain of our services in those areas while the strike is in progress and until further notice," the statement said.

The company added that it would offer emergency service throughout the duration of the strike but advised householders to call a plumber if any but the most urgent problems arose.

T. R. Hillard, deputy minister, department of energy and resources management, said Wednesday his department had been in touch with the company and would continue to maintain a steady liaison.

Sterling Adair, president of the striking local, said Wednesday that negotiators would be willing to return to the bargaining table at a moment's notice.

Kenya's Development Plans Realistic

By DENNIS NEELD

NAIROBI (AP) — Kenya's brand of African socialism pledges the government to establish a welfare state, but with stark realism it recognizes the No. 1 priority is economic development.

Unlike other African nations, Kenya's program of socialism does not give development priority to industrialization but such grandiose projects as chemical plants. Instead priority goes to agriculture and an all-out effort to step up production from lands held by Africans.

A broad new policy statement represents a clear victory for President Jomo Kenyatta's moderates and defeat for leftwing hotheads hoping to see Kenya guided by Communist principles.

Kenyatta said the new manifesto of African socialism would be Kenya's Bible and all members of his cabinet had approved it.

The document contains little to please pro-Communist elements in the government led by Vice-President Oginga Odinga. But to have disaccisted themselves from it could have put them in the political wilderness.

It lays down the ground rules for Kenya's future economic development. They are ground rules which most Western liberals would approve.

To maintain a non - aligned front, the blueprint claims, both communism and capitalism have been rejected.

REJECT CAPITALISM

The planners hasten to point out, however, that they reject the unbridled 19th-century version of capitalism rather than that of much of western Europe today.

State planning is a constant theme of the document. But there is provision for both government and private enterprise with the emphasis on the latter.

One declared aim is to provide free medical services; unemployment, disability and old age benefits, plus free primary education and free medical assistance for university training.

Kenya is a land of 9,000,000 people with a population growth rate of three per cent a year. Per-capita income is around $90 a year. The country has almost no mineral deposits; most of its African people scratch a meagre living from the soil. There are just 811 doctors—about one for every 10,000 people.

With harsh facts like these in mind, Kenyatta's government recognizes this is not the time to embark on large-scale social welfare programs.

"They are objectives of African socialism but to provide them fully and freely now would bankrupt the nation and prevent any economic growth for generations," the manifesto concedes.

"The bulk of government development expenditure will be channelled into directly productive activities in order to establish a foundation for increased and extended welfare advances in the future."

A six-year development plan envisages a 3.7-per-cent growth in the domestic product every year. To achieve this, private, co-operative and state enterprises are expected to play their part.

Nationalization will be resorted to only in exceptional circumstances and the government pledges compensation will be paid.

Repeated stress is placed on the need to attract foreign and increase domestic investment.

"If we had to depend solely on domestic savings and tax surpluses to grow, our growth might not even be rapid enough to keep pace with our burgeoning population," the manifesto says.

Kenya intends to remain staunchly non-aligned, the document says. But this will not mean its trade and aid relations will necessarily be divided equally between East and West. The manifesto says Kenya retains freedom to choose its economic partners on the basis most beneficial to the country.

In fact the document points out the dangers of trading with nations — mainly Communist-with unconvertible currencies.

The government appeals to foreign firms to assist its progress by creating openings in jobs previously held by foreigners. It indicates it may legislate to this end if there is no response.

Man's Longevity Record Does Not Match Animals'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States now has some 15,000 people aged 100 years or older. . . . That's only one for every 15,000 persons.

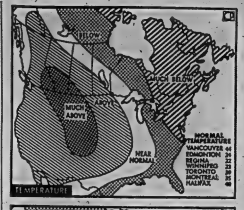
Theoretically, it should have many times that number of centenarians. . . . Many animals live five or six times as long as it takes them to mature. . . . If this were true of man, who matures fully at about 25, he should live to be 125 or 150.

De-salting ocean water to make it potable isn't cheap. . . . At present the cost is $1 a 1,000 gallons, about 10 times what most of us now pay for fresh water. . . . Incidentally, if you've been wondering how salty ocean water is, the figure is 3½ per cent.

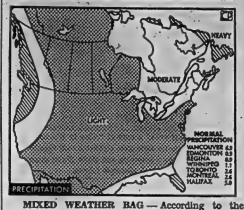
The human eye is one of the most sensitive instruments in nature. . . . It can detect about 4,000,000 different shades of color. . . . Only one out of 250 women suffer from color blindness. The figure for men is one out of 12 or 13.

Folklore: If your right ear burns, someone is praising you; but if your left ear burns, the talk about you is bad. . . . Always put your left foot out on the bed first in the morning or you'll be in a bad temper all day. . . .

Talk to yourself and you have the devil for an audience.



Tetanus, commonly known as lockjaw, is one of the most painful as well as deadly diseases. . . . Half of the 400 to 500 cases that occur in the U.S. each year are fatal.



The world's biggest baby is probably the offspring of the blue whale, the largest creature that ever existed. . . . Infants measure up to 25 feet at birth and weigh several tons. . . . By comparison, a polar bear at birth weighs only about a pound.

MIXED WEATHER BAG — According to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau, all of Eastern Canada will have below or much-below normal temperatures during November. Most western areas will have temperatures above or near normal.

Precipitation will be light to moderate, except for Newfoundland and the west coast, which will have heavy precipitation.

The outlook is not a specific forecast and changes may occur.

Normal temperatures for the period are: New York 47; New Orleans 60; San Francisco 55.

U.S. Steel Industry Modernizing With Aim of Higher Profits

By PHILIP J. KEUPER

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. steel industry, faced with higher labor costs and pricing problems, is stepping up a vast modernization program. The aim is to increase profits.

The outlay for new plants and equipment in this huge industry may top $2,000,000,000 for the first time in 1960, observers say. Many believe that the 3.2-per-cent wage increase won recently by the Steelworkers may have broadened steel company modernization plans.

The American Iron and Steel Institute estimates steel companies will spend a record $1,900,000,000 this year on projects designed to melt and roll steel more efficiently. Not since 1957 has the industry spent comparable sums on modernization. But with profits now at a seven-year peak and production at record levels, steel mill after steel mill is showing a new face.

The trend is visible almost everywhere in the industry: In fast - working oxygen furnaces replacing conventional open hearths; in computer-run mills; in streamlined methods of putting molten steel into semi-finished and finished shapes for the thousands of products that contain steel.

"The industry has been facing up to getting its plants and equipment into more competitive shape," said a major steel company spokesman.

Critics of the industry say the modernization program was long overdue — that it should have been launched on a vast scale in the years after the Second World War. But modernization has had a vast effect. Partly because of greater efficiency, the steel industry's payroll costs per ton of steel shipped dropped from $63.30 in 1961 to $53.25 in the first six months of 1963.

Higher steel prices, another way of increasing profits, have been a touchy prospect for the industry since 1962 when President John F. Kennedy rolled back a wave of steel price boosts in a bitter government-industry battle. The same year, the industry put out $911,000,000 for capital projects, increased it to $1,040,000,000 in 1963, then to an estimated $1,800,000,000 in 1964.

Competition from foreign steel, which made inroads during the industry's costly 116-day strike in 1959, also has speeded the industry's modernization pace.

Some steel plant projects are enormous. Bethlehem Steel Corp. claims its $400,000,000 steel-rolling mill at Burns Harbor, Ind., is the world's largest private construction project in progress.

United States Steel Corp., the No. 1 U.S. steelmaker, announced that it will spend $800,000,000 a year in the next three years on plants and equipment.

EUROPEAN PROCESS

Steelmaking advances include continuous casting of molten steel into semi-finished shapes, a European process that does away with some costly steps in the traditional steelmaking process.

New rolling mills to form semi-finished steel into finished shapes are being built — some equipped with computers to control the process. Computers already are running two strip steel mills and a dozen more computer - controlled mills are being installed or manufactured.

Probably the biggest advance has been the installation of oxygen furnaces, which melt raw steel much faster and more cheaply than the traditional open hearth furnaces. Steel producers already have put in 28,000,000 tons of oxygen furnace capacity.

What impact modernization will have on the number of workers employed by the steel mills is a question steel executives are hesitant to tackle. They say that because of the record demand for steel, the industry's payroll has been climbing. In July it stood at $13,000 workers, compared with $54,000 five years before.

Russian-German Relations Back in Deep Freeze Again

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—Relations between the Soviet Union and West Germany, which once gave promise of a significant breakthrough in relaxing cold war tensions, are back in deep freeze.

One year ago the two countries appeared to be moving toward a workable understanding of the "agree to disagree" variety, designed to help remove the danger of an explosion in an area where East and West confront one another.

Then Nikita Khrushchev was abruptly removed from power. The new Kremlin leadership has shown no sign of following through on the path he had been taking.

German sources here say there is no possibility now that Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin will visit West Germany in the foreseeable future. Khrushchev had been planning such a journey at the time of his downfall, and Bonn has made clear that the initiation to Khrushchev stands for his successor as premier.

Kosygin indicated a while back that he was considering the question. But the sources feel certain he has decided against accepting the invitation.

BONN BLAMED

Communist party first secretary Leonid Brezhnev stated recently that Soviet-West German relations was "bad" and no possibilities existed for their "fruitful development."

He blamed Bonn's policy of "revenge and militarism," what he called the persistent efforts of West German militarists to get nuclear weapons, and the Bonn government's continuing policy of isolating East Germany.

In other words, the situation is back about where it was before Khrushchev and the West German leaders began groping for some kind of mutual understanding in the spring of last year.

No longer is there talk of a more-or-less official modus vivendi which many observers thought might eventually flow from a meeting between Khrushchev and Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

Such a modus vivendi would have tacitly recognized the present division of Germany for perhaps a period of years, during which time political relations between Bonn and Moscow still at the most rudimentary level—would have had a chance to mature and stabilize.

Then, with the other powers concerned, a fresh approach might have been made to solve the biggest and thorniest East-West problem left over from the Second World War.

One reason the Russian leaders have backed away from a rapprochement with West Germany may simply be that they are too busy with other matters, especially with putting the shaky Soviet economy in order.

Another may be that they don't want to offend East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht, whose support they need in the Soviet-Chinese quarrel.

On the other hand observers here see no intention on the part of the Russians to force their views on Germany, beyond repeated insistence that East Germany be recognized as a separate state.

In fact, the Russians have quietly dropped a threat that Khrushchev used to brandish: Conclusion of a separate Russian-East German peace treaty. They also appear to have dropped their insistence that West Berlin be transformed into a free, demilitarized city.

HIT BY TRUCK

TORONTO (CP)—Moses Bendobgni, 65, died Wednesday in hospital after being struck Oct. 23 by a truck, an accident that resulted in him being issued a summons for jaywalking. Mr. Bendobgni was issued a summons while in hospital, because police said he crossed the street in mid-block before the accident to catch a bus after work.

Reno's Golden Days Gone But It Still Rolls Along

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Whatever happened to Reno?

Gone are the golden days when Reno was a stylish, carefree divorce capital where shipwrecked marriages were ended as painlessly as possible.

And Las Vegas, with its Alice-in-Wonderland strip, has eclipsed "the biggest little city in the world" as the centre of U.S. legal gambling.

But Reno is still rolling along. And "fun," in Reno, still boils down to gambling—in virtually every shape and for every pocket book.

By day, downtown Reno resembles any young city with a metropolitan area population of 100,000 or more. Businessmen go to Rotary on Mondays while their secretaries hunch or swivelshop. Four blocks, from the casino centre boys and men dangle their feet in the mountain-born Truckee River and catch sleek trout.

At night, Reno swings to the pull of thousands of slot machine handles, the rattling of dice and chips on green felt tables and the big beat of the brassy bands in casino show lounges. About 8,000,000 visitors a year crowd into a half-dozen city blocks to try their luck at blackjack, craps, keno, slot machines, bingo, the wheel of fortune and poker. The bookies are legal, too, and take bets on horse races and a few other sports events.

The casinos are open around the clock but the money, people and liquor flow most freely after sundown.

It still is easy to get a divorce at the black-domed Washoe County courthouse. But marriages outnumber divorces more than five to one. Weddings are big business, with neither blood test nor waiting period required. The marriage licence bureau is open weekends and neon-fringed wedding chapels tie the knot for young and old with mechanical dispatch.

CITY CHANGES

Reno got its start as a jumping-off spot for the Nevada silver and gold fields in the Civil War days. The divorce boom began in the 1930s.

Washoe County's population has increased a steady six or seven per cent a year. And small industry and warehousing is broadening the economic base.

Besides the gambling casinos, Reno has 22 public schools, 56 churches, 24 parks. A growing business area is encroaching on the mansions of the old silver barons along California Avenue while new housing tracts spread over the hills to the northwest and southwest and in Sparks, Reno's neighboring town with a population of about 20,000.

The average wage earner shuns the gambling tables because he knows he can't win in the long run. Many take advantage of the inexpensive entertainment brought in by the clubs to attract tourists.

Centennial Committee Shows Slides

MARMORA — The centennial committee of Marmora district showed slides, "67 Ideas for '67", on Wednesday night in the town hall. Rev. Maurice McLeod, president, showed the slides and Mrs. Wentworth, committee secretary, read the commentary. Due to a stormy night a small number were present.

Mrs. G. Meikejohn, vice-president, read a report of the caravan which will visit Marmora on June 27, 1967. The Legion Park is the location picked by the location manager, sent out by the provincial committee.

The local project convener, Mr. Percy Gray, asked for ideas and a winter carnival week to usher in 1967 met with approval. Other suggestions included a sidewalk cafe and an open air art show. Antiques shown this summer in the Market Block brought favorable comment from many tourists.

Project convener, Percy Gray asked for a sub-committee, each member to represent a group. The IODE representative is to be appointed; Mrs. W. Mefarcy will represent the Eastern Star, and Mrs. George Empey will represent the Women's Institute. Delvro district senior citizens will choose a representative.

TWO APPEAR

MONTREAL (CP)—Two men appeared in municipal court Wednesday in connection with recent raids by members of the provincial police and Montreal morality squad that resulted in the seizure of 74,000 hockey pool tickets, printing equipment and materials. Five men were arrested in the city and suburbs.

TESTING FOR 5,000 MPH — An X15 rocket plane carrying two huge external fuel tanks and fastened underneath the wing of a B52 bomber as in this picture, made its first flight with the new tanks in place. With Lt.-Col. Robert Rushworth at the X15 controls, it was dropped over the California desert by the bomber. The X15 then dropped the empty tanks by parachute to the desert. The tanks are designed to eventually increase the X15 speed to 5,000 miles an hour. The flight, with no fuel in the tanks, was at 1,432 mph. (AP Wirephoto)

Soldier Held After Escape From London

BARRIE (CP) — William Charles Clark, 17-year-old soldier who escaped Oct. 18 from the Ontario hospital in London where he was remanded on two charges of attempted murder, was captured by provincial police here Wednesday night.

Police said he would be held here until arrangements were made to have him transferred to London

Clark was ordered to the London hospital for two months' psychiatric observation after he appeared in court in Guelph charged with the Aug. 25 butcher knife and razor slashing of a Palmerston couple, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Foley.

He escaped from the hospital by cutting his way through a ground-floor window screen.

Must Mark Ballot With X And Only With Lead Pencil

Until 1874 Voting Was Done in Open

OTTAWA (CP)—In most modern-day federal elections, locals are reported where the secrecy of the ballot has been lost. But it's a far cry from the early days of Confederation.

Until 1874, voting was open. Voters announced their choice of candidate to a clerk over a counter at the polling station.

"Open voting encouraged bribery and intimidation," wrote Robert MacGregor, the authority on the government of Canada.

The term pork barrel is used now to describe a form of political patronage. In the early years of Confederation, the barrels were at the polling station on election day.

To influence voters, supporters of a candidate or party headed on the pork to the electors. Sometimes the barrels contained liquor instead.

Federal election laws now contain elaborate provisions to insure anonymity of the ballot.

Each ballot has three parts: a stub and a counterfoil, both bearing a matching number, and the ballot itself which is initialled on the back by the deputy returning officer at the polling station.

A voter takes the ballot with counterfoil attached and—if the election rules are observed—marks his X in private. He folds it twice to prevent anyone seeing how he voted and returns it to the officer who checks his initials and makes sure the counterfoil number tallies with that on the stub he has retained.

The officer tears off the counterfoil, discards it and places the ballot in the padlocked box. The law says the voter has the right to see that the officer actually places the ballot in the box.

To watch the handling of ballots and make sure only eligible persons vote, each candidate is permitted two scrutineers inside each polling station.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. Harold Pascoe, as a member of a Hastings County judging team recently spent a couple of days in Guelph.

Susan Lazier, Denis Walsh and Larry Pascoe represented the Tyendinaga Calf Club at the Ottawa Fair last week. Their calves made a good showing among those of the whole county of Hastings. Boys and girls travelled by bus to Ottawa.

Mrs. Crouter spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Willis Fox.

Family Has Own Kingdom On New England Mountain

LANDAFF, N.H. (AP)—Note Kidder, a man with no taste for a world he calls "the precinct," has founded his own kingdom with more than 20 descendants on the summit of a small mountain.

Mrs. Kidder heads a nearly self-sufficient clan the size of a small town, at the 2,300-foot elevation on 265 acres of timberland in the Cooker Hills of northern New Hampshire.

The population includes Kidder's wife, nine children, more grandchildren than he keeps track of, and cows, pigs and goats.

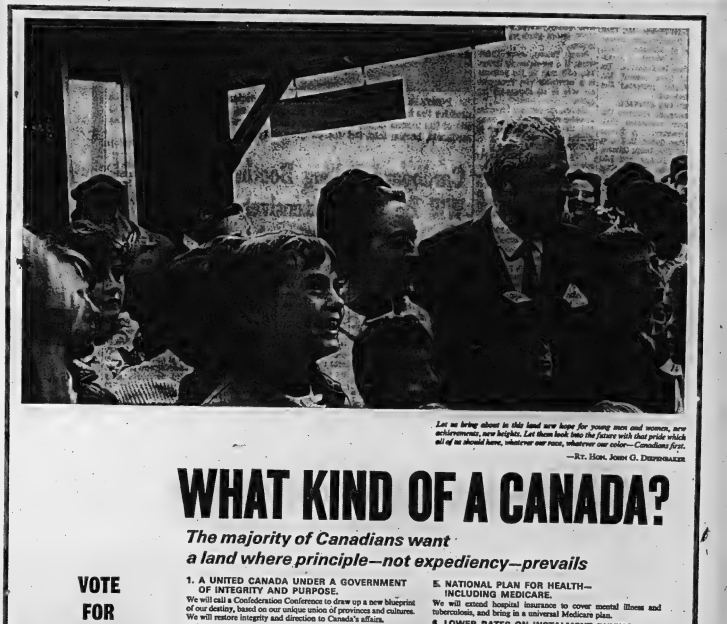
The 81 - year - old patriarch, born in Vermont of combined Indian and Yankee stock, said in an interview he hasn't taken a trip since he went to Bellows Falls, Vt., about 60 miles away, years ago.

"Out here, we have it our own way," Kidder says. "It's quiet. We can do what we want, raise what we want and keep what we want."

Kidder still refers to the world below as "the precinct"—the nearest town is 10 miles away—and says: "You have to do what they tell you there and I'd hate that."

The Kidders raise their own food and do without doctors, dentists, butchers, carpenters, an even undertakers.

BUILD OWN HOUSES



Nate and his wife live in a large tar paper-covered house and other family members in small wood structures with tin roofs that they built themselves.

The Kidders make infrequent trips to town for clothing and other supplies. They sell some of their timber when they need money.

But life is simple in the colony. "The Kidder women are not raised to dote on foolish finery," the founder said.

Old - timers who remember Nate always mention his reputation for honesty. "He doesn't owe anybody anything and his word is as good as gold," one said. Town records indicate he has never been delinquent in paying taxes, which were $82.95 in 1956 on property assessed at $1,050

Two of Kidder's sons served in the U.S. armed services during the Second World War but chose afterwards to return to the hills.

Let us bring about in this land new hope for young men and women, new achievement, new heights. Let them look into the future with that pride which all of us should have, whatever our race, whatever our color—Canadians first.

WHAT KIND OF A CANADA?

The majority of Canadians want a land where principle—not expediency—prevails

VOTE FOR RESPONSIBLE DECISIVE ACTION AT OTTAWA

1. A UNITED CANADA UNDER A GOVERNMENT OF INTEGRITY AND PURPOSE.
We will call a Confederation Conference to draw up a new blueprint of our destiny, based on our unique union of provinces and cultures. We will restore integrity and direction to Canada's affairs.

2. NATIONAL PLAN FOR EDUCATION—CANADA'S FIRST.
We will more than double university grants to lower tuition fees, add funds for expansion and for research in medicine, science and the humanities, expand vocational school development and agricultural schooling.

3. DEDUCTION UP-TO $600 OF MUNICIPAL PROPERTY TAX FOR FEDERAL TAX PURPOSES.
Rising school costs have put an unfair tax burden on the homeowner —almost to the breaking point. We will act at once to relieve this double taxation and encourage home ownership.

4. OLD AGE PENSIONS INCREASED IMMEDIATELY TO $100 PER MONTH.
Our senior citizens will not be left to suffer under the spiralling cost of living. We will pay them $100 per month without a means test. We owe this to those who built our country.

5. NATIONAL PLAN FOR HEALTH—INCLUDING MEDICARE.
We will extend hospital insurance to cover mental illness and tuberculosis, and bring in a universal Medicare plan.

6. LOWER RATES ON INSTALMENT BUYING.
We will help the young family through a Consumer Loans Act so that they will not be the victims of excessive rates of interest that now add 20% and more to the cost of necessary and basic purchases bought on credit.

7. PROSPERITY FOR ALL OUR FARMERS.
We opened wheat markets for the Western farmer. Now we will expand ports, start livestock programs. We will bring $4 per cwt. for industrial milk, an eastern feed grain board and extend crop insurance to cover livestock.

Camp That Cookies Built Ready to Double Capacity

By DOUG MARTIN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first step was a $76,000 camp with facilities for 120 persons. The next step — a centennial project—is a swimming pool and expansion of the camp to accommodate 300. Then will come qualification as an international girl guide camp.

That's the past, present and future of Camp Toosa—the camp that cookies built, a girl guide project that ranges up a Fraser Valley mountainside in a series of six plateaus.

"Some people have the idea that girl guides are a little square," said Mrs. C. R. McKay, a voluntary public relations worker with the British Columbia Council of Girl Guides. "Actually we are quite progressive."

If Camp Toosa is any indication, they are thrifty and imaginative as well as progressive.

The camp was opened in October, 1963, 10 years after the council started putting aside 10 per cent of its cookie - pale money for the project. The 85-acre tract, building and facilities were paid for in full.

"It's phenomenal when you consider there are only 30,312 guides in the province," said Mrs. McKay. "There were only 15,000 guides when we started to save."

Camp Toosa, near Chilliwack, is a for-girls-only haven. The only man on the property is a caretaker who lives with his wife to an 80-year-old log cabin.

Guides, the younger brownies or older rangers use the camp and its 153-foot longhouse 12 months of the year.

SLEEP IN TENTS

"We all sleep in tents during summer," said Mrs. McKay. "If you don't sleep under canvas you don't go. We only use the longhouse in winter, as shelter from bad weather in the summer or for training guide leaders."

One group of 13- and 14-year-olds proved they learned their lessons well. They awoke two hours early on a morning they were to break camp, packed up the tents and equipment and hid in the bushes. The startled counsellors awoke to find her girls gone and her tent the host one at the site.

Mrs. McKay said the next aim is to get the swimming pool.

"We don't go to the public except on cookie day so we are trying to raise the money by selling hasty notes (packed paper and envelopes) to friends and relatives."

The first estimate of the pool's cost was $25,000. The council has, however, decided on a smaller pool, cost of which is not yet known.

"Our eventual aim is to use Camp Toosa as an international camp," Mrs. McKay said. Then it would be able to invite guides from countries around the rim of the Pacific First, however, facilities must be expanded to handle another 150 guides.

PORTABLE POLLING BOOTHS—Small, portable polling booths will be used for the first time in the Nov. 8 general election. Cardboard Polling Booths Will Be Used Extensively

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Small cardboard polling booths are being used extensively for the first time in this federal election to improve voting facilities.

The booths are about two feet high, and their 45 - foot width folds out to three sections to hide the voters' writing hands from view. They can be set up on any table.

About 50,000, constructed for 64 cents a copy by prisoners at Kingston penitentiary, are being sent to returning officers for use at polling stations Nov. 8, particularly in rural ridings.

The long - time practice of erecting city-owned booths in urban areas will be continued.

The new booths were ordered by Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay to meet objections about make-shift booths which in the past sometimes have been nothing more than old rugs or curtains draped over wires.

In the last two elections Mr. Castonguay tested a wooden booth, developed in Australia, which is high enough to shield a voter from head to toe.

Returning officers in the test ridings reported they worked well.

COST TOO MUCH

Before the Commons privileges and elections committee two years ago, Mr. Castonguay said the wooden booth was superior. But the committee agreed the cost was prohibitive. Besides the $25-a-unit cost for wood, there would be the expense of moving, maintenance and storage.

Unlike Canada, where the returning officer rents space each election, Australia has permanent quarters for returning officers which can be used for storing booths.

The cardboard booths will be thrown away after the election and new ones produced for the next vote.

Some reservations were expressed about them by MPs before the committee. Erik Nielsen, MP for the Yukon in the last Parliament, said electors in Australia in polling stations might peer over their tops to see how voters marke their ballots.

Mr. Castonguay said the cardboard booths will be used only where they are an improvement—even if imperfect—over facilities used in the past.

HONOR CARTHORSE

CHATHAM, England (CP)—An admiral and 400 officers and ratings turned out on parade at the Royal Navy dockyard here for a horse. It was a ceremony to mark the retirement of Mary, the dockyard carthouse, after pulling a water-cart for 12 years. Her declining years are being paid for by a fund raised by the sailors.

Parties Not Given on Ballot

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal election ballot lists the names, addresses and occupations of candidates in a riding but the voter must rely on his own memory if he intends to vote by party.

The ballot makes no mention of party affiliation although the common practice for all but a few candidates is to run under the banner of a well-known political party.

Although some officials think this rule is outdated, there appears to be no move among MPs to make any change. The last time the Commons committee on privileges and elections met in 1960, it made no recommendation to include political affiliation on the ballot.

The theory behind the present system is that designating the political party of a candidate could detract from his independence as an MP, and might create difficulties if more than one candidate claims to represent a party.

But difficulties are caused now when persons of the same name run in the same riding. The voter then has only the addresses and the occupations to tell the difference between the candidates.

Only official documents showing political affiliations is that prepared for the guidance of armed forces personnel voting outside the country.

Why Wear a Poppy

"Please wear a Poppy," the lady said,
And held one forth, but I shook my head.
Then I stopped and watched as she offered them there,
And her face was old and lined with care;
But beneath the scars the years had made
There remained a smile that refused to fade.

A boy came whistling down the street,
Bouncing along on carefree feet,
His smile was full of joy and fun.
"Lady," said he, "may I have one?"
When she pinned it on he turned to say,
"Why do we wear a Poppy today?"

The lady smiled in her wistful way
And answered, "This is Remembrance Day,
And the Poppy there is the symbol for
The gallant men who died in war,
And because they did, you and I are free—
That's why we wear a Poppy, you see.

"I had a boy about your size
With golden hair and big blue eyes.
He loved to play and jump and shout,
Free as a bird he would race about.
As the years went by he learned and grew
And became a man - as you will too.

"He was fine and strong, with a boyish smile,
But he'd seemed with us such a little while
When war broke out and he went away,
I still remember his face that day
When he smiled at me and said, 'Good-bye,
I'll be back soon, Mom, so please don't cry.'

"But the war went on and he had to stay
And all I could do was wait and pray.
His letters told of the awful fight,
(I can see it still in my dreams at night)
With the tanks and guns and cruel barbed wire,
And the mines and bullets, the bombs and fire.

"Till at last, at last, the war was won
And that's why we wear a Poppy, son."
The small boy turned as if to go
Then said, "Thanks, lady, I'm glad to know,
That sure did sound like an awful fight,
But your son - did he come back all right?"

A tear rolled down each faded cheek;
She shook her head, but didn't speak.
I slunk away in a state of shame,
And if you were me you'd have done the same;
For our thanks, in giving, is oft delayed,
Though our freedom was bought - and thousands paid:

And when we see a Poppy worn,
Let us reflect on the burden borne
By those who gave their very all
When asked to answer their country's call,
That we at home in peace might live.
Then wear a Poppy: Remember - and give.

U.S. Fears de Gaulle Pursuing Threat to Seek New Balance of Power

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The current flirtation between Moscow and Paris suggests, as Washington has feared, that President de Gaulle may be actively pursuing his threat to seek an entirely new power balance in Europe.

The current status of the North Atlantic alliance may be aptly described as a marriage on the rocks. Countless attempts to get agreement on joint nuclear weapons strategy have failed and the new attempt, to take place in Paris later this month, may be no more successful than those in the past.

Distrust has taken the place of harmony. Both Bonn and Washington fear de Gaulle will make a deal with Soviet Premier Kosygin which would involve containment of West Germany's nuclear ambitions. The United States still keeps promising ChancelIor Ludwig Erhard a satisfactory role in Western nuclear strategy while British Prime Minister Wilson beats and bawls and talks of the more important need of getting Russia to clear non-proliferation agreement with the Soviet Union.

Now French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville has visited Moscow and while the official communique that followed gave no more than a hint of the Paris-Moscow courtship, it was accompanied by the Soviet Union's offer of greater trade with de Gaulle which he undoubtedly will accept. Russia should be content to preside over the trade of all his country.

Moscow is well aware of de Gaulle's differences with his NATO allies. The Soviet Union may in fact be actively working de Gaulle to exploit this split and de Gaulle may be responding in the hope that eventually he may get more favors from the Americans.

Nevertheless it may be a bitter pill for both Wilson and U.S. President Johnson to swallow that de Gaulle appears to be gaining more diplomatic ground from the Moscow-Peking ideological split than either of his more powerful allies.

Johnson has allowed his relations with Kosygin to sag. Differences over Viet Nam have spread into other fields. Even the U.S. - supported military exchange appears to be in jeopardy. And because of his support for U. . . . . we are going to choose free enterprise rather than state control or a welfare state."

Among papers not supporting any party outright, there are these stands:

The Nelson (B.C.) News opposes the New Democratic Party and the Liberals.

The Prince George (B.C.) Citizen opposes Social Credit and the NDP.

The Red Deer (Alta.) Advocate—in the constituency of Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson — opposes Social Credit and Mr. Diefenbaker but supports the local Conservative candidate as an individual.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review supports Conservative Walter Nesbitt locally. Nationally, it opposes a Liberal majority.

Newspaper Woman Dies In Viet Nam

By GEORGE ESPER

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP)—"She didn't seem like a girl at all . . ."

When U.S. marines said this of Dickey Chapelle, they meant it as a sincere compliment.

The 7 - year 4 old American photographer - correspondent, a veteran of three wars, gave her life for her profession early today in the same way she had lived it, asking no privileges because she was a woman alone in a man's world.

Miss Chapelle died on the floor of a helicopter as it was taking her to a field hospital. She had been wounded in the back when a mine booby trap exploded among U.S. marines she was with on an operation 60 miles north of Da Nang.

Four marines who were wounded by the mine.

Miss Chapelle was the first newspaper woman and the third member of the press killed in the Viet Nam war.

WAS UP FRONT

The newspaper woman had been up front with the marine company when it began moving across a hill from the bivouac area to begin the day's patrolling. The booby trap exploded at the base of the hill, triggered by a grenade wired to an 81-millimetre mortar shell.

Miss Chapelle was on assignment for The National Observer, a Boston newspaper, and for the RKO-Central radio network, whose New York station is WOR. She had previously worked in Viet Nam for the National Geographic Magazine.

Backed Liberals in Last Election, Five Papers Switch to Conservatives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five daily newspapers that supported the Liberals in 1963 have switched to the Progressive Conservatives in the current general election. A sixth has come out against majority government for any party.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows that 21 papers are giving editorial backing to the Progressive Conservatives and 18 support the Liberals. Seven others have stated miscellaneous support of opposition—one giving the New Democratic Party its only boost. The remainder of Canada's 98 dailies are not committed to any party.

Those changing from the Liberals to the Conservatives are Toronto Globe and Mail, Toronto Telegram and Hamilton Spectator, usually Conservative but supporting the Liberals in 1963, and Regina Leader-Post and Saskatoon Star - Phoenix which have long Liberal traditions.

The Windsor Star, previously a Liberal supporter, calls for the return of a minority government in the hope it will result in new leaders for both the major parties. The Star says the Liberals and Conservatives need leaders "with the ability and courage to put the needs of this country above any racial, regional or political consideration" and this will result only if both are denied majorities.

The Star backs Liberals Paul Martin in Essex East and Herb Gray in Essex West but elsewhere in six Southwestern Ontario area it urges voting with an eye to reducing the Ondergot" of a Liberal majority.

SUPPORT NDP

Qualified support for the NDP comes from the French - language Le Devoir of Montreal, which supported that party in 1963. It rejects the NDP program as clearcut in its views, but also advises voting for the best men in NDP and Liberal parties and, in some cases, for Progressive Conservative candidates. Quebec has never elected an NDP MP.

Another French-language paper—Le Droit of Ottawa—qualifies its support for the Liberals by urging a strong opposition including such men as Quebec NDP leader Robert Cliche, leading Conservatives Egan Chambers, Davie Fulton and Paul Martineau and deputy Creditiste leader Gilles Gregoire.

The Globe and Mail, which swung from the Conservatives to the Liberals in the 1963 campaign, says now that Prime Minister Pearson's conduct has been "disillusioning" and Canada has come to "the nadir of our political affairs." It says that John Diefenbaker must have learned that he must work with his lieutenants and that therein "is, at least, grounds for hope."

The Telegram, which also abandoned the Conservatives in 1963, says: "The electorate, after 25 years of the scandal-racked Pearson administration, has only one choice. The Liberals should be made aware of the public outrage over corruption in government."

The Spectator says: "Regretfully, the present government of Canada has not revealed the fibre that two years ago in every people of Canada, including this newspaper, thought it might . . . it has never risked the displeasure of its political friends by cleaning house the way it should have done months ago . . . a Conservative administration would be preferable, with good men returned to give it vigor and coherence."

MAJOR SWITCHES

The Regina and Saskatoon papers, under common ownership, set aside their long record of Liberal support to back the Conservatives.

The Leader - Post criticizes Mr. Pearson for making "no move to rid himself of his weak ministers, those who brought disaster either through fumbling and bumbling or through the scandals bared by the Dorion report.

The Star-Phoenix says it is disturbed about a new "tone" in the Liberal heirarchy. "This 'tone' could be called state control. It also could be called thought control. It would organize our occupations and our lives into uniform moulds predetermined by near-gods who think they know what is best for us . . . we are going to choose free enterprise rather than state control or a welfare state."

Among papers not supporting any party outright, there are these stands:

The Nelson (B.C.) News opposes the New Democratic Party and the Liberals.

The Prince George (B.C.) Citizen opposes Social Credit and the NDP.

The Red Deer (Alta.) Advocate—in the constituency of Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson — opposes Social Credit and Mr. Diefenbaker but supports the local Conservative candidate as an individual.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review supports Conservative Walter Nesbitt locally. Nationally, it opposes a Liberal majority.

Bomb Alerts Keep Police On the Jump

QUEBEC (CP) — Several phoney bomb alerts kept police on the jump Wednesday.

Towards the end of the afternoon, municipal police received a telephone call from a person who told them one bomb was set on the Quebec bridge across the St. Lawrence River and another on Du Pont Street near the Dorchester Bridge over the St. Charles River.

Several thousand cars were tied up for an hour on the approaches to the Quebec bridge before police could complete a search. Traffic was moving again on the Dorchester bridge in a matter of 10 minutes.

Pupils at the Quebec high school and L'Ecole St. Jean Baptiste had to leave their classrooms earlier in the day after calls came in about bombs.

There were no bombs on or near the bridges or in the schools.

Police have handled six such calls since Sunday.

Term Work For Grade 13 To Count More

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Davis confirmed Wednesday that the standing of Grade 13 students at the end of the current school year will be determined to a lesser extent than before by final examinations.

In a memo to high school principals, Mr. Davis approved a recommendation by a Grade 13 examining committee that 25 per cent of the final mark be based on term work. At present the teacher's mark makes up 25 per cent of the final standing.

In 1966-67 the teacher's mark is to be raised even further to value 50 per cent, meaning that Grade 13 examinations will count for only one-half of the student's over-all standings. At the same time, the number of Grade 13 exam papers is being reduced.

National Interests, Objectives Of Countries Hard to Resolve

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canada and the United States have no "intuitive and automatic" lack of understanding stemming from differences that cannot be resolved, a professor at the University of Chicago said here Wednesday night.

The differences — dangerous for both nations—are of "national interests and objectives," said Dr. Harry C. Johnson, a Canadian citizen and professor of economics at Chicago.

He was addressing the opening session at the annual seminar on Canadian-U.S. relations at the University of Windsor. Joint planning at various levels, government and business, is the theme of the three-day seminar.

Dr. Johnson said the differences dividing the two nations can be clarified but not resolved by countries—"modesty of the over-all relationship is the best that can be hoped for."

He said joint planning between the two countries has, in the main, been successful, but "it is only when the consultation machinery breaks down, is ignored or brought to bear too late to be effective, that the importance of this function . . . becomes evident."

ARE FREQUENT

"Incidents of this kind have unfortunately been rather frequent in recent years. Indeed, I conceive their frequency was responsible for the commissioning of the Merchant-Heeney report."

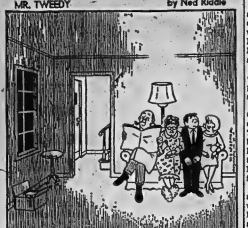
The report by A. D. P. Heeney, a former Canadian ambassador to the U.S., and Livingstone T. Merchant, a former U.S. ambassador to Canada, suggested that Canada should refrain from criticizing U.S. policies unless they directly affected Canada.

The authors were to have spoken at the seminar, but withdrew two weeks ago following widespread criticism in Canada of the report after its publication last June.

Dr. Johnson said the need for joint planning in the extra-continental sphere "is pressing because the structure of the world economy and the balance of power in it have changed rapidly."

He said that one of the chief problems involved in the closer integration of the economies of Canada and the U.S. is that "Canadian economic nationalism is a sensitive sensation that both Canadian and American officials have been schooled to treat with tender solicitude, reserved for immature adults."

He added that progress in joint planning cannot be considered while Americans regard Canadians as Americans living in a small adjacent country, and while Canadians regard Americans as Canadians "blessed by more numbers, money and international power than they can handle."



PAYS BY SHIRT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Paul R. Naker of Indianapolis paid his fall taxes Thursday with the shirt off his back. John Dobkins, Marion County treasurer, accepted Naker's T-shirt with the tax fee—$22.02 —marked on the back and made negotiable with Naker's signature and cheque code number.

The Belleville Public School Board was represented Tuesday at the School Design Workshop at 401 Inn, Kingston, by these three members: D. W. Wilson, L. A. Kells, and J. L. Anderson. More than 120 are registered for the conference, including architects, engineers, contractors, teachers, and school board and municipal officials from eastern Ontario.

On Friday evening, the Gospel Chapel was the scene of an annual event, the Sunday School supper and concert.

A large crowd from this and surrounding communities enjoyed a supper, followed by a program. Hubert Andrews was chairman and was assisted in the leading of the singing and awarding of prizes by Mr. Leonard Malloy of Belleville. Mrs. Leonard Malloy was accompanist for all the musical numbers.

Elector Can Be Required To Take Oath

OTTAWA (CP)—An elector is not required to produce any identification at a federal election polling station but he can be asked to swear an oath.

To guard against telegraphing—the slang word used to describe impersonation of someone else—some electors may be challenged by the deputy returning officer or the scrutineer of a candidate.

In urban polling stations the oath takes the form of an affidavit.

In rural areas the oath is taken orally and only by the elector. This differs from the procedure used when a person whose name was omitted from the voters' list swears an oath at the polling station and another elector on the list must back his word with an oath.

If a person objects to taking an oral oath, it will be also no good to change his mind after leaving the polling station. Once a person who has refused to take an oath leaves the station he is not permitted to vote even if he returns and volunteers an oath.

But once the elector is handed the ballot no challenges are permitted.

Oaths are considered necessary in some instances because of the ease with which documents — even birth certificates—can be forged.

The form left by enumerators with federal electors in urban areas is only to give the voters notice that their names will be on the preliminary voters' lists. The form is useful if on election day a person's name is left off the list, but it is not proof of qualification to vote.

Election Hopes of Two Big Parties Are Focused on Ontario's 85 Seats

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Election hopes of the two biggest political parties come to a sharp focus in Ontario. As usual, the province figures to be a pivotal one.

Not only do its 85 Commons seats represent the political prizes vital to the two parties going to form a government, but many are within reach of both Liberals and Conservatives. Perhaps 25 of these could topple either way, though leaders look for no drastic swing in either direction.

Th New Democratic Party is looking to some gains, too, but its expectations are modest.

When the curtain went up on the Nov. 8 general election campaign, the Liberals held 51 Ontario seats against 25 for the Progressive Conservatives and seven for the NDP. There were two vacancies, one on the Liberal side and the other Conservative.

Th official Liberal calculation is that they need 60—a net gain of eight—to assure the goal of majority government. Did the party have the confidence 1925 and other predictions run around 55.

ATTEMPT TURNOVERS

Progressive Conservatives are concentrating particularly on storming over a dozen or more seats. The Conservatives see major opportunities in one-time Tory Toronto, which split all its 18 seats between the Liberals and the NDP in 1962.

The NDP is working to hold the seven it had at dissolution, add a minimum of seven and enhance its popular vote. However, Liberals and Conservatives profess to see encouragement in Port Arthur, where NDP stalwart Douglas Fisher was retired. The NDP doesn't admit to any trouble there.

Apart from some good fighting ground in the big Toronto-York block, much disputed territory apparently lies in the Ottawa Valley, along the Lake Ontario shore and—most pronounced — in the province's southwest. Some 30 seats, largely of mixed rural-urban flavor, are strong out in a long broken chain.

No upheaval is looked for in the north, which was strictly Liberal and NDP in the last Parliament.

WAIT FOR PLUMS

Everyone is claiming plums are ready to drop from the Toronto tree. The Liberals haven't much more to harvest there but the Conservatives are aiming particularly at three seats.

Dalton Camp, national Conservative president, is trying to take Eglinton from Trade Minister Sharp; George Hogan, a top party thinker, is after hockey star Red Kelly's abandoned York West seat against former Liberal cabinet ministers Robert Winters, and Frank McGee, a Diefenbaker ministers without portfolio, is trying to regain York-Scarborough from the Liberals.

The Liberals don't concede trouble in any of these but less tough fights from the NDP in York South, where former NDP deputy Commons leader David Lewis is trying to get back his seat, and Broadview, an area the NDP organized with precision for a provincial win last fall.

East of Toronto along the Lake Ontario front, a battle of national interest, and an apparently close one—has shaped up as Northumberland between incumbent Liberal Pauline Jewett and George Hees, returned to the Conservative fold after his 1963 walkout from John Diefenbaker's cabinet.

IN TOP DRAWER

The Conservatives have Northumberland in the top drawer of their bope chest along with Carleton in the Ottawa area, where former immigration minister Richard Bell is attempting a comeback, and Essex South, in the southwest corner, where Richard Thrasher has quit as national director of the party to try for his old seat.

The Liberals agree real fights are on in these places but have drawn a bead on the normally Conservative strongholds of London, where majorities have been dwindling in recent elections, and some adjacent Conservative-held territory.

The Liberals and Conservatives have fielded full slates of candidates and the NDP has nominated everywhere but in Hamilton-East. There are 28 other candidates. Social Credit has nominated 18, a big drop from 69 in 1963. The Communists have three including Canada leader William Kashtan running against Finance Minister Gordon in Toronto Davenport.

A lone Creditiste is in the field in Glengarry - Prescott abutting the Quebec border in the southeast corner.

MORE MONEY ABOUT

Nobody talks loudly about party finances, but none appears pinched for lack of the clowns of war. The Conservatives seem better heeled than in 1963 (though one official laments that "money is always tight") and so does the NDP, which is swinging the wallet to the tune of up to $20,000 for some ridings. The Liberals say they are using less money but applying it more efficiently with a streamlined organization.

All say volunteer help is plentiful and intra-party spirit has soe and all singing in close harmony. For the Conservatives, the Diefenbaker - Hees public reconciliation has helped the harmony theme, and so has the return of Toronto lawyer E. A. Goodmes, a notable backroom operator who defected in 1963. This time, Mr. Goodmes is directing strategy at Ottawa.

The Conservatives also have the enthusiastic backing of Premier Roberts and former premier Leslie Frost, though the veteran Mr. Frost is confining active work to his home territory of Victoria, where the Liberals came within 1,000 votes of cracking that long-time Tory bastion in 1963 and hope to break through this time.

The NDP is getting much expert—and free—help from union. A battery of between 30 and 40 business agents—at least triple the previous number—is on loan for the duration. The Liberals have the customary sickly professional mechanism that ticks like a fine watch.

DEMONS IN LEGEND

Legends say dragonflies sew up the mouths of children who tell lies and stitch together the toes of barefoot fishermen.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Visitors in the village on the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. R. Crouch of Toronto, Miss Edith Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Gozzard of Trenton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson of Havelock, Mr. Jim Wood of Belleville, Miss Muriel McIntosh of Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Haddleston of Belleville.

Mr. Dave Mawson is spending a few days with his sister in Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burkett have taken up residence in the home formerly occupied by Mr. Earl Cook. Mr. Frank Carrol and Bert are now living in the house owned by Mr. Priest on Steenburg Lake road.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wood and Donnie attended a large Aberdeen Angus cattle sale at Woodville, Ontario on Thursday, taking a truck load of young stock to be sold.

On November 1 a Hallowe'en party for the young people of the district was sponsored by the Y.P.U. and the U.C.W. of the St. Ola United Church. There was a good attendance. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes and contests were enjoyed by all. The ladies provided refreshments.

Free Tuition Is Not A Dream for Students

By JACK HUTTON

I was wishing on Oct. 27 — National Student Day — that I could have introduced two friends of mine to the politicians who assured 140,000 university students that free tuition is only a dream.

The date of Oct. 27, 1965, is one which should be remembered a long time: the day that thousands of students across this country said no good student should be denied university because he can't afford it.

You'd think everyone in this fair country would agree. And, of course, everyone does. Yet we heard a thousand good-humored excuses from the older generation why free tuition isn't the answer.

That's when I thought of John and Michael (I've changed their names to save embarrassment), two friends who graduated from high school last spring.

They'd done everything together. They grew up within six blocks of each other, went to the same elementary and secondary schools, played on the same teams, double-dated. You know what I mean.

I'm not saying the relationship was the same the last few years because it wasn't. John's father is a postman who participated in last summer's strike. Michael's father, I'd guess, hasn't earned less than $20,000 any of the last 10 years.

HAD TO WORK

Because John is the oldest in a family of six, he's had a job every summer since he was 14. During the past school year — his last in high school — he worked in a car-wash shop each Saturday.

Sometimes, to help out his family even more, he worked in the shop after 4 p.m. some week days against the advice of his guidance counsellor who felt John had a good chance of winning a scholarship.

Michael is one of the nicest fellows I know. But he's the first to admit he's no student. The one year he was separated from John's company was the year his folks hoped private school could improve his marks. It didn't.

When the marks came out last summer Michael was delighted to find he'd passed — even though his average was a shade below 60, the average most universities demand for entrance.

John was disappointed when his average was under 80, washing all hopes of a scholarship. And, because his family had suffered a rough summer financially, he decided against entering a four-year university honor course.

NOT SO CLOSE

As I hinted earlier, the relationship hadn't been as close between John and Michael for some years. Michael has had almost full use of one of his family's cars since he was 16, but John couldn't join him while he was working.

Even when they double-dated the last year or two, I know John felt uneasy because he couldn't spend money as easily. Somehow, you feel differently about a $2 bill when you've earned it in a car-wash line.

Where are they this fall?

October 27 was the day that students across the country demonstrated for free universities.

The combination of a bursary and a loan from an uncle has sent John to a teacher training college. He plans to start work on his degree through evening and summer courses next fall when he begins teaching.

He'll make it, of course. And the teaching profession is exceptionally lucky to have him. But you have to admit he's taking the hard route to his goal.

And Michael? His father bought him a new car to celebrate when a university accepted his application late in the summer. With his good nature and generous allowance, he's already one of the most popular students on his campus.

Michael hopes to pass but isn't terribly worried. His family have told him the contacts he makes on campus are far more important than the marks. And an older brother was sent to three universities before he finally graduated.

When I told this story to a university administrator he pounced on what he thought was the perfect answer. "Forget about Michael," he said. "It's doing John good to work for his degree. He'll appreciate it more."

That makes sense until you ask one more question: what about the hundreds or thousands of John who accepted the best society had placed them in and gave up this fall?

Voting Period Hour Longer, 8 a.m. Until 7 in Evening

OTTAWA (CP)—An 11-hour voting period will be in effect for the third time in the Nov. 8 federal election.

In line with a 1960 amendment to the Canada Elections Act which added an extra hour, polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time.

Voters in this country are spread across seven time zones, meaning that when polls are closing in Newfoundland the electors in British Columbia still have 4½ hours left in their voting day.

The three zones use Greenwich Mean Time as the base. Newfoundland Standard time is three hours and 30 minutes behind GMT, Atlantic four hours, Eastern (Quebec and Ontario) five hours, Central (Manitoba) six hours, Mountain (Saskatchewan and Alberta) seven hours, Pacific (B.C.) eight hours, and Yukon nine hours.

A 1938 federal law prohibits publication of election results before the close of local polls because it was claimed that reports from the East influenced late voting in the West.

Since then the federal election report of The Canadian Press has moved into newspapers and broadcasting stations across the country embargoed against publication until local polls close.

In 1963, when there was a close race, The CP reported at 9:31 p.m. EST that the Liberals would have the largest group in the Commons and at 10:32 p.m. EST that the Liberals won the election with a majority on check.

The record for fast reporting of the election result came in 1958 when the Conservatives won by a landslide. In that year, with polls closing at 6 p.m. under the elections act, The CP reported re-election of the Conservative government at 7:05 p.m. EST—42 minutes after polls closed in Quebec and Ontario.

Before the present 11-hour voting day was introduced, polling was for 10 hours in 41 elections from 1921 to 1958—8 a.m. to 6 p.m. In 21 elections from 1874 to 1917, the voting day was eight hours—8 a.m. to 5 p.m. There were no standard voting hours in Canada's first two elections, 1867 and 1872, which ran over several weeks, different constituencies voting on different days.

Where a constituency lies in two or more time zones, the returning officer decides the times for elections, subject to the approval of the chief electoral officer in Ottawa.

Nine of Saskatchewan's 17 constituencies straddle Central and Mountain time zones, but so in the 1963 election voting will be conducted on Mountain time.

On Nov. 8, seven other ridings which straddle two or more time zones will be considered as in a single zone. Matapedia-Matane in Quebec will vote on Atlantic time, Rimouski and Saguenay in Quebec and Fort William and Port Arthur on Eastern time, the Northwest Territories on Central time and Cariboo in B.C. on Pacific time.

Winn D. Windy Not-so-dumb Dumb Dummy

CHICAGO (AP)—People who talk to themselves are happy, says Paul Stadelman, "especially if they get paid for it."

Paul, who is fiftyish, is a ventriloquist. In the trade, ventriloquists call themselves "vents."

For 37 years, he has been kidding himself through the small person of Winn D. (Windy) Higgins, his not - so-dumb dummy.

Paul says that a dummy sort of grows on its articulator, and a vent is apt to find himself seriously in colloquy with his alter ego over life's vexations if he is not careful.

In fact, Windy is so real to his master as a rambunctious identity that Paul is having conscience qualms over taking in a new dummy. "I know Windy is sore about it—I can't escape the feeling that he's jealous."

Stadelman has a talking bear named Freddie L. Ferguson. He permits the bear to explain that the middle initial stands for Lassie, and he chuckles further — "My daddy wanted a dog."

GIVES COURSE

Stadelman has the bear conducting his school for ventriloquists at the Central YMCA in Chicago's loop. Stadelman says it livens up the course a bit. He has graduated 11 classes from his once-a-week courses during the last three years.

His students do pretty well after learning from Stadelman, or, at least, one of them did—Vonda Kay Van Dyke of Phoenix, Ariz. She became Miss America of 1965.

"Of course, I don't guarantee that everyone will make it," says Paul.

One of his earlier students ended up married to him. She was Trudy Randall, a singer. Now she has her own dummy, Cindy Twiggins.

Paul and one of his dummies are apt to turn up almost anywhere — "except in a night club," he says. "I don't mind the places, but I don't like to work a steady two-a-day, and the hours are difficult."

He opens supermarkets, gives lectures to club audiences and turns up at private parties. He told a distinguished guest once: "Your stomach sticks out."

"Yes, I'm afraid I'll have to diet," the other acknowledged.

Windy shook his head. "No matter what color you use," he said, "it isn't going to do any good."

Madoc

COUNTERFEITER ACTIVE

MADOC — Two counterfeit $20 bills were passed on two local merchants over the weekend. The person responsible for this tried other stores but was turned down. Everyone is now checking his $20 bills.

ADVANCE POLLS

Advanced voting last Saturday and Monday was above average. Whether this is a sign that more men will be away hunting is hard to say. Both the Conservative and Liberal parties have an office in the business section of town. Mr. Rod Webb, M.P. in the last House, and Mr. Roy Cadwell, along with their respective committees and assistants, have been making the rounds with friendly visits in the community and area.

NEW TRAIN SCHEDULE

Starting with the change to standard time this past weekend the two CPR night trains through Ivanhoe will be discontinued. These trains will be replaced by daytimers that will pass through Ivanhoe around noon. The daytimers will not carry any mail but will carry express and baggage. Mail from both the east and west will now arrive in Madoc by truck from Belleville and is expected to reach the Madoc post office daily at 4 a.m.

One Little Church Remains Of 60 Ancient Suzdal Shrines

By JOHN BEST

SUZDAL, U.S.S.R. (CP)—On a fine day you can see the sun dancing on the spires and domes of ancient Suzdal from miles distant.

The view across the pleasant surrounding countryside then is like a vision of the glory that this quiet town once knew, when it was a renowned religious centre and also a political centre of great power and consequence.

In the 12th to 14th centuries, the kingdom of Suzdalia embraced a sizeable area of old Russia stretching farther west than Moscow, 140 miles west of here. Historically, it was the nucleus of the future czardom of Moscow.

Now it's a dreamy little town of 19,000 souls, basking in the sun.

Of the 60 churches and religious shrines that once operated here, only one is still functioning—a pathetic little structure that remains locked most of the time.

The Communist state has turned the others to temporal uses: museums, housing compounds, a bicycle warehouse, a school for retarded children. Some have simply fallen into decay.

Most of the old temples still have crosses atop them, piercing the sky as if unaware, 50 years after the revolution, that a new, atheistic order has taken over in Russia.

CATHEDRALS IMPRESSIVE

Suzdal rises out of the rolling Russian plain like some biblical city as you drive from Vladimir, another relic of old Russia, 20 miles away to the west.

Vladimir too has its architectural treasures, notably Assumption Cathedral and Dmitri Cathedral, both dating from the 12th century and both equally captivating in their shimmering byzantine symmetry.

Assumption Cathedral is one of two working churches in Vladimir, a city of 180,000 much more in touch with the 20th century than sleepy, half-forgotten Suzdal. It is a military centre and the home of some small manufacturing enterprises.

By contrast Suzdal is just as anachronism, though an extraordinarily appealing one.

Everything about the place is pastoral and picturesque, from the timeless green fields that crowd up to it to the gurgle in the little brook that winds through its lowland meadows.

Life seems to move particularly slowly here, perhaps out of respect to the ghosts of the past. There seem to be more grandmothers passing the time of day on park benches and old men dozing in the sun.

DOMES CAME LATER

Suzdal's existence goes back at least to the beginning of the 9th century when Norsemen settled here. When Kiev ceased being the national and cultural centre of ancient Russia in the 12th century, Suzdalia was one of a number of regional autonomies that came into existence.

In the 13th century it was occupied for a time by Mongol invaders.

A Kremlin of fortified compound has already been built by the end of the 11th century. The main cathedral, an awe-inspiring structure with blue onion domes that dominates the view from the meadow, was originally built in the 14th century. It was rebuilt twice, in the 16th and again in the 18th centuries, with the blue onion domes being added in the 17th and 18th centuries.

Its interior houses icons and paintings of incomparable beauty—samples of the finest Russian religious art—including frescoes dating from 1633.

Two monasteries irresistibly bring to life a storied past. Spaso - Yevfimiovsky, built in 1359, was conceived, says a travel pamphlet, as a "proud fortress in the struggle of the Suzdal kings for independence under conditions of the centralization of Russian lands around Moscow."

DESIGNED AS FORTRESS

To this day its 36-foot-high walls, stretching for more than two-thirds of a mile around the top of an embankment, convey the impression of impregnability.

Then there is Pokrovsky monastery, built in 1364 by Suzdal King Boris Konstantinovich as a fortress safeguarding the approaches to Suzdal.

The first wife of Peter the Great, Yevdokia Lopukina, was banished to Pokrovsky after falling out of favor with the monarch because, as a country girl, she was not sophisticated and crafty enough to hold her own in the intrigue-ridden society of St. Petersburg.

The dank, dark basement of the monastery's main church contains the remains of noted Orthodox nuns, buried in stone vaults which are badly in need of repair.

Once revered, today the nuns haven't even anyone to come and breathe a silent prayer over their graves.

NDP Leader Given Ovation In Montreal

By MICHAEL GILLAN

MONTREAL (CP)—A crowd of 2,300 gave NDP Leader T. C. Douglas several standing ovations Wednesday night when he said only party candidates can properly represent the Quebec reform movement in Ottawa.

Stressing the party's newly-written new-nation concept of Confederation, Mr. Douglas accused the old parties of having divided the nation on regional, racial and religious grounds.

The meeting was held in the downtown Showmart, the same hall where Prime Minister Pearson spoke Tuesday night. The NDP meeting was bolstered but there were none of the separatists present who almost broke up Mr. Pearson's rally.

Ten security officers and 35 party officials were on hand in case of trouble but they were not needed.

Mr. Douglas and his wife entered the hall accompanied by his Quebec leader, Robert Cliche, and Mrs. Cliche. Two security guards had to carve a path through the cheering crowd for them.

LAUGHTER BALKS

convention Wednesday that meeting was the largest the party has ever staged in Quebec.

The NDP is trying to establish a beach-head in the province, and Mr. Douglas said he is certain Mr. Cliche will be elected in Beauce riding.

The NDP leader got his loudest applause when he opened his speech in French, and apologized for his lack of ability in the language.

"We do not speak the same language in our sentiments and our aspirations are the same, because we are men of good will," he said.

Except for Mr. Douglas' 30-minute speech in English, the entire meeting was conducted in French

2,300 EMPTY CHAIRS ...

Despite 2,300 chairs at the rear of the hall were empty.

Mr. Douglas repeated his two-nation theory which he last mentioned in Victoria last week where it brought no response from his audience.

"We are not one single nation, we are two," he said. "We have not one single language, we have two."

Canada's survival depended on a "continuous act of will" to hold the two nationals a part, and to keep the economy in Canada's control.

He was cheered again when he said he does not agree that this country is destined to be absorbed by the United States.

To curb Canada falling under the control of foreign interests, an NDP government would set up an industrial development corporation to buy back industries and resources.

Socred Leader Claims Many Will Not Vote

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—National Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday night he fears many Canadians are so fed up with the political situation in Canada they will not vote Nov. 8

This was a federal election Canadians didn't want and a so-called sloppy for political expediency, he told about 600 persons attending a rally here for central Alberta Social Credit candidates. The capacity of the hall was 400.

Mr. Thompson said he has noticed a great deal of apathy among Canadians as he travelled across the country during the campaign.

For the second night in a row, Mr. Thompson shared a platform with Alberta Premier E. C. Manning. The premier strongly praised Mr. Thompson's work in Ottawa "on behalf of the province and all Canada," and said Alberta needs more Social Credit MPs to fight for the things the provincial legislature is trying to do.

Mr. Manning said the election would either result in a slim majority for one of the two major parties, or a return to minority government.

Pearson Holds Rousing Rally At Lindsay

By STEWART MacLEOD

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday night completed the most hectic 24 hours of his campaign with a rousing rally here that helped elaborate the memories of two outbreaks of rowdyism, a phoney assassination threat and two bomb scares.

Moving from Tuesday night's bedlam in Montreal, where a rally was punctuated by fights and interruptions, Mr. Pearson came into this quiet Ontario community Wednesday night and found more. Placards were smashed over a few heads before the prime minister regained centre stage to deliver one of his best received speeches of the campaign.

Before he reached Lindsay, police formed a tight ring around Mr. Pearson's car and motorcade when phoned the local television station with an anonymous threat. Nothing happened and Mr. Pearson, who came out of the hotel and mingled with some 30 people before getting to his car was not aware of the incident until after the speech.

While this was going on, the Lindsay school, where the rally was to be held, was being searched for explosives. Nothing was found.

After the Montreal meeting an explosive device was found in the auditorium.

Again Wednesday night, the contents of Mr. Pearson's statements tended to be blurred by the noisy demonstrators in the hall. This time it was six students from Trent University at Peterborough, accusing Mr. Pearson of "stealing our votes."

CAN'T VOTE

This was a reference to the fact that university students cannot vote away from home in the Nov. 8 general election. Students they were not in residence when the election writs were issued.

But they also carried placards saying "Mr. Pearson the prime minister."

"Sit down, sit down," roared the people behind the standard-bearing demonstrators. And while Mr. Pearson was trying to regain order, a woman seated with a placard of her own bobbed one of the students. Men jumped into the fray, there were cries of changed and some disorganized wrestling matches developed before the police took over.

"It's all right, it's all right, leave them alone," the prime minister said. "This is not Montreal."

"They are hurting no one but themselves."

However, the prime minister appeared annoyed, or hurt, by the two placards calling him "prime minister."

"A party that has to descend to that to show its displeasure, if it is, is not a party that should be supported."

One of the students said later they were not satisfied with any political party.

TO HELP TOURISM

The prime minister had announced the Real Ontario campaign owing earlier in the day at Owen Sound by telling a noon rally that the government will give financial assistance to the tourist industry, "one of Canada's most important assets."

The accelerated depreciation program available to industries in designated areas will be extended to cover tourist facilities, he announced.

Between 300 and 350 persons filled the hotel dining room and another 200 stood outside in the street.

About 500 were on the main street at Wiarton to greet the prime minister when he arrived there from Montreal.

He told his Owen Sound audience that a federal-provincial tourist conference will be called for Nov. 22-24 to discuss other ways to encourage tourism.

Then the prime minister made his statement at the theme of majority government.

Mrs. Pearson did not travel with him Wednesday. She is suffering from a severe cold and stopped off in Ottawa where she will remain for a day or two.

Mr. Pearson leaves Lindsay after an overnight stop today for a break at Hamilton, Ridgetown and London, Ont., before moving on to St. Thomas for an evening rally.

French Canada Subject of Talk By PC Head

By KEN CLARK

MONTREAL (CP) — Amid separatist hoots, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker told a crowd of 4,000 Wednesday night his party would safeguard the constitutional rights of French Canada.

In his third and last election campaign visit to Quebec, Mr. Diefenbaker delivered the pledge in a 16-minute speech in his basic French.

It was a festive rally with songs and placards sprinkled throughout the crowd in the 4,000 - seat Maurice Richard Arena. It was marred only by the boos of a group of young separatists high in the stands and the fear of possible violence.

However none occurred. More than 250 city policemen and security agents were on hand.

Police checked parcels at the door to see whether they carried bombs. None were found. The tight security was prompted by the repetition of Tuesday night's Liberal rally which was marred by fist fights by a few separatist and young separatists. A homemade bomb was also found.

A member of the Montreal police bomb squad was at the arena for the Conservative rally.

EJECT SOME HECKLERS

Security police ejected at least three of the younger-set shouters. Another group of six left under escort at the tail end of Mr. Diefenbaker's speech.

A number of hecklers left before Mr. Diefenbaker took the podium. Pierre Savigny, one of the 1963 Conservatives in Mr. Diefenbaker government's cabinet, came on stage and shook hands with the man he deserted.

The former associate defence minister then delivered a rousing speech, praising Mr. Diefenbaker as a man of integrity and courage. He called on the crowd to show their support and they rose with a standing ovation.

During the brief English portion of Mr. Diefenbaker's speech, some separatists stood and gave Nazi salutes when he made a point. Some were recognized as members of the group that disrupted Mr. Pearson's rally that attracted 2,000 at the basement.

Except for Mr. Diefenbaker's English remarks, the whole rally was conducted almost entirely in French. Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, campaigning on behalf of the Tory party, also spoke in French.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Conservatives recognize the need for change in the ever-changing conditions in the constitutional field "but we will not endanger the rights and principles which have been benefits."

He repeated his promise that a Conservative government would call a national conference on Confederation and national unity.

"We stand on unity based on equality," he said. "We cannot conceive of Canada without Quebec or Quebec without Canada." This provoked a great burst of applause.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who has been trying to link the Liberal government of Mr. Pearson to crime, said Quebec people have a right to honest government. A Conservative government, he said, would work with Justice Minister Wagner of Quebec to "remedy the situation. He did not elaborate on this point.

Mr. Diefenbaker flies to Edmonton today via Winnipeg for a night rally.

Breezes at Sunset Give Clues to Coming Weather

TORONTO (CP) — If you're going hunting and want to be weather - wise, you can take along a transistor radio to listen to the forecasts, buy a local newspaper or learn how to read a barometer and carry one with you.

But if you're not one of those people who can predict rain by referring to an ache in your joints and you'd like to improve your hedding with your wisdom in the ways of the outdoors, Ontario forest rangers offer some tips.

The forest protection staff of the department of lands and forests has developed a simple set of rules for short - range weather forecasting to help it plan effective firefighting strategy.

What's more, federal meteorologists say the rules apply almost any to most areas of Canada except the mountainous regions and the far north.

When you're deep in the woods beyond the range of official forecasts, you can get a clue to the next day's weather by observing wind conditions before sunset.

WATCH WINDS

Light breezes from the west and northwest usually accompany sunny weather. However, when the wind shifts to the southeast or northeast after a period of unsettled weather, you can expect steady precipitation. And showers are due if the wind switches toward the west and thunderclouds develop.

Bright sun in mid-afternoon and red sunset are among the simplest signs that there will be clear weather the following day.

A rise in temperature after sunset usually means cloudy weather the next morning. A formation of thin, white clouds obscuring the moon also warns of overcast skies.

If you're travelling on a flat, open area you can expect dewy grass and a dip in temperatures.

A sudden shift in the wind from the southwest toward the west, or from northwest to due north, is a clue that temperatures will drop within the next two hours.

Winds head to rise with erratic directional shifts toward the south and as thunderstorms approach.

The firefighters emphasize that their system is not infallible but there's a good chance it will help you avoid the unhappy situation of standing in a downpour and wondering why.

SPORTS SLICES

A bearded dreamik who spent the last two weeks roaming the deer country north of Number Seven to the Arctic Circle "put me on" the other day with a fantastic tongue-in-cheek fabrication.

Quoth the Beard, "believe it or not I saw deer back on the northern tundras that were signs 'Be Sure and Vote Monday'."

The chin-foliaged Anania went on to say that the reason was obvious. On Monday the deer widows don their weeds and the royal harts and stags of the forest primeval are trying to diminish the opening day invasion of trigger-happy venison seekers.

"Perhaps," the Beard ventured to suggest, "that is partly the reason the election advance polls show record voter and ballot-marker."

In any event the Great Exodus—I'm told by top authority—will be one of the greatest in history since Hiawatha and his braves declared open season on Minnehaha and her many maidens.

The wagon trains will get under way as early as tomorrow afternoon and evening. The deerslayers have their trusty arquibuses, small cannon and slingshots oiled and ready and they'll spend the preliminary 48 hours mapping plans of campaign, trying to fill "belly" straights, and getting tonsils lubricated in the point where they won't turn gravelly when tooting the deer mating call.

But I've got news for the almonds who venture deeply into the northern hill country. Take along your fishing waders. You'll need 'em. If you're hunting around depressions, creeks, ponds, off the beaten track of lakes.

W. A. "Bill" Bittle, wildlife chief of Tweed District Lands and Forests Department, informs me that there's lots of water for washing, laundering and chaser purposes.

"As of now," said Bill, "prospects for the hunt look very good and will improve if cold weather sets in. There's snow in the hill country about 20 miles north of Number Seven."

If anything will affect the hunt, he said, it is the fact that due to recent heavy rains, the depressions, creeks, ponds, and such have reached almost spring level. Hunters seeking their quarry in the remote areas may run into trouble.

"Beaver may have had something to do with the rising waters in places but generally speaking rainfall has been the big factor," he said.

Adding to the prospects of a successful hunt this year, Bill said, "is the fact that we have had good winters and springs the last two or three years and with the hunt kill in small proportions during these seasons, we look for a marked increase in the deer population.

Investigation reveals there is a high percentage of fawns and yearlings this year, he said. "This augurs a marked increase in the kill over last year."

The season north of Number Seven opens Monday and runs through to November 29th. For the one-day safaris the season south of Number Seven opens November 8th through November 13th.

If you're looking for a bear-rug for the cottage fireplace—and see the coming toward you with the bear inside—knock him off. - He's fair game until June, 1966.

I hear the Black Bear Mafia, northern branch, has assigned a "Vengeance Squad" to take care of the Great White Hunter, one Armand Duffy, who they say, lured one of their top brass to his destruction by romantic blandishments.

They claim he enticed the brain into range by crooning "How New Brown Cow, Have a Dow," tried to "bronco-bust" it, then despatched it to Bear Valhalla.

He was such a nice guy. No flowers, please. Just send Dow labels to the company.

Conacher In Fair Condition

TORONTO (CP) — Charlie Conacher, former National Hockey League star, remained in fair condition in hospital Wednesday after suffering a heart attack at his home Tuesday.

Conacher, 55, underwent an operation after being taken to hospital.

A native of Toronto, Conacher played 12 seasons in the NHL, 10 with Toronto Maple Leafs, one with Detroit Red Wings and two with New York Americans. He is a member of hockey's Hall of Fame.

Bruins, Leafs Deadlock Hawks, Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins, who played three games with three outmidders without success, might be lucky with goalie No. 4.

Rookie Bernie Parent turned back 40 shots Wednesday night as the colts-dwelling Bruins battled to a 2-2 tie with National Hockey League-leading Chicago Black Hawks.

Parent, 20, in his first year of professional hockey, was called up Tuesday from the Boston Garden Central League farm team in Oklahoma City because both regular goalies, Ed Johnston and Gerry Cheevers, are injured.

In other NHL action Wednesday night, the Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs fought to a 2-2 tie in New York.

The Hawks took farm team twice in the game only to have the Bruins come back with a goal each time.

Murray Oliver's goal at the 54 second mark of the third period pulled the Bruins into the deadlock. It came 38 seconds after Doug Mohns had put the Hawks in front with his sixth goal of the year.

STEWART TIES IT

Kenny Wharram opened the scoring for the Hawks at the of the second period while Leo Boivin was in the penalty box. Boston drew even at 1-1 in the final second of the middle frame when Ron Stewart put a 15-footer behind Chicago goalie Glenn Hall while Mohns was in the penalty box.

Rod Gilbert's power-play goal in the opening seconds of the third period gave New York a 2-2 tie with Toronto.

Gilbert slipped Harry Howell's slap shot past Maple Leaf goalie Johnny Bower at 19 seconds of the final period with Tim Horton serving a penalty in drew into in the second period.

Bobby Pulford scored the game's first goal at 10:46 of the period, beating New York goalie Ed Giacomin with a screened shot from about 20 feet out. Jim Pappin assisted.

George Armstrong made it 2-0 for Toronto about 3½ minutes later when he deflected a slapshot by Kent Douglas past Giacomin, moments after the Leafs had finished killing a penalty.

Jean Ratelle scored for the Rangers from a scramble at 10:39 of the second period.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Doug Mohns, Chicago Black Hawk left-winger, scored a goal against Boston Bruins Wednesday night to move him into a three-way tie for first place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Mohns has six goals and five assists for 11 points. Also in first place with 11 points are Bobby Hull of Chicago and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal. Hull, who was held pointless by Boston in Wednesday's 2-2 tie, has eight goals and three assists while Rousseau has three goals and eight assists.

Stan Mikita, also of Chicago, picked up an assist Wednesday night to give him eight points on one goal and seven assists.

Two Montreal Canadiens — Jean Beliveau and Jacques Laperriere — have seven points each. Beliveau has four goals and three assists while Laperriere's record is one goal and six assists.

Kenny Wharram, Chicago's right-winger, picked up a goal and an assist Wednesday. Wharram now has five goals and one assist for six points, tying him with Doug Robinson of New York, who has three goals and an equal amount of assists.

Football Awards

Three Ti-Cats On Final Ballot

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, league champions in the Eastern Conference of the CFL, will have three of their players on the final ballot of the Canadian Schenley Football Awards.

Second ballot results released today showed defensive halfback Garney Henley nominated as Most Outstanding Player, end Zeno Karcz as Canadian Player of the Year and tackle John Barrow as Lineman of the Year, all in the East.

In the West, fullback George Reed of the Saskatchewan Roughriders was nominated as Most Outstanding Player. Linebacker Wayne Harris and Larry Robinson, both with the Calgary Stampeders, were nominated as Lineman of the Year and Canadian Player of the Year, respectively.

None of last year's final winners appear in this year's second ballot results. They were Lovell Coleman of Calgary, Most Outstanding Player; Tom Brown of the B.C. Lions, Lineman; and Tommy Grant of the Hamilton Tiger Cats.

Of this year's six semi-finalists, three from the East and three from the West, only John Barrow has ever won final honors in the Canadian Schenley Football Awards. He was selected as Lineman of the Year in 1962.

Voting to select the national winners will begin shortly and results will be announced Tuesday, November 16, at 8 a.m., EST. Nominators, all sports writers and sportscasters, will select three of the six candidates for finalist honors.

Larks Say Jackson Is "Marked"

MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Trimble, coach of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, said Wednesday his club will give Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson a good rush Saturday when the two teams meet in a sudden death playoff game in Ottawa.

"We'll rush him good", Trimble said. "He always needed a pump motion with his arm before throwing the ball and it takes extra time."

Jackson was the top passer in the East this season and Bernie Faloney, the Montreal signal-caller, was second.

Faloney has reduced his interception total in recent games. He only had one pass intercepted against Ottawa and Hamilton in their final meetings after they paddled their records against him earlier.

"The improvement stems from the fact that the players are running better patterns," said Faloney. "That and the protection I'm getting from the offensive line."

Pete Babando Hangs Up Hockey Gear

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Ont. (CP)—Pete Babando has decided to quit playing hockey after 22 seasons, 10 of them in the National Hockey League.

Babando, with Clinton, N.Y., Comets of the Eastern United States Amateur League this season, quit after landing a job with a commercial sign company here.

"I've been going away to play hockey for the past 22 years and that's long enough," he said.

Babando, 40, played for Boston Bruins, Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL.

Minor Hockey

Led by the three - goal performances of Terry Meagher, Belleville Kinsmen bantams defeated Picton Bantams 8-0 here last night.

The city team held a 1-0 first period lead, added two in the second and cruised away in the third period.

Dennis McCormick scored twice for the winners with Bob Hoard, Jim Potts, and Tom Gill getting singles.

Steve Moore, Bruce Lattimer, D. Power and McCormick drew assists.

Belleville had the three penalties of the game.

Meet Bombers Sunday

Sasky Riders Healthy For Big Game

REGINA (CP)—If health is the key to victory for Saskatchewan Roughriders in their Western Football Conference semi-final against Winnipeg Blue Bombers Sunday, then Roughriders have it for the first time since the second game of the season.

Rider coach Eagle Keys reports that linebacker Ed Hoerster is the only doubtful starter, being bothered with a bruised instep suffered in Saskatchewan's recent 15-12 victory over Edmonton Eskimos.

For Keys, it's the nicest thing that has happened to him since his team bounced B.C. Lions Alouettes in Vancouver one a week and a half ago. He has spent the entire season juggling players because of injuries.

Keys thinks Saskatchewan has a good chance to defeat Winnipeg in the end-to-end semi-final.

Keys said Martin Fahl, the league's leading punter, will be back after missing four games with a stretched achilles tendon. Keys said he will be available for duty as an offensive end, taking some of the two-way punter-off defensive end Garner Ekstran.

Riders main offensive game will be built around the power running of fullback George Reed, WFC's Player of the Year, and the pass catching of flanker Hughie Campbell. Ed Buchanan, out for 12 games with a broken ankle, is expected to provide some outside running to complement Reed.

Bombers won seven of their last eight games, two if them against the Roughriders.

The Trots

CAMPBELL VILLE, Ont. (CP)—Mizzle Dares, a stick-gaited pacer, won his first victory for his new owner, Jim Jaslevich of Toronto, in the eighth race at Mohawk Racetway Wednesday night.

Isotia Ben, with Everitt Norris in the driver's seat, scampered to a $12.80 win in the second race to complete a $64.80 daily double with Tod Raymond.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Golden Gift won the feature eighth race at Windsor Racetway Wednesday night with a strong stretch drive to take the $1,000 event by half a length. Chris Eden, owned by Robert Roberge of Montreal, won the second race for a $31.80 payoff.

NBA Leaders Had Bad Night

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The leaders had a bad night in the National Basketball Association Tuesday.

Philadelphia 76ers, pace-setters in the NBA's Eastern Division, lost their first game in four starts when Detroit Pistons whipped them 130-109 behind hot shooting by Eddie Miles, Joe Caldwell and Tom Van Arsdale.

The defeat shaved Philadelphia's lead to half a game over Cincinnati Royals who beat San Francisco Warriors 122-108.

The Warriors' loss dropped them out of first place in the Western Division when Los Angeles Lakers came up with a 120-116 victory over St. Louis Hawks to move half a game ahead.

Baltimore Bullets slammed New York Knickerbockers 129-114 in the remaining game on the NBA card.

Wednesday's Scores
San Francisco 108 Cincinnati 122
New York 114 Baltimore 129
Philadelphia 109 Detroit 130
St. Louis 116 Los Angeles 120

Sales Reach 2 Million

Standard Bred Auction

HARRISBURG, Pa. (CP) — Max Webster of Brantford, was the op Canadian bidder at the 27th annual auction of standardbred horses here Wednesday.

The four-day sale, a top market for trotters and pacers in North America, ends today.

Canadians bought 36 horses Wednesday, paying $126,700. Twenty purchases were made by Quebec buyers, 13 by Ontario buyers and one by a Saskatchewan buyer.

Webster bought Armbro Hero, a yearling, for $11,000 from the Armstrong Brothers stable of Brampton, 35 miles from Webster's home in Brantford. He paid $9,000 for Armbro Harold and $5,000 for Armbro Highland Fling owned by Armstrong Brothers.

Webster's son, Brian, 21, paid $8,000 for Monty, another yearling. This brought the total paid by the two Websters to $25,000 for the day.

The Armstrongs sold 10 yearlings for a total of $87,200. Least of the Armstrongs averaged $4,767 for their horses.

After retiring their stock, the Armstrongs bought nine filly yearlings sired by harness great Adios. They paid $10,000 for Keystone Ebby and $12,500 for Keystone Parma.

Keystone Farms will be shipped to California for training this winter under Joe O'Brien of Alberton, P.E.I., while Keystone Ike will go to the Armstrong farm near Brampton to be trained by Howard McKinley for appearances next season on Ontario harness tracks.

Total sales for three days are $1,934,300 for 478 horses. Canadians have purchased 91 trotters and pacers for a total of $370,950.

Six Clubs Vie For Bowl Game

TORONTO (CP)—The opponents are still undecided for the first annual Canadian Bowl the Children college football bowl game here Saturday, Nov. 20.

And it will be at least another 10 days before the teams are determined.

At least six teams have chances to land one of the two berths in the game, to be played at Varsity Stadium.

The game will likely pit the top team in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association against the best team in the Western Intercollegiate Conference.

Technically, he says, the bowl game is an invitation affair and the committee can select any two teams it likes.

University of Toronto Blues, University of Western Ontario Mustangs of London, Ont., and Queen's University Golden Gaels of Kingston all have a chance for the O-QAA title.

University of Saskatchewan Saskatoon, leads in the West with a 4-1 won-lost record, but University of Alberta, Edmonton, can force a playoff by defeating Saskatoon Saturday.

If University of Manitoba wins over University of Alberta, Calgary, on Saturday, Manitoba will move into a three-way tie for first place with Edmonton and Saskatoon.

TIP FOR STOMACH EASE

MONTREAL (CP) — People subject to motion sickness should sit on the right side of an aircraft rather than the left, says Dr. Peter Vaughan, chief medical officer of Air Canada, because aircraft usually turn to the left when approaching or leaving airports.

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders will have their injured players back in the lineup for Saturday's Eastern Football Conference semi-final against Montreal Alouettes, but one of the healthiest men on the squad may not be around.

Defensive end Billy Joe Booth, one of the steadiest players on the club this season, left Tuesday night for his home in Louisiana to attend to a "very serious personal matter."

Booth did not say what the problem was, but he did convince Clair that he needed the time off and Clair gave permission for the trip.

Booth's departure came just before the return of fullback Jim Dillard who missed last Saturday's 16-8 loss to Montreal due to his father's funeral in Oklahoma.

Dillard did not get back in time for Tuesday's practice but was on hand for Wednesday's workout along with other players who have been out of action in past games.

Linebacker Mike Blum and defensive halfback Don Gilbert were back for the ragged series mags, and two players who dressed but did not play Saturday also showed considerable improvement.

Halfback Bo Scott, sidelined with an ankle injury, was running well, and tackle Moe Racine, runner-up in the EFC scoring race, is recovering from a pinched nerve in his leg.

HAMILTON (CP) — Ralph Sazio, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who meet Montreal Alouettes or Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Football Conference finals, doesn't care which team he plays.

Ottawa and Montreal play a sudden-death semi-final Saturday in Ottawa with the winner meeting the Ticats, first-place finishers in the schedule, in a two-game total-points series for the right to represent the East in the Grey Cup game in Toronto Nov. 27.

The EFC final opens Nov. 14 in Ottawa or Montreal with the return game in Hamilton Nov. 20

"Each club presents a different problem," he said. "Ottawa has a more intricate offence because they've got players like Jim Dillard who is a two-way threat at running and passreceiving. So has Ron Stewart and Russ Jackson, who can run that ball pretty well.

"Montreal is not as complicated offensively, but they've got (Dernie) Faloney and on any day they can pick you to death. They have good inside running and passing, and defensively like to rush you. But Ottawa is liable to break out anywhere."

Sazio said that the condition of the field may determine the winner of Saturday's semi-final.

"If it's muddy, Montreal has a good chance," he said. "Mud will level the offences. If it's a good field, Ottawa should take it."

Goalies Star In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Punch Imlach, general manager-coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, was reflecting on his decision to protect, glibly Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk from the National Hockey League draft last June and expose young Gerry Cheevers.

"Sure I thought about protecting Cheevers," Imlach said after Bower's sharp play had protected a 2-2 tie against New York Rangers Wednesday night. "But you know goalies are like wine. They improve with age."

Bower, who celebrates his 42nd birthday next week, was at his best in the third period against the Rangers after Rod Gilbert had tied the score for New York in the first 19 seconds.

The Rangers spent most of the period in Toronto's zone and threw everything they had at Bower but the old iron curtain up with 11 saves, several of them spartivers.

GRAB LEAD

Toronto had grabbed a 2-0 lead midway through the first period. Jean Ratelle scored New York's first goal on a power play halfway through the second session and then rookie goaltender Ed Giacomin came up with the play that New York coach Red Sullivan said saved the game for the Rangers.

Bobby Pulford, out killing a penalty, broke in alone on the New York zone and faked the rookie goalie to the right before shooting for the left corner. But Giacomin recovered beautifully and deflected the puck past the open corner with a diving save.

"He put us quite a lift with that save," Sullivan said. "If Pulford scores, it's 3-1 and we're in plenty of trouble. But Eddie just outguessed him."

Known throughout the valley, Joe used to fiddle and step-dance for 24 hours at county contests. "I can play Home Sweet Home so well, you can see the house," says the loquacious veteran.

McCORD FARMED OUT

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Red Wings defenceman Bob McCord, acquired during the off-season from Boston Bruins, was assigned Wednesday to the Wings' Pittsburgh farm club in the American Hockey League. His replacey veteran defenceman Pete Goegan, who was recalled to the National Hockey League club Saturday.

SANDY KOUFAX

Koufax Wins Top Award

BOSTON (AP) — Left-hander Sandy Koufax, the backbone of Los Angeles Dodgers' drive for the National League pennant and the World Series championship, was a unanimous choice Wednesday as the winner of the Cy Young Award as baseball's best pitcher for 1965.

Koufax thus became the first repeat winner in the 10 years since the award was established by commissioner Ford Frick. Koufax also repeated as the only man ever to win the award unanimously.

The 29-year-old Koufax was a unanimous winner in 1963, the year he was named the National League's most valuable player.

Although handicapped by an arthritic pitching arm, Koufax compiled the best earned-run average in the major leagues, 2.04; the most wins, 26; the most innings pitched, 336, and the most strikeouts, 382.

His strikeout mark shattered Bob Feller's single-season record of 347 strikeouts.

The voting by a committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America was done prior to the World Series and was based on regular season performances only.

Koufax's greatest moment during the 1965 season was his perfect-game performance against Chicago Cubs Sept. 9. It made the tall, front-two, fastball pitcher the first major leaguer to register four no-hit games.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—John Bell, a 26-year-old apprentice jockey, won his first race in 12 tries when he rode Dula Gail to victory at Greenwood Race Track Wednesday.

Dula Gail returned $13.20, $5.20 and $3.50.

The daily double of Silver Run and Ace Award paid $32.80 while the quinella of Mighty Gar and Risky Attack returned $30.60.

OBECK COACHES

NEW YORK (AP) — Vic Obeck, director of athletics at New York University, took over the coaching of the Violet's Club football team Wednesday. Obeck is a former coach of McGill Redmen.

New Govt. Likely to Face Touchy Economic Decisions

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The government elected next Monday appears likely to face touchy decisions in the next few weeks on matters ranging from controlling "cross new developments in the economy.

Economists cite these facts:

—Expansion has been going on at an unusual clip for almost two years. Every year or more, with gross national product up nine per cent last year and this, business analysts are wondering how long it can continue.

—Businessmen abroad this year seem to be creating a deficit of $1,000,000,000 or more in imports of goods Canada could fly to cover this with caught inflows may to a large extent make difficult for British and U.S. efforts to control their capital outflows.

—Domestic production is running at or near capacity, with construction booming, tight loans developing in the artificial labor market, and capacity demands on transportation facilities. These are exerting pressure on prices which could provoke inflation and encourage trade chemand for imports, thus widening the balance of-payments difficulty.

—Some restraint has been suggested by the Bank of Canada in its higher interest rates, but these have yet to put a dampee on what analysts call over-heated, by some business. Economists say tax measures, —fiscal, rather than monetary policies, could be best either to restrain or to spark the economy. Restraint is looked on as politically unpopular.

THERE'S NO STIR

in the election economic problems have created little stir in the election campaign, possibly because in the view of many the bread-and-butter items touching the individual's pocketbook are:

Facts which touch the individual—unemployment and inflation—have been significant issues. Unemployment is at a nine-year-low, and while price levels generally are high the consumer price index recently declined.

Campaigning for re-election, Finance Minister Gordon says the Liberals "turned the trick."

"We are prosperous adults," he said. Trade Minister Sharp has said fear of balance - of - payments difficulty is over-stated.

But Conservative Leader Diefenbaker has said the financial cuts in personal income and corporation taxes to keep down a big budget surplus. He promised to allow up to $300 in municipal taxes as a federal deduction against taxable income for individuals.

Mr. Diefenbaker also promised land grants and the 10per-cent sales tax imposed by Mr. Gordon on building materials and said the government has been in a cause of high living costs Liberal Robert H. Winters, formerly Trade and Commerce Minister to return to Parliament, has termed that sales tax discrimination against the poor.

NEW Democratic Leader Douglas said taxing a means test humiliating for pensioners. Mr. Gordon said there wouldn't be a means test for pensioners' supplements, but a determination of pensioners' needs. Health Minister Laidlaw said pensioners in Prince Edward Island, for instance, don't need as much to live on as pensioners in Toronto.

The new U.S.-Canada auto trade agreement appeared to be the outcast to be a key issue but it kept facing as a talking point as election day drew near. The agreement by the two countries to permit duty-free movement across the border of automotive vehicles and original parts was looked upon with suspicion, particularly by the smaller parties.

New Democratic Leader Douglas Says It's Unfair

SAYS ITS GIFT

Mr. Douglas for the NDP said it represented a $30,000,000 annual gift to Canadian auto manufacturers, the amount of duties forgone by the federal treasury.

Social Credit Leader Thompson suggested the idea of a political pay-off to the Liberal party—"I don't suppose they've ever got their $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 to campaign funds except from such sources." Liberal Labor Minister Dorey holds he denied the insinuation.

Mr. Dorey pointed to reductions announced by Canadian auto manufacturers in the factory prices that would clear for 1965 models. Mr. Pearson said 170 Canadian companies had announced or were planning increases to plant facilities, and 20,000 new jobs were being created. External Affairs Minister Martin said the agreement will inject $1,000,000,000 into the economy in 18 months.

Real Caouette has said the Creditistes will hold the balance of power — "whether we don't want to be prime minister after Nov. 8 will have to sign a pledge with us that the price of tanex, increase family allowances, and raise old age pensions ultimately to $125 a month at age 65.

Reasons for Gratitude In Troubled Times

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—A few things to be grateful for in a troubled time:

The sight of sailboats racing on a wind-grooved sea . . . the sound of church bells at twilight . . . the unexpected contentment of cats and the eagerloquitiveness of puppies . . . the feel of books in your hands.

Waiting in the dark for someone you love to arrive . . . watching the faces of people greeting each other at ski terminals . . . reading stories about the small leaves you feeling that life is important and the human race worthwhile . . . hearing a child interrupt by a distant friend . . . finding more money in your coat than you had thought was there.

Looking down on the peaceful face of a sleeping child . . . lying awake in a railway bunk as the train roars through the moonlit night and dozing towns . . . seeing the wonderful patterns made by snowflakes on a night window . . . storm in the Midwest—as if heaven were putting on a performance for the earth.

Catching a big fish in a pool where everybody said there were only small ones . . . playing catch with the kids down the street and showing them how to throw a curve . . . a few fast ones . . . waking up on Saturday morning and realizing you have two whole full days away . . . picking up a good luck penny from the sidewalk . . . the sound of the parking place after driving around the block only twice.

Hearing a band playing in spring and startling a deer and her fawn into graceful leaps . . . helping children build a tree house during long summer afternoons . . . telling stories around a campfire later and counting falling stars . . . having a clime to the one who sees the most . . . listening to insects gossip in the bushes.

Getting a pay raise when you were sure you'd been passed by for another . . . going to the dentist and being told he has hope of saving the tooth after all . . . learning that someone you hold dear has recovered from a dangerous illness.

Clearing your conscience by paying a bill you've put off for years . . . discovering a pleasant dream of someone you were fond of when young and who isn't around anymore . . . the delightful terror of buying something you know you can't want to do without . . . listening to a carnival fortune teller staggeringly fabulous lies about your fabulous future.

Doing a kind deed for a stranger and seeing the surprised gratitude in his eyes . . . knowing someone you respect surprise you in turn by telling you that you really matter as bad as you think you are.

Indonesian Reds Formed Seduction Squad

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Communist plans for undermining the Indonesian government included the formation of a band of beautiful Communist women to seduce the leaders of other political parties in order to blackmail them, press reports from Bandung in West Java said today.

The reports said authorities had found a variety of Communist documents in a house that plan and others for arson and sabotage projects.

Bandung, 80 miles from Jakarta, the army - controlled Antara news agency reported the arrest of Sidarto Chairman of the huge Nationalist Party (PNI) for alleged sympathy with the Communist movement.

He was the first PNI man known to have been arrested.

WATER COSTS MONEY

WINNIPEG (CP) — In a spring's flood - battle in Winnipeg cost $128,000, about $40,000 more than the dikes and the rest for operating flood stations. Though flooding was serious the bank of the U.S. border, it did less damage than was expected here.

HOLD FIRST DOG-TEST

BARRIE, Ont. (CP)—J. K. Crang of Bond Head sponsored the first open shooting trials in Eastern Canada this year. More than 300 people came to see the large Scottish collie retrieving round up and sort out sheep, obeying hand and whistle signals, and close the small corrals by pulling on gate ropes.

Britain's Tallest Building Opened in London

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP) — Britain's tallest building has been officially opened in the heart of London, months after some of its benefits has become apparent to the Londoner in the street and the city's tourist bordes.

However useful the new post office tower is to British communications — and the experts are all a-twitter about its functional value — the 620-foot-high finger of glass and concrete is already popular as a landmark.

No matter how firmly lost a motorist is in the rabbit warren of London's one-way streets and dead ends, no matter how baffled the foot-sore pedestrian among the cliffs of offices and apartments, he need only get a clear view of the tower to begin reorientating himself.

At a time when traditional landmarks like St. Paul's and Big Ben are being hemmed in by new office towers, the new structure's prominence is a minor blessing.

The post office tower has been described by one architectural commentator as an "exclamation mark over London."

It soars above a jumble of small homes and offices near Tottenham Court Road, in an area long used by the post office and television and radio operators for broadcasting.

Five years in the planning and another five under construction, the tower was built to house microwave equipment designed to carry an eventual 100,000 telephone circuits and 40 television channels simultaneously.

The engineers decided they needed an aerial whose signals would clear the low hills which surround London. They also had to have heavy, complex electronic equipment near the top of the aerial for maximum efficiency.

Architects in the government's public works department came up with the lower design.

More than 400 feet of the tower's height is taken up with transmitting apparatus and horn-like microwave receivers. At the top are two public observation galleries and a restaurant, where admission charges and commissions will help the post office to recoup some of the £2,500,000 ($7,500,000) cost of the structure.

The restaurant has been designed to revolve slowly — between two and three full circles an hour—so diners can see all the sights without having to walk around. In clear weather, say the builders, a viewer could see Windsor, 25 miles away. Even on the hazliest day, the tower offers an unparalleled view of the city.

Rhodesia Declares Emergency Fearing African Saboteurs

From AP-Reuters

SALISBURY (CP) — Rhodesia's white government declared a state of emergency today, charging that the British colony is threatened by African nationalist saboteurs.

A government spokesman said there were numerous trained saboteurs sponsored by both proscribed African nationalist organizations," the Zimbabwe African Peoples Union (ZAPU) and the Zimbabwe African National Union (ZANU).

Both organizations are banned and their leaders have been confined to camps in remote areas of the country.

The spokesman said some of the saboteurs were at large inside Rhodesia and others were in neighboring countries.

Desmond Lardner - Burke, minister of justice, law and order, ordered the state of emergency effective for three months.

He said persons restricted by the government were circulating instructions by various means in their followers to engage in illegal activities.

TIGHTEN CONTROL

Lardner - Burke said the commissioner of police had appointed officers in the provinces to whom they would issue orders necessary to control the movement of people, weapons, gatherings and public statements.

The government of Prime Minister Ian Smith is engaged in a bitter fight with Britain in a bid for independence. Thursday it virtually banned all imports in a move to preserve its dwindling foreign exchange.

Britain has threatened a full-scale economic boycott if Rhodesia a self-governing central African state, declares independence.

It was not immediately clear whether the import restrictions and the emergency declaration meant a further step toward a

RAYMOND DENIS ARRIVES FOR HEARING — Raymond Denis, (centre), former aide to the federal immigration minister, arrives at court in Ottawa for his preliminary hearing on two charges arising out of the Lucien Rivard affair. He is flanked by his wife and lawyer Louis Assaly. (CP Wirephoto)

Denis Hearing Is Begun On Rivard Case Charge

OTTAWA (CP)—A lawyer's bid broken too brought a temporary adjournment today in the preliminary hearing of Raymond Denis, former federal government executive, on charges arising out of the Lucien Rivard affair.

Defence counsel Louis Assaly informed Magistrate Glenn Strike that because of a broken toe, which made it difficult for him to stand, he was requesting that the hearing be adjourned until later in the day.

Magistrate Strike agreed, indicating at the same time he hopes the hearing, which started Thursday, will be concluded by next Tuesday.

Mr. Assaly's accident occurred just before the hearing began. He said he got out of bed to go to a desk to pick up some copies of evidence and banged his toe against a chair. He is not wearing a cast, but the broken toe has been bound up and Mr. Assaly walks with a discernible limp.

Denis is charged with offering a sum of money" to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne in 1964 to have him drop opposition to bail for Rivard, then held in jail in Montreal to await extradition to the U.S. to face narcotics charges.

A second charge is that Denis did unlawfully and wilfully attempt to obstruct the course of Justice by attempting to dissuade" Mr. Lamontagne, acting

Belleville Man Held In Robbery

PLANTAGENET, Ont. (CP) — A three-month stake-out by provincial police in this hamlet 40 miles east of Ottawa has ended with three men charged with armed robbery and recovery of most of $13,000 stolen from a bank Wednesday.

Police Thursday charged:

William Bailey, 34, Toronto, who is in an Ottawa hospital in serious condition with bullet wounds; Richard Frank Stella, 31, Belleville, who is in L'Orignal County Jail with slight gunshot wounds; and George Watson, 36, of no fixed address, also in L'Orignal Jail.

The three were arrested Wednesday within three hours after three men entered the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada just after 11 a.m. The same men left the bank office after sweeping about $13,000 into shopping bags as they held seven bank employees at gunpoint.

As they fled the bank two plainclothes detectives, one carrying a machine-gun, challenged them. The suspects kept running and the detectives opened fire. One man surren-

De Gaulle Seeking Re-election

PARIS (CP) — President de Gaulle declared himself a candidate Thursday night for the presidential election of Dec. 5, seeking a further seven-year mandate to shape France's destiny.

The long-awaited announcement was made in a nine-minute television and radio address in which the 74-year-old general appealed for the majority he is considered almost certain to get.

Recalling that he headed the first post-war government after he liberation and that he was recalled to power in 1958 at the time of the Algerian crisis, de Gaulle told the millions of French viewers and listeners that he felt it was his duty to be ready to continue the job. He left the voters in little doubt of what he thought the result would be if he were turned out. France would be left in the hands of political puerics which had brought her near to ruin in the past, and her social, diplomatic, political and material progress could be expected to end.

While de Gaulle's decision

Price Index Edges Up

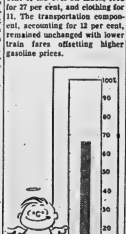
OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index edged up one fifth of a point to 130.3 for October, just a shade below its record high, the Bureau of Statistics reported today

The index, based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100, was at its record 130.5 in July and slid off to 130.4 in August and 130.1 in September. In October last year it was 125.8.

The bureau said higher prices for clothing, health and personal care, housing and recreation and reading, sent the general index up despite lower food prices.

The index measures changes from month to month in a wide range of consumer prices. As an indicator of living costs, the October index was 2.7 per cent higher than the index for October, 1964. Economists say that prices should not rise by more than 1½ to two per cent a year.

There is no precisely parallel measure of family incomes, but the DBS index of average industrial wages and salaries in August—the latest available—was 212.3, one tenth of a point higher than a revised figure of 212.2 for July.



In August, 1964, this index, also based on 1949 equalling 100, was 203. This indicates an increase of 4½ per cent in the year in average wages and salaries paid by firms in a wide range of industries employing more than 19 persons.

The consumer price index for food items was 115.8 in October, compared with 126.4 in September and 137.8 in August. In the latest period, prices were lower for beef, bacon, lamb, most fresh vegetables, bananas, apples, pears, frozen orange juice, canned corn, margarine, macaroni, tea and coffee.

Prices were higher for eggs, citrus fruit, potatoes, lettuce, fresh pork, ham, cottage roll, fish and turkey.

Widespread price increases for both seasonal and other items in men's, women's and children's wear, including footwear, sent the clothing index up to 123.8 from 123.6. Higher rents and costs of home ownership nudged the housing index up to 142.6 from 141.3.

Housing accounts for 32 per cent of the over-all index, food for 27 per cent, and clothing for 11. The transportation component, accounting for 12 per cent, remained unchanged with local train fares offsetting higher gasoline prices.

Live Genade Removed From Farmer's Back

SAIGON (AP) — Working through a small hole in a wall of sandbags, two U.S. surgeons successfully removed a live grenade from a South Vietnamese farmer's back today.

"It's in the box," Maj.-Gen. James. W. Humphreys Jr. shouted as he released the grenade into a wooden case half filled with and after pulling it from the back of frail, 52-year-old Nguyen Tran Chinh.

Chinh became a walking explosive Sunday when a Viet Cong fired the 40-millimetre grenade from a launcher into his back. The missile six inches long and two inches wide lodged in the farmer's back beside the 12th rib.

Humphreys, a chest surgeon, was assisted by another chest surgeon, Air Force Col. Daniel Cahill, a British anesthetist, Dr. Tony Brown, and Chinh's local anesthetic.

The doctors, who volunteered for the job, operated from behind a 10-foot high stack of sandbags. They were about four feet away from the patient.

Inserting their instruments through an opening below a large pane of bulletproof glass, they made an incision with a scalpel attached is a six-foot-long steel arm.

Then Humphreys picked out the grenade with a six-foot-long pair of prongs and placed it gently in the box of sand. It was about two feet from the wound to the box.

"If I had dropped it, the whole show would have been over," Humphreys said.

A U.S. Army demolition expert carried the box to a sandbagged jeep. It was to be detonated outside Saigon.

The grenade can kill at five yards and cause serious injury far beyond that distance.

Chinh sat up and smiled as he was helped to a stretcher. Blood was running down his back from the long incision.

Before the operation, Chinh, a frail man with a wispy beard, showed reporters the bulge where the grenade had lodged since Sunday.

Party Leaders Race to Wire With Talk on Many Issues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Talk of tight money, security precautions and the "affair of the six" dominated the campaign Thursday as party leaders were found to the wire.

New Democratic Leader Douglas, drawing a crowd estimated at 15,000 to Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, challenged Prime Minister Pearson to say whether the Bank of Canada will boost interest rates after Monday's election.\

In St. Thomas, Ont., Mr. Pearson replied before 2,000 persons that the NDP leader was making "very scary statements that could create fear in the business community. "We will do everything we can to keep the economy expanding," he said.

In Edmonton, at least 25 policemen assigned to the security of 4,300 as Conservative Leader Diefenbaker was accusing the government of creating fear in the country. An anonymous caller earlier told police Mr. Diefenbaker would be assassinated, but no disturbance arose.

And Creditiste Leader Caouette, told a rally in suburban Montreal that he will take legal action against his former colleague Dr. Guy Marcoux, whom he accused of having damaged the reputation of six Creditiste members of the last Parliament.

Dr. Marcoux, independent candidate in Quebec-Montmorency, received more bad news from Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner, who turned down his request for prosecutions of unnamed persons allegedly involved in "shady deals" just after the 1963 election.

Mr. Wagner said in a statement issued in Quebec that Dr. Marcoux has produced "no element of evidence" to justify criminal charges. Dr. Marcoux contends that a Social Credit organizer was offered $25,000 in 1963 to round up five or six MPs who would support the Liberals in the Commons.

Today, three party leaders were campaigning on Vancouver and plainclothes RCMP bodyguards were waiting for them.

Robert Bonner, British Columbia attorney - general, ordered the campaign security precautions in the wake of assassination threats against both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker and disturbances at several big rallies this week.

Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Douglas and Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson all had speaking engagements in Vancouver to-

Wilson Studies Order

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson and his top advisers conferred today on the status of emergency declared by Rhodesia.

Cabinet members of defence and overseas policy exchanged ideas with the prime minister over the import of the Rhodesian move, which the Rhodesian government said was taken against a threat of sabotage.

There was no immediate indication whether the Wilson government regards the state of emergency dictum as being linked with the Rhodesian threat to abrogate the 1961 constitution and declare itself entirely independent from Britain.

Failure of conferees on both sides of the knotty problem to agree on terms for a royal commission to find a solution prompted Parliament to delay its scheduled recess for this weekend at least.

Members of the House of Commons are on alert for emergency session if Prime Minister Ian Smith's government takes the big step toward unilateral independence.

Some informed government circles expressed doubt that the Rhodesian decree was against sabotage. These quarters said the Smith government has a highly efficient police force and army able to cope with such threats.

There was belief that the Salisbury action may be strategy intended to unite the white population behind the Smith regime.

The stock market reacted quickly. Companies with interests in Rhodesia suffered some losses.

Princess Plans to See More Than U.S. High-Society Side

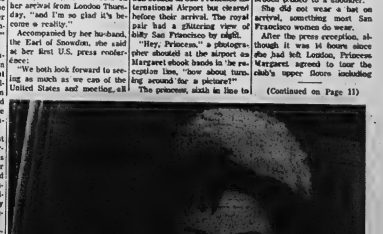
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Princess Margaret makes it clear she intends to see all of the United States—not just the high-society side.

"I've longed to come to this country for ages," she said on her arrival from London Thursday, "and I'm so glad it's become a reality."

Accompanied by her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, she said in her first U.S. press conference:

"We both look forward to seeing as much as we can of the United States and meeting all people in all walks of life."

Her husband, photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, believes their marriage, stood in the background at the conference to San Francisco Press Club.



A London-style peasoup fog had socked in San Francisco International Airport before she cleared before their arrival. The royal pair had a glittering view of hilly San Francisco by night.

"Hey, Princess," a photographer shouted at the airport as Margaret stood beside in her reception line, "how about turning around the a picture?"

The princess, still in line to Britain's throne, made a full about-face to pose. She wore the same beige tweed coat and yellow silk dress in which she travelled and her only jewelry was a double row of pearls matching earrings and a gold brooch pinned to a shoulder. The did not wear a hat on arrival, something most San Francisco women do wear.

After the press reception, although it was 14 hours since she had left London, Princess Margaret agreed to tour the club's upper floors including

U.S. Is Resigned to Enduring De Gaulle for 7 More Years

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States, looking upon President Charles de Gaulle of France as a persistent burr under the saddle of American foreign policy, is resigned to another seven years with him.

His decision to seek another term came as no surprise here and his re-election Dec. 5 is equally taken for granted.

There is no change indicated in President Johnson's calculated silence about the health and future of the Atlantic Alliance, even with some signs of impatience on both sides of the Atlantic about his silence.

Despite de Gaulle's posture of independence, recent evidence suggests the French are as sensitive as any other U.S. ally to what the United States does or does not do.

French government spokesmen angrily denied a report, published in an American magazine, attributing to de Gaulle remarks downgrading West Germany. There was hurtle rejection in French newspapers last week to a briefing of U.S. editors by state department officials. The report and the brief, long included statements that de Gaulle may dismantle NATO's defence system in France in a move to stiffen French independence and reduce American influence.

There is a line of thought

Jan Rubes Delights In Varied Program For Concert Audience

By EUGENE LANG

Practically a full house was in attendance last evening in the Collegiate Auditorium for the inaugural presentation of the 1965-66 series of attractions of the Belleville Community Concert Association. Featured in recital was the well known Czech-Canadian bass, Jan Rubes, whose career has spanned two continents in the past two decades since his debut with the Prague Opera in 1945. Since his advent to Canada in 1948 he has gained for himself a solid reputation as one of the leading basses of this era through his many operatic appearances that have encompassed over seventy leading roles with the major opera companies of the U.S., Mexico and Germany. He sings fluently in half a dozen languages in the many roles demanded of him. Add to this his many concert, radio and television appearances along with his work in films and musicals and topped off with his Stratford Festival engagements, it would be easy to see why the roles of Figaro thirty-one times this past summer in eight weeks and one week only seems to the conclusion that this talented basso is very much in demand on a year round schedule. He is married to actress Susan Douglas, has three children and makes his home in Toronto.

Last evening's program was one of variety in that many types of works for the basso were included from the religious through the tuneful and gaudy. Schubert's lovely "An Die Musik" was given a delicate delivery that caressed every phrase with sublimity. As for Schumann's "Die Beiden Grenadiere" none the subtlety wedged in some idiomatic interpretation that could either heighten (to some ears) or lessen (to others) the intent of this marvellous song.

Three excerpts from operas were sung and in these the soloist had more outlets for the display of both his emotional characterization and his vocal gifts. His stentorian tones in Figaro's "Non piu andrai" (sung in English) were as aurally noted as his resonant sonority in the "Il Lacerda Spirito" from Verdi's "Simone Baccanegra."

GREAT PORTRAYAL

The "Prayer and Death of Boris" from Moussorgsky's opera "Boris Godunov" gave Mr. Rubes the opportunity to indulge in portrayal of one of the great roles in all opera for the bass, with the result that a most convincing rendition was attained.

Selections by Canadian composer Mary Morley collectively titled "A Child's Bouquet" contained a half dozen cute little songs full of charm, imagery and wittiicisms. Mr. Rubes captivated his hearers with his handling of all these tiny vocal morsels.

The accompanist, a fairly new arrival to these shores from Hungary played a dual role as composer and pianist. Thor Polgar, a noted Hungarian composer, conductor and pianist has graced this land with his talents and many he has. Three of his songs written to texts by Canadian poets (and commissioned by the C.B.C.) were new to all ears, this being their first public appearance, but what we heard had a true musical value in which the piano part added greatly to the vocal line. The "Serenade to a Double Bass" just hot from manuscript was of humorous intent with humorful melody spiced by a whimsical piano background.

Turning again to Moussorgsky, his well known "Song of the Flea" brought forth a setting of whimsy and grandiosity mixed with satirical caprice. The final group consisted of a series of folk songs from various European nations, each sung in the native tongue of the countries they visited. Three encores were given to the contented applause of the audience. We might mention that all the folk songs mentioned above were given added color by Mr. Rubes substituting his own guitar accompaniments for the usual piano perusals.

Mr. Rubes introduced each of his offerings and his informal and down-to-earth manner created a loosening of the ties of listeners that sometimes feel as stiff as the hard backed seats they occupy. His stage savvy nor helped a great deal to charm through his talking those that he didn't charm through his singing — and those were a total of none.

Mr. Polgar played accompaniments of creative design that enhanced the singer during the entire recital.

Following this pleasant evening of musical enjoyment Adam Rubes and Polgar and members of the executive of the association were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Kvarda, Dundas Street West.

P.M. Will Be Provided With Police Escort

Prime Minister Pearson, swinging through Eastern Ontario and the Belleville district in the wrap-up of the Liberal election campaign, is expected in Belleville shortly after 3 p.m. Saturday.

The itinerary calls for the Prime Minister's cavalcade to be met by city police escort units at Highway 14 and the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway.

The cavalcade will drive down Front Street to the Liberal committee rooms opposite city hall where the Prime Minister is expected to mainstreet with riding residents and deliver a brief address.

Gem, Mineral Club Outlines Season's Work

The November meeting of the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club was held on Tuesday evening at the Ontario School for the Deaf. President Pete Pickering chaired the meeting of over 40 local rockhounds who attended. He outlined the plans which the executive has made for the winter months.

Emphasis would be on rock and mineral identification, with special meetings devoted to some particular facet of the hobby. These meetings would include talks on how and where to collect minerals, an evening on radioactive and fluorescent minerals, and studies of specific substances such as quartz, calcite and feldspar. Next meeting is expected to be of particular interest to those desiring to learn something about gems and gem cutting when one of the club members will actually demonstrate how the lapidary can get started in this fascinating branch of the hobby.

President Pickering expressed concern over the fact that many people are unable to attend the Tuesday meetings of the Club. The members agreed that the second Wednesday of the month would be less conflicting as a meeting night, but that the possibility of alternating the dates should be considered.

Vice President Gordon Alpaugh announced plans for a competition to choose a club emblem or crest suitable for display on members' vehicles or on clothing.

The Club's guest speaker was Mr. Doug. Livingston, who was introduced by Mick Thompson. Mr. Livingston is a teacher at Trenton High School who had studied geology and rocks and minerals as a hobby. His presentation dealt with the basic geology of the earth and how its study would assist everyone in an understanding of why rocks and minerals have certain characteristics.

Mr. Livingston explained that the earth was made up from three basic kinds of rocks which are called: Igneous, Sedimentary, and metamorphic. Igneous rocks were those formed deep under the crust of the earth, and which were once molten. There are many types of igneous rocks, some of which may be light colored, and others dark; some heavy and some light; granite being a good example of a local igneous rock.

SOME COOLED QUICKLY

Some igneous rocks were cooled very quickly for one reason or another, and formed very small crystals which are difficult or impossible for an amateur to recognize. Other igneous rocks cooled more slowly and crystal shapes had plenty of time to form; sometimes into very large sizes.

Sedimentary rocks are those which may have been formed at some time, or which may be made up from the dead bodies of sea creatures from early times. In all cases, the materials forming the sedimentary rocks have been deposited in layers by the action of water and weather. Our local limestone is a good example of a sedimentary rock.

Metamorphic rocks are those which have been changed from their original form by heat and pressure, and they may be of either igneous or sedimentary origin. Mr. Livingston explained that the change may be taken place slowly or quickly, and the result was an entirely new kind of rock with few of the characteristics of the original rock. As an example, he explained that a piece of clear quartz was once probably sandstone and a piece of school slate was once a piece of shale or clay.

Following these remarks, Mr. Livingston described some of the methods used for rock and mineral identification, such as the streak test, luster, color, hardness, cleavage and fracture. A well-filled specimen box supplemented his description with actual rocks and minerals which showed the characteristics of which he spoke.

At the close of the meeting, the school was presented with additional rock and mineral specimens to supplement the growing collection in the Vocational School. Many of the specimens are samples of the important ores and minerals of Ontario, and should prove to be a valuable teaching aid at the school.

Workman Said Only in Fair Condition

The condition of a young Bell Telephone employee, severely injured in a gas explosion Wednesday on Pinnacle Street, today was described as fair.

David Craig, 24, R. R. 5 Belleville, was rushed to Kingston General Hospital Wednesday night suffering severe head lacerations and shock.

He was injured when a gas line exploded inside a house near a trench being dug during sewer-laying operations as part of the reconstruction project on Pinnacle Street.

The blast buried him across the street.

Meantime, provincial investigators have moved in to probe the background of the explosion.

Sent to Belleville yesterday were an inspector of the Department of Energy and Resources Management and an engineer from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office in Toronto.

Traffic Lights Installed At 2 Busy Intersections

Rush hour traffic jams at two of the city's busy northeast intersections saw welcome relief this week as new traffic lights went into operation.

The intersections are at Coleman and West Moira, and at North Front Street and College.

Rush-hour traffic jams at the Coleman - Moira Street intersection have been the topic of discussion for years both in council and out with continued requests received for the installation of lights.

This year the necessary funds for the lights were provided but installation of the signals has been held up with late delivery of equipment.

At College Crescent and Moira Street and at College and North Front, the latest in traffic lights have now been installed and both sets were put into operation this week.

LIGHTS HANG OUT

The new traffic lights are placed on the end of 35-foot pole arms, allowing the lights to hang out over the approaching line of traffic for better visibility.

Advance green lights with an right - second interval allowing for left turns in the main travelled directions are provided at both intersections.

This means that west-bound traffic along West Moira Street is given an eight-second interval in which to turn south along Coleman.

At Coleman Street a centre island has been provided for traffic separation while on the Moira street an extra lane has been provided for northbound traffic turning right onto Moira.

May Reduce Sentence on Jack Ruby

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The district attorney proposed Thursday that Jack Ruby's death sentence for killing President Kennedy's assassin be reduced to a prison term. This could mean freedom in seven years.

Henry Wade, who prosecuted the one-time night club operator, said he was twice offered to recommend a sentence of life in prison.

Wade said the evidence insists instead on a five-year sentence.

A jury assessed a sentence of death in the electric chair against Ruby for killing Lee Harvey Oswald two days after Oswald assassinated President Kennedy in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

Execution has been delayed by numerous complex appeals.

MRS. MARY EMILY HUTSON R. R. 2 Amelianburg

In failing health for one-and-a-half years and in hospital for the past five weeks, Mrs. Mary Emily Hutson, R. R. 2 Amelianburg, died Thursday in Bremner Hospital, Toronto. She was in her 74th year.

Born in Preston, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander C. Biggs and lived at Crafton for 13 years, moving there from Mimico. She was a member of the Christadelphian Church, Toronto, and had taught school in Hamilton before her marriage.

Mrs. Hutson is survived by her husband, George Hutson, a son George Edwin (Ted) Hutson and two daughters, Mrs. Ken (Nora) Sharpe of Realtn and Mrs. Garnet (Marjorie) Gilles of Kingston. Also surviving are a brother Charles Biggs of Vancouver, and a sister Mrs. Annie Biggs of McPhee of Pusilinch, Ont., and seven grandchildren.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home from Sunday noon with funeral service in the chapel Monday afternoon.

WAYNE SAMUEL AVERY

Funeral services were held yesterday for Wayne Samuel Avery from the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home, with interment in Elmwood Cemetery. Rev. Paul Packman officiated.

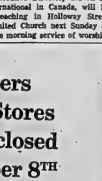
Bearers were Gary Alfred, Dave Putman, Bob Hanna, Jim Hanna, Steve Woodcock and Bob Bowalee.

MRS. AMANDA LEVINA SHAW

Funeral services for Mrs. Amanda Levina Shaw of Foxboro were held yesterday from the Pinkney and Lacombe Funeral Home with interment in Victoria Cemetery. Rev. C. C. Gilbert officiated.

Bearers were Stanley Hayton, Clayton Hamilton, Gerald Dafoe, Vernal Prindle, Joe Hollinger and Earl Ketcheson.

Y's Activities



Sorry, "Y" members, we goofed! Our bulletin "Did You Know" which you received last week contained several errors. The time for the Public Swimming period on Saturday was 6.15 to 7.15. It should have been 8.15 as it has been. The Family Swim on Saturday will take place as usual. As announced, the former Public Swim on Fridays is now a Members Only swim for those holding memberships providing swimming privileges.

Trampoline classes at the Harry J. Clarke School will be on Mondays at 3.00 p.m. for girls, and on Wednesdays at 3.00 p.m. for girls, not the reverse as in Did You Know.

The new Kindergarten instruction classes for the children from the Retarded Children's School are off to a good start. On Monday and Friday mornings at 10.00 a.m. a group of volunteer instructors under staff supervision are providing these children with enjoyable periods of swim instruction. In two weeks many of the pupils have made excellent progress.

KILLS TWO DEER

QUEENSPORT, N.S. (CP) — Leslie C. Esler, 71, a sniper during the First World War, hasn't lost his touch. Hunting near his Guysborough County home he has felled two deer with one shot. "I kissed my rifle (an old .25-35) and said 'I love you'," he reported. When he let home he was confident of success. He took only three cartridges.

Mr. Arthur J. Burnham, Executive Director, Gideon International in Canada, will be preaching at Hollowey Street United Church next Sunday at the morning service of worship.

CARDS OF THANKS

Thank you to all my friends who remembered me with cards and a present in the Belleville General Hospital, and to Rev. Jeanne Dyer and cards. Special thanks to Dr. E. Mandy, Dr. Ross, Dr. Lacombe and all nurses on 1st medical floor.

Sincerely, Miss Rosetta Reavie, 52 Main St., Belleville.

I would like to express my heartfelt thanks to Dr. Mandy, Dr. Ross and Dr. Lacombe, and all the staff of the Belleville General Hospital on 2nd south for the excellent care given to me, and to my many friends both in and out of hospital, for cards and flowers and good wishes for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Ethel Hayden

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to friends, neighbours, and relatives for the many kindnesses shown and floral tributes to the Ontario Heart Foundation during our recent loss. A special thanks to Dr. Mandy, Dr. Ross, Rev. Raymond H. M. Davis, Drs. Walters, Kosh, Lacombe and Douglas, the Ambulance Service, and nurses in Intensive Care Unit.

Mary Murphy and family.

IN MEMORIAM

GORDON, John Morley — In loving memory of our dear father who passed away two years ago as a result of an accident while going deer hunting.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
Our eyes still shed a tear,
We miss you more than ever,
We can still see you here.
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But time has but only proved,
How much we miss him yet.
The world could be bright if
And courage to bear the blow,
What it meant to lose you, Dearby,
No one will ever know.
When we are sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong,
We seem to hear you whisper,
"Cheer up, don't be long."
Each time we pass your picture,
You seem to smile and say,
"Don't cry, I'm only marrying,
We will meet again some day."
Sometimes we feel we're pouring in vain,
But perhaps it's just as well,
For you could not come back again.
To a Dad we loved so well.
Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Frances, Fred and Anita.

MAYBEE — In loving memory of Jack Maybee who passed away November 5, 1963.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
Death tryes to break, but all in vain.
Memories are not lost yours,
To us the truest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never.
The memory of the days we spent,
When we were together.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her ever loving husband, Harold.

Ontario Minister of Health Addresses Newly Formed Association for Retarded

CAMPBELLFORD — Dr. Matthew Dymond was the guest speaker on Wednesday night at the newly organized Bancroft Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Before Dr. Dymond's address Mr. William Kirk, executive director of the Ontario association, presented the charter to Mr. Johnson, president of the B a n croft association. Mr. Kirk outlined the objects and purposes of the Ontario association for the mentally retarded. They are: to encourage scientific research and study into mental retardation, to promote the education of all retarded children, to create a responsibility to determine as many services as possible to supplement government services and to assist a better understanding of mental retardation by the general public. There are now 97 local associations in Ontario.

Other associations represented at the Bancroft Charter Night were Oshawa, Lindsay, Alex, Minden and Campbellford.

FIRST HOSPITAL SCHOOL

In his address Dr. Dymond, Ontario Minister of Health, said the first hospital school in Ontario was organized in 1830 by the superintendent of the asylum. This school remained open a short time, closed and was reopened by a woman who could found very little means to carry on the training.

Even 20 years ago very little attention was paid in medical schools to the study of mental retardation. Graduate doctors prescribed for children whom they knew, which was to place the child in an institution. Since that time, particularly during the last few years when the first local association was formed at Kirkland Lake, much has been accomplished by parents and interested people.

Dr. Dymond stated that the Research Institute in London, Ontario had proved that with adequate drug treatment, a proper and correct assessment of the child's brain damage and counselling service to parents, only 22 per cent of retarded children need to be placed in institutions.

The three government departments, Health, Welfare and Education recognize that mental retardation is much more than a health problem and that successful treatment involves specialized education and vocational programs.

The advisory committee's primary object is to advise Dr. Dymond on matters relating to mental retardation at professional and lay level, it proposed to establish a separate advisory committee at each of the hospital schools.

The Interdepartment Committee of Deputy Ministers and their professional advisers from Departments of Health, Welfare and Education will help to plan, co-ordinate and integrate government services.

The mental health branch of the Department of Health will be responsible for the administration and further development in the existing hospital schools.

DENTALS OVERCROWDED

Socializing of the larger hospitals, the main criticism of which in overcrowding. Dr. Dymond said the hospital at Orillia was over-crowded when the doors first opened just 60 years ago.

Smiths Falls hospital, built for 2700 patients, now has 2,365. The staff consists of 1,024 plus casual and part time help. The payroll is over $4,000,000 annually.

The strongest recommendation of Dr. Dymond was that all possible steps be taken. Day schools and sheltered workshops should be provided to keep the child in its own family. He said there are exceptional cases where institutional care is the only answer, especially where the child is physically handicapped as well as retarded.

The Department of Education will assume full responsibility for all educational services for residents in hospital schools.

Dr. Dymond said municipalities often carry more than 50 percent of the capital cost for schools for the normal child and would do the same for the retarded.

The Department of Welfare's role in mental retardation is to undertake to establish community residential care. The department now provides up to 100 percent of cost, not exceeding $5,000 per place, and maintenance at 80 per cent of cost, for community residences.

The Minister of Health said there will be definitely more large hospital schools built. The trend today is to establish units of about 200 beds. Several such units are in operation and more will be built. One recently opened at Palmerston.

Over 200 people were present in the North Hastings High School auditorium to hear Dr. Dymond speak. Musical entertainment was provided by the school band and glee club.

CANADIAN WHISKY by HIRAM WALKER

Mrs. Lily May Fox of Station Street turned out for the Progressive Conservative rally at the Club Canara yesterday and is shown here with the P.C. candidate for South Hastings, Lee Grills. Mrs. Fox, who is 93, says she had voted Conservative for 72 years.

Pearson Bungled Again When Vote Called--Grills

Hastings South Progressive Conservative candidate Lee Grills said here Thursday evening, that the Liberal Government under Prime Minister Pearson, "had bungled once more thing," when the prime minister had called the Nov. 8 election.

"Mr. Pearson thought that the Conservatives were going around the country, and he would steal the march on us — but he has possibly now decided not," said Mr. Grills.

The Liberal Party was asking for a majority government, said the Hastings South candidate. But, on their record of the past 2½ years it did not deserve this, or even a minority government.

"Let's have a majority government that is an honest government — a Conservative Government," said Mr. Grills.

The Hastings South candidate was speaker at a combined euchre and dance and "meet-your-candidate night," attended by several hundred party supporters at the Club Canara. Free southern fried chicken was served.

The present election would cost a total of $11 million. When called several weeks ago, it was thought to be an unnecessary election. But now the Conservative party was once more one to be reckoned with, and should be elected on Nov. 8, said Mr. Grills. So the election could be worth the cost after all.

CONSERVATIVE RECORD

The Hastings South candidate said he had the privilege of representing Hastings South from 1957 to 1963, and during that time Canada had a great record of achievement.

"The Conservative government was able to recover many of the trading markets lost by the Liberals and our trade with other countries increased by the name salesmanship of Hon. George Hees, broke all previous records and replaced trade deficits with a surplus," said Mr. Grills.

Mr. Grills said it was not the intention of the Conservative party to campaign on past achievement alone, but a good government builds a strong foundation for the future.

The Conservative government took long range steps to build a strong economy, responsible citizenship and a proud Canadianism," said Mr. Grills.

The candidate said the Liberal party proposed more incentives to promote home ownership. "But I ask you, do you call putting an 11 per cent federal sales tax on home building materials an incentive to home-building?" he asked.

The Conservatives had done much when in power, to aid and encourage home ownership, said the Hastings South candidate.

"We made this possible by lowering down payments and making monthly payments smaller. And one of the first things the new Conservative government will do," said Mr. Grills, "will be to remove the 11 per cent building material sales tax."

In addition a Conservative government will enact legislation protecting the unearned tax paid od homes to be deducted from taxable income up to $500.

NEED PENSION RAISE

Mr. Grills said that he believed with the increased cost of living, the increase in old age pensions to $100, the Conservatives proposed, was necessary.

"We will increase old age pensions to $100 a month and without a means test, following the same age system as is now in effect, this year at age 70, next year at 69, and so on down to the age of 65. I believe that this increase is necessary now," said Mr. Grills.

Mr. Grills said the Conservative party was concerned about the morale of members of the Armed Services.

"While some form of integration may have been necessary, the ruthless way in which it was carried out did not reflect the appreciation of Canadians for the job that has been done, and is being done, by our armed forces. The arrogant manner with which this was done should be an indication to Canadians of the kind of Government they would get if they were to elect a majority Liberal government," said Mr. Grills.

Some of his recent statements on integration had been misquoted by the Liberal opposition, he said.

"All I have to say, is that the service people say that what I said is true. If the opposition disagrees with me, they can go and talk to them."

Mr. Grills said he believed that Minister of National Defence Paul Hellyer's visit to Trenton last night, was "to try to patch up some of the gaps left by his ill-fated policies."

Mr. Grills said he believed "that the thing that pays off, is the way you can help the average individual." He added "That is what makes you feel good."

The Hastings South candidate said, if elected, he would work for all the people in the constituency alike, regardless of political leanings.

De Gaulle

had been widely anticipated, this violent condemnation of the opposition and his all-out bid for personal support came as a surprise from a man so conscious of the dignity of office.

But it was bound to please his supporters. De Gaulle came across strong, clear-eyed and determined.

POLLS FAVOR PRESIDENT

His main opposition, after months of hesitation and falsestarts, has been campaigning strongly in the hope of winning public opinion polls which show De Gaulle a formidable lead.

It will be the first time the president of France has been elected by universal suffrage. If one candidate doesn't get an absolute majority of the more than 20,000,000 votes expected to be cast, the two leading candidates face off in a second ballot two weeks later.

The principal opponents for de Gaulle will be Francois Mitterand, candidate of the combined Socialist and Communist forces in France, Centre-party elder statesmanJean Lecanuet, and extreme right-winger Jean-Louis Tixier-Vignancour. The final list of candidates will not be known, however, until nominations close in another two weeks.

De Gaulle declared that much progress has been made during the last seven years which he has been president, but much remains to be done. Among the unfinished business he listed "recovery of our independence without renouncing our allsecure." This was an obvious reference to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He wants to see NATO resinped to his own ideas.

Given $11,715 In Damage Suit

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston millwright Peter Tatlon and his wife, Florence, were awarded $11,715.61 Thursday by an Ontario Supreme Court judgment on a gas explosion that destroyed their home April 5.

In a non-jury trial before Mr. Justice E. A. Richardson, Kingston plaintiffs' solicitor Gordon Wood told the court responsible in the explosion and Bar Construction Ltd. of Bath, a pipe broke. The PUC repaired the break in the pipe but gas later seeped into the Tatlon house and exploded.

Denis Hearing

Rivard has since been convicted in Texas as a narcotics smuggler and is awaiting sentence.

The charges against Denis grew out of allegations in the House of Commons that led to the setting up of a judicial inquiry under Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec Superior Court.

Crown Attorney John Cassells said Thursday he intends to present as witnesses some of the key figures in that inquiry. They include Rivard's wife, Mayle, placed on $5,000 bail to ensure her appearance here; Robert Giguere, Montreal contractor out on $25,000 bail on a charge of capital murder and five perjury charges; and Eddy Lechasseur, free on $10,000 bail while awaiting trial on charges of perjury and obstructing justice. The perjury charges against Giguae and Lechasseur grew out of their Dorion appearance.

Also on the witness list is Parliamentary Secretary Lamoureaux, immigration minister when Denis worked as his executive assistant.

After the two charges against Denis were read, Mr. Assaly said his client would elect trial by judge and jury if committed for trial on either charge. Then he asked for the postponement.

GET PRELIMINARY

The proceedings against his client would get undue publicity during an election campaign, he said. He asked for a delay so he may so he could enlist the aid of Guy Guerin, Montreal lawyer for Denis during the Dorion inquiry. Mr. Guerin was tied up on another case in Montreal.

Magistrate Strike said he saw no need for further delay. The date for preliminary hearing had been set last August.

Mr. Cassells then stated to document a case against Mr. Denis.

His first witness, court clerk Omer Pion, traced the history of the Denis company known as Rivard-sin the summer of 1964.

Other witnesses produced records of Rivard calls to Denis by Guy Masson, some of them from a motel. Other witnesses were Lamoureux and Giguac at a motel June 22-23, 1964.

SHOT $60,000 DEPOSIT

Records also were produced to show a deposit of $60,000 in a Montreal trust company bearing by Mrs. Rivard and Giguac June 23, 1964.

After admitting this evidence, Mr. Cassells said he intended to link the deposit with testimony to show that Denis had been told $60,000 was available for "party funds" in connection with the Rivard case.

Thursday's one flurry came when Mr. Assaly asked a witness about a charge against Mr. Lamontagne, "I think for assault."

Mr. Cassells demanded that Mr. Assaly withdraw the reference unless he had proof of a conviction. Mr. Assaly said he had no proof. He was trying to get information.

A Magistrate Strike said Mr. Assaly should not have asked the question "unless he was able to establish the fact himself."

BRIGHTEN LANE

BRIDGEPORT, Ont. (CP) — Night-time caddiers in this community had filed their nocturnal activities curtailed when a street light is erected at the end of a lane called "Lovers' Lane." The town council recently pondered the problem of curbing the influx of many caddie of young people to the area and decided to install a light to help the youngsters. The council said a series of complaints has been received and garbage collection on the street costs $70 a year.

Critics of Integration Answered by Hellyer

TRENTON — The Hon. Paul Hellyer the Minister of National Defence addressing a Liberal rally at Trenton last night said a career in the service offered a bright future. He was speaking on behalf of Robert Temple seeking return to the House of Commons for a second term as the representative for Hastings South.

Mr. Hellyer said he had hoped integration of the armed forces would be kept out of politics and had been pleased with the campaign until recently when a local candidate had made inaccurate statements for the purpose of demoralizing the people in the forces. EVERY SEAT FILLED

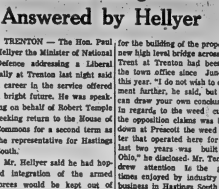
The visit of the defence minister followed on the heels of criticism of the defence department and its policies regarding integration. Every seat in the Legion hall was filled and hundreds were standing four deep in places across the back of the auditorium.



An airman and a civilian attempted to lead a move to interrupt the defence minister when he started to speak but were silenced by the remainder of the audience with a resounding applause.

Afterwards Mr. Hellyer mingled with the people in the auditorium and renewed many acquaintance with service men and their wives among the gathering. He shook hands with the airmen who had exchanged views with him from the head of the hall and assured them there was no hard feelings. But the civilian heckler Mr. Assaly said he had no proof. He was trying to get information.

A Magistrate Strike said Mr. Assaly should not have asked the question "unless he was able to establish the fact himself."

Critics of Integration Answered by Hellyer

TRENTON — The Hon. Paul Hellyer the Minister of National Defence addressing a Liberal rally at Trenton last night said a career in the service offered a bright future. He was speaking on behalf of Robert Temple seeking return to the House of Commons for a second term as the representative for Hastings South.

Car Rolls Over

TRENTON — Graham Noel Lloyd, 39, of Peterborough, escaped injury around 11.15 p.m. Wednesday night when he lost control of his car on 401 highway just west of the Wooler Road overpass, skidded 500 feet, partly on the shoulder and partly on the pavement, and rolled over twice. Damage to the 1961 model car was set by provincial police from the Brighton detachment at $800.

TRENTON — The children of Calvin Christian School and young friends of UNICEF in Trenton and Middleton Park, collected $235 on Hallowe'en night, a spokesman for UNICEF announced to day.

Hees Promises To Aid Brighton Get Industry

TRENTON — George Hees, Progressive Conservative candidate for Northumberland, spoke to 350 persons in the Masonic Temple at Brighton Wednesday night.

Mr. Hees charged that the Liberals were "hungry for power", and that a Liberal majority in the house would only lead to arrogance on their part.

Mr. Hees reiterated his promise to bring industry into the area. He said that while the village of Brighton has an active Chamber of Commerce, and was, in effect, a "bed-room" community, it lacked industry and he promised to see to it that opportunities for the village to acquire this would be one of his prime concerns, should he be elected to office.

New York's Problems

John V Lindsay, New York's handsome new mayor, has been quoted as saying his primary aim is to make the city "a healthier, better, safer place to live."

This brief statement sums up eloquently the needs of the metropolis. In this jungle of a place, with its skyscrapers and awesome extremes of heat and cold, its mess of concrete and traffic and gasoline fumes and racial tensions and lurking dangers there are concentrated all the problems of society—and then some.

A New York clergyman, Rev. Donald Harrington, said recently that New York "is running out of water, running out of air, running out of space, running out of beauty, running out of jobs, running out of money and credit, running out of patience."

Or as columnist Sydney J. Harris puts it: "It is incredible what the citizens of New York will put up with in the way of sleazy service, rude officialdom, impossible traffic, mismanagement and filth, dirt, discomfort and an expensiveness in living that threatens to take off for the stratosphere."

"The richest city in America," Harris adds. "is nearly broke. Nobody but a madman would voluntarily drive a car in Manhattan. Hotel rooms are nearly impossible to get during convention weeks. Central Park can be used at night only with guard dogs. Air pollution is equal to smoking two packets of cigarettes a day."

Such is the magnitude of the task facing John V. Lindsay. Forunately, youth and energy are on his side. He is an expert horseman and swimmer and a tennis and ski enthusiast. He also skis, bowls, rides a bicycle and is an ardent baseball, football and soccer fan.

During 150 days of campaigning, he wore out four pairs of shoes in walking an estimated 473 miles.

Married, with an attractive wife and four young children, three of them girls, the new Republican-Liberal mayor is a lawyer by profession, although he confesses his practice is "nil."

From now on he will have little time for either sport or law. But the qualities that have built such a man and given him such obvious enthusiasm and diversity of interests will stand him—and New Yorkers—in good stead in the days that lie ahead.

Loss to Importers

Canadian importers have come to know only too well the frustration that stems from slow deliveries of goods from Europe, and particularly from British manufacturers. They also face another difficulty—pilfering of goods at ports of arrival.

Norman F. Vickery, general manager of the Canadian Importers Association, goes so far as to say importers are "fed up and getting pretty desperate." He said most complaints were from members shipping through Montreal.

Toronto and Vancouver, on the other hand, experience comparatively little pilfering. Indeed, one firm that once unloaded in Montreal now has its goods shipped by sea to the Pacific seaboard and by rail east.

However, not all the trouble occurs at the Canadian end. According to Captain B. D. L. Johnson, Vancouver port manager, total damage, including theft and breakage, amounts to an average of only $4,500 a year and much of the damage occurs at the point of origin.

Sometimes, there are instances of theft en route. In a Canadian Press survey of the extent of the problem at different ports, a spokesman for the Montreal Harbour Board at Montreal said longshoremen unloading cars from Germany found one auto was too tight. Investigation showed the engine had been removed by sailors while the ship was at sea. They were caught trying to sell it on shore.

One way or another, the problem is a difficult one. Over a period importers stand to lose a great deal through damage and pilfering. Customers also lose out when goods arrive in a damaged condition, or do not arrive at all.

Feminine Touch

Amid the tortuous maze of Canadian liquor laws there are areas of enlightenment—or so some may think.

We refer to the introduction of attractive waitresses, attired in 18th century princess style dress, in the cocktail lounge of the Chateau Laurier hotel in Ottawa.

Thus, a welcome aura of feminity and grace is being introduced in a traditional male preserve. Ottawa of course is not alone in this innovation. There is a hotel in Brockville which staffs its English-style "pub" with pretty girls in Acadian outfits.

It may be hard on the men they replace, although the dozen waiters involved in Ottawa have been given jobs in other parts of the hotel.

On the other hand, it is said the presence of the young women in pubs and cocktail lounges improves the general tone of the place. The language and manners of male patrons, not to mention their personal grooming, undergo a sharp improvement.

20 YEARS AGO

Heavy rains in the northern and middle sections of the country have resulted in the levels of the Moira River being the highest, seasonally, in a number of years, city officials said today.

The high levels at the rivermouth reaches back as far as the American Optical Company. Officials regard high water at this time of the year as being a deterrent to flood menace in the spring. There is less possibility of solid freezing of the water in the rivermouth when such conditions exist.

With Autumn rains and frost having speedily denuded summer shade trees in the city, the local department of public works employees will begin their annual rounds to pick up leaves starting next week.

Belleville residents who recall the cold snap which ushered in the fall season, and who remember how at the coming of the advent of Indian Summer, may be relieved to know that this phenomenon is not uncommon. It has been established recently that the winter of 1887 took the early part and several other things thrown in, with regards to the variation in the weather in this district. Alfred Spencer, farmer, living 18 miles north of Belleville, drove to this city and returned to his home in 2 cutter on October 21, 1887, and between Christmas and the day before the new year of the same year, he did his fall ploughing.

Old Hat

Montreal Star

But much of the public apathy about the voting is due to the fact that the campaign is, in the matter of particular issues, simply old hat, and that the party leaders themselves are old hat too. They have all been around for a long time. Since half the population of the country is 23 years old or less, this seems to explain a lot, including campus dissatisfaction.

Chart Gives Formula For Predicting Height

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Sir: I have been told there is a chart to estimate with a fair degree of accuracy at a certain age what a child's ultimate height will be. Could you print it? — Mrs. L. D.

* * *

It depends on what you mean by "a fair degree of accuracy." There isn't any entirely dependable way of predicting. A tall child is likely to be a tall adult — obviously.

The rough rule of thumb is to take a child's height at the age of three years and double it. That can prove to be accurate in some cases, and a matter of inches off in others.

Charts or tables have been worked out, averaging the results with hundreds of children, and while the entire chart is too long to print here, I'll give you some typical ages.

Take the child's height in inches at any of the given ages, multiply it by 100, and then divide by the corresponding figure in the chart. The answer is in inches.

SEE COPY FOR INSERT

Adult height means from 17 to 18 years of age.

These figures are correct for averages, but what's average? The average is the figure which is between those who wind up shorter than the chart shows, and those who wind up taller, and that's all you can say for it.

* * *

As you can learn from the chart, at any age, girls have achieved a greater proportion of their final height much sooner than boys.

At 15, girls (again, or the average) are within a fraction of being as tall as they ever will be. But boys at that age will grow another 5½ percent, or an absolute prediction, but only as a guide.

Heredity (quite important), nutrition, and general health (important, because it can throw off the height at various ages, and hence fool you as to what the final height will be) are factors that are hard to estimate.

And there can be some variation in the exact timing at which children go into their growth spurts. Their growth isn't steady; they spurt and slow down, spurt and slow down.

That's why no absolute formula is possible. However, don't fret if the chart shows that Junior will be only 5 feet 7. And don't be too positive about that results if the chart shows that he will be 72.98 inches tall. Maybe he'll only be 5 feet 11. Who knows?

But working out the chart will give you some practice in long division with decimals, as well as a rough idea of what to expect. The sure way is to wait and find out.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I seem to be susceptible to a vaginal fungus infection (monilia). Would pregnancy dispose to such a condition? If it should develop, can it be treated during pregnancy? — Mrs. R. X.

Yes, pregnancy does predispose to monilian infection. Yes, in general it can be treated during pregnancy. Your doctor should decide in specific cases.

NOTE TO J. L. L.: There have been endless attempts to make hair grow on bald heads, and these efforts continue, but nothing to date has stood up as a true breakthrough. Just wait and hope. The experiments of today may be treatment of tomorrow.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nov. 5, 1945 . . .

The Jervis Bay, a 14,154-ton passenger liner converted for war use, eight 6-inch guns, was in charge of a North Atlantic convoy of 37 ships 27 years ago today —in 1940—when attacked by the German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer. Ignoring the odds Captain Fogerty Fegen steered straight for the enemy until all his guns were knocked out and the Jervis Bay sank. Only 65 of the crew of 255 were saved. The sacrifice of the Jervis Bay allowed all but four of the unarmed freighters to escape. Captain Fegen was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross.

1872—Susan B. Anthony of Rochester, N.Y., became the first American woman to vote in a presidential election, for which she was fined $100.

1861 — The 22nd amendment to the U.S. constitution, limiting presidents to two terms of office, was ratified.

First World War

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1940 — Winston Churchill announced air raid casualties to date as 14,000 civilians and 300 soldiers and said that the U-boat sinkings would be more serious than air raids; Franklin D. Roosevelt was re-elected president of the United States for a third term; Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru was sentenced to four years imprisonment for breaches of the Defence of India Act.

Strictly Personal

Daughter Demolishes Dad's Sally

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

When one of my daughters had just entered second grade, I brought home some strange kind of shell I had found, and said to her, "You might want to take this to school tomorrow for 'show- and- tell.'"

She drew herself up to her full 40 inches and replied scornfully, "Daddy, we don't have show-and-tell, any more; that's baby stuff; in second grade, we have 'sharing interests.'"

I apologized profusely for my horrible faux pas. It seemed a trivial mistake in terminology to me, but it was important to her, and rightfully so. There is a profound difference between "show and tell" and "sharing interests."

This is, in a large sense, what growing up is all about. Very small children like to show and tell. They bring some treasure, an object to school and talk about it. The whole idea is egocentric, and is based on pride of possession. A quite young child doesn't know what "bragging" is.

As we get older, our emphasis should shift to sharing interests. Objects are brought to school not so much to boast about them as to involve other students in them: to expand their horizons and to create some mutuality enjoyable field of inquiry or discovery.

This is a lesson, alas, that many adults never learn. A distressing number remain in the show-and-tell stage throughout their lifetime. Their conversation consists of displaying their gifts — their house, their car, their trip, their children, their social or intellectual superiority — rather than trying to find a broader base of commonality with others.

I happened to overhear some conversations of strangers on a train not long ago, and it struck me that each of them was using the other as a sounding-board and listening only long enough about himself; the other would dutifully listen; then the second would take his turn, and the first would listen.

But the "listening" was a matter of auditory nerves only, and nothing more. Each was going through a set of verbal grimaces, a kind of exercise in self-disclosure, but no contact was really made. They were like galleries taking in the wares of different halls; they walked the same course, but no genuine transaction ever took place.

Mostly, they were seeking to reassure themselves that all was well; they were looking for identity and stability and acceptance, by means of constructing so image in the other person's mind. This is a futile and unsatisfactory way to do it — for in personal relations, the other structures that can stand are bridges, not showpieces. Unless we reach across, we are reaching out in vain.

Education for Indians

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

A federal-provincial program to teach employment skills to unemployed Indians was launched in Manitoba this summer and while it is too early to judge results, it appears to be off to a good start.

Teachers travelled to nine remote northern Manitoba communities to instruct Indians in science, mathematics and English. The aim is to upgrade Indians in these basic subjects so the Grade 10 level so they can enter technical or vocational institutes.

University seniors and graduates took the assignments. Many of the communities they visited were without roads and the schoolhouse where churches or Indian reserve halls.

The special program supervisor for the Manitoba vocational branch, Jack Ferguson, reports results were satisfactory although there were some drop-outs among the 200 Indians enrolled.

As an example, Norway House some 300 miles north of Winnipeg, the project progressed particularly well. Of the nine students started the course and twenty graduated, sixteen of them all of whom are ready for entry to a technical or vocational institute.

Plans are underway to expand the instruction next summer. Mr. Ferguson points out there are large numbers of people in Manitoba's northern areas who could be used in industry.

"At the moment they have no hope of finding work in industry, and industry doesn't seem to want them with their present experience," says Mr. Ferguson. "Through vocational training they can acquire a skill which is also in demand and become an important part of the Manitoba economic structure."

Most of the Indians who enter the course already have between Grade 8 and 9 education.

The scheme appears to be a well thought-out attempt to improve the lot of Manitoba's northern Indians and is one that provincial and other governments could watch with interest and hunger.

Population Explosion

La Tribune, Sherbrooke

The United Nation's population year book has some impressive figures on world population growth.

In one generation — 1930 to 1963 — the world's population has increased by a third to reach a total of 3,180,000,000. And the greatest increase, as has been noted before, was in the region where poverty and illiteracy are most widespread, Asia. Asia alone furnishes more than half the new population.

The year book points out that in the first three years of the '60s the world population grew by 170,000,000 or the combined population of Brazil and Japan.

The birth rate of Europe has risen in recent years, but in Mali it is up to 62 births for 1,000 inhabitants, and a declining infant mortality rate also contributes to increases in the population.

This gigantic population pressure throughout the world, especially in the poor countries, makes education vital to the growing popularity in certain responsible circles of the doctrine favoring birth control and limitation. These problems become terrible as it becomes clearer that all the good work in the world and all the wealth of the fortunate lands could never feed those now dying of hunger.

Students Aim for Suburbia

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Beatniks and beards, riots and revolution, and contemporary people that today's colleges are breeding grounds for discontent.

Just the opposite, says one educator. The vast majority of college students are "passive, conformist, docile" — and this, charges Prof. Joseph Katz of Stanford University, is just what they want to be. The goal of higher education is designed to make them.

Prof. reports that when asked what they expected to be doing 10 years from now, students said they didn't plan to live in universities replied with a description of routine life in suburbia. They didn't particularly like the prospect of such a future, but they accepted it.

Students, says Katz, "rank highest their own individual and career and future family life. Involvement in international, national or civic affairs and in problems other people ranked astonishingly low."

The prevailing student image of college is that it provides access to a better job and a higher income. It is a coveted club in which one can climb a ladder while acquiring friends, connections and a mate. Only minority consider it as an opportunity to pursure intellectual interests.

Moral Issues Loom in the Debate

Letter in Brantford Expositor

I noticed with dismay and alarm the widespread publicity given to the remarks of a New York psychologist concerning pre-marital sex. He is apparently seeking only publicity in suggesting to women that they forget chastity if they want to be popular.

In these days when it is difficult enough to bring up young people with a sense of values and proportion and a decent set of moral standards, we think no little is to help or anything to better generally accepted moral standards.

It would appear that the intent is to ridicule and break down conservatism and necessary for the well-being of the races over the centuries and the building of womanhood and replace these with license and immorality, making our young people believe that more than indies of easy virtue and our men irresponsible, pre-occupied, little removed from animals.

Our young people are entitled to expect sane, more responsible thoughts from those trying to open themselves to set guide lines, rather than have them advocate a return to the days of fist and paganism.

Winter Sport In Vermont

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Vermont has its mountains, and these days mountain are a source of revenue because they bring hordes of skiers. Since this area lacks a good mountain we cannot share Vermont's revenue from this source

Such thing as a winter could perhaps be developed into interesting ski slopes close to home. But we can suggest a number of suggestions for winter tourism made by the Vermont Development Department which don't require mountains.

Vermont makes quite a thing out of ice fishing as a winter attraction. Skating and collegiate hockey are considered worthy of mention. Also, of more curiously, it includes sledding as one of the attractions. This is billed as an attraction for people of all ages.

From little one - man sleds made out of barrel staves to big six man toboggans, the gentler slopes of Vermont are ideal for winter, or even the steeper brushcr ways. We hadn't thought of this as a big attraction but, maybe a lot of sledders are people who aren't quite athletic enough for skiing.

Maybe this is of importance to us. Our hills may not rank with Vermont mountains for skiing, but they should be ideal for sledding. Maybe there is a good hill for sledding down a hill, one that should be exploited more widely.

Troops Help

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and quiet-to-heavy on the Toronto Stock Exchange in the morning part of the session today.

The big surprise, however, was the lack of activity in Newspaper and other companies with properties in the Pine Point area of the Northwest Territories. Newspaper has been the sparkplug of the active market for the last week, but by 11:30 a.m. today not a single share had changed hands. It closed Thursday at $8.30 and the bid and ask today was 7.75 to 8.00.

The warrants traded actively, dipping 85 cents to 3.40. Conwest was down 40 cents to 7.85 and Central Patricia lacked one three cents to 1.98. The two property in the lead-zinc-silver area of Pine Point and also the options on shares of Pyramid Mines which has set the Vancouver Stock Exchange on fire this week by climbing to a high of $16 from 4.45 a week ago. Pyramid pulled an encouraging drill hole from its property adjoining Pine Point Mines.

Among industrials, Aluminium was ahead ½ to 32 and Massey-Ferguson ¼ to 33½. NONG advanced ¼ to 28¾ on volume of more than 62,000 shares. Grefaver Winnipeg, which NONG has offered to take over on a share-for-share basis, was up ½ to 26½.

Nisto traded almost 300,000 shares in gaining 1 to 23 cents among speculative mining issues. Piteys, an oil company with acreage in the North Sea in the same general area as an discovery by British Petroleum, fell 10 cents to $1.75 in profit taking. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,630,000 shares compared with 1,308,000 at the same time Thursday.

On index, industrials were up .30 to 171.77, golds .42 to 158.20, base metals .10 to a high of 97.31 and the TSE index .43 to 1.61.66. Western oils were down .22 to 102.60.

Heavy speculative trading pohed volume to its highest level since March 5 on the exchange Thursday.

Industrials were fractionally

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and prices were firm on medium, good and choice steers and good and choice heifers at the Ontario public yards this week.

Common steers, common and medium heifers and all grades of cows were slow and hard to sell, bull prices were steady. Good and choice vealers sold strong with lower grades slow.

Hog prices were higher and lambs steady to the close.

Cattle receipts were about 2,200 head less than the week and about 2,100 head more than the same week in 1964. Receipts from Western Canada totalled 553 head, 56 head less than last week. Sold off the market in the United States were about 130 cattle. There were no shipments to Eastern Canada.

Great Mark Of Confidence Says Thomson

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson Julhlanti proclaimed today he has just received the greatest vote of public confidence any man can expect.

The public offering of 2,700,000 non-voting shares in his Scottish Television Company was over-subscribed 15 times and applications were still coming in.

"It's incredible," the Canadian-born publisher said in an interview. "This is a great mark of public confidence in our operations, beyond all expectation."

Thomson recalled that when he took over Scotland's commercial television network eight years ago, there was much controversy over his off-the-cuff statement that he considered his new acquisition was in effect a licence to print money.

Scottish television had in fact been a substantial profit earner now the public demand for the shares showed he was right, Thomson added.

Court Refuses Injunction Against Hotel

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario Supreme Court Thursday refused to grant an injunction restraining the Chateau Laurier Hotel in Ottawa from hiring waitresses for the cocktail bar.

The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers Union (CLC) sought the injunction against the hotel on grounds that several experienced waiters would be discharged.

Counsel for the CNR-owned hotel earlier had indicated the waiters were promised other positions in the hotel.

Industrial Acceptance Corp., nine months ended Sept. 30, 1963: $4,684,000. $1.68 a share; 1964: $7,850,000, $1.23.

Premier Bennett's Impact Is One of Election Puzzles

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A political victim is rampaging but not running constitutes one of the question marks in the Nov. 9 federal election campaign in British Columbia.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett is engaging in a round of speech-making in an effort to boost the stock of Social Credit, which won only one of the province's 22 seats in Parliament in 1963.

Aside from Okanagan Boundary where the Social Credit candidate finished second last election, 2,601 votes behind Progressive Conservative winner David V. Pugh, Mr. Bennett's party has a long way to go to add to its total in B.C.

In almost every other case where the Social Credit candidate was defeated, he ran fourth behind the New Democratic Party, Liberal and Progressive Conservative representatives.

And even in the two ridings the party won, the races were close. Bert Leboe took Cariboo over 14-14.50 with sales to 15; medium 13-14; canner and cutters 8-13; good heavy bologna bulls 19-21 with sales to 23-27; common and medium light 14-17

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 23-25; good steers stock calves 26-27; common and medium 16-22.

Calves 2,700: Choice vealers 31-34 with odd slaughs to 36; good 28-30; medium 24-27; commons 18-22; boolers 12-17.

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

"Just one more thing . . . where do I go to complain about you?"

Thompson Car In Wrong Lane

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson's car was at least three feet into the wrong lane of traffic when it collided with another car Oct. 6, a police officer testified Thursday.

Constable Darrell Loescher said debris indicated Thompson's eastbound vehicle was three feet into the westbound lane when it collided with a car driven by Mrs. Dora Sandercock, 52, of Harwood, 20 miles south of here.

The officer said Thompson's left front wheel was about 3½ feet beyond the centre line.

Thompson pleaded not guilty before Magistrate W. H. Philp to a charge of careless driving. He also faces charges of impaired and careless driving and failing to share the road.

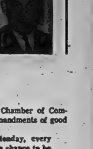
Magistrate Philp adjourned the trial to Nov. 10 at the request of defence counsel J. J. Robinette. Thompson's ball was continued at $100.

The 40-year-old leader of the Ontario Liberal party was charged following an accident on Highway 28 within Peterborough city limits in which he and five occupants of the other vehicle were injured.

Two Shot-gun Blasts Rock Election Room

MONTREAL (CP)—Two shot-gun blasts rocked the committee rooms of an Independent Liberal candidate in Montreal's Papineau constituency at midnight Thursday, but 50 election workers on duty at the rear of the building escaped unscathed.

Shortly before midnight police said, a car drove up to the committee rooms of Leo Mercia on east-end Papineau Street.



The committee rooms at the front of the building were unoccupied, but there were some 50 men and women working on an election list behind a partition.

When the first shotgun blast was fired, workers mistook it for an automobile backfiring. Vincent Valenti, Mr. Mercia's organizer, said he ran to the front of the building after the second blast was fired but the fleeing gunman had already slammed the door behind him.

Speaking of Citizenship

Most Canadian citizens
Live in Canada it is true,
But are they really citizens
If living here is all they do?

With the federal election coming Monday, every citizen of Canada, of voting eligibility, has a chance to be a good citizen. That from 38 per cent to 60 per cent of the eligible voters will shirk their responsibility is a sad fact, beyond the comprehension of good citizens.

The Chamber of Commerce correspondence was titled "What Kind Of A Citizen Am I?"

It then went on to list 10 questions which all of us should ask ourselves to determine whether we, as free Canadians, are practising the rules of good citizenship.

Do not simply read these questions. Ask yourself them and give yourself an honest answer.

"Am I truly appreciative of my good fortune as a citizen of Canada?" If you do not think we are so fortunate, or you have no knowledge of living conditions in other parts of the world, then ask someone who has. Nearly two-thirds of the world will go to bed hungry tonight. Even if you did have left-overs for supper, you are still way ahead of 66 per cent of the world.

"Do I appreciate all the hardships of the early pioneers and their efforts to develop this great nation and to bequeath to us our Canadian heritage of democracy and freedom?" How many have ever even really thought about it? Things were not always so good in Canada. It took effort on the part of those pioneers who started the whole thing. It takes effort on your part to keep it going.

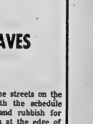
"Do I vote at all elections and inform myself on all candidates and issues?" It is not enough to say everyone should vote. Indeed, they should, but their vote should be an informed one, not one cast on an "easy-street-sucker" basis.

"Do I accept gladly, and with due sense of responsibility to fellow citizens, all public duties which I may be asked to assume?" If you do, you are a rare person and a good citizen.

"Do I perform, at all times, my responsibilities in a courtesy and co-operation which promote better citizenship and help to make our community a better place in which to live?" Imagine what a community we would be if everyone practised courtesy and co-operation. It is not impossible. It is not even difficult if you try.

"Do I take an interest in local, provincial and national affairs to increase my civic knowledge?"

Mayor Jack Ellis, speaking to the BCI Graduation Class last week touched upon the subject of taking part in civic affairs. He stated that if Bruce had only $10,000 invested in a private company's stocks, he would be at all the meetings and demand to know how his money is being spent. A citizen who has lived in Belleville for 29 years has much more than $10,000 invested in the city, yet only a few care enough to ask where their money is being spent.



"Do I avoid all prejudices and respect the rights of others?" No one is entirely free of prejudices, but a person can keep prejudice from injuring others by realizing that other persons have the same rights.

"Do I respect and obey the laws and assist public officials, when necessary, in the discharge of their duties?" Laws are made for everyone's protection. Without laws we could not enjoy the freedoms that we do.

"Do I realize that liberty I enjoy involves all the duties of citizenship as mentioned?" People have died for the liberties we now take for granted. Our way of life is the best one in the world, but it can only be as good as the people who preserve it are.

"If all other citizens do their duty, what conditions would prevail in our community — in the nation; would they be better — or worse?" You are the only one who can answer this question. One of the best ways to answer the question is to vote Monday, and vote intelligently. Surely, if everyone was a conscientious voter, we would all be better off. We get exactly the type of leadership we deserve, and whether it is good or bad is up to each one of us.

Voting is not simply a privilege, though many persons in other lands do not enjoy it, but it is a duty. And there is no pride in being a citizen if you are not prepared to live up to the responsibilities citizenship demands.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD D. CHARD

Chard – Seigner

Gloria Lillian Seigner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Seigner of Vernon, B.C. and Ronald Dwight Chard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Chard of Ottawa, were united in marriage by Rev. W. H. Dunphy in Batawa Sacred Heart Church on Saturday, October 30, 1965 at 3.00 p.m. Sister Edwin played the wedding music.

Due to illness in the bride's family, she was given in marriage by Mr. Jim Genereaux, uncle of the bridegroom. She was attired in a full length sheath gown of eggshell brocade with an overskirt, and long lilly point sleeves. A small crown of aurora borealis held her veil in place and she carried a bouquet of yellow tea roses.

Mrs. Bette Flegel, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore an olive green sheath dress with overskirt, a matching headpiece and carried a spray of yellow 'mums. Miss Sherrie Chard, cousin of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, was dressed in an antique gold sheath gown and overskirt, an antique gold headpiece and carried a spray of bronze 'mums.

The bridegroom, groomsman and usher were the traditional scarlet dress uniform of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Constable David Boyd attended the bridegroom and Constable Douglas Bottoms ushered the guests.

At the reception at Frankford Legion Hall, Mrs. Jim Genereaux, in the absence of the bride's mother, received the guests. She wore a red wool dress, winter white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias. Mrs. Chard was attired in a beige lace over copper taffeta dress, with a corsage of coral carnations.

For her wedding trip in the Bay of Quinte district and the Ottawa Valley, the bride chose a pink wool dress, black accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Chard will live in Ottawa, and later in the year will move to Cornerbrook, Newfoundland.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS W. GREGG

Gregg – Juby

The marriage of Mabel Eleanor Juby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Juby, R. R. 2, Frankford, and Douglas Wayne Gregg, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gregg of Belleville took place in St. Thomas Church, Belleville on Saturday, Oct. 30, 1965, at 2.00 p.m. Rev. A. S. McConnell officiated at the ceremony and Mr. Donald Davenport played the wedding music.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin street length dress covered with lace. Her shoulder length net veil was caught to a pearl headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations.

Mr. John Sherwood attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Mr. Jerry Gregg, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Don Matheson.

At the reception, held at the Quinte Lodge, Church Street, Belleville, the mother of the bride received the guests, wearing a mauve satin dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted, attired in a green lace dress with black accessories and a corsage of peach colored carnations.

On their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg will live at 338½ Front Street, Belleville.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM B. CRAWFORD

Crawford – Heath

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was the setting for a lovely wedding, recently, when Donalda Elaine Heath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald W. Heath, Stirling, was united in marriage to William Barry Crawford, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Crawford of Picton. Rev. W. C. Cox officiated at the double-ring ceremony before a background of yellow and bronze 'mums.

Mrs. Harry Brown of Stirling presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Bruce Glendenning in two appropriate selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie highlighted with Alencon lace. The lace bodice featured a scoop neckline and long lily-point sleeves and the A-line skirt was enhanced with an apron front of matching lace with a band of lace outlining the Empire waistline. A sweeping train edged with scalloped lace flowed from the back of the skirt. The shoulder length fitted scalloped illusion veil fell from a crown of sapphires and pearls. She carried a double-ring bouquet of yellow Sunbeam roses mingled with stephanotis.

Miss Helen Wright of Millbrook as maid of honor wore an autumn gold floor length dress of peau de soie highlighted with a fringed Watteau train. The bridesmaids, Miss Loretta Greer of Port Hope, Miss Janice Taft of Ameliasburg and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Linda Walker, cousin of the bride were identically attired to the maid of honor, but in emerald green. All wore matching Ann Boleyn type headdresses with bouffant veils and each carried a bouquet of white and gold tinted carnations.

Mr. Roger Crawford was the groomsman for his brother, while the ushers were Mr. Ronald Heath, Guelph, cousin of the bride, Mr. Larry Hull, Belleville, and Mr. William Hill, of Peterborough.

A reception for 145 guests was held in the hall at St. Paul's United Church. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a floor length gown of greenish gold brocaded peau de soie with mink stole, matching hat with gold net veil and a corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a floor-length gown of ruby peau de soie with matching hat and veiling, fur stole, and a corsage of white gardenias.

For the honeymoon trip to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania the bride donned a brown and tangerine check wool suit trimmed with fox fur, cocoa and dark brown accessories and a corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will reside in Scarborough.

MR. AND MRS. GERALD A. DALEY

Daley – Menzies

St. Paul's Church in Norwood was the scene on Saturday, October 30, 1965, at 11 a.m. when Rev. Mahoney united in marriage Carole Loretta Menzies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Menzie of Havelock and Gerald Anthony Daley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Daley of Belleville. Mr. Donald Pollock of Havelock was the organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of peau de faille enhanced with a Chantilly lace trimmed rounded neckline and long lily-point sleeves. Her lace appliqued sheath skirt was complemented with a chapel length Watteau train centred at mid-back. Her double bouffant veil was held with a pearl and crystal crown, and she carried a bouquet of red roses and white 'mums.

She wore a floor length sheath gown of Wedgwood blue peau de soie with a rounded neckline, elbow length sleeves and an Empire waistline complemented with Guipure lace.

Her bouquet was identical to the bridesmaids, Miss Carol Spooner of Havelock, Miss Marie Christie and Miss Joan Christie of Indian River, wore a full grown whooper, with a gowns in a style similar to the maid, Miss Linda Walker, cousin of the bride were identically attired to the maid of honor, but in emerald green. All wore matching Ann Boleyn type headdresses with bouffant veils and each carried a bouquet of white and gold tinted carnations.

Mr. Roger Crawford was the groomsman for his brother, while the ushers were Mr. Ronald Heath, Guelph, cousin of the bride, Mr. Larry Hull, Belleville, and Mr. William Hill, of Peterborough.

A reception for 145 guests was held in the hall at St. Paul's United Church. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a floor length gown of greenish gold brocaded peau de soie with mink stole, matching hat with gold net veil and a corsage of yellow roses. Successful Living

Teenager Complains Allowance Too Large

DEAR DORIS: I am 16 and an only child. My parents give me $22 a month. With this I am to buy all my school books, clothes and all other small articles which I need. The money I have left over is for leisure. I always have at least $13 a month left over.

Don't you think that is too much money for someone only 16? I have tried to explain this to my father more than once but we only end up fighting.

Many kids my age would probably give anything for a lot of money. To me money is not important. I've worked Saturdays in a rehabilitation centre for over a year and haven't been paid a cent.

DORIS CLARK

My father wants me to get a job where I am paid. But I love my work and feel I couldn't ever give it up. — MONEY BAGS.

DEAR MONEY BAGS: Well, that's a switch. The time will come soon enough when you'll be supporting yourself entirely and indeed handling the finances for a whole family — your own!

Instead of fighting with that generous dad of yours, add one more subject to your curriculum: that of learning how to handle money. Building up a good bank account towards heavy expenses like a college education or a winter coat is not unheard-of!

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I have been wondering whether or not it would be proper to wear a white floor-length dress at my wedding as I am marrying a divorced man. I did not become acquainted with this gentleman until some time after he became separated from his wife.

Also, would it be proper to announce the engagement? — BONNIE.

DEAR BONNIE: Quite proper. It's the status of the bride which decides whether she shall wear white. Announcing the engagement is fine too.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I am going to try and start dating again because my first marriage was a failure. I have a little girl who needs a home and even a kind man who would be able to see some good in her mother.

Also, the little girl wants a brother or sister so very bad — she is always asking why I don't go get one.

The little girl will visit her own father, but would be more settled away from his ways of life. I have done a great deal of reading on marriage and care of children.

If you have something to say on remarriage or something which would be in line for what I should read, please send it. — FRESH START.

DEAR FRESH START: Get off to a new start by taking up a new hobby — making sure both men and women are welcome to the club! This applies to music, picture taking, bird watching, bridge, art. And many another spare time occupation.

About remarriage? Mainly this: that people who marry a second time are often in a better position to make a go of things, in spite of one failure.

When we are alittle older we are more apt to know the type of person we want to live with; and readier to make the compromises which mean harmony in a home. I'm sending the name of a book on successful marriage. Good hunting!

Senior Citizens Hold Nov. Meeting

The Senior Citizens held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening in the Recreation Centre, with a good attendance.

President, Mrs. M. Clapp conducted the meeting, and welcomed two new members into the club.

Mrs. Trotter won the prize for the best Hallowe'en costume and Mrs. L. Adams won the lucky draw.

Choruses were sung with Mrs. L. Adams presiding at the piano, and Mrs. M. Robinson sang a selection.

The Quinte square dancers entertained with their modern style square dancing.

The evening was brought to a close with refreshments served by Mrs. G. Nicolson and committee.

Church Groups

WESLEYAN METHODIST W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Belleville Wesleyan Methodist Church met in the sanctuary of the church for their November meeting.

The president, Mrs. Lyle Vottery presented the tops of Christmas gifts for ladies in the Ontario Mental Hospital. Plans were made for a social meeting to be held on November 10th and a shower for a recent bride on November 11.

News briefs from the Wesleyan Missionary Magazine were given by Mrs. Nora Elliott, who mentioned that Dr. and Mrs. John Edling have returned to Haiti to work among the TB patients there. Dr. Edling was in Belleville last fall at which time his wife was recuperating from this disease which she had contracted while serving there. The ladies were thanked for their part in raising the largest offering ever received toward a new church in the Hartford, Conn., area.

Mrs. Pamela Rawlings was assisted in the devotional by Mrs. Bertha Gleason who gave an object lesson on the miracle of Feeding of the Five Thousand. Each one participated in breaking of bread. Mrs. Jean Locklin and Mrs. Doris Cummings led in prayer for missionary interests around the world.

Mrs. Gleason sang a solo and Mrs. Rawlings gave an interesting talk on church extension at home and in New Guinea. She said "Many have lost their vision to tell their neighbor, as well as their vision to tell the world. It is easier to criticize, than to pray for your neighbor." She challenged the ladies to ask not what their church could do for them, but what can we do for our church.

Mrs. Joyce LeRoy brought the service to a close with prayer.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

. . . Recently we attended a party at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto. One of the things that interested me was a basket made of julienne strip potatoes and most likely French fried as it was brown and crisp and really good to eat. Could you possibly tell me how these would be made? I cannot find any recipe in my cook books I follow your column faithfully . . . Sibyl F.

ANSWER:

I have never given the recipe for Potato Baskets so your question is a good one. They are sensational to eat but exacting to make.

POTATO BASKETS:

Preheat fat or oil in deep dryer to 390 deg. F. Pare large potatoes and shred them in ¼" shredder into long shreds. Soak them for 30 minutes in ice water. Drain thoroughly and dry between towels. You need 2 tea strainers: one 3" in diameter and one about 2½ to 2¾" in diameter that fits into the first, but leaves space enough between for frying potato shreds. Dip the strainers into the fat to prevent potatoes sticking. Into the larger strainer with 2 layers of raw potato shreds, arranging them roughly criss cross. Snip off ragged edges with scissors. Fit the smaller strainer over the potato shreds and dip into preheated fat and fry 4 minutes. Remove from fat and drain. (If you are patient and a perfectionist, drain hot potato basket, still enclosed in strainers, on unglazed paper for 1 minute while you raise temperature of fat again to 390 deg. Fahr. and fry it 1 minute longer for a crisper result.) Remove basket from strainers, keep hot while you fry enough potato baskets for your meal. Serve as soon as possible.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

by Mary Moore

Baked Stuffed Whitefish; Hard-Cooked Egg Cream Sauce; Eggplant, Tomato and Green Pepper Casserole (see Monday); Cole Slaw; Individual Caramel Custards; Tea.

NOTES:

1) Potato baskets are usually filled with a small amount of creamed food or a small colorful vegetable such as peas. 2) Potato baskets may be made in advance and reheated at serving time in very hot oven, but are not as good as when they are freshly fried.

QUESTION:

. . . An Indian student boards with me who asked for Indian harmen pickle . . . Kay W.

ANSWER:

It is delicious! I made and served it with lamb.

INDIAN LEMON PICKLE:

In a large jar with a good lid, combine 3 lemons sliced ¼" thick, (discarding end slices and seeds), 1 seeded hot banana pepper in ¼" slices, 1 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt, and shake of garlic. Cover and shake for 3 minutes. Store covered jar in refrigerator, shaking well every day for 3 days. It is now ready to use.

Club Activities

COLLEGE HILL WEDDING RING CLUB

The regular meeting of the College Hill Wedding Ring Club was held recently in the church hall with President Merrill Waite in the chair. Main items of business included final arrangements for the Couples' Club rally to be held in the church on October 31, and it is hoped there will be a good representation of Couples' Clubs from the district.

Committee chairman Larry Brown reported that plans to start the sound system in the church are progressing well and it is anticipated work will begin almost immediately. Also the shoe committee has decided on a comedy play to be presented some time in February. All members are looking forward to this presentation.

It was decided to move the December meeting forward one week to December 20 as many members would not be free to attend on the regular meeting night, December 27.

The evening was under the leadership of Lloyd and Mary Byrd's group, with John and Kay Downing, Ron and Fran MacDonald, and Gerry and Sue taking part in the devotions, which was on the theme "Peace and Remembrance." Diane Walls gave a reading on The First Poppy Day.

A film was presented on "Four Families," which showed how families in four different countries, Japan, France, India and Canada, compared in their way of life, especially with relation to their children. It was most interesting and thoroughly enjoyed by the group.

Lunch was served and a social time closed the meeting.

CITY HALL PLANNED

FREDERICTON (CP)—Plans for a new $1,500,000 city hall have been presented to city council in the New Brunswick capital.

Women's Institutes

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

The October meeting of Rednersville W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Hugh Weese. There were 23 members and six visitors present.

The county president, Mrs. Sam Tripp, was entertained at the meeting. Mrs. Tripp brought greetings from the county organization.

Resolutions for the area convention were read and discussed. It was voted that payment be sent to the adopted child in Korea.

Mrs. Ronald Giles conducted the program on the topic of education. Mrs. Edna Welsh, a primary teacher, explained the new way of teaching numbers to grade 1 and 2 pupils. Mrs. Welsh, a teacher of grade 5 pupils at Massassaga school explained the new math. She said it is simpler than the old way, and easier for the pupils to understand. Mrs. Giles presented each teacher with a small gift.

Mrs. Douglas Redner gave current events. She said apples from Harold Bonter's orchard were used for Boy Scout apple day in Metz, France.

Medical Soc. W.A. Plans B.G.H. Project

The regular monthly meeting of the W.A. to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society took place recently in Edmonton Hall.

A brief business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. Rota. Letters of appreciation for donations were received from O.M.H.R.I. at Plainfield, and the Brighton and Trenton District School for Retarded Children.

Mrs. Rota announced that the Auxiliary's spring showing of "Fantasy in Fashions" is to be convened this year by Mrs. K. Douglas with Mrs. J. Tremblay as co-convener. Mrs. E. Arrigadoo offered to head up the decorating table.

The group decided to accept the project of furnishing a hospital room in the new extension of Belleville General Hospital, and displayed their zest for this enterprise by voting to forego the usual exchange of Christmas cards among members, to be replaced by a monetary gift by each member to the building project.

Guests joined the members to view a film on the different aspects of hair coloring shown by Mr. Buddy Freech.

Mrs. D. Horne thanked the speaker, and a social half-hour followed.

SNEAKERS by Jeanne & Mary

I own a wine cellar

(And we live in an apartment!)

No matter what I whip up for an evening meal, I've a wine on hand to make it mean something. Stew will do—if there's chilled Dubarry Sparkling Vin Rosé on the table. And just taste what Manor Claret can do for hamburgers. Manor Sauterne for fish and chips! And my whole cellar hardly cost the price of a box of good handkerchiefs.

74 Sherry An appetizer wine, most popular in Canada. Serve with hors d'oeuvres, and the soup course.

Manor St. Davids Sauterne Chilled, it does wonders for white meat of any kind—fish, fowl or pork—and salads.

Manor St. Davids Claret Canada's most distinctive "wine of the country", ideal with steaks, hamburgers, red meat of any kind.

Dubarry Sparkling Vin Rosé An "anytime" wine that's light and tingling on the tongue. Serve before, during and after any meal at all.

Brad Bradford of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Jack Ellis are introduced to Mrs. Lilah-Lymburner, (right), chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee of the Ontario Department of Economics, by local member of the committee Mrs. Roy Jeffrey at a luncheon held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, Thursday noon.

Women's Advisory Committee Economics and Development Plans Conference at Luncheon

A group of civic minded women representing the various women's organizations in Belleville and district gathered for a special luncheon at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, yesterday at noon.

The purpose of the event was to introduce the group, numbering 30, to Mrs. Lilah Lymburner chairman of the Women's Advisory committee of the Department of Economics and Development of Ontario, and the executive secretary of the committee, Mrs. Margaret Ware. Hostess for the informal get-together was Mrs. Roy Jeffrey who is the Women's Advisory Board member for Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland. Honored guests were His Worship Mayor J. R. Ellis and Mr. Brad Bradley, Chamber of Commerce secretary manager.

Mrs. Lymburner, who was appointed chairman of the committee by the Hon. Stanley J. Randall, minister of the Ontario Department of Economics and Development last February, gave an informal but enlightening talk concerning the work of the Advisory Board. She dealt primarily with the Ontario Crusade which she described as a two-way effort, "and further stated that missions totalling 18 had been set up to go to countries abroad in an effort to open new markets for Canadian manufactured goods. She felt that Canadians must be made aware of the necessity for their support of manufacturers here, where the products are made, thus creating more new jobs for Canadians through daily purchasing.

Continuing the speaker stated that each year 75,000 new jobs must be created to take care of those coming into the industrial and professional field. The Women's Advisory Committee is given the responsibility of acquainting women as to the role they can play in developing the economy through their support and buying things Canadian. An appeal is being made to every woman to "look for the label" and to "Shop Canadian."

The committee chairman dealt with the second purpose of the meeting which was in preparation for a conference to be held in Belleville on February 22, 1966. Conferences for women are being held across Ontario for the specific purpose of acquainting them with their importance in the economy of their country. The conference is an information program and it is hoped that this program will move women to become better acquainted with things Canadian in their every day shopping.

Mrs. Lymburner stated that several noted speakers had been approached to speak at this one - day conference with lunch to be served at noon and told the group that the president of every women's organization would be requested at a later date for a complete list of members who in turn would be sent individual invitations to attend.

In conclusion Mrs. Lymburner urged that all secretaries return the invitations with a yes or no reply in order that definite arrangements could be made for the conference in regards to the number who planned to attend.

A question and answer period followed Mrs. Lymburner's remarks.

Survival Rate in Cancer Increasing Over the Years

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Henrietta Banting said Thursday eight a bureau of statistics report on cancer deaths is misleading.

The DBS released figures which showed cancer accounted for 17 per cent of all deaths in Canada in 1963, compared with 14 per cent in 1950

"This is relative," Dr. Banting said, adding that it is inevitable that as medical sciences curtailed deaths from other causes, deaths from cancer would show a percentage increase.

In fact, the survival rate in cancer is increasing over the years," she said.

The widow of Dr. Frederick Banting, discoverer of insulin, was interviewed while in London to attend the women's service committee of the Ontario division of the Canadian Cancer Society. She also is director of the cancer detection clinic at Women's College Hospital in Toronto.

She attributed the survival rate in cancer to "refinements in treatment techniques and the increasing public awareness of the importance of the early detection of cancer."

Dr. Banting said more than 5,000 women a year are examined at the Toronto clinic, but the clinic offers no more than a general practitioner can do in his office

"A larger percentage of cancer in women can be treated effectively when cancer is detected early," she said.

"It's an old message, and I get sick and tired of repeating it, but it's always new to somebody and that's what keeps us going."

Exotic Foods On Display At Fair

OTTAWA (CP)—Exotic foods and unusual handicrafts were on display here Thursday as the YM-YWCA held its annual international food fair.

Ten embassies prepared ethnic dishes for sale, and the wives of ambassadors and high commissioners were hostesses in the booths of their countries.

Mme. Vanier, wife of the Governor - General, officially opened what is becoming a popular Ottawa affair.

Among the handicrafts to be seen were clay pottery, from Trinidad and Tobago, delicate canisters from Indonesia, ivory carvings from Ghana, and shimmering embroidered silks from India.

Canada's contributions were a seal-oil lamp and an etched walrus tusk from Cape Dorset.

Unusual foods on sale included pisang goreng (fried bananas) from Indonesia, gazadas (cocoanut tarts) from Jamaica, and spice cookies from India.

Proceeds will go towards the work of the YWCA world service committee.

FAMILY EVICTED

BRANTFORD (CP) — A mother and her eight children, ranging in age from two to 11 years, were evicted Thursday from their Brantford home because it was unfit for human habitation. Seven of the children of Mrs. Vivian Kusch have been made wards of the county Children's Aid Society until accommodations can be found for the family. Mrs. Kusch, a divorcee, and her 13-year-old son have moved in with friends here.

(It's all new for '66)

This is the 1966 Falcon. A different kind of Falcon.
It's new outside. With a low, lean, long-hooded Mustang look.
It's new inside. With more room in every direction (not to mention a new 'big dial' instrument cluster, suspended accelerator pedal, reversible key, keyless locking, foot operated parking brake, and a 50% larger glove box).
There's a new handling "feel". Better roadholding with a longer wheelbase and a much wider track.
There's a new quietness. Falcon's new front torque boxes in the frame, absorb road noise better.
But one thing isn't new.
Falcon still gives you great economy with its standard Six. (For more power choose the optional 200 Six or the top-performing 289 V-8). And Falcon offers the most efficient of all automatics—the 3-speed Cruise-O-Matic.
As you can see, Falcon has a lively new look.

Separate Rooms Might Be Answer to Snoring

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you think of a husband who wakes his wife up at 2:00 a.m. to tell her to stop snoring? Clem started this a few months ago when he retired from his job. I am not retired, however, Clem can sleep late in the morning but I can't.

Last night when Clem woke me up I got real mad. I asked him what in the world he thought he was accomplishing. He said, "Nothing is more annoying than being kept awake by a snorer. The snorer should stay up and keep his victim company."

Isn't this the meanest thing you ever heard of? I do not snore on purpose. If I could stop it I would. What can I do? — POOPED.

DEAR POOPED: First see a doctor and learn if he can do anything about your snoring. Sometimes minor surgery will eliminate the problem. If the doctor says it is more complicated in your case, buy a cot and sleep in another part of the house.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a member of America's most persecuted minority, an ex-convict.

Now that I have served my time, I can't get a job. First I was truthful and owned up to my record. The answer was, "We appreciate your honesty, but we can't hire you. It's against company policy."

After several such experiences I wrote "No" under the question, "Have you ever been convicted of a felony?" Twice the truth came out and I was fired.

How can a person survive if he is unable to earn a living? I am 39 years old, in perfect health and willing to do any kind of legitimate work. I am a bachelor and can work 14 hours a day, six days a week. I will move anywhere.

I keep reading that at least two-thirds of those with records return to jail within 90 days, I'm sure many of them would have preferred to go straight but society would not let them. When a man finds all doors closed he loses his courage and dignity. Please, Ann Landers, I am begging you — help me to be a useful citizen. — WILLING BUT UNEMPLOYABLE.

* * *

DEAR WILLING: I am printing your letter and addressing my remarks to employers all over the U.S.A.

Where would you be today if nobody gave you a second chance? Put yourself in this man's shoes. I am asking you to give a break to men who have records. Some will fail you, but the majority who come through will have been saved for all time. And such a man can well turn out to be the best employee you could have. In my book it's worth the chance.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am going with a gentleman who is separated but not divorced. Kenny and I are together Monday through Thursday. On Friday he moves right in with his estranged wife and children — suitcase and all.

Yesterday I told him to go back to his family full-time or stop sleeping over there. He answered, "I can always get another girl friend but I can never replace my wonderful children."

Why doesn't this dumb jerk realize that one day his "wonderful children" will get married and have lives of their own that don't include him? By that time he will have passed up a chance to make a new life for himself. Should I make Kenny choose between me and his family? — SWEET ADELINE.

* * *

DEAR ADELINE: Wake up and smell the coffee, Lady. He has chosen. Then. I'll bet an Old Dewey button if you told Kenny to take off he'd go back to his family on a full time basis. If it's marriage you want, forget him. You are a sometime thing.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Problems of Old Age Scrutinized by Panel

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Problems of old age came under the scrutiny of a doctor, a psychiatrist and a social worker Thursday, and each agreed they were a challenge to his respective field.

Speaking during the second day of an Ontario-wide workshop on nursing and the care of the aged were Dr. C. Keith Stuart of Toronto, senior medical specialist with the Ontario department of public welfare, Dr. E. J. L. Deinum, psychiatrist with the Ontario hospital here, and Walter Lyons, an administrator at the Jewish Home for the Aged in Toronto.

"Today the physician sees the 90-year-old people alive, well and active, who, 35 years ago, were not expected to live to that age," Dr. Stuart told delegates.

There is an increasing number of disabled elderly for which the community must provide, he said. They are owed this debt of "common gratitude," since they were partly responsible for the affluent society of today.

Increased medical knowledge is the major reason more people are alive today, Dr. Stuart said, but this longevity has meant an increasing challenge to all branches of medicine.

It is up to nurses to understand the situation and support development in all fields, he said. As the duration of a person's illness increases, so does the role of the nurse in care planning.

Dr. Deinum said the emphasis today, in western culture, is on youth. Older people feel left out since society gives the impression that "once you're over 40, you've had it." Many have difficulty looking for jobs because employers prefer to hire younger people.

She said housewives fare better, but many complain that their retired husbands follow them around like "forlorn puppies."

Old age homes provide every service, she said, except filial devotion. "As a consequence we have to treat many maladjusted old people."

Mr. Lyons stressed older people's ability to cope with their mental and physical losses brought about by the years. Each reacts differently he said, and the nurse must identify these defensive patterns.

"Try to involve them in meaningful activities, but don't mistake the aged person's first 'no' as the final answer."

The three - day workshop, sponsored by the Middlesex County Registered Nurses Association, ends today.

Cost of Pill, Doctrines Are Among Issues

TORONTO (CP)—The contraceptive pill is surrounded with controversy in Colombia, Maria Samper de Samper of Bogota said Thursday.

Mrs. de Samper, a doctor's wife and president of the Colombian Girl Guide Association, said in an interview that the cost of the pill and religious doctrine are among the issues.

She said Colombians fear that family planning would be available only to women who have financial means.

"Colombia is also 96 per cent a Roman Catholic country and the people are concerned about what the church thinks of this," she said.

"At present the woman who has from 12 to 18 children doesn't have the time or the means to find out about the pill.

"But there has been talk in the country . . . and the matter is under study by the government."

Mrs. de Samper is in Toronto for a meeting of girl guide leaders.

U.C.W. Meetings

ST. ANNE'S U.C.W.

The November meeting of St. Anne's Council of the Catholic Women's League, Point Anne, was held in St. Anne's School with the president, Mrs. J. Buckley in the chair and 11 members present.

The spiritual director, Monsignor J. A. Carley was present and addressed the meeting. It was decided to hold a euchre party in November at the Club House.

After adjournment of the meeting progressive euchre was played. The winners were Gertrude Simmons, Mrs. C. Lloyd, Mrs. J. Buckley and Mrs. A. Genereaux, door prize winner.

Lunch was served by the hostesses for November, Mrs. C. Lloyd, Mrs. A. Genereaux and Anne Huck.

RESEARCH GOOD LIFE

SASKATOON (CP)—A better social and economic life for the inhabitants of northern Canada is the object of the Institute of Northern Studies at the University of Saskatchewan here. Set up five years ago, the institute hopes to attract and train specialists to deal with the peculiar problems of the north.

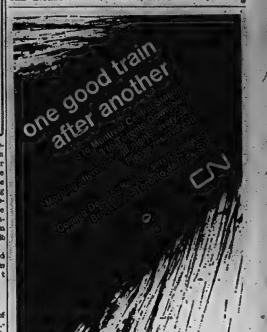
Susanna's Family Fare

THAT REMIND ME —

Dear Suzanna: Fee the pill taking women of today — and I'm sure there are many of us, I have devised a sure-fire reminder of that mighty potion.

Each morning when I'm making my bed I snap a huge safety pin onto the centre of my pillow before puffing up the spread. Ever try sleeping on a big safety pin? One certainly remembers its purpose — and I won't allow myself to remove it until I've actually downed my medicine.

If I know you Suzanna, you're going to ask me about, who's to remind us to fasten the safety pin, that's supposed to remind us, etc.; but I do it automatically when I tidy my bedroom because the pin is always right there on my night table. — Contract Reader



HA! You've been reading my mind as well as the column. Most of us use zany devices to remind ourselves of things, and of the old standby of switching a ring or watch to another finger or the other arm in the middle of night is still most reliable. With a little concentration in the morning we can usually conjure up the vision of whatever it was we were trying to remember.

If several things come to you all at once in the wee early hours, the idea about making a ridiculous picture in the mind still works amazingly well, i.e. If your problem concerns having the outside bracket light replaced, picking up the dog from the vet and stocking flowers for mother's day, you might picture Fido balancing on one toe on the varnish lamp wearing a big smile and clutching a rose between his teeth! The crazier the image the easier it is to remember in every detail. All I can say to disbelievers is: Try it and see!! — SUSANNA.

Abitibi woodgrain panels are torture-proof

Fact is, none of these lovable household demons has a chance against an Abitibi Woodgrain panel. Thanks to Abitibi research,a super-tough surface coating protects the finish for a lifetime. No worry about scratches, fingerprints, crayon marks and the like. Common household stains clean with just a wipe of detergent. And there's never a need for waxing or finishing of any kind.

Installation is easy. Each 4' x 8' or 4' x 7' panel is V-grooved for authentic plank effect and concealed nailing. The cost? Much lower than you would expect (an 8' x 12' feature wall can be panelled for as little as $18.00!).

Ask your lumber or building supply dealer to show you the whole range of the Prestige and Classic lines.

Woman Who Kept Promise

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

The Bible is full of great songs. There is the song of the well (Numbers 21:17-20), believed by some to be the oldest song in the Bible. There is the song of Moses sung by his sister, Miriam, to celebrate the destruction of Pharaoh's army (Exodus 15:1-21), and the song of Deborah to celebrate Barak's victory over Sisera and the army of Canaan. (Judges 5)

But the greatest songs of the Bible are the song of Hannah (I Samuel 2:1-10) and the song of Mary (Luke 1:46-55). These are not songs to celebrate a military victory, but are songs of gratitude to God for the birth of a child. In many ways the songs are similar as they express the dreams in the heart of each mother concerning the good she hopes her child will accomplish in the world.

Like millions of people in the world, Hannah lived with a great disappointment. In a day when a barren wife was often looked on with pity, and even scorn, Hannah was childless. To make matters worse, Elkanah's other wife, Peninnah, bore him several children, and never lost an opportunity to taunt Hannah about her barren condition. Not even the tender words of a considerate husband (I Samuel 1:8) could offset Hannah's disappointment.

Hannah carried her problem to the temple, and there prayed in such anguish, Eli, the priest, thought she must be intoxicated. How little he realized the burden she carried in her heart. He did, however, speak words of assurance that sent Hannah home a happier and more relaxed person. Her trust in God was rewarded by the birth of a son, Samuel, who was to become the leader of Israel.

UNIVERSAL MALADY

To begin with, Hannah was a person who lived with a great heartache. Her heartache was not only the result of personal disappointment, but was intensified by a social situation that penalized wives without children. In Hannah's day, motherhood was considered the primary role for women. There were not the opportunities there are today for a woman to find fulfillment and acceptance in other ways.

Who can guess the amount of heartache millions carry in the world? There are those who are disappointed in love, those who are denied children, those who, although not denied children, are disappointed in their children. Millions carry the heartache of frustration. Our cities today are full of people who carry the burden of loneliness. Someone has said that ours is an age that exalts man in the plural, but neglects him in the singular. We touch elbows with thousands, but hearts with few. Hannah was not alone in carrying a burden of disappointment and frustration.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for November 7: "Hannah", I Samuel 1:1 through 2:26.

Hannah turned to religion for solace and help. In this she was wiser than many today. Many seek to carry their burdens alone. They do not seek the help of the church and prayer. They do not have the solace that comes from religious faith. Carrying burdens too heavy to be borne alone can warp personality, so that many turn to psychiatry for help. The psychiatrist's couch is no substitute for the holy altar. Men need the assurance of a God who hears and understands.

Prayer, as someone has defined it, is not trying to overcome God's reluctance; it is laying hold of His highest willingness. God does not always answer our specific requests. In His wisdom, He knows the "best possible" answer to our prayers. In one case, the best possible answer to a request for release from suffering may be to grant it. In another case, it may be to ask the one who prays to bear a cross. In either case, God can work out His plans in the heart that trusts.

PROMISE KEPT

Hannah not only put her problem in God's hands, she kept her promise to Him. As desperately as she wanted a child, she promised to offer the child for temple service if her request were granted. When Samuel was born, she kept her promise to God, and as soon as the child was weaned, took him to be trained in the ways of the temple.

So many think of religion as expecting something from God rather than giving something to God. They fail to realize that the greatest spiritual maturity comes through self-surrender. They want God's help, but do not offer their discipleship in return. As William Carey once said, religion is expecting great things from God, and daring great things for God.

Castro Essentially Outdoor Premier

By MICHAEL ARKUS

HAVANA (Reuters) — The jeep slowly climbs the mountain track and comes to a halt. Armed bodyguards jump out and a bearded, strongly-built man, dressed in olive-green fatigues, strides into the oozing mud, a pistol strapped to his side.

Farm workers run forward and a quick-firing interchange of question and comment ensues.

One more day in the life of Cuba's prime minister, Fidel Castro, has begun.

Castro is essentially an outdoor premier, whose methods of action are regarded by many observers here as unique.

Undeterred by any permanent office in Havana or any fixed schedule of duties, Castro is liable to appear unheralded at any hour of the day or night in any part of the country.

Travelling by plane, helicopter, car, jeep or launch, sleeping in a mountain hospital, a peasant's cottage or a simple hammock slung between two palm - trees, he is continually touring the latand, giving orders, criticizing, praising, and elaborating development plans.

And what Castro says goes.

There is no limit to the subjects he can consider or decisions he can make. He will even bother about the name of a new sugar mill, deciding it should be of native Indian origin.

On a recent visit to a cattle artificial insemination plant, Castro sat down on a pile of planks and delivered instructions on how cross - breeding should be carried out in future.

On other occasions, he has decided that pine trees should be planted instead of eucalyptus, that certain fruits should be cultivated to help the ice-cream industry, and that certain beaches should be developed for the tourist trade.

Talking recently to a group of young girls from a village in eastern Cuba, as he lay smoking a cigar in his hammock, he questioned one of them about her broken romance and why her fiance had left her.

On his trips across the countryside, Castro is accompanied by a retinue of national and regional party leaders, army commanders and heads of various state organizations, as well as by security guards. Government ministers and vice-ministers often join him.

For relaxation, he will go on underwater fishing expeditions or play baseball, chess or dominoes.

NOW! A WHOLE NEW SERIES OF ULTRA-LUXURIOUS CHEVROLETS
'66 CAPRICE
BY CHEVROLET

Caprice Custom Coupe—with exclusive formal roof line that comes on no other Chevrolet.

Caprice Custom Sedan—with superb new Body by Fisher elegance inside and out.

Caprice Custom Wagon—with fine new look of hardwood paneling on sides and tailgate.

A new choice of superbly crafted Chevrolets above and beyond anything else in the line. If this is your year to move up, you just can't move up to much more car than this.
Everything it takes to create a distinguished luxury car has gone into these new Caprices.
They're custom cars in every sense. Beneath the formal roof line that sets the Custom Coupe apart, for instance, you'll find the richness of thick-wall-to-wall carpeting, comfort-contoured seats and the look of hand-rubbed walnut on the instrument panel, glove compartment and inside door panels. In the Custom Coupe, a finely instrumented console, together with new Strato-bucket front seats are also standard. In the Custom Sedan, a new Strato-bench front seat is available with bucket-type contours separated by a fold-down armrest. And in the equally opulent Custom Wagon even carpeting for the cargo area is standard.
Each model, with its own specially tailored suspension refinements, rides super-smooth. And for incomparably smooth power, you can specify Chevrolet's advanced Turbo-Jet V8 in either a 396- or 427-cubic-inch version. Some 200 custom features are also available, including front-seat headrests, AM-FM radio, a Comfortlift steering wheel and Four-Season air conditioning.
The price of it all? Somewhat more, naturally, than you're used to paying for a Chevrolet. But less — surprisingly less, as your dealer will happily confirm — than the select class of fine cars these new Caprices invite comparison with in every detail.

Socred Candidate Appears Man to Beat in Sherbrooke

By CY FOX

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Everything seems upside down about the federal election campaign in this industrial heart of Quebec's Eastern Townships.

Sherbrooke, population nearly 70,000, saw a young Social Credit, Gerard Chapdelaine, sneak home the winner in the last election—a majority cut of 605 votes over the Liberal, from the 7,882 margin he enjoyed in winning the seat the year before.

This time Mr. Chapdelaine, 30, is campaigning for re-election as an independent, and still is looked on by the five other candidates as the man they have to beat.

Mr. Chapdelaine, a lawyer, is making much of another feature of the 1965 race in Sherbrooke—oddly-timed praise for him attributed to, of all people, the Quebec leader of the Liberal party, which itself has fielded a candidate in the constituency 80 miles east of Montreal.

Adding to the campaign confusion is a third major political factor—the lack of local French-language newspaper coverage in Sherbrooke, whose population of about 80 per cent French-speaking.

AFFECTIVE TV, RADIO

The newspaper La Tribune has been strike-bound through most of the 1963 campaign. The city's only radio and TV stations are owned by the management of La Tribune, leaving the same building as the newspaper, the radio and television studios are thus behind picket lines which candidates have declined to cross.

Considered Mr. Chapdelaine's chief rivals are Roger Gingras, a shoe store owner, who won the Liberal nomination at a convention featuring an apparent continuation of long-time party dissension, and Maurice Allard, an Independent Progressive Conservative.

Mr. Allard won the Sherbrooke seat in the 1958 Conservative sweep. Nowadays he is flaunting, as an election-time boon, his opposition to Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker. The official Conservative candidate is Etienne Pellerin.

Meantime, Creditiste candidate Philippe Lord is said to be hampered by dissensions among what was the enthusiastic hard-core of the first Social Credit victory in 1962. The Creditistes have superseded the national Social Credit party in Quebec.

SEE NDP DISSENSION

The New Democrats have fielded Louis - Philippe Brunesseau, 31, say political observers, he was not universally popular among his NDP colleagues as the party's choice for the candidacy. Mr. Brousseau ran as an independent in 1963.

The pro - Chapdelaine statement attributed to Quebec Liberal chief Guy Favreau is said to have been made in public at the Liberal meeting which nominated Mr. Gingras.

"Mr. Chapdelaine is a just man of integrity," Mr. Favreau was quoted as saying. "He is a friend whom I hold in high esteem."

Newspaper accounts of the meeting said the Liberal leader suggested Mr. Chapdelaine should have become a Liberal and not an independent after leaving the national Social Credit party earlier this year.

Mr. Chapdelaine himself has said that although he would go to Ottawa as an independent if elected, he might have a change of heart once back in his Commons seat.

Internal splits among the local Liberals continue to show themselves, dating back more than a decade to a change in power and to a change in control of the Sherbrooke group's machinery.

Mr. Chapdelaine won with 12,726 votes two years ago to 12,103 for the Liberals. The third-place Conservatives polled 3,390, the then-independent Mr. Brousseau 2,469 and the NDP 1,952.

defiant declaration of independence this weekend.

The state of emergency measure was announced only a few hours before the end of a cabinet meeting which discussed the independence issue for 2½ days.

After the cabinet meeting—one of two scheduled for today—Smith said "no comment" when asked if the proposed royal commission would come into being or if there would be a unilateral declaration.

When pressed to say whether the cabinet had come to any decision, he said: "I will tell you when we have made up our minds."

The immediate reaction of most political observers was that the declaration of a state of emergency was a prelude to UDI.

Britain has refused to grant independence unless there is a firm guarantee of ultimate majority rule by the 4,000,000 Negroes who are now governed by 220,000 whites.

After months of fruitless negotiations, British Prime Minister Wilson visited Salisbury last week and proposed that a royal commission be set up to help settle the problem.

Britain wants the commission to test Rhodesian public opinion on whether the colony's population nearly wants independence on the basis of the 1961 constitution ver, then flies to Regina for an evening rally.

Mr. Douglas said in Toronto there have been reports that banks are "shutting off" credit in anticipation of tight money and other anti-inflation measures by the government. Such steps would halt the boom.

He called on Mr. Pearson to confirm or deny that the Liberals plan to hike interest rates on Bank of Canada credit and government - backed mortgages.

The prime minister, visiting St. Thomas and Chatham Thursday, said the money supply is increasing faster in Canada than in the U.S. "This doesn't look like tight money."

He said the recent automobile free-trade agreement with the U.S. is one of "the biggest things" his government has done.

Opposition parties had sneered and jeered at the pact but it was resulting in 20,000 new jobs in Canada, an 18-per-cent increase in auto production and expansion plans by 170 companies, he said.

U.S. Is Resigned

among some observers here, including foreign diplomats, that relations between Prague and the United States are not really too critical.

In the first place, Prague has inside knowledge of the desire to talk with the United States about a number of differences, including the nuclear future, of any, of West Germany.

HE WILL BARGAIN

These talks probably will start next year and neither country, it is believed, is anxious to take drastic steps until the differences have been hicked around.

De Gaulle is regarded as a pragmatist who may threaten, but who also bargains.

Another angle is that while France is a bold opponent to U.S. desires for more European and NATO integration, this opposition is simply one strand in a complicated ball of yarn.

West Germany and the Soviet Union have far greater priority in U.S. state department thinking, it is argued by some knowledgeable observers.

"De Gaulle and France might not like it, but the intentions of West Germany and Russia are more important in the long run," one, while de Gaulle has played his cards well, he isn't all that important," one foreign diplomat said.

No real break in the NATO situation is expected until after President Johnson confers later this year with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of Germany.

Thanks to de Gaulle's pronouncements, the Western Alliance has a pretty good line on French thinking. It is less clear just what West Germany wants, and the recent West German election has not particularly clarified the picture.

Any move to heal NATO and satisfy West Germany also has to be reconciled with the Soviet Union, where the U.S. is feeling the chill as a result of its Vietnamese intervention.

RETAIN SEAT

LONDON (AP)—The Conservative party Thursday retained the riches of Commons seat for the cities of London and Westminster in a by-election caused by the recent death of House Speaker Sir Harry Hylton-Foster. Conservative John Smith got 13,037 votes, Labor candidate A. J. S. Pringle 8,300, Liberal Stephen Jakobi 1,265 and Independent Desmond Burgess 226.

Bank Official Criticized By Judge in Will Case

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Leo Landreville criticized a bank official Thursday for interfering in the affairs of a "shocking" client who "was becoming a speechtrist in his old age."

The remark came during testimony by banker John J. Dunn at the Ontario Supreme Court hearing of a $150,000 suit lodged by Ethel Margaret English and her husband Myles, a retired soldier, of Nanaimo, B.C.

They are suing the executors of the estate of the late Lester Ernest Weaver, a Hespeler, Ont., knitting mill manager who was retired when he died in 1960 at the age of 87. Mrs. English, his housekeeper from 1951 to 1960, was left a $7,500 bequest in his will.

The plaintiffs claim $100,000 in damages and the return of about $50,000 in securities from the executors: Judge Everett Lane Weaver, his brother Wilfrem Erskine Weaver, an investment dealer, and the Royal Trust Co. The Weavers are sons of the late Mr. Weaver.

Mr. Dunn, saving department manager at Bank of Montreal branch here, testified he had noted large withdrawals from the late Mr. Weaver's account in 1954. "It just didn't look right," he said, so he drew the matter to the attention of Judge Weaver.

"What struck you as being unusual was that Mr. Weaver was becoming a speechtrift in his old age? Why didn't you let him about it?" the judge asked.

"If I had spoken to Mr. Weaver, I knew he would have taken it as an insult," Mr. Dunn replied.

"He wouldn't be insulted," the judge replied. "He'd have said 'mind you're my banker here.' And he would have been right to do so."

Mr. Dunn said Mr. Weaver left a $494,000 estate. Except for the bequest to Mrs. English, the estate was divided between the two sons.

In earlier testimony, Mrs. English said the late Mr. Weaver gave her gifts of cash, cheques and securities to supplement her income and to provide for her retirement. She said that in February, 1959, she received the securities, then worth about $40,000 and a $5,000 cheque, to Edward Pringle of Royal Trust, the firm that managed Mr. Weaver's assets.

In a summation of the case, R. J. Rolls, counsel for Mrs. English, charged Mr. Pringle and the trust company with "shocking" breach of trust to their client. He said Mr. Pringle frightened Mrs. English "out of her wits . . . by threats of income tax" in getting her to return the securities to the trust company.

Mr. Pringle, the lawyer said, told Mrs. English that the securities Mr. Weaver had given her created serious income tax problems for her late employer. He asked her to return the securities to solve her conscience, Mr. Rolls said. "Force, duress and coercion was exercised on a very old lady," the lawyer said.

J. C. McTague, lawyer for the defendants, said the presumption has not been disclosed that Mrs. English obtained the gifts by exercising undue influence.

areas usually barred to women and non-members.

When she descended, one of her hosts said to the crowd: "Let's give a big toast for the little lady." The crowd did.

Lord Snowdon, 3½ months older than his 32-year-old wife, whirled a few steps behind the princess, throughout their tour.

As a souvenir the club gave the princess a silver model of a black cat named Tombstone. The cat, symbol of the club, was the work of sculptor Begum Jamin Barbeau, a member.

The princess didn't even seem to mind when actress Carol Channing, star of the musical Hello, Dolly! had to leave a reception early to make the evening curtain.

Carol, who arrived before the princess, was a little more worried about royal manners. Miss Channing, a San Franciscan, asked reporters: "Am I supposed to curtsy?" She didn't.

After meeting Mayor John F. Shelley at city hall and attending a brunch, luncheon, the princess and her husband dine tonight at the Hollywood home of Whitney Warren, who made a fortune in California ranching.

TO REPORT ON POLLUTION

The Canadian Pulp and Paper Association has established a technical task force to report on water pollution by pulp and paper mills in Quebec, Lucien Rolland, chairman of the CPPA policy committee on stream improvement, announced Thursday in Montreal. He said the task force, consisting of several senior officials of pulp and paper companies, will begin work immediately and visit every mill in Quebec during the next few months.

TO BUILD GAS STORAGE

An underground natural gas storage facility with a possible capacity of 100,000,000,000 cubic feet was proposed Thursday for the Loudon oil field near Vandalia, Ill. Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America asked the Federal Power Commission for authority to develop the underground reservoir some 225 miles southwest of Chicago, using the lower of two gas producing formations, now near depletion.

Police gave chase and soon overtook the get-away car. Police first had knocked out its rear window and flattened two tires but the fleeing men separated. One man, blasting profusely, was found on a nearby farm an hour after the robbery.

A third man was halted in a second car by police 45 minutes later and arrested. Police said this man was also wounded at first. The second car contained two shopping bags stuffed with money, police said.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Historically, lawyers and real estate brokers have been in an almost constant state of undeclared war as to which party can better serve the public. Truthfully, they are not in conflict but really a like in the same army with a different responsibility of command. The following explains the role of each.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A close friend is going into business and I'm giving him a $15,000 mortgage on his house. My wife wants me to go to her brother who is a lawyer and let him handle the transaction. I want to go to a real estate broker who has taken care of all my dealings for over 20 years. Where would you go? — "Don't Know"

ANSWER: For years many people have been telling me to go to that very warm place below. As regards your problem, you should go both. The following will clearly bring home the reason.

Laymen, even many professionals, do not understand the exact role of the lawyer and broker in real estate. Let us assume you went to the lawyer only. He can prepare a legally binding document but he would be less than knowledgeable about certain vital facts that must be considered and written into the mortgage . . . such as the proper rate of interest, the applicable prepayment penalty, correct insurance coverage, a proper grace period before default occurs, the safety of the mortgage amount in relation to value and about 20 other considerations that have occurred to me. All of these come not from the knowledge of the law but from real estate practice.

If you went to the broker only he probably knows the considerations and facts to be written into the mortgage but he does not have the legal training to make it a binding document. The best arrangement is to have the broker supply the information and the lawyer incorporate it into a legal, binding, instrument.

In that way the lawyer does not prepare a mortgage based on information obtained from a book of forms, as is often done, and the broker does not give you an instrument of questionable legal validity. Professionals use the services of both and benefit accordingly. Laymen, either through ignorance or in an endeavor to save money, usually use only one and accordingly invite trouble.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a dozen tall, valuable trees on my property. They add many thousands of dollars to the value of the property which looks like a small, well-kept park.

My problem relates to lightning. Two of the trees have already been split by bolts. Is there anything I can do to protect the trees or must I continue to watch and pray during every storm. — "Lover of Trees"

ANSWER: Lightning strikes trees almost more often than any other object. This is especially true for healthy trees full of sap.

Valuable trees can be protected by installing a rod to project about five feet higher than the tallest branches and then grounding the rod by copper or aluminum cable (heavy wire) connected to a pipe driven deeply into the ground.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: To settle an argument, could you please tell me the lowest and highest cost building areas in the U.S.? — "Builder"

ANSWER: The lowest cost building area I can find is Greenville, South Carolina, followed closely by Montgomery, Alabama. The highest is New York City with Las Vegas almost neck and neck for this dubious honor.

* * *

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have a half finished game room, the contractor has all the money and I don't know how it all happened.

A neighborhood builder agreed to convert my garage into a game room for $2,100. We both went to the bank and arranged for the loan. He started work and then disappeared. Phone calls to his house go unanswered. After three months I decided to finish the work with another contractor. I went to the bank but they told me that they had already paid out all of the money. What happened? What do I do now? —"Lady With A Half Finished Game Room"

ANSWER: You asked what happened? In simple terms, you were fooled. When you signed the papers for the job you did not look very closely. One of the papers you signed was a Certificate of Completion. This is how the contractor was able to get all the money from the bank.

You can sue the contractor for cost of completion. This will cost money and if you get a judgment I doubt if it is worth anything. The best hope you have for getting the job completed is to discuss the problem with an officer of the bank. The bank can put great pressure on the contractor. If they refuse to take any more of his loans and cut off his credit he is out of business. This method costs nothing and it has been my experience that it works.

Recreation Centre in Oshawa Lost

OSHAWA (CP)—Fire caused an estimated $50,000 damage Thursday to the community recreation centre, a 25-year-old wooden building that was used as an air force training centre during the Second World War. The north wing, where the mid-morning fire is believed to have started in an electrical hobby shop, and part of the front of the H-shaped building were damaged. There were no injuries.

Loss of the building left the Oshawa recreation council without a place to conduct its numerous activities.

Oshawa proposes to build a new recreational centre as a centennial project. But the project hasn't yet been approved.

Postal Worker Said Involved In Spy Case

SOREL, Que. (CP) — Justice Minister Cardin said Thursday night he was surprised that a Vancouver postal work.r accused involvement in a spy case.

Mr. Cardin said he "found the whole thing pretty strange." The postal worker, Victor C Spencer, 37, identified himself to a Vancouver Province reporter as the person whose case the justice department is investigating.

Mr. Cardin said: "He has confirmed that he is the man."

In a telephone interview, Mr. Cardin added that he understands the man told the newspaper that, if he were able to do so, he "would tell everything and that heads would swim."

The justice minister said he will deal further with the case on his return to Ottawa after the election Monday. There was nothing more to add to his statement Tuesday from Ottawa to which he said the man "poses no threat to the security of the nation."

Prime Minister Pearson said May 11 in the House of Commons that the government was thinking of laying charges against one of two Canadians involved in a matter that led to the expulsion of two Russian diplomats.

Three Ridings in Ten Straight Elections Vote With Winners

OTTAWA (CP)—In Monday's federal election, three of Canada's 263 electoral constituencies put to the test a 35-year reputation for complete sensitivity to national voting trends.

Kings (P.E.I.), Halifax (N.S.) and Renfrew South (Ont.) in 10 consecutive elections have returned a member of the party that won the country.

Any of the three that goes with the trend again will tie the record set by Richmond-Wolfe (Que.) for unbroken support of the national winner. It returned its MP to the government benches in 11 consecutive elections from 1867 to 1926, inclusive. Since then it's been off the beam, electing an opposition MP in five of 15 tries.

Halifax, a two-member constituency since Confederation, has voted for the winner 19 times in the country's 26 elections. Three times it returned a pair of opposition MPs. Four times its representation was a split, one MP from the government party, the other from the opposition. Twice the split came when the Conservatives won the country and twice when the Liberals took it.

Renfrew South voted for the country-wide winner 20 times in the 26 elections since Confederation. From 1867 to 1926, before it went on its current string, it returned a government MP 10 times, an opposition MP six times.

VOTED 24 TIMES

Kings has voted in 24 elections starting in 1874—P.E.I. entered Confederation in 1873—and 19 times it returned the party which won most seats in the country.

Two constituencies are potting strings of nine consecutive votes with the winner on the line—Prince (P.E.I.) and Leibiniere (Que.). Each started with the 1935 election. Leibiniere's showing has one unusual aspect—it has voted Conservative only three times since Confederation—in 1867, 1958 and 1962—going Liberal in its other 23 votes.

York Scarborough, in the Toronto area, has never voted against the winning party. Formed in 1952, it has sent an MP to the government benches in six consecutive elections.

Two seats are on the reverse side of the coin.

Vancouver East, established under the 1933 Redistribution Act, has voted against the winning party in nine elections from 1935 to 1963. It hasn't even had a representative in the official Opposition, choosing instead CCF and NDP.

Winnipeg North Centre, formed in 1924, elected a government MP once, a Conservative in 1958. But in 11 other elections it has been labor, CCF and NDP.

Take it for a test drive. See if you pass.

The real test in a Volkswagen is to see if you know what driving really is.

(If you think you're driving in other cars, then what you do in a Volkswagen is something else).

Most cars give you all the lively moving sensation of sitting home on your living room couch.

But the VW isn't sprung like other cars. Its 4-wheel torsion bar suspension (the kind they have in racing cars) gives you the feel of the road.

You always know what's going on because you know what your car's going on.

And you know what's coming because you'll see more of the road than you ever saw before.

When you twist the steering wheel a little, you can feel the wheels turn a little. So you know the car's doing just what you told it to. (Doesn't that sound satisfying?)

We can tell you that the Volkswagen parks shorter than other cars, and that it manoeuvres more easily.

But we can't tell you how it feels to drive one.

So take the test.

Maybe you can tell us.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

With the song-and-dance team of Chrvale and Terrell having completed their half of the world championship variety show, there are sounds emanating from the other side of the stage where prima-donna Cassius Clay and soft-shoe expert Floyd Patterson are rehearsing.

Muhamed Ali, champion of whatever parts of the world care to admit he is such, and Patterson of the peek-a-boo defence, are scheduled to slow down for a couple of hours at least, the greatest local array of mechanical money extractors in the universe on Nov. 22nd.

They clash in Convention Hall, Las Vegas, which, reports state, will be packed to its 7,500 capacity. For one hundred silver dollars you can get a seat in the shadow of the ring posts with no extra charge for a close-up view of the Clay tonsils. For a tenth of that amount you can sit in the hunch-back seats with the aluminum dome of the hall caressing your spine.

Mr. Clay, according to early chirpings from his training cage in the Nevada hunting grounds, shows little concern over the outcome of his bout with Patterson.

It seems he is glutted with one-round knockouts and promises to give the faithful the complete, unabridged works of his boxing encyclopedia before administering the coup-de-grace to the former world champion.

Mr. Patterson, according to headmaster Clay, has been a naughty boy and saying nasty things about the young maestro who admits he is "the greatest."

As a champion of parts he is entitled to some respect even from the hoi-polloi of title aspirants, he says. To be verbally derided, as he claims is the case, calls for severe punitive measures.

To teach this veteran upstart a lesson and satiate his desire for satisfaction, he will refrain from knocking Patterson out in the first round.

A knockout in the first round would be too easy and besides there are the preliminaries to think of. After all, those half-starved movie and television stars, sundry millionaires and holiday-bent business persons who will fill the century-note seats deserve some consideration.

An hour or so of watching ringdom's superman reduce a weakling foeman to a bloody mess will be a welcome change to the boredom of forcing silver dollars into the maws of roulette, poker, craps and painless extraction machines.

So, the Louisville Tiger will play cat-and-mouse, he says, with left-opinion Floyd for seven or eight rounds; then to be merciful will administer the knockout punch and everybody except Floyd, of course, will go home happy.

Stirring this time, Patterson will be staggering around waiting for the quick surcease from the terrible punishment. When it comes, he will crawl to his conqueror with a bloody smile of appreciation.

What a bout!

Clay hurdles the Patterson fight (that's in the bag, he says), and boasts he can lick five like Erich Terrell in the same ring the same night. He might (and those Cadillacs, Hoy and Alexander, will love this) if they attach an outboard motor to the south side of the Terrell lap to slow down his reverse speed.

The World Boxing Association has said it will recognize the Clay-Patterson fight as a title match provided the winner meets Terrell.

Ho-mmm. It should be interesting to see how Patterson stacks up against the huge Chicagoan.

Rangers Edge Petes 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener Rangers took a big step forward Thursday night as they defeated Peterborough Petes 4-3 in the first game of a best-of-three Ontario Hockey Association Junior A section and jumped to fourth place from seventh.

The Rangers swooped past four other teams, one of them Hamilton Red Wings, who played to a 2-2 tie with Toronto Marlboros in the only other game.

The win for Kitchener gives them eight points in eight games and a virtual tie with Toronto for third place. But Toronto has played one less game for its eight points and has one less loss.

Bob Jones scored twice for Kitchener with John Beverley and Walter Tkachuk getting the others. George Godson, Danny Grant and Andre Lacroix scored for Peterborough.

Hamilton and Toronto traded goals in the first and third periods. Don Glesebrecht gave the Red Wings a short lead in the first and defenceman Doug Donnelly put Toronto ahead 2-1 in the third.

Tom Martin tied it for Toronto in the first, while Nick Libbett finished a fine Marlboro rush in the third period for the equalizer.

Habs Rip Leafs; Wings Claw Bruins

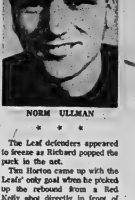
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens climbed into a first-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings came up with their best effort of the season as National Hockey League action Thursday night.

The Canadiens, led by Henri Richard with two goals and an assist, downed Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 in Montreal while Detroit exploded for five goals in the second period and went on to defeat Boston Bruins 8-1 in Detroit.

Toronto's loss coupled with Detroit's victory halt the Leafs and the Wings tied for third spot with five points — four points behind the leaders.

The Canadiens have played one more game than the Hawks.



Ralph Backstrom opened the scoring at 3:38 of the first period when he beat Toronto netminder Terry Sawchuk on a screened shot from 15 feet.

The Canadiens made it 2-0 as they counted two goals in seven seconds early in the second period.

Bobby Rousseau and Jean Beliveau were caught behind the Toronto goal, but Beliveau managed to come up with the puck. He fired it to Rousseau from behind the net and the right winger popped it in the corner at 2:01.

WON DRAW, SCORED

Seven seconds later Richard picked up his first goal of the night when he won the draw from Eddie Joyal at a faceoff deep in Toronto territory.

NORM ULLMAN

★ ★ ★

The Leaf defenders appeared to freeze as Richard popped the puck in the net.

Then Horton came up with the Leafs' only goal when he picked up the rebound from a Red Kelly shot directed in front of Montreal goaltender Charlie Hodge and just poked it home at 7:30.

Richard got his second goal of the night, as he combined with Claude Provost, to make it 4-1 midway through the middle period.

Gilles Tremblay scored at 11:24 of the final period to close out the scoring. Richard received an assist on Tremblay's goal and the 16,229 hometown fans gave him a standing ovation as he left the ice.

Referee Frank Udvari called nine minor penalties, six to Toronto.

Norm Ullman scored two goals and Ron Murphy picked up a goal and three assists in leading Detroit to its lopsided victo r over Boston.

A BIG NIGHT

Murphy opened the scoring at 6:31 of the first period, and then drew assists on markers by Ullman, Floyd Smith and Andy Bathgate in the second period.

Pit Martin scored the other Detroit goal in the first period while Gordie Howe and Bill Gadsby also tallied for the Red Wings in the wild second period as Detroit scored five goals.

Ullman's second goal of the night was the only one scored in the third period.

RON MURPHY

Tom Williams spoiled Detroit goalie Roger Crozier's shutout bid when he scored at 12:33 in the second period.

None of the goals were scored on power plays despite the fact that referee Vern Buffey called eight penalties in the first two periods.

Boston has now lost four games and gained one tie in its five starts to date.

Koufax Rates With Top Lefties

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Is Sandy Koufax the greatest left-handed pitcher of all time?

The Los Angeles Dodger star selected as the Cy Young Award winner for an unprecedented second time last week undoubtedly is in a class with Carl Hubbell, Warren Spahn and Lefty Grove—generally regarded as the finest southpaws of the major era.

Probably no other lefty has achieved more success than Koufax during the last five baseball seasons. No one has pitched more spectacularly, with his record-shattering four no-hitters, including last season's perfect game against Chicago Cubs, his single-season record of 382 strikeouts, and numerous other electrifying performances.

The 29-year-old Koufax has won 20 or more games only twice in 11 National League seasons. Spahn, the former Braves' stalwart recently released by San Francisco, has won 44, did it a record 13 times, including seven times in his first 11 big league seasons.

Grove, who pitched for Philadelphia and Boston in the American League, posted 30 or more victories eight times, while Hubbell, former meal ticket for New York Giants, did it five times.

Here's the way the four great southpaws compared in the important categories:

Koufax: 11 seasons, 356 games, 2,002 innings pitched, 138 won, 78 lost, .639 winning percentage, 732 runs, 651 earned runs, 2,079 strikeouts, 740 bases on balls, 2.93 earned-run average; 35 shutouts.

Hubbell: 16 seasons, 535 games, 3,591 innings pitched, 253 won, 154 lost, .622 winning percentage; 1,320 runs, 1,188 earned runs, 1,677 strikeouts, 725 bases on balls, 2.98 earned-run average; 36 shutouts.

Grove: 17 seasons, 616 runs, 3,940 innings pitched, bases on balls, 3.09 earned-run average; 63 shutouts.

Spahn: 21 seasons, 750 games, 5,306 innings pitched, 363 won, 245 lost, .597 winning percentage; 2,014 runs, 1,799 earned runs, 2,584 strikeouts, 1,434 bases on balls, 3.09 earned-run average; 63 shutouts.

Now Rollins Constructions

Juniors No Longer 'B's

Belleville's entry in the Eastern Ontario Junior "B" League will be no longer known as the "B's."

Starting tonight the team will be known as the "Belleville Rollins Construction" club.

Maurice Rollins, head of the construction firm that bears his name, and one of this city's best-known sportsmen is behind the name-changing move.

The club in the near future will wear white sweaters with the name of the sponsor in red.

Mr. Rollins has been connected with and participated in sport since he was "so high." He was an exceptionally fine softball player and played junior hockey for a number of years here.

He was a member of "Tools" Holway's early fill, ties junior squad and never misses the annual reunion of the club.

Although he has quite so tive participation, Maurice never lost interest in sport. He has been generous with his sponsorships of minor clubs.

He entered the business world with the same zeal and energy that marked his efforts in the realm of sport.

Today he heads a highly successful company that specializes in house construction with branches here, Kingston, Cobourg, Peterborough and Trenton.

The executive of the Belleville junior hockey club is gratefully appreciative of the tangible interest taken in the organization by Mr. Rollins.

MAURICE H. ROLLINS

"Like the proverbial camel," club manager Jim Matthews said today, "it takes money to operate a hockey club. If the fans will follow Mr. Rollins' example and back the club through the box-office turnstiles, we should have a successful season."

The Rollins Construction meet the Peterborough Byes in a scheduled four-point junior "B" game tonight in Memorial Arena. Game time nine o'clock. The teams play back in Peterborough Monday night.

Hill Rise Latest Entry

By ARCH MacKENZIE

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — The 14th running of the Washington International here Nov. 11 doesn't figure to be a vintage year but that may help Canadian-bred Hill Rise of Windfall.

The candidate is George Royal—known to his familiars as George—who is a big four-year-old bay owned by Ernest C. Hammond and Robert W. Hall of Vancouver.

Like many of the other candidates for the 1½-mile test on turf, George's plans have had to be shifted. Veteran jockey Johnny Longden had been set to ride him in an all-Canadian combination but a 10-day suspension at California's Bay Meadows ruled that out and Willie Shoemaker is the nominee now.

George Royal, because he has some good credentials and as a result of a mostly lackluster field which has been chopped and changed, has been receiving a lot of attention and examination.

HILL RISE ENTERED

Hill Rise, a four-year-old colt, won the $100,000 Man o' War Stakes handily at Aqueduct over 23 miles as the best turf runner of the American entries.

Otherwise, there has been so many changes in the nine-entry field that ratings have been impossible so far.

Laurel president John Schapiro has had to scrounge around for a field.

The Russian horse Aniline was scratched without explanation. One British horse—Super Sam—is left. The French representation has been increased to Diabione and Carvin and two Latin American entries entered —Casco from Venezuela and Bernardino from Argentina.

The American entries are Hill Rise, Roman Brother, the likely favorite, and Hail to All which in its first experience on turf Thursday finished last.

American horses hold a 7-6 edge going into the Internationals, worth $50,000 to the winner.

Dog Pound Service For Hunters

The East Central Ontario Association of Sportsmen Clubs are providing a service which will situate dog pounds at various locations, George Griffiths Supertest Station, Millbridge; Jerry Trumble, Gunter, Ontario; John McLean, R.R. 1, Belleor, Ontario, and the Shell Gas Station, Kaladar, Ontario, during the two weeks of November 9th and November 19th, 1963, deer hunting.

These localities will provide food and care for dogs which have become separated from their hunting parties until it is convenient for the owners to claim them. In suggesting that dog owners should take a picture of their dog, this would eliminate a great deal of confusion as to the description of the animal.

Hunters finding lost dogs are asked to leave them at the dog pounds to enable their owners to easily locate them.

Edmonton Gets 1966 Track Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 1966 Canadian track and field championships were awarded to Edmonton Thursday night by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. A date was not set.

The Edmonton championships will be combined with the track and field trials for the Canadian British Empire Games team.

The AAU lit its annual meet here, also approved the staging for the first time of a Canadian indoor track and field championship. It will be held here Feb. 15.

Other 1966 events set by the AAU included:

Canadian wrestling championships and British Empire Games trials—Edmonton; bowling championships and Games trials — Calgary; marathon championship — Ottawa; cross country—Port Arthur-Fort William; decathlon and pentathlon —Lethbridge, Alta.; Canadian age - class championships—Richmond, B.C.

Dates for these events were not set. Sites for other 1966 AAU-approved events and for 1967 events were to be set today and Saturday.

Als Not Same Old Club Riders Whipped

Record Favors Ottawa

By BOB MACKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — On the strength of their four meetings this year, Ottawa Rough Riders have to rank as favorites over Montreal Alouettes in their Eastern Football Conference sudden-death semi-final here Saturday.

The Riders whipped the Alouettes in three of the four games —including a 20-1 exhibition victory—and piled up an impressive total of statistics in the regular season games.

But the Alouettes, who take the field at 2 p.m. for the game to be televised on the CTV network, are a far cry from the team that lost a 32-3 decision here Aug. 12 and a 31-13 verdict in Montreal Aug. 26.

The change started in the Aug. 26 game when the Alouettes finally found some running to go with quarterback Jacobs Page's passing arm. That was the game they unveiled fullback J. W. Lockett, a National Football League cut, and he scored both Montreal touchdowns in that game.

Last Saturday, when the Als took a 16-3 decision in the Rider's own park, they gave Ottawa's improved defence a running mate for Lockett—fullback Pat Battle, who scored both Montreal touchdowns, and Don Davis, a speedy end.

MAKE A DIFFERENCE

"Those three make a big difference in the Montreal attack," says Rider coach Frank Clair. Lockett supplies the power running while Battle provides the outside running threat and also is a dangerous pass receiver.

With flanker Terry Evanshe —the EFC's Rookie of the Year—Page now has variety in his passing, something that he lacked early in the season.

But the Riders also will be on hand to spoil the Alouettes' attack. Flanker Ron Stewart, who was the game's leading ground gainer in the Aug. 26 game when the Alouettes finally found some running to go with quarterback Jacobs Page's passing arm. That was the game they unveiled fullback J. W. Lockett, who more than 100 yards in each of the two regular-season games this year, Montreal, will be back at his halfback slot after sitting out an ankle injury. He will be joined by fullback Jim Dillard, who also missed last Saturday's game.

Ottawa's defence will be shored up by the return of defensive halfbacks Gene Gaines and Don Gilbert. Gilbert sat out last Saturday with a knee injury and Gaines was playing offence for the first time this year as replacement for Scott.

Also coming off the injury list will be linebacker Mike Blum, who has been sidelined for five games, first with knee trouble then later by an eye injury.

In their three regular season meetings, Riders have outrushed Montreal 608 yards to 378, and hold a 526-410 advantage in passing yardage with 27 of 51 passes completed compared to Montreal's 27 completions on 48 passers.

Bombers Take No Chances

Riders Will Be Tough--Grant

WINNIPEG (CP)—Coach Bud Grant is holding more-than-easing sessions to prepare his Winnipeg Blue Bombers for their sudden-death Western Football Conference semi-final against Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday.

Grant says his objective is to get younger members of the team into the right frame of mind. The Bombers will check into a Winnipeg hotel Saturday night to keep the discussions going and "the first person they'll see Sunday morning will be me."

From the coach's assessment of the Roughriders, the session might suspect that he could use a bit of morale-building himself.

"We find Saskatchewan as much as any team we've ever played," Grant reporters Thursday. "In a one-hot game they can beat anybody."

SHORTEN PLAYOFF

The WFC semi-final was reduced to a sudden-death affair for the first time since 1951. It was cut down from a two-game, total-point series to match teams in the East Division where a Grey Cup contender is faced with a maximum of only two playoff games in search of the final.

In the West the maximum is still four. The WFC final is a best-of-three series while the Eastern Conference winner plays a two-game, total-points series to decide the Grey Cup representative.

Grant said the third-place Riders have a "real opportunity" to defeat the Bombers and the first-place Calgary Stampeders, and move on to win their first Grey Cup.

Quarterback Jack Jacobs will be focused on the field when the contest kicks off at 2:30 p.m. (3:30 p.m. EST).

Preliminary forecasts indicate cloudy, mild weather, but Grant said he can't predict what conditions will play a role.

SEEK INCREASE

OTTAWA (CP) — The 9,000-member Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada is seeking a three-stage pay boost of eight per cent or more from the federal government. Leslie Barnes, institute executive director, said in an interview Thursday his organization has asked the government for a four-per-cent increase retroactive to Jan. 1 this year, another four per cent retroactive to July 1 and "further adjustments" to specific job classifications, also effective July 1.

Suggests New Role For A.A.U.

VANCOUVE RCP(T)— Prof. Bob Osborne, director of physical education at University of British Columbia, said Thursday the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada should abandon its present role in sport and concentrate solely on track and field.

Osborne, a former B.C. branch president of the AAU, said the union no longer fulfils its function of speaking "with a strong collective voice for sport generally."

In an address to a general session of the AAU annual meeting here, Osborne suggested the union assist its member bodies in becoming autonomous, and then transfer its international standing to the individual sports.

At present, the AAU serves as representative body on the international level for various Canadian sports.

Osborne said the Canadian Olympic Association is "the best vehicle for total organization of sport in Canada," and has asked of the federal government's fitness and sports directorate altered greatly the former roles of various national sport bodies.

LA Blades Shade Barons 2-1

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Los Angeles Blades scored twice in the first period and stayed safely ahead to defeat Cleveland Barons 2-1 in an interlocking Western-American Hockey League game Thursday night.

Leo Labine opened scoring while Blades held a man advantage, Tom McCarthy replied for Cleveland, then Marc Boileau took Howie Young's pass for a breakaway goal while his own Blades were shorthanded.

Los Angeles moved into a fifth place tie in the WHL with Vancouver.

Keys Says Saskys Better Club

REGINA (CP)—The last time the Western Football Conference semi-final was a sudden-death game was in 1951.

That year was also the last time Saskatchewan Roughriders had a shot at the Grey Cup. They lost.

If they entertain ideas of playing in the Grey Cup this season, they must defeat Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Winnipeg in the semi-final Sunday and head coach Eagle Keys thinks they will.

"Basically, I think we have a better football team than Winnipeg," Keys says. "We may have more weak spots than they do, but then we have more strong spots too."

It's the first time since the mid-fifties that Saskatchewan has had a team in the playoffs.

Quick-Change "Farmers" Get Warning

For two weeks of the year the "farmer" population of the Tweed Forest District, Department of Lands and Forests, notes a fantastic increase.

The "two-week farmers" are urban and other non-farm residents who want to make three fast bucks in order to shoot one.

Non-farming hunters pay five dollars for deer licences. A bona-fide farmer gets his for two dollars.

Hence the quick overnight change of occupation.

The Lands and Forests Department has news for the duck-shielding backhanders.

They will be regarded as having no licence at all if they are stopped by conservation officers.

Daubers Dump Combines 4-1, Sacos Win

SACO and Ter-Haar Daubers scored impressive wins in Quinte Hockey League action at Memorial Arena last night.

Ter-Haar dumped Stinson - Horlock Combines 4-1 while SACO doubled the score on Grant Realty, 6-3.

The Daubers led 2-0 in the first and 3-1 after two beats. They got single goals from Al Rankin, Jack Calnek, Peter McNevin and Donnie Moore. Jim Muir drew two assists with one goal apiece. Gaily Stinson, Jim Moore, Larry Westfall and L. Haulin.

The losers drew three of the five penalties.

SACO moved ahead of Grant's 3-1 in the first frame and after a scoreless middle heat outscored the losers 3-2 in the third.

Don Forsythe slammed home three goals, including his club's first two, to spark the winners. Doug Hallam scored twice and Doug Bradshaw got one other one. Hallam earned three assists, Gary Genereaux two, Rob Burrows, Doug Lucas and Bradshaw one apiece.

Collecting a goal apiece in a losing cause were Bernie Boulter, Keith Quinthout and Dennis Kerruish, W. Adams, Quinthout and Kerruish" had one assist each.

SACO also got the Hoo's share of penalties, six compared to the Realty squad's pair.

SETS SPEED RECORD

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP)—Craig Breedlove's wife Lee Saturday broke her husband's jet-powered car Thursday and set a world land speed record for women. The 28-year-old brunette took three practice runs before driving to a record 308.56 miles an hour average for two runs. The record tops the 277.15 m.p.h. mark set earlier this fall by Betty Skelton.

Admit Six To Hall Of Fame

VANCOUVER (CP)—Six new faces were added to the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada's Hall of Fame Thursday.

AAU directors agreed at the annual convention here to admit:

Aileen Meagher of Halifax, a sprint star of the 1930s who represented Canada in two Olympic and two British Empire Games;

Don Baddo of Montreal, a former Olympic team member of the 1900s and an active participant in AAU executive affairs;

Jim Worrall of Toronto, Olympic runner in the 1930s, president of the Canadian Olympic Association; chairman of the Sports Advisory Council;

And the late Leo Burns of Montreal, former president and registrar of the Quebec AAU branch.

RAMS' COACH FINED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Coach Harland Svare of Los Angeles Rams said Thursday he has been fined $1,000 by Pete Rozelle, National Football League commissioner, for criticizing officials.

Try Bonded Stock on a friend without letting him see the label.
It's the best way to find out what people really think about a whisky; how do they like it when they don't know which brand they're drinking?
If you've tried Bonded Stock yourself, the playback won't surprise you. Bonded Stock is a great Canadian whisky. You can consult the label but you can't disguise the flavour. It's an extremely mellow whisky with a deceptively smooth flavour.
The other thing that's deceptive about Bonded Stock is its price. But the price doesn't fool people with taste.
Bonded Stock's sensible price is a sort of bonus you get for good judgment.
And what could be fairer than that?

Clash With Mustangs

Win 'Must' for Queen's

By IAN MacLAINE

Queen's University Golden Gaels, still smarting from a 32-20 opening-game loss to University of Western Ontario Mustangs, will try to avenge that setback when the two teams conclude their Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association football schedule at London Saturday.

The Gaels, after two undefeated seasons, find themselves in a most situation with a win over the once-defeated Mustangs necessary for them to remain in the playoff picture.

In other scheduled games, University of Toronto Blues are to Montreal for a game with McGill University Redmen who, though winless, have showed much improvement.

The Blues and the Gaels are tied in second place and wins by both on Saturday would force the league into a three-way tie for first for the first time since 1954.

At a coin-tossing ceremony in Toronto Tuesday, in the event of a tie, Queen's coach Jack Lay was assured a bye into the final scheduled for Varsity Stadium, Nov. 13.

The other two teams, Western and Toronto, would play a semi-final game at the stadium next Wednesday night.

EASTERN ONTARIO AND NEW YORK CLASSIC BOWLERS' ASSOCIATION

A welcome addition to the tournament trail has been added to the 10 pin agenda. The Eastern Ontario and New York Classic Bowlers' Association has been formed and includes lanes in Watertown, N.Y., Kingston, Brockville and Belleville. The first tournament in this new group will be held in Belleville on January 16, 1966. Any one wishing further information contact John Colley or anyone at Brunswick Bowl.

O'KEEFE'S $140,000 TOURNAMENT

Remember all bowlers, have until the end of November to qualify for open or classified singles. Classified bowlers are men with 169 average or less and ladies with 149 average or less in 1965-66 season. Roll-offs are Friday, 7 p.m. or 9 p.m., Saturday 2.30 p.m. and Sunday at 2.00 p.m. each weekend

LADIES' PROVINCIAL TOURNAMENT

It is with just a touch of amazement that the writer finds that out of over 150 ladies bowlers in our city association, only 12 can find the time and competitive spirit to represent us at the annual tournament. I wish those who are making the trip lots of success in their efforts to not only win in the tournament, but also in their efforts to bring next year's tournament to Belleville.

MEN'S BIG TEN

1. Bill Philp 193, 2- Toots Holray 184, 3. Jerry Miller 180, 4. Wally Lavergne 179, 5. Jim Fraser 176, 6. Ron Elliott 176, 7. Ed. Michael 174, 8. Jack Wardhaugh 174, 9. Aus. Watkin 174, 10. Jim Begley 173.

'ROM HERE AND THERE ! !

In some of the leagues individual players have games that rate special mention because they are above average but do not qualify for three game recognition. At the Ladies' Wednesday Afternoon League this week some of these scores were: Jayne Kirkaldy 211, Mary Robson 174, Helena Dodge 165, Norah Daffer 167, Ruth Ackerman 196, Freda Dennsbury 182, Vera McIntosh 166 and by the same token some of the bowlers have bad games for instance Lou Thurgood 96, 96, Olive Lane 95, Pat Fargey 94, Flo Hawkins 86, Win Ross 93, Ivy James 96, 83, Elsa Blackinell 90. And so it goes.

In the Student's League they have eight teams of four players each. The president is Mike Anderson assisted by vice-president Dennis Dorosko and secretary Bob Cretney. Best single of the year so far belongs to Terry Cretney with 203 and best triple to Don Niles with 522.

ORTEGA JAILED

MESA, Ariz. (AP)—Pitcher Phil Ortega of Washington Senators is serving a 15-day mandatory jail sentence here for drunken driving. Ortega, 26, was arrested Wednesday. Police said he was fined $215 and sentenced to jail because it was the second drunken-driving citation against him this year.

Stampeder Fans Plan Cup Show

CALGARY (CP)—Calgarians can barely restrain themselves.

Wi Calgary Stampeders in the Western Football Conference playoffs, plans are being worked out for a $20,000 show to boost the city in the Grey Cup parade, Nov. 27 in Toronto.

That is if the Stampeders get past Saskatchewan Roughriders or Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the WFC final. It's not quite clear what the outlay would be in the event the Stamps don't win the WFC title.

But win or lose, Stampeder fans will be in Toronto to whoop it up, plug Calgary and Alberta, and show the town's red and white colors.

Calgary is credited with start. ing Grey Cup boosts back in 1948 when fans choked out Dodgers to scald Toronto'ozians from the back of chuckwagons.

This year, the Grey Cup parade committee is thinking of sending two carloads of horses to liven up the parade, as well as chuck wagons and stage coaches.

99 Horses Bought By Canadians

HARRISBURG, Pa. (CP) — Bidding was brisk on the last day of the annual auction of standardbred horses here Thursday as $1,726,350 exchanged hands, $101,800 from Canadian buyers.

Canadians bought eight of 175 yearlings offered, with Roger White of Montreal, Canada's leading trainer-driver picking up three.

He paid $27,000 for Marcel Hanover, $9,000 for Liberian Hanover and $10,000 for Quebec Harover.

Ninety-nine head were bought by Canadians during the four-day sale at a cost of $472,750. Two sales were $3,671,250 for 653 head.

Canadians Qualify For Tour

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — John Schlee of Phoenix, Ariz., led a group of 17 young pros who earned playing privileges on the PGA tour Thursday at the end of a rigorous 144-hole tournament and classroom work.

Schlee shot rounds of 78 and 73 over the par-72 course for an eight-round total of 583, seven over par for the distance.

Two Canadians were among the 17 qualifiers.

Bob Rose of Toronto fired 76 and 75 for a 586 total.

Frank Whitley of Waterloo had a 591 total on rounds of 73 and 74.

GRABS LEAD

HONOLULU (AP) — Al Geiberger birdied two of the last three holes and grabbed the first-round lead in the $60,000 Hawaiian Open Thursday with a 68. Frank Beard of Louisville and Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex., were a stroke behind with 69s, three under par for the 7,000-yard seaside course.

SEEKS NEW CLASS

LONDON (Reuters)—The International Yacht Racing Union will ask for a sixth yachting class, for off-shore races, in the Olympic Games, it was decided at the union's annual meeting here Thursday. At present there are five Olympic classes — Flon, Dragon, Star, 5.5-metre and Flying Dutchman. If a new class is accepted it will be for the 1972 Olympics.

FINED FOR SPEEDING

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Race driver Roger McCluskey, 35, has paid a $20 fine in Yuma justice court for speeding. McCluskey, a veteran of several Indianapolis 500 races, paid the fine for driving 75 miles an hour in a 60 m.p.h. zone Oct. 21 on U.S. 80 east of Yuma.

Fifty New Clubs Join Skate Body

OTTAWA (CP)— Fifty new clubs have been admitted to the Canadian Amateur Skating Association, bringing total membership in 327, the association announced Thursday.

The clubs were admitted during the association's annual meeting last week at Kelowna, B.C.

Directors include R. Murrie, North Bay; John McKay, Chatham and Norm Carscallen, Sudbury.

The 1966 Canadian champion titles will be held at Peterborough Feb. 7-12, while the world championships follow Feb. 22-27 at Davos, Switzerland.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Rousseau, Montreal Canadiens right winger, scored a goal Thursday in Montreal's 3-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs giving him 12 points and sole possession of first place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Rousseau has four goals and seven assists in eight outings. Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks and team - mate Doug Mohns tied for second spot with 11 points apiece Hull with eight goals and three assists and Mohns' record is six goals and five assists.

Jean Beliveau, Montreal's big centre picked up an assist against Toronto, tying him for fourth spot with Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks with eight points. Beliveau has four goals and an equal amount of assists while Mikita has one goal and seven assists.

Henri Richard of Montreal got first two goals and picked up an assist moving him into sixth spot with seven points.

Beverly Hills Hotel Gets Ready to Greet Margaret

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Beverly Hills Hotel, which prides itself on coddling guests, faces its greatest challenge at 3.30 p.m. PST Sunday.

That's the scheduled arrival time of Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon, who will be spending four days and three nights in the Los Angeles area. They will stay at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Preparations began six months ago, when it was learned that the pair would be coming to California to appear at the annual ball for WAIF — World Adoption International Fund. Major hotels in town made a quick go to secure the visitors. The Beverly Hills found a friend at court, Sherman Dougher, a former ambassador's daughter who is helping to shepherd the princess and her husband through Hollywood society.

Word came through six weeks ago that the Beverly Hills had won out over its competitors.

DETAIL MAGNIFICENT

"We've had three major meetings plus numerous departmental meetings," reported Burton Slatkin, hotel vice - president. "The amount of detail is truly magnificent. After all, when you are dealing with creature comforts, the smallest detail can be crucial."

Three hair dryers had to be purchased for the royal party. Lord Snowdon's favorite cigarettes were flown in from Paris.

The hotel's red carpet will be rolled out. A large Union Jack has been purchased to hang at the porte-cochere (carriage entrance); the British consulate suggested it would be a nice touch.

The party is taking over the entire fourth-floor wing of the hotel. Employees have been instructed to stand at least five feet distant from Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon and to bow their heads when given orders.

Who is picking up the tab? "The British government for the English visitors, the state department for American," reported Slatkin. "There also has to be a room for escorting motorcyclists, and I suppose we'd take care of that."

Mary Martin's Peter Pan To Get Fifth Broadcast

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Martin's Peter Pan will be broadcast for the fifth time on NBC Jan. 21, the network announced today. The two-hour production is one of an elite group of television classics of quality so fine and with such universal appeal that they can be used again and again.

In terms of network television's fantastic output—some 75 hours a week in prime evening time alone—it is surprising that so few programs have achieved impressive stature.

NBC's Amahl and the Night Visitors, the opera written by Gian Carlo Menotti for television, has been presented at Christmas time for the last 18 years, which certainly qualifies it as the medium's top classic.

Then, too, there is CBS' Wizard of Oz, which will repeat for the eighth consecutive year Jan. 3.

That 30-year-old motion picture starring Judy Garland can only qualify as a television classic since it first had a long career in theatres.

The 1954 version of Amahl and the Night Visitors around Christmas became the quality of early filmed reproductions usually does not.

MAKE NEW ONE

Tape came into its own after 1956, and a new color production was made. The more valuable tape was erased by error so another production was started —the tape of which will undoubtedly be rerun next month.

Peter Pan, based on Miss Martin's hit Broadway musical, was a live broadcast in 1955 and repeated — again live — a year later. A second production on tape, was undertaken in 1960 and rerun two years later.

Most classics seem to be pegged around holiday themes or spirit. NBC's The Way of the Cross, a handsome program telling the crucifixion story by means of great art, has been repeated five times at Easter and the Christmas-time Coming of Christ, using the same techniques, four times.

No dramatic programs are in the offing.

Ann-Margret Is Ready for Her Close-Up

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ann-Margret is ready for her close-up.

The 25-year-old actress has been in Hollywood for two years, but she has been content to wait for the right role to come along.

Now it has arrived in the form of "Stagecoach," a remake of the John Ford classic which starred John Wayne and Claire Trevor.

Ann-Margret will play the role of Dallas, the prostitute who is run out of town by the Law and Order League.

"I'm glad I waited," she said. "I'm not ready for a big role yet. I've been studying and working with coaches, and I'm not ready to show what I can do."

Ann-Margret's first movie was "Pocketful of Miracles," in which she played a small part. Then she was cast in "Bye Bye Birdie" and "Kitten With a Whip."

"I'm not sure I'm right for 'Stagecoach,'" she said. "I'm not a big star yet, and I'm not sure I can carry the picture. But I'm willing to try."

Ann-Margret's husband, Roger Smith, is also in the movie. He plays the role of Ringo Kid, which was played by Wayne in the original.

"Stagecoach" will be filmed in Utah, Arizona and Mexico.

NBC's Amahl and the Night Visitors, the opera written by Gian Carlo Menotti for television, has been presented at Christmas time for the last 18 years, which certainly qualifies it as the medium's top classic.

Then, too, there is CBS' Wizard of Oz, which will repeat for the eighth consecutive year Jan. 3.

That 30-year-old motion picture starring Judy Garland can only qualify as a television classic since it first had a long career in theatres.

The 1954 version of Amahl and the Night Visitors around Christmas because the quality of early filmed reproductions usually does not.

MAKE NEW ONE

Tape came into its own after 1956, and a new color production was made. The more valuable tape was erased by error so another production was started —the tape of which will undoubtedly be rerun next month.

Peter Pan, based on Miss Martin's hit Broadway musical, was a live broadcast in 1955 and repeated — again live — a year later. A second production on tape, was undertaken in 1960 and rerun two years later.

Most classics seem to be pegged around holiday themes or spirit. NBC's The Way of the Cross, a handsome program telling the crucifixion story by means of great art, has been repeated five times at Easter and the Christmas-time Coming of Christ, using the same techniques, four times.

No dramatic programs are in the offing.

clusded, pasily because many of the dramas of Playhouse 90. Studio One and other anthology series were presented live in the days of the fuzzy kinescopes.

There may be some TV classics in the making. CBS' Tour of the White House with Mrs John F. Kennedy has been repeated once and probably will be again. NBC's stunning color explorations of both Paris' Louvre and Moscow's Kremlin have timeless qualities of excellence.

The Trots

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A nine - year - old gelding from Le Ann Acres, Ont., came through with an $83.50 payoff Thursday night at Windsor Raceway and completed a record daily double of $200.40.

Prince Ondago covered the mile pace in 2:11 in the second race. Tourbillion started the daily double with a win in the first. A $5 quinella was paid in the seventh with Ray Adios and Apache Gun finishing first and second respectively.

A ninth - race exacta paid $74.40 for the first- and second-place finishers of Beulah Pellie and Pat Yates.

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Bill Wellwood drove two consecutive winners at Mohawk Raceway Thursday night, one of them in the $1,100 feature pace.

Wynnor and Black Creek both bred and raised in Stratford, and trained by Wellwood came through in the seventh and eighth races.

The daily double paid $64.30 with Captain Dillon and Fanny Symbol combining in the first and second races respectively.

NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that provided there is an election for any elective office over the sixth day of December A. D. 1965, being the date for the election of Municipal Elections for the Township of Sidney, the following By-Law will be submitted to a vote of the electors.

THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SIDNEY

A BY-LAW TO PROVIDE FOR THE SUBMISSION TO THE VOTE OF THE ELECTORS OF THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SIDNEY UPON A CERTAIN QUESTION.

WHEREAS it is deemed expedient by the Municipal Corporation of the Township of Sidney to obtain an expression of opinion from the electors thereof upon the question hereinafter set forth;

THEREFORE THE COUNCIL OF THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SIDNEY ENACTS AS FOLLOWS:

1. THAT on the same day in the year 1965 as the election for the Municipal Officers is held, in the same polling booth as the vote is taken for the said election officials, there shall be submitted to a vote of the electors the following question, namely:

"Are you in favor of moving pictures, theatrical performances, concerts and lectures after the hour of 1 o'clock in the forenoon on the Lord's Day to be regulated by Municipal By-Law under the authority of the Lord's Day (Ontario) Act, 1960-61?"

2. THAT the Head of the Council, or a member of it appointed for that purpose by resolution, shall attend at his residence in the Township of Sidney on the said day of election, at the hour of seven o'clock in the afternoon, and proceed to sum up in shall appoint, by writing signed by him, two persons to attend at the final summing up of the votes for the purpose of the said question, one of such polling places to be on behalf of the persons interested in the granting of the said By-Law, and the other on behalf of the persons interested in the refusal of the said By-Law, and the said persons so appointed shall be entitled to be present at the final summing up of the votes for the purpose of the said question, and the Clerk shall ascertain the number of votes given in the said polling booth for the said question, and publicly declare the results of the vote.

THIS BY-LAW shall become effective and take effect immediately on and after the final passing thereof.

READ A first, second and third time and finally passed this 18th day of October, 1965.

J. B. Harder,
Clerk.

Ernest J. Kelly,
Reeve.

I hereby certify that this is a true and exact copy of By-Law No. 1545, which was passed at the meeting of Council held on the 18th day of October, 1965.

Pearson Gets Big Welcome For Auto Pact

By STEWART MacLEOD

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson came deep into auto-agreement territory Thursday, and one of the loudest audiences of his campaign roared approval at his prediction it is a southwestern Ontario world see "a great industrial complex."

After two consecutive nights of rowdyism—at Montreal and Lindsay, Ont.—the prime minister had clear sailing before some 2,000 here Thursday night, and the applause was spiced by horns, bells and organized cries of "Yea, Mike."

"I am going in spirit from here on to say that Mr. Pearson to the 1,100 or so in the main auditorium and the estimated 900 who nearly filled two celebrations.

While the automotive agreement dominated his speech, the prime minister also criticized New Democratic Party Leader Douglas for allegedly saying that the government, after Nov. 8, would introduce a tight-money policy."

"This is a pretty scary statement to make on monetary policy," he said. It could create fear and uncertainty in the business community, "although in this case it will not."

SUPPLY GROWS

The Canadian money supply is expanding at a faster money is being lent and invested than ever before, he said. The total supply rose 5.5 per cent in the last 12 months compared with eight per cent in the United States. This doesn't look like tight money."

Attacking the opposition for its stand on auto agreement, Mr. Pearson said he was sneered at and jeered at, and was told he lost his shirt.

"I think I have managed to make 20,000 additional jobs for people who will have shirts," he said.

Earlier at a Chatham reception, the prime minister made an apparent reference to Conservative Leader Diefenbaker whose hair he said "sneered at by perhaps the most accomplished sneerer in Canadian history."

About 250 people were at the noon reception in a suburban motel to hear the Liberal leader say that the auto agreement, after eight months, has resulted in the 20,000 new jobs, a 13 per-cent increase in production, and expansion or intended expansion by 170 automotive firms. He said one firm—he was referring to Ford of Canada—planned to spend $128,000,000 in new facilities in this area.

He clarified this spending estimate in his St. Thomas speech, and said the company didn't know how many millions would be spent on its planned new plant in this area, but that $50,000,000 would be spent on engine plant at Windsor and a total of $48,000,000 into two new plants in Oakville.

While the federal government doesn't deserve all the credit for Canada's present prosperity, he said, it deserves some. "Certainly if things didn't go right, we'd get all the blame."

Maintaining his plea for majority government, he said a strong central government was needed to act on behalf of all Canadians both in and out of Canada.

The country must continue its effort on behalf of international peace, and support the strengthening of the Commonwealth. While maintenance of the Commonwealth will be "a tough job" in the midst of changes, the rewards will be worth the efforts.

At home, the question of national unity gets priority, he said. "If we are divided we will be impotent." He was sure a way would be found so Quebec could maintain its traditions and language while working together with the rest of the country."

"It doesn't matter if the roots are English or French, so long as the tree is Canadian."

Mr. Pearson spoke to about 800 people, most of them students, at a Ridgetown high school during the afternoon, but he didn't touch on the campaign. A telephone call to police that a bomb was in the school did not interrupt the meeting.

His London motel is also being occupied by showman Lib-erace, and a welcoming sign says "Welcome to the Prime Minister and Liberace."

Canada Needs Leadership That Will Lead

- - Diefenbaker

By KEN CLARK

EDMUNTON (CP) — Jesting at or ignoring hecklers, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker Thursday night told a party rally preceding the start of his life that Canada needs "leadership that will lead."

An anonymous caller told police earlier in the day Mr. Diefenbaker would be "knocked off" on his Edmonton election campaign visit.

Two dozen police were assigned to the Jubilee Auditorium as a safety precaution, but there were no incidents.

Mr. Diefenbaker drew a crowd of 4,300, which overflowed from the main auditorium into downstairs rooms. The overflow watched Mr. Diefenbaker on closed-circuit television sets. Heckling was sporadic.

The crowd was drawn largely from Conservative territory. The party held all three Edmonton district seats in the last Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker told them the Liberal government since it took office in 1963 has provided "leadership that goes this way and that."

LIBERALS TINKER

"In the last 2½ years national unity has been set back 20 years before because of the tinkering of a group that controls the national destiny of the country," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has no apologies for his opposition to the establishment of the royal commission on bicultural-ism and bilingualism. The commission "has helped divide the country.

He told his oil-province audience he understands some oil export applications occur after the Nov. 8 election. He said he did not know for sure because the Liberals never say what they are going to do.

A Conservative government, he said, would "take immediate steps" to remove restrictions on oil exports from Canada. He did not elaborate.

In his wide-ranging talk that generally covered old ground, he said the time has come for Canadians to choose between a "socialized state" and the principles of private enterprise and individual initiative. His party stands for the latter, he said.

He said the Liberals' three new Quebec candidate recruits —Gerard Pelletier, Pierre-Elliot Trudeau and Jean Marchand—believe in "statism" and are against free enterprise.

QUEBEC DECEIVED

The people of Quebec had been deceived about him, Mr. Diefenbaker said. He had been pictured once "as a man who favored French-Canadians before breakfast."

He touched only occasionally on a favorite campaign theme, immorality in government. At one point, he said it was not his intention to raise mud. He said he had called on Canadians to restore integrity to public life.

While Mr. Diefenbaker spoke, three young male supporters of Bill Hooks, a bearded independent candidate in Edmonton Strathcona, paraded outside with signs. One said: "Diefenbaker belongs in the Senate."

Hooks, a 23-year-old university student, has a campaign platform that calls for loosening of divorce, abortion and birth control laws.

Sen. Lambert Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Norman Platt Lambert, 80, appointed to the Senate in 1939, collapsed and died while visiting his wife in hospital here Thursday night.

Senator Lambert's wife, Jessie, was a patient at St. Vincent Hospital for chronic illnesses and aged persons. He was taken to Civic Hospital and died a short time later.

A Liberal, his death brings the number of vacancies in the 102-seat upper house to 11. The Senate standing now: L-57; PC-31; Ind-2; Ind L-1; Vacant-11.

Is Tight Money Coming Asks NDP Leader

By MICHAEL GILLAN

TORONTO (CP) — In the dying days of the federal election campaign, NDP Leader T. C. Douglas has challenged Prime Minister Pearson to state before voters go to the polls whether the government plans to introduce a tight-money policy afterwards.

Mr. Douglas issued the challenge Thursday at a press conference then posed two additional questions to Mr. Pearson at an evening rally of 12,000 in Maple Leaf Gardens.

WOULD CUT GROWTH

"If the government is re-elected does it propose to introduce a tight-money policy and raise interest rates under the guise of an anti-inflation policy?" he asked.

He also asked whether the Liberals are planning to raise the present 6¼-per-cent interest rates on National Housing Act loans, and replenish the municipal development and loan fund "now that all the money is exhausted?"

Mr. Douglas told the rally, which he said was the largest held by any party in the campaign, that he has been informed that loans have been cut off this week and credit curtailed in anticipation of a tight-money policy.

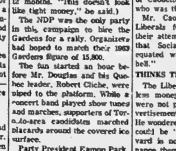
"If that happens it will cost Canada's economic growth," he said. "The Canadian people have a right to know before the election, not after."

He said that on Oct. 25 The Financial Times said the bank loan rate will be increased after Nov. 8. This would make it more difficult for people with modest incomes to build homes.

As Mr. Douglas was making his charges in Toronto, Prime Minister Pearson in St. Thomas was arguing the NDP leader was talking "very scary statements" about Canada's monetary policy.

(Mr. Pearson said he disliked hearing such a statement towards the close of a campaign because it might create fear and uncertainty in the business community."

(Canada's money supply had increased 13 per cent in the last 12 months. "This doesn't look like tight money," he said.)



The NDP was the only party in this campaign to hire the Gardens for a rally. Organizers had hoped to match the 1963 Gardens figure of 15,800.

The fan started an hour before Mr. Douglas and his Quebec leader, Robert Cliche, were wheeled to the platform. While a concert band played show tunes and marches, supporters of Toronto-area candidates marched placards around the covered ice surface.

Party President Eamon Park, former MP Douglas Fisher, Toronto York South candidate David Lewis and Mr. Cliche all spoke

Marcoux Under Fire by Real Caouette

By BENOIT HOULE

MONTREAL (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette Thursday night threatened legal action against Guy Marcoux, whom he accused of having smeared six Creditistes.

Speaking at a rally in Montreal's Atwater Hall, he threatened legal action against Dr. Marcoux, "who dirtied the reputation of six of the "Ralliement's members of Parliament." He did not specify what legal action he would take, or when he would do so.

Dr. Marcoux, a former Creditiste and a member of the last Parliament for Quebec - Montmorency, last month published a booklet called Dans le Meme Sac (In the Same Bag) in which he expressed his opinion that six Creditistes who agreed to support the Liberal party following the 1963 election were involved in a "deal."

PLAN ACTION

The six Creditistes, who were Social Creditors in 1963, have already announced they plan to take legal action against Dr. Marcoux in connection with the booklet.

The six are Robert Beaule, Quebec East; Lucien Plourde, Quebec West; Raymond Langlois, Megantic; Pierre - Andre Bourin, Dorchester; Gerard Perron, Beauce and Gilbert Rondeau, Shefford.

Mr. Wagner announced in Quebec City earlier Thursday that his department had investigated the claims of Dr. Marcoux, who is running as an independent candidate for the Nov. 8 election, and found there were no grounds for criminal action against the six in connection with the switch in allegiance.

Mr. Caouette said the only thing between him and Dr. Marcoux was the fact that "Marcoux wanted to be the official Credit leader in Ottawa, instead of Caouette, but it's Caouette who was there."

Mr. Caouette attacked the Liberals for what he called their attempts in 1963 to show that Social Credit could be equated with "misery and hell."

THINKS THEY'RE POORER

The Liberals seemed to have less money this year as they were not placing as many advertisements in the newspapers. He wondered aloud whether this could be "because Lucien Rivard is no longer here to finance them."

"This year they (the Liberals) show you a nice announcement, framed in red, showing Caouette, Thompson and Marcour under the title "Je Vous ai Tant Aime" (I loved you so much) or "Que reste-t-il de nos amours" (what is left of our loves).

"They could just as well have shown pictures of Pearson, Dupuis, Rouleau, Asselin, Rivard and Banks under the same title.

"Anyway, I leave the scandals to the Liberals. Those who want Justice will vote for the Ralliement des Creditistes."

"The Liberals stole from us in 1963 by paying people who came and told us they wanted to help us in the polls, but who seemed about with the ballot boxes."

Mr. Caouette said the party was still a vital force in Quebec.

"Some newspaper men may write that the Social Credit philosophy is dead. But I know that Caouette is slowing down. They will see on the night of Nov. 8 that the Social Credit in Quebec is not as dead as they think."

Soviet Factory Manager Gets Room to Operate

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A new era may be dawning for the long-suffering Soviet factory manager.

Under a plan unveiled by Premier Alexei Kosygin, some of the fetters that until now have stifled individual enterprise will be removed and they will have more room to exercise private initiative.

They will still be bound by an army of government controls that would drive any capitalist factory manager to distraction.

But the proposals put forward by Kosygin, himself a former factory director who presumably knows how frustrating excessive controls can be, should at least give them more chance to manoeuvre.

Observers here believe that much of the significance of Kosygin's plan may lie in the business-like spirit that animated it and in the straightforward, unembellished terms in which it was presented.

Kosygin referred to the industrial enterprise as the country's "main economic unit" and said it was necessary to expand both its economic independence and its field of initiative.

HITS BUREAUCRATS

"One should give up the old notion that in relations between leading economic bodies and enterprises the former have only rights and the latter only duties."

The emphasis was clearly on clipping the wings of planning bureaucrats and giving factory managers more scope to run their operations on the basis of profitability.

How deep an impact the proposals actually have will depend largely on the reaction of vested interests, some observers believe. There have been reports that Communist party officials at the local level, who form a vast network of vested power in the Soviet Union, are opposed to the kind of changes Kosygin has proclaimed as government policy.

Factory managers have often complained that such officials interfere in day-to-day operations, aggravating the problem of over-rigid control by state planning organs.

Under Kosygin's plan all but one of the four labor indices handed factories from above will be scrapped. The one retained will be the amount of money set aside for wages.

Labor productivity, number of workers and level of average wages will be determined by the enterprise itself.

STILL GETS ORDERS

In addition, however, the factory will be told what goods and volume it is to sell, the amount and margin of profit, and its payments into and from the state budget.

Kosygin in his speech offered a number of insights into the shortcomings afflicting Soviet industry—from failure to utilize fixed assets properly to analytical falldowns by "one learned economist," from shoddy cost-accounting to low-quality consumer goods production.

At one point he came close to admitting that, in a practical sense, unemployment or heavy underemployment exists in the Soviet Union — something that Soviet economists have always stoutly denied.

"There are considerable reserves of manpower in small towns, especially in the western areas of the Ukraine, Byelorussia, a number of places in Transcaucasia, and in some of the central areas of the Russian Federation," said Kosygin.

One reason was a tendency to build new enterprises primarily in large cities. "That cannot be considered as correct," declared the premier.

Party Leaders On Way Home -- Await Vote

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Political exhortations have passed the climax and party leaders are homeward bound to await the outcome of Monday's vote in Canada's 27th general election.

Voting hours for some 10,200,000 persons eligible to cast ballots Monday are 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. The turnout is expected to be lighter than the near-record 79.6 per cent in 1962. The record is 79.8 per cent in 1958.

The weather has been forecast as typically Novemberish. Cold and perhaps snowy in the Atlantic provinces; cool but sunny in Ontario and Quebec; cold with light snow on the Prairies; cloudy with coastal rain in British Columbia.

Party leaders held their last big rallies Friday.

Today Prime Minister Pearson makes for Ottawa from Toronto with final campaign stops along the north shore of Lake Ontario.

ARE AT HOME

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, and Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, are in their home ridings of Burnaby-Coquitlam, British Columbia, and Red Deer, Alberta, respectively.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, also in Quebec's Labelle riding for a speaking engagement on behalf of his candidate son, Gilles, before returning to his home constituency of Villeneuve.

Mr. Pearson told a cheering, overflow crowd in a Hamilton theatre Friday night that he will go anywhere, including Viet Nam, in search of peace.

Earlier, in Kitchener, he said there is a swing, almost a sweep," to the Liberals and that a vote for the New Democratic Party could accomplish no more than another Diefenbaker minority government.

Mr. Pearson said in a statement at Vancouver that Mr. Pearson was resorting to "scare tactics" in asking voters not to support the NDP.

"The facts are that Mr. Diefenbaker has no chance of forming any kind of government," Mr. Douglas said. "The battle in this campaign is between the NDP, which has a program, and the Liberals, who have only their record."

ACCUSES LIBERALS

Mr. Diefenbaker said at a Regina rally that the Liberals are trying to encourage votes for third parties in an attempt to defeat Conservative candidates.

"I am asking you to vote for yourselves," he said in an ap-

Denis Told $60,000 Available

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal business agent Guy Masson testified Friday he informed Rayond Denis in June last year 1 $60,000 was available for the Liberal party if anything could be done for Lucien Rivard.

He also said at Denis' preliminary hearing before Magistrate Glenn Sirtke that he received two sums of money—one of $1,000 and the other of $800 to $1,000—when he came to Ottawa to see Denis about Rivard.

He said he got the first $1,000 before coming here with his business associate Robert Gignac to see Denis and he got the second payment after he conferred in a motel room with Denis, former executive assistant to the federal immigration minister.

Rivard, since convicted in the United States as the key figure in huge narcotics smuggling conspiracy, was in a Montreal jail at the time awaiting disposition of a U.S. request that he be extradited to Texas to face the narcotics charges.

Denis is accused of offering a sum of money to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, counsel for the U.S. in the Rivard extradition case, to drop his opposition to bail for Rivard.

A second charge says Denis wilfully tried to obstruct the course of justice by attempting to dissuade Mr. Lamontagne from opposing bail for Rivard.

Mr. Masson said he can't remember whether he told Denis that Gignac showed him a trust company cheque slip for $60,000.

Earlier evidence was that Gignac and Mrs. Rivard made such a deposit June 25, 1964.

Mr. Masson said that he had tried to get an appointment to see a Senator Grilano to tell him about the $60,000 the day after his June 22 conference with Denis.

When he told Denis the appointment had been refused, Denis had said "he would see about it." However, he never got an appointment.

Mr. Masson testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act which means he cannot be prosecuted on the basis of it except for perjury.

He said he and Gignac met

Seven Killed In Crash

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—The death toll in a flaming collision between a car and a semi-trailer carrying a fertiliser chemical rose to seven Friday night when the sole survivor died en route to hospital in Winnipeg.

Holly Pope Hostiuk, 13, of Grandview, Man., was critically injured in the accident which killed four other members of her family.

Police identified the other victims as truck driver Charles Hatlet, 33, of Winnipeg; Fred Kostiuk, 8, of Grandview, his wife Rose, 39, his mother, Mrs. Olga Kostiuk, about 60, his son Theodore, 8, and Robert Hykawy of McGregor, Man.

Police said the two vehicles collided as the car travelled south on highway 4 and the truck travelled east on the Trans-Canada Highway seven miles west of here. The impact hurled the vehicles 100 yards apart and both burst into flames.

All but one of the six car passengers were thrown from the vehicle and the truck driver was trapped in his burning unit.

Three Portage La Prairie fire department units responded to a call for help but were hampered by a lack of water.

Cuban Refugees Allowed

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) President Johnson announced today the signing of an agreement which will permit 3,000 to 4,000 Cuban refugees each month to fly to the United States on American planes.

Johnson expressed his satisfaction with the agreement, saying in a statement:

"I am pleased with the understanding which has been reached. It is an important forward step in carrying out the declaration I made on Oct. 3 to the Cuban people. I said that those who seek refuge here will find it. That continues to be the policy of the American people."

Priority will be given to Cubans who have immediate family relatives already living in the United States.

The refugee exodus will be by commercial airliners chartered by the U.S. government.

Smith Says Wilson's Terms Destroy Plans For Compromise

From Reuters-AP

SALISBURY (CP) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith took another step toward an illegal seizure of independence today by rejecting the latest British proposals to resolve the crisis.

Smith told British Prime Minister Wilson that he had imposed so many conditions on his proposal for a royal commission to solve the independence issue that it was difficult to believe it was seriously intended.

The proposal for a royal commission on the Rhodesian crisis emerged from Wilson's dramatic emergency trip to Rhodesia in his last month in an attempt to avert Rhodesia's threatened seizure of independence.

Britain had proposed "that a royal commission should test whether all Rhodesians 250,000 white and 4,000,000 Negro —favor independence linked to the colony's 1961 constitution.

Wilson, Heath Prepared for Emergency

LONDON (Reuters) — British government machinery went on a stand-by basis this weekend in case Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith seizes power unilaterally against repeated British warnings.

Prime Minister Wilson, attending a family wedding in Cardiff, Wales, today, will have an air force plane ready to fly him back to London at a moment's notice.

Opposition Conservative leader Edward Heath, on a speaking tour in Scotland, also has a special charter plane standing by. Members of Parliament will be asked to approve sanctions against Rhodesia if the white minority government declares independence unilaterally.

Government sources, however, said the preparations are routine, contingency planning and not an indication that British leaders think powers will imminent.

"I regret to say the impression you left with [illegible] during Wilson's recent visit to Salisbury) of a determined effort to resolve our constitutional problems has been utterly dissipated," Smith said in a letter to Wilson.

SEES DOOR CLOSED

"It would seem that you have now finally closed the door you claimed publicly to have opened," Smith said.

Wilson made his proposal in a letter to Smith on Wednesday.

Smith's reply said:

"I regret to tell you that the only conclusion to be derived from your letter is that it is useless to, and can only be interpreted as, a rejection of the proposals [regarding a royal commission] agreed with you in Salisbury."

Referring to Wilson's reservation that the British government would not commit itself

PLEASED WITH "CAT" — Britain's Princess Margaret takes close look at the San Francisco Press Club monument to Jose Sarria after a brief press conference at the club, first stop in her four-day tour of the Bay Area. She seems pleased with the stone reproduction of the big black cat, traditional insignia and mascot of the press club. Behind her is British Minister Michael Stewart. (AP Wirephoto)

Princess Margaret Enjoys Tourist's Tour of Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Princess Margaret, a tourist's tour of San Francisco complicated, plunges into the official side of her United States trip today.

She is visiting the University of California's nearby Berkeley campus and then dates her first western-style barbecue.

The meat will be sliced from a 50-pound wild boar on the Monterey Peninsula, 135 miles south of San Francisco.

The princess, accompanied by her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, made it clear Friday that much of her tour is strictly pleasure.

She smilingly overrode security misgivings and boarded an San Francisco cable car for an eight-block ride up steep Russian Hill.

Although she appeared delighted with the trip, she froze momentarily when photographers crowded around the open cable car, held back by only a wall of security men. The high benches in the open end of the cars face the sidewalk.

Such seats are favored by women with pretty knees.

Regular passengers aboard the cable car obviously were delighted with getting such a close view of the princess and her husband.

"She looks awful small, but awfully pretty," said one middle-aged woman passenger. The princess is five feet, one inch tall.

The cable car ride was part of an afternoon tour. In an open red convertible car the royal couple visited Coit Tower on Telegraph Hill and peered through a 10-cent-a-look telescope at the magnificent hilltop view of the city.

They drove past Fisherman's Wharf and over to a yacht club basin.

Accompanied by several members of the royal party, the Snowdons went for a cruise in San Francisco Bay on a 60-foot yacht of hotel man Dan London.

"They seemed to enjoy themselves," said London, who showed them the old prison island of Alcatraz as well as Golden Gate Bridge. "It was a little chilly out there, but they didn't seem to mind it."

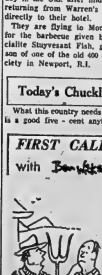
Later, the princess donned a green - chiffon short evening dress and a full-length mink coat to attend a reception given by Michael Stewart of the British embassy in Washington at the San Francisco consul general's residence.

They dined at their first private party with Whitney Warren, San Francisco patron of the arts, whose list of less than 20 guests included bullfight expert Barnaby Conrad.

"It was a lovely party," said Warren. "And they certainly seemed to enjoy the view." Warren's antique-filled home is on Telegraph Hill.

Dazzling in a silver-and-white brocade costume and a mink hat, the princess had previously accepted the keys to the city from Mayor John F. Shelley. Lord Snowdon was given a miniature silver cable car.



They also presided over a charity fashion luncheon which featured British clothes.

They wound up their first full day in the U.S. after midnight, returning from Warren's party directly to their hotel.

Jets Hit Missile Launcher

From AP-Reuters

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. Navy jets struck at a Communist surface-to-air missile site 35 miles east of Hanoi Friday after a Navy F-8 Crusader jet was shot down near the site, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

Pilots reported that one missile launcher was hit in the raid. They said they also saw another explosion in the complex.

The pilot of the Crusader, the 154th plane lost over North Viet Nam, was seen parachuting by the other pilots. However, he was in a densely populated area and no attempt was made to rescue him.

The spokesman said the pilots sighted five missiles in the air as they were pounding a road-and-rail bridge 35 miles east of the North Vietnamese capital.

The strike was the sixth against the site so far by American aircraft.

Platinum Climbing Like Rocket

NEW YORK (AP)—The price of platinum, a metal as precious as it is jet engine as it is in a piece of jewelry, is climbing like a rocket.

Many people in the metals industry are blaming the Soviet Union for the price increase.

But the Soviets, they say, couldn't care less.

Platinum was quoted Friday at a record $170-to-$175 an ounce in the world market at London. This is five times the price of gold, and the highest level for platinum since 1820 when it reached $154 an ounce on the open market.

At New York, some platinum contracts for future delivery sold as high as $167 an ounce, after eight days of hicks.

"Where the price is going to stop, nobody knows," said one dealer in precious metals. "It depends on how much industry will pay and on what the Russians do."

The Soviet Union stopped selling platinum last week in a Zurich sales meeting at its withdrawal from the market. Since the U.S.S.R. supplies, by some estimates, 30 to 50 per cent of the world annual platinum output, the market was left in a dither.

Platinum is used in products from jet engines to fertilizers and electrical contacts to fancy bracelets, so the price climb affects all many industries in the pocketbook.

It depends on how much platinum they have set aside and how much they can get from companies which sell directly from Russia and from producers in South Africa and Canada, the other major platinum countries.

MOSCOW (AP)—A Secretary of the Soviet industrial export organization, which handles Soviet platinum exports, said today the price was available to comment on a report from New York.

The report said the Soviet Union had stopped selling platinum, causing confusion and pushing prices in the platinum market.

The secretary said no one would be available until Tuesday, following holidays for the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. Comment even then is not assured, since Soviet government export organizations usually refuse to discuss their business publicly.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Partly cloudy conditions are forecast for the day with snowflurries in the more northern areas. An extensive area of high pressure is moving southeastward towards the prairies producing fair but cooler conditions for Sunday. Present indications are for a continuation of this weather on election day.

Russia and U.S. Are Divided On India-Pakistan Ceasefire

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The threat of a U.S.-Soviet split on the India-Pakistan crisis cast a shadow today over a new move by the Security Council to endorse the shaky truce.

The Soviet Union broke the big power unanimity that had prevailed on the issue when it abstained Friday on a council resolution demanding that both sides stop violating the cease-fire and agree to a deadline for pulling back their troops.

Sovigt Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko said he refrained from voting because the resolution ignored a Soviet demand for a three-month limit on keeping UN truce observers in India and Pakistan.

Fedorenko, however, did not cast a big-power veto, which would have killed the resolution. It passed 9-0 with the U.S.S.R. and Jordan abstaining.

Delegates expressed fear that UN efforts to establish a meaningful peace between India and Pakistan might be scuttled if the two big powers split over the issue.

Fedorenko blamed the U.S. government for "delays" day for the break in the united front that had seen the council make unanimous decisions on the Asian crisis except for a June Jordanian abstention Sept.

"We have drawn special attention," he told the council, "to the fact that the Security Council should set up a concrete time limit for the presence of UN observers, which in any event must not exceed three months.
